History Repeats—Bookie Lid's Off

Herald Reporter Finds It's Easy To Place a Bet

IT'S A SNAP TO BET at the public golf course or in lobby of a downtown hotel . . . . . . Page 1B

HOW HOT'S THE HEAT when police agencies have cracked down . . . . Page 1B

By DOM BONAFEDE
Herald Staff Writer

The lid is off and the town's wide open.

It's bookies, bookies everywhere.

Not since Sen. Estes Kefauver and his crime-busting committee slapped down Greater Miami's syndicate gamblers nine years ago have the bookmakers dared to work so openly under the sun.

Anyone—but anyone—can lay down a bet on a horse, or a fight, or a ball game. All he has to show is money.

A Herald reporter working a couple of afternoons with the Greater Miami Crime Commission didn't have a bit of trouble even though in most cases he was a stranger to the bookmakers.

A Smooth Bookie Is 'Phantom'

Dade's bookmakers operate on the "phantom principle."

You don't see them.

You see their agents. The agents have runners. And the runners have pickup boys.

The "phantom principle" is the bookies' own term. It's the sign of smooth organization — no fly-by-night operation.

You place a bet with a bellboy, a porter, a cabby, a lifeguard, a newsie, a grocer, a butcher, or — yes, it's true—sometimes even a candlestick-maker.

He may take your money, or he may give you credit—a wave of the hand or a simple, "OK, you're in."

To get your bet "down"—placed on the particular race—your betting source in Dade County immediately telephones the bookie's agent.

"We don't call The Man, himself often," a runner told a Herald reporter Saturday. "Somebody might be looking over my shoulder when I'm dialing."

The agent phones in the bet.

The payoff is worked in the same ladder fashion. The bookmaker has a collector. He makes his rounds daily, usually in the mornings, before the races begin, or in the evening, after they are over.

He pays off or collects with the agent. The agent goes through the same procedure with his runner. The runner then either pays you or collects.

"Slips," or notations of bets, are no longer fashionable — or

Turn to Page 2A Col. 4

He put down 12 different bets on races and fights on both sides of Biscayne bay—Miami and Miami Beach.

And wherever he went, particularly on the Beach, the bookies were cautious but confident. Two even remarked the "fix" is in as they held out their hands for the cash.

A few, however, refused to take bets. They said they'd heard the state's attorneys men were around.

One said that at 7 a.m. that morning the word had gone out: "Beware of strangers today."

Locations of the transactions ran from a plush country club to downtown hotels to cubbyhole newsstands. And the bettakers were everything from suave men-about-town to Damon Runyon characters with colorful nicknames.

In most instances, the bets were made with the ease and unconcern you would have in buying a quart of milk at the corner grocery store.

The fact that the deals were made without the bookie knowing the bettor was the best indication that the town is open, a crime commission investigator said. It's a rule among bookies never to do business with strangers — unless you have protection.

In addition to the dozen person-to-person bets, two others were made over the telephone by a Herald reporter posing as a bettor.

Multiply this by the scores of other betting spots throughout the length and breadth of Dade County and you get an idea of how the gamblers have moved in, the crime commission investigator said.

A reflection of this shows up in the five per cent decrease in attendance and three per cent drop in betting at Hialeah Race Course this season even though there are more tourists here.

Cancer Hits Dulles; Herter Will Fill In

I Would Take Post -Herter

No Offer Made, Says Dulles Aide

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — Undersecretary of State Christian A. Herter, mentioned as a possible successor to ailing Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, said Saturday he would accept the post if President Eisenhower offered it to him.

Herter made the statement in answer to questions on arriving here to take over as acting secretary of state pending the outcome of Dulles' second cancer attack.

The illness raised serious doubts that Dulles would ever again be able to resume full-time duties. But Herter emphasized he had "not been sounded out" as a possible successor.

The man most frequently mentioned as a possible successor was C. Douglas Dillon, undersecretary for economic affairs.

Other speculation centered on Herter; Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, a close friend of the president; former Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York; Henry Cabot Lodge, U. S. Ambassador to the U.N., and banker John J. McCloy, former U. S. high commissioner to Germany.

Dillon ranks slightly behind Herter. But political and diplomatic experts believe there are factors which might lead Dulles to recommend and the President to select the former investment broker over the former governor of Massachusetts.

Age is one consideration. At 49, Dillon has an obvious advantage over Herter, who is 63. Herter also has an arthritic condition which forces him to use crutches and a wheelchair.

Dillon also has served as U.S. ambassador to France and representative to NATO. He also is known as a firm supporter of Dulles' "rigid" policy in U.S.-Soviet dealings on German reunification and other European problems.

Herter is considered to be more "flexible" in his approach and willing to attempt new methods which Dulles at times has frowned upon.

Europeans Express Sympathy

LONDON — (UPI) — The announcement that John Foster Dulles has cancer drew expressions of sorrow and sympathy from European officials Saturday, even those who have bitterly opposed him.

A 37-word dispatch from the Soviet Tass News Agency brought news of Dulles' illness to Moscow. Speculation that Dulles would not return to work was bound to cause reaction in the Kremlin, which has denounced Dulles for years as a symbol of "imperialist aggression."

However, despite the flood of sympathetic statements from Western officials, it was considered unlikely there would be any immediate Russian reaction.

British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan, who had conferred with Dulles only last week during the secretary of state's hasty European tour to deal with the Berlin crisis, expressed his "great regret." He wished Dulles "a speedy recovery." Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd, Dulles' British counterpart, also expressed sympathy.

In Bonn, Dulles' good friend, Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, expressed the hope and belief that the American diplomat would recover.

"I believe Mr. Dulles will be able to take up his foreign political work very soon again," Adenauer said.

Dulles' Cancer Can Be Controlled

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Secretary of State John Foster Dulles has a type of cancer which is highly malignant, doctors said Saturday, but one which can be controlled for several years.

In many such cases the patient can return to full or limited occupations.

Private physicians gave this appraisal in interpreting for a reporter the medical bulletin issued by the surgeons who operated on Dulles for hernia Friday. They reported Saturday he will undergo radiation therapy for cancer.

The physicians said the medical bulletin indicates that the cancerous tissue found Saturday represents a spread from the original colon cancer for which Dulles underwent an operation in 1956.

The present diagnosis in Dulles' case is that he has an "adenocarcinoma."

It most commonly arises in the glandular portion of the intestinal tract, which has millions of glandular cells. Their function is to secrete mucus and gastric juices.

An adenocarcinoma is different from other types of cancer such as "sarcoma," which is a cancer of connective tissue — such as bone tissue or brain tissue. It is also different from cancer of the blood such as leukemia.

The doctors said they interpreted the medical bulletin to mean the following:

That the small nodule or lump found on the part of the intestine involved in Dulles' hernia represented a spread from focus of his original colon cancer operated on in 1956.

The doctors said that at the

Hampered U.S. Policy Is Feared

By Herald Wire Services

WASHINGTON — Congressional leaders voiced grave concern Saturday that Secretary of State John Foster Dulles' second cancer attack may hamper U.S. foreign policy at a time of crisis.

The announcement comes at a time when the U.S. and its allies are preparing for delicate negotiations with the Soviet Union on the Berlin crisis, German reunification, and European security.

But Senate Democratic Whip Mike Mansfield of Montana, a member of the Foreign Relations Committee, said Dulles' illness "is a devastating blow to the nation, to the world and to the hope for peace" at a "time of desperate need."

Sen. Frank Carlson (R., Kan.), also a foreign relations member, said he hopes that even though Dulles is on leave of absence, "our nation will get the benefit of his background experience which is so important now."

Miami Train Off Track

A few passengers were slightly shaken up but none was hurt.

A. M. Livingston, a passenger agent on the train, said a spring apparently broke on the wheel mechanism of a sleeper coach. This caused the train to ease into an emergency stop, he said.

Livingston said the train would be stalled until wrecking equipment arrived from Hamlet, N.C. That would probably take several hours.

Most of the 350 persons on the 18-car train were unaware of what had happened until they were told. Passengers in the crippled coach reported being slightly jolted.

President Silent on His Plans

Further Surgery Is Not Planned

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — Secretary of State John Foster Dulles has again been stricken by cancer, raising grave doubts that he can continue as chief architect of President Eisenhower's foreign policy.

The grim news was announced Saturday by the President after he personally talked to the venerable cabinet officer at his bedside.

Dulles was operated on for a similar malignancy in November, 1956, and was believed cured.

The President said Dulles is fully aware that he has cancer again.

He said "further treatment" will be required and that Dulles will continue on a leave of absence.

The President's statement, read to reporters at Walter Reed Army Medical Center, did not touch on Dulles' future tenure in office.

According to a White House spokesman, the President has no plans now to appoint a new secretary. He will still fly to Acapulco, Mexico, next week, to visit the president of Mexico.

Eisenhower received word about 9 a.m. that Dulles had reincurred cancer.

Undersecretary of State Christian A. Herter flew back from a South Carolina vacation to take over as acting secretary. He will fill, at least temporarily, one of the most difficult posts in the world.

State Department Press Officer Lincoln White said "no further surgery on Dulles is contemplated. He said radiation therapy will be used in the immediate future.

The finding of free cancer cells was made on the basis of microscopic examination of tissue and fluid taken from Dulles' abdominal region during a hernia operation Friday.

Doctors said the radiation therapy — employing radium, X-ray or use of new radioisotopes developed in the atomic age — will be designed to attack the new outbreak of cancer in the hope of cutting down its spread to other parts of the body.

Nothing was said by either the President or White about the possibility of a resignation by Dulles, who will be 71 Feb. 25.

In the 1956 occurrence, a cancerous portion of Dulles' intestine was removed by Walter Reed surgeons. The malignan-

A Tragic Illness

Due to the mechanical intricacies of publishing Sunday's Miami Herald, the Editor's Notebook by John S. Knight was written and printed before the news of the tragic illness of Secretary of State John Foster Dulles.

All the nation admires the courage and fortitude of Mr. Dulles and joins in hopes for his early recovery though his condition may require him to resign.

It is with these thoughts in mind that the reader may turn to the Editor's Notebook on Page 2G where the office of Secretary of State and our foreign policy are discussed in detail.

11 Perish in Flames In Firetrap Building

Nine Hurt Jumping For Life

ASHLAND, Ky. — (UPI) — Eleven persons, including five members of one family, were burned to death early Saturday when flames swept through several small second-story apartments in a converted theater building.

Nine other persons suffered burns and injuries jumping from the upstairs windows of the two-story building. Police, who arrived shortly after the blaze started, helped rescue some of the victims.

Boyd County Coroner Russell Compton identifed the victims as Jack McKenzie, 30, his wife, Polly, 28, whose son was stillborn after she jumped from the building, and their three other sons, Johnny William, one; Mickey Joe, two, and Jackie, four. Firemen said their room had a door but no windows.

Fire department officials said that one of the bodies was incorrectly identified as that of Frank Kirk, Ashland, who lived at the building but was out of town at the time of the fire. The body of the fire victim remained unidentified late Saturday.

Other dead were listed as James E. Powell, 22, of nearby Flatwoods, Ky.; Mrs. Grace Blanton, 45, a cook in a restaurant on the first floor of the building; Frank Artis, about 45; and Clyde May, all of Ashland.

Still hospitalized late Saturday were: John Lucas, 42, Denton, Ky.; Fay Fannon, 17,; Alice Fannon, 19, and John Posey, about 85. They all suffered burns and other injuries. Five other persons were dismissed after treatment.

The building, the old Columbia Vaudeville Theater built in 1891, had only one exit, an inside stairway which was cut off by the flames. Ironically, materials for a fire escape which was to have been installed next week were stored in the rear.

Her Best Valentine: Dad, Brother Alive

ASHLAND, Ky —(AP)— Saturday was the best Valentine's Day ever for Frank Kirk's family.

Identified by relatives as among the 11 dead in Saturday morning's apartment house fire, Kirk, 47, turned up alive in Wayne, W. Va., a few hours later.

So did his 14-year-old son, Jack, who had been listed as missing and feared dead in the fire.

A daughter, Mrs. Jim Barker of Ashland, said, "I can't explain how I felt when I learned that my father was alive and well."

Her husband and Russell Kirk of Ashland, an uncle, had identified a body as that of her father at a temporary morgue.

She said she wanted to make sure of the identification before she could believe it, and had called a cousin, Harold Lee Pelfrey, at Wayne. It was then that she learned her father and brother were safe. They had been visiting Pelfrey since Thursday.

Sweeney Misses; It's $700 Now

By SUNNY FORTUNE
Herald Puzzle Editor

Another week, another $100. That's today's story of the Sunny Fortune Puzzle, now worth $700.

SUNNY

On account of J. M. Sweeney of Homestead, it almost wasn't so. Sweeney wrote "owe" for "own" on last week's game, and as a result, he doesn't own the jackpot.

That includes Mrs. E. L. Loftes, also of Homestead, who wants us to put something straight. Remember last week when we mentioned the woman who worked the puzzles secretly so her husbnad wouldn't fuss at her?

Well, it wasn't Mrs. Loftes.

I know she'll be glad we're mentioning this, because she writes, "I am in the dog house. My husband says I wrote you . . . and he is guilty of fussing at me."

Take heart, fussed-at women of South Florida. Someone's got to win sometime, and maybe it'll be you. So grab your pencils, cross your fingers, and turn to Page 12B.

History Repeats-- Bookie Lid's Off

swing in bookie operations here, most law enforcement officials have been sticking by the theme: "Most booking is on a sneak basis."

Shortly before noon Saturday a reporter sauntered into the lobby of the Dolphin Hotel, in downtown Miami at 937 NE 1st Ave. In the stuffed chairs sat several men, almost all of whom were studying racing forms or odds sheets.

After striking up a conversation with one of the lobby-loungers, the reporter inquired as to where a bet could be made.

"The fellow will be around pretty soon," was the reply.

Within a few minutes "the fellow" — who turned out to be an elevator operator called Harry — came over and offered a racing sheet to the reporter.

Harry then gave a signal: "Follow me."

At a recess of the lobby he candidly acknowledged he took bets — "for friends."

After accepting a $10 bet on the first race at Hialeah he informed the bettor to come back at three o'clock if the horse won.

The horse, a favorite called Skate, obliged by coming in first, paying $3.90 for each $2 wagered.

If your taste runs to fighters as well as horses you can still get action. But let's cross the bay to Miami Beach to do it.

He, in turn, passed it on to short, stubby "Myer the Flyer," who sits at the rear of 540 Washington Ave.

The office of the society has been raided twice in the past 13 years for bookmaking, although not in the past two years.

It is the only place in Dade which leases a special sports results teletype from Western Union.

According to the Southern Bell Telephone Co., the telephones in the place were installed on application from Benny Husick, alias Benny Harris, who is currently out on $5,000 bond in an armed robbery case. Husick, alias Harris, has a record of 17 previous arrests.

Early last week a newsman asked Miami Beach Police Lt. C. W. Huddleston, day chief of detectives, about the activities at the club.

"So far as I know, all they run up there are quiet card games," he answered.

Also, within the last few weeks there have been rumblings of increasing bookmaking and gambling at the elite hotels of Miami Beach.

It was learned that State Attorney Richard Gerstein and Assistant Attorney General George Owen last week paid a call on the owner of one of the Beach's swankiest hotels to advise him to clamp down on horse betting.

Varying viewpoints were expressed by Gerstein and Dan Sullivan, director of the Greater Miami Crime Commission.

"A concerted effort by this office," declared Gerstein, "in combination with the office of Attorney General Richard Ervin and Metro Public Safety Director Tom Kelly has reduced bookmaking to a minimum in comparison to other years.

"However, I'm convinced we've had our usual influx of winter season bookmakers."

He estimated his office has made 40 gambling arrests since the start of the tourist season.

Said Sullivan:

"In recent days the Crime Commission has received a number of reports the Beach has opened up and that gambling has also opened up in some of the plush oceanfront hotels.

wise. The Herald was told—for the runner or agent to make.

"If they (the police) ever do make a hit (arrest), they got evidence if they find the slips.

"We let the bigger boys worry about the slips. We just pick 'em up (the bets) and deliver (the winnings)."

The bookmaker pays his agent a regular commission fee just as any salesman might receive. The agent does the same with his runner.

At the end of a day's work, an agent cannot welch on his "take" to the bookmaker because he is paid only on what he gets down (bets actually recorded).

Every bet, every "relay" (of heavy wagers), every "tip" (on odds) is passed along from bookie to agent, or from agent to bookie, from a pay telephone booth — either on a business premises or on the street.

"That way," a runner boasted, "the businessman can always plead (to prosecuting law authorities) that the pay phone is essential to his business and would prove a definite hardship if taken out.

"And the funny part about it," the runner said, "since I been down here eight years, the courts always fall for that one."

"You can see," the runner said, "they (bookmakers) could only use their phantom principle if they were all organized.

Wabash Dangers Are Eased

Sandbags Hold; Ice Breaking Up

WEST TERRE HAUTE, Ind. —(AP)— This flood-threatened city came through a crucial test Saturday when the crest of the flooding Wabash River flowed past the town without destroying the sandbag dike holding off its backwaters.

A huge ice jam began breaking up under mild temperatures upstream at Delphi, easing another peril on the storied Wabash. The lower end of the jam began moving downstream in small sections.

The sandbag dike on Sugar Creek was punctured but quickly patched as the flood crest built up early Saturday. But in the hour of greatest crisis, it proved equal to the test.

The Wabash had been expected to reach a depth of 24.3 feet at West Terre Haute early Saturday. Light rain helped raise it to 24.6—10.6 feet above flood stage. It remained stationary for awhile, then by afternoon fell to 24.3, in spite of light rain.

The Indianapolis weather bureau said flood stages were falling from West Terre Haute virtually all the way upstream.

Although the worst crisis appeared to be over for West Terre Haute, a fresh contingent of 125 National Guardsmen and 50 penal farm prisoners was sent in to keep a close watch. When the dike broke, the workers succeeded in plugging up the break before much water poured onto the suburb.

Meanwhile, officials predicted a monumental ice jam upstream from Lafayette, which threatened bridges and homes, might break up "momentarily" or at least with the arrival of a two-foot rise on the Wabash.

Attorney general John W. McConnell and two engineers inspected the 12-mile long ice pack and decided it would not be necessary to dynamite the ice loose.

Convict Disturbance Quelled at Raiford

RAIFORD —(AP)— State prison warden Dewitt Sinclair said Saturday night two Negroes who injured a guard precipitated a disturbance — Sinclair further described it as "a farce" — which was quelled without violence by the warden and an armed squad.

The warden said he and armed guards went to a dormitory housing the Negroes and 117 others Saturday and said "if you want to bring out the two who caused the disturbance go ahead. If not, we'll come and get them."

No one made a move. The guards made the dormitory inmates file past them and picked out 23 men who figured in the disturbance.

"Everything is quiet," Sinclair said Saturday night at the prison, to which he returned from South Florida when word of the disturbance reached him.

The injured guard was Acting Capt. Leland Pace, 53. Sinclair said he strained an old operation in being jostled by the two Negroes but was not hospitalized.

Davis Loses Stock Suit

Multi-millionaire industrialist Arthur Vining Davis lost his fight in federal court Saturday to recover $970,434 he said he paid into a stock deal with Texas millionaire Jack Frost.

A 12-man federal jury ordered Davis, 91, to pay an additional $323,478 to Frost to complete payment on the $1,293,912 deal for 161,739 shares of Three States Natural Gas Co.

Davis contended in his suit against Frost that the stock was misrepresented and he should have his nearly million dollars returned.

Latin Lands On March

WASHINGTON — (AP) — If present trends continue, the world's population will swell to nearly 6,300,000,000 persons by the year 2,000 — with the biggest gains coming in Latin America, Asia and Africa.

This was the view reported by Dr. Harold L. Geisert, a George Washington University sociologist, who forecast a world population rise of almost 152 per cent above the 1950 level.

Geisert said his study shows that Latin America is growing more rapidly in population than any other major area.

cy was reported effectively checked.

"While I was with him," the President said, "his doctors discussed with us their finding of the existence of malignancy not fully determined at this time as to its extent, but certain to require further treatment."

He added that he "expressed the thoughts and prayers of all of us that the results of this operation and the further course of treatment will be successful."

The chief executive's statement was read to newsmen by Assistant White House Press Secretary Anne Wheaton.

White reported Dulles was "in good spirits" after the hernia operation. He said "a small nodular implant on the hernia sac" was removed.

"No further surgery is contemplated. In the immediate future radiation therapy will be used."

White said Dulles' doctors expect he will have to remain at the hospital "for several weeks." He declined to speculate on the outlook for the ailing secretary beyond that or the course of treatment.

Sosa Blanco Gets Break

HAVANA, Cuba — (AP) — The death sentence against ex-Maj. Jesus Sosa Blanco was set aside Saturday and he was granted a new trial.

Sosa Blanco had been condemned Jan. 23 on war crimes charges.

He was tried in Havana's sports palace in the first major showcase trial in the capital.

The new trial was granted by the same military tribunal that tried him in the sports palace. His new trial was set for 10 a.m. Monday before a superior war crimes tribunal.

At his first trial the 51-year-old career army officer was convicted on charges of murdering at least 25 persons, robbery, looting and burning homes of rebel sympathizers in Oriente Province.

Dulles' Cancer Can Be Controlled for Years

time the colon cancer was removed in 1956, some small portions of it may still have remained, involving lymphatic glands neighboring on the original cancer site.

And ultimately, they said, the cells apparently spread to the new site.

The doctors said that while the outlook in cases of adenocarcinoma is ultimately grave, the further spread of the cancer can be kept under control for several years in many instances.

They said control involves such measures as X-ray and chemotherapy. This includes the use of certain drugs derived from nitrogen mustard, a war gas developed during World War I. One of the most effective of these nitrogen mustards is one called "thiotepa."

One person was asked whether the presence of adenocarcinoma would be compatible with a return to duty in such a job as secretary of state. The doctor said it would be all right, provided activity were limited largely to desk work, with no "long periods of strenuous activity."

And he offered the view that there should be "no prolonged worldwide travel." Dulles has been making numerous long trips in his job.

The doctor said that in some cases of the disease, daily treatment with X rays is required. In such cases, he said, it is well to stay close to a source of such treatment.

Maggie Truman Is Expecting

NEW YORK —(UPI)— Clifton Daniel said Saturday he and his wife, the former Margaret Truman, are expecting their second child in June.

Daniel and the daughter of former President Harry S. Truman were married April 21, 1956. They are the parents of a son, Clifton Truman Daniel, 18 months.

National Summary

Cloudy skies and showers will persist across the Gulf region through the weekend except for fair and warm weather over the Florida peninsula. Rain in the Atlantic states and southern Appalachians is likely to end following the invasion of colder air.

Freezing rain mixed with snow over portions of New York and New England should change to flurries today. Scattered snow showers are expected over the northern Rockies and plateau and snow is scheduled from the Dakotas into Minnesota today, while a mixture of snow and rain continues in the Pacific northwest.

Heavy wind driven rain is indicated for northern and central California today with substantial snow fall anticipated in the mountains and some rain may move into southern parts of the state today.

A disturbance moving across the Great Lakes region Saturday was followed by cooler air which scattered snow flurries from the Dakotas and Nebraska into the upper Mississippi Valley and cleared most of the wet weather out of the lower plains.

The cold front was marked by showers from east Texas into Indiana at mid-day while mild air over the southeast yielded occasional rain and temperatures in the 60's as far north as Kentucky and the Carolinas.

Annual Award Dinner on Monday Features Brotherhood Observance

Brotherhood Week, which starts today, will be officially opened in Miami with the annual Brotherhood Dinner Monday evening.

FITE

Observed nationally by the National Conference of Christians and Jews, brotherhood week in Miami will be headed by Robert H. Fite, president of the Florida Power and Light Co.

Gov. LeRoy Collins will head the list of honor guests for the dinner scheduled for 7:30 at the Americana Hotel.

He will receive the annual brotherhood award of the Florida branch of the NCCJ.

To be honored with him are C. Clyde Atkins and Anna Brenner Meyers who will also receive the traditional silver medals. James M. LeGate will make the presentations.

To receive youth awards from Judge Ray Pearson are three high school students, Willie Green, Booker T. Washington High School; Mary Sarah Kelly, Miami Edison; and Jerome Bill Ullman of North Miami High.

Speaker for the dinner will be the Very Rev. W. Patrick Donnelly, president of Loyola University. His topic: "Brotherhood Is Everybody's Business."

The Rev. A. E. Gysan, pastor of Christ Lutheran Church, will offer the invocation, and the benediction will be said by Dr. Irving Lehrman, rabbi of Temple Emanu-El, Miami Beach.

Floridians will observe the brotherhood theme during the week with special religious services, programs in schools, and in service club meetings.

Counselor Posts Bond In Robbery

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — William W. Rabin, a 52-year-old Chicago business counselor, was freed on $5,000 bond Saturday after his arrest on charges of receiving part of the $2,250,000 loot in a Canadian bank robbery.

U.S. Commissioner James F. Splain fixed the $5,000 and despite and FBI suggestion that it should be twice that amount. Splain said he set the lower figure because of Rabin's cooperative attitude.

Rabin was arrested here on a charge of receiving $98,000 of the loot in a safecracking at the Brockville Trust and Savings Co. in Ontario last May.

Java Floods Spread

JAKARTA, Indonesia — (AP) — Floods in Java have spread to the east of the island, where 8,000 people have had to evacuate 2,500 houses.

Deanna Again Wow in Japan

Locomotive Clutters Up The Yard

By Herald Wire Services

In These U.S.

LAURENS, IOWA — Herb Delano's main concern Saturday was getting rid of the 120-ton engine of a Rock Island freight train that plowed nearly into the kitchen of his home.

Mrs. Delano and three of her children were standing Friday at the living room window where the youngsters usually watch trains go by 50 feet away.

Several cars on the freight jackknifed and sent the diesel engine rolling down an eight-foot grade and into the Delano yard where it came to rest upright about 36 inches from the kitchen window.

It didn't damage the house but it caused great excitement for the Delano youngsters, Jo Ann, five, Perly, three and 18-month-old Herbie Jr.

Cab Holdup Wasn't Enough

NEW YORK — Taxi Driver Samuel Schwartz, held up in his cab, quickly handed over his wallet and change maker. But that wasn't enough for the tow bandits.

They rode on with Schwartz, 43, and had him pull over to the curb in the Navy Yard section of Brooklyn.

"We feel like shooting you," said one. He pointed a gun and a bullet crashed through the driver's ribs. The bandits, both Negroes, then fled. His condition is termed critical.

Shotgun Guard Slays Pigeons

TRENTON, N. J. — A policeman patrols the Lower Trenton Free Bridge these days picking off pigeons with a 12-gauge shotgun. He's bagged about 300 in the last two days.

William Johnson, executive director of the Delaware River Bridge Commission, said it was hoped the necessity for painting the bridge, which costs an estimated $42,000, would be postponed.

Males Losing Family Control

NEW YORK — The increase in juvenile delinquency has come about because the American male has abdicated as king of the household, according to one expert.

"The American father has relinquished his role as a strong authority in the American family. I don't know why," said Will C. Turnbladh, director of the National Probation and Parole Association.

He testified before a Senate subcommittee looking into youth crime.

Mixed Family Loses Appeal

NEW YORK — The State Commission Against Discrimination has refused to uphold a complaint against the New York Housing Authority made by a white woman whose husband is a Negro.

Mrs. Charlotte Miles had contended that the authority forced her and her husband Irvin to accept an apartment in the Stephen Foster houses in Harlem. She said she had requested a transfer to another project because the Foster Houses were occupied mostly by Negroes.

The authority refused her request,, saying that it limits the number of Negroes in housing projects in certain areas.

Public Frowns on Union for Policemen

By GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

The Gallup Poll

PRINCETON, N.J. — Any plans to organize policemen and firemen in cities throughout the country are not looked upon with favor by the U.S. public.

Nor do union members themselves favor unionizing policemen, although the weight of sentiment among them favors unions for firemen.

These are the highlights of a recent nationwide survey completed by the Gallup Poll which finds that a majority of the public is opposed to unions for policemen and firemen. In the case of two other groups tested in the survey, public school teachers and professional baseball players, the weight of sentiment is opposed to unions for these groups.

Teamsters' Union head Jimmy Hoffa's plan to organize the 24,000 policemen making up the New York force encountered Police Commissioner Stephen Kennedy's warning to his force that joining a union would be a violation of the department's regulations and grounds for dismissal.

As part of its series of reports on the public's attitude toward labor unions and labor union practices, the Gallup Poll assigned its nationwide staff of trained reporters to put these questions to an accurate cross-section of the public:

POLICEMEN'S UNION?

"Would you favor or oppose unions for policemen?"

Favor	27%
Oppose	55
No opinion	18

FIREMEN'S UNION?

"Would you favor or oppose unions for firemen?"

Favor	32%
Oppose	51
No opinion	17

SCHOOL TEACHER'S UNION?

"Would you favor or oppose unions for public school teachers?"

Favor	38%
Oppose	43
No opinion	19

PRO BASEBALL PLAYERS' UNION?

"Would you favor or oppose unions for pro baseball players?"

Favor	29%
Oppose	40
No opinion	31

Although sentiment among the public is opposed to unions for public school teachers, it is to be noted that there are more in favor of a union for this group than for any other.

Among union member families themselves, a clear majority favors unions for public school teachers.

POLICEMEN'S UNION?

Favor	39%
Oppose	45
No opinion	16

FIREMEN'S UNION?

Favor	48%
Oppose	40
No opinion	12

SCHOOL TEACHERS' UNION

Favor	55%
Oppose	30
No opinion	15

PRO BASEBALL PLAYERS' UNION

Favor	37%
No opinion	26

Earlier reports in the series have shown that although nearly seven out of every 10 voters approve of labor unions, an overwhelming majority of the public and of union member families who have followed the McClellan Committee's investigations of racketeering in unions believes the committee should go on wtih its work.

There is a considerably larger proportion of the public that believes present labor laws are not strict enough than believes they are about right or too strict. Union members feel almost as strongly as the public about the need to tighten labor laws.

9-Year-Old Girl Tries To Rob Bank

ALGONAC, Mich. — (AP) — A nine-year-old girl handed an Algonac State Bank teller a penciled note which demanded all the bank's money in a cardboard box.

The child didn't write the note, authorities said. Nor did she deliver it of her own accord. State and federal authorities quoted her as saying two older boys met her in the street and told her to take it inside.

The message not only requested the bank's money but warned that a radio-controlled bomb had been placed in the building.

State Police Detective Larry Hosmann said the bank was searched but no bomb was found.

Police questioned two 16-year-old Algonac youths picked up after the little girl described the pair who gave her the note, enclosed in an envelope. The message instructed the bank to send a woman teller to a rural road near Algonac, where she should drop the money in a ditch.

Car Takes Dive, 6 Ohioans Drown

CHARLESTON, W. Va. — (AP) — Six persons were killed Saturday when their car veered off U. S. 21 about 15 miles north of here and plunged into the Poca River.

The bodies were recovered, and the first to be identified was that of Mrs. Edith Hale Spangler, 52, who lived in a trailer park near Youngstown, Ohio.

The other victims also lived in Youngstown. They were Mrs. Madeline Russell, 32, and her four children by an earlier marriage, who bore the name of Bowden. They were Madeline Lee, 13; Iris, 11; Kim, nine, and Juanita, eight.

State Trooper G. W. Dickson said the death of all six was attributed to drowning. There were no marks of injuries on the bodies.

The accident appeared to have been caused by rocks in the highway washed down during the night's rain. The car was braked just before reaching them, then veered through the guard rail and down the steep 25-foot bank in the swollen river.

Specialists To Discuss Heart Ills

See Story Page 3J

You don't have to seal yourself in cotton just because you have heart trouble.

Especially if you live in Florida.

Six well-known heart specialists will discuss "Heart Disease—Present and Future" at the Heart Forum scheduled Tuesday for the Miami Beach Auditorium.

The forum, sponsored as a community service by the Heart Association of Greater Miami, will be free to the public.

Moderator will be Dr. Victor Kugel and the panel will include Dr. Robert Boucek, Dr. Robert S. Litwak, Dr. Paul Unger, Dr. William Straight, Dr. Milton Saslaw and Dr. Peter Steincrohn.

Weiss to Speak

Walter Weiss, chairman of the Metro Commission, will speak at a dinner meeting of the Coconut Grove Chamber of Commerce Monday at 8 p.m. at the LaCasita tearoom.

Gift From 'Guest' Batista

Mr. Trujillo: Here's Million

Rafael Trujillo
. . . it helps

PORTLAND, Ore. — (AP) — Rep. Charles Porter (D.,Ore.) says Fulgeneio Batista, the ousted Cuban dictator, gave one million dollars to Rafael Trujillo, the Dominican strongman, after taking refuge in the Dominican Republic.

Porter told the Oregon United Nations Association. That he learned about the gift in Venezuela, where he spent several days this week as a guest of President Romulo Betancourt.

He said the money has been distributed to six advertising agencies in this country to win friends for Trujillo in the U.S.

"When I get back to Washington I am going to disclose where this money is and what it is to be used for, if the disclosure is not made before then," Porter said.

The congressman went on to say about Trujillo:

"I definitely feel he faces revolution, not only from inside the palace, where it is apparent he has lost face, but also from the outside."

Porter added that he does not deal with any revolutionaries but has "talked with some of them when they have come to see me and I encourage revolutions against tyranny."

Tot Starves, Mother Gets Year in Jail

PRICHARD, Ala. — (AP) — A 26-year-old mother was sentenced to a 12-month term at hard labor on a manslaughter conviction in the starvation death of her 10-week-old daughter.

Police Recorder Emmett I. West also fined Mrs. Opal Moore $500. She pleaded innocent. The woman gave no indication of appeal.

Testifying in her own defense, Mrs. Moore, mother of four, told the court she knew the baby had been losing weight, but "I had trouble with all my babies until they started eating baby food."

West commented in passing sentence that it was "a pitiful case."

Hospital authorities said the infant, Sybil Lynn Moore, died Jan. 24 of malnutrition and dehydration. The child weighed eight pounds at birth but was down to five pounds when admitted to the hospital two days before her death.

Polish Sledder Asks Asylum

LYONS, France —(UPI)— Police said that Jean Steler, 30, vice president of Poland's bobsled federation, has asked French authorities for political asylum.

Steler left the Polish team which last Sunday participated in the bobsled championship events.

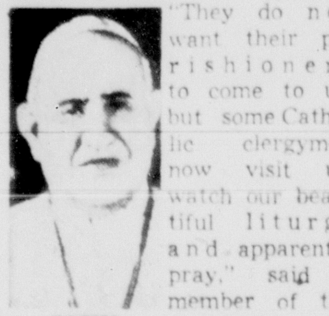
Roman Catholic Priests Visit Orthodox Church

By PAUL HOFMANN
The New York Times Service

ROME — Roman Catholic priests have started dropping in at the only Eastern Orthodox outpost in Papal Rome.



JOHN

"They do not want their parishioners to come to us, but some Catholic clergymen now visit us, watch our beautiful liturgy and apparently pray," said a member of the congregation at the Russian-Orthodox Church here.

Roman Catholic interest in Eastern Orthodoxy has revived since Pope John XXIII recently called for an ecumenical council, or general conference of the church, to seek Christian unity. Confidential feelers are understood to have been put out particularly in direction of Eastern Orthodox Christians.

Contacts are believed to have been established with Athenagoras I, Greek-Orthodox patriarch of Istanbul.

A well-informed ecclesiastical source here said a European Roman Catholic priest may soon visit Moscow for preliminary soundings of the Orthodox patriarchate there. The source stressed that this emissary would carry out his mission completely independent from Rev. Louis F. Dion, the new American Roman Catholic resident priest in Moscow.

Archimandrite Simeon, superior of the Russian-Orthodox Church in Rome, declared: "We have not been approached by the Vatican." The bearded Orthodox churchman, who has been serving in Rome 30 years, appeared reluctant to discuss interconfessional relations.

His was the only place of worship in this city of nearly 500 churches where solemn service was held in honor of Saints Basil, Gregory and John Chrysostom, the great fathers of the Greek Church, whose feast fell Thursday according to the old-style Orthodox calendar.

The elaborate ceremonies of the Eastern rite unrolled before a thin congregation. A few Russians, especially aristocrats who married into the Italian nobility, other Slavs and some Italians go regularly to the Orthodox Church. None of the many diplomats and dependents of the Soviet embassy here has ever been seen in it, worshippers said.

The new Pope's initiative for reunion with "separated communities" in the Christian world is being examined with caution also by Protestants here.

Manfredo Ronchi, a Baptist pastor who is chairman of the Federal Council of Evangelical Churches in Italy, suggested that Pope John was looking for support of the Roman Catholic episcopacy throughout the world against certain "internal currents" in the church that opposed his "liberal" views. Ronchi made clear he was speaking in a personal capacity.

Ike May Pay Call To India

When President Eisenhower goes to Mexico next week, the trip probably will be a warmup for other ventures outside the U.S. The President would like to relieve world tensions by his personal effort before he leaves the White House. With that in mind he is toying with the idea of visiting India and Europe while he is still President.

By EDWIN A. LAHEY
Chief Of Our Washington Bureau

MEXICO CITY — Why is President Eisenhower traipsing all the way down to Acapulco next Thursday for a two-day visit with President Adolfo Lopez Mateos of Mexico?

LAHEY

Eisenhower may have a subconscious desire to remind our Mexican friends that Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas is not the chief executive of the United States, as is widely rumored in these parts.

But the real purpose of the President's trip is even more interesting.

This will be a warm-up for the final and most important phase of Eisenhower's life-long tour of public duty. This phase, as it will develop in the next two years, will reveal the President in his warmest role — that of personal ambassador to the free world.

* * *

EISENHOWER would like for the workers who sandblast the lettering in his headstone to have a script saying that he left the White House with the tensions of the world reduced because of his own personal efforts.

Time is closing in on the President. He now has only 100 weeks left in the White House. And he hopes earnestly that he can contribute something to a relaxation of the international political atmosphere by personal visits outside the U.S.

Eisenhower is quite taken up with the idea of going to India for a visit. We may begin soon to have inklings of official plans for such a trip.

The political stakes in such a journey by the President would be high. India is a brooding and uncertain giant, sitting on the sidelines as the world struggle for the minds of men is carried on.

The difficulties that would arise in a visit by the President to India have already been privately discussed inside the White House. The greatest problem, aside from the question of security, would be the difficulty of limiting the itinerary. It would be hard for the President to go as far as New Delhi without also visiting other neutralist nations in the Far East. The nations not visited would feel snubbed.

* * *

ANOTHER obvious trip coming up for the President is a visit to Europe this year to help celebrate the 10th anniversary of NATO.

Eisenhower's own stretch as commander in chief of NATO forces in the early years of that organization was his political springboard.

It is quite liekly that the President would make a European trip to NATO headquarters a real forum for an appeal to end international tension.

The hypersensitive Mexicans might not like the thought that the visit of President Eisenhower to Acapulco next Thursday is merely a warming up trip for the President's career in personal diplomacy.

But it will be an important visit in that Eisenhower has what it takes to break down the emotional barriers that rise between us and our Latin American neighbors.

Faker Hit Wrong Bell

DETROIT —(AP)— Arnold A. Perkins, 39, rang the doorbell and waited to ask for funds for the Salvation Army. But it was the wrong doorbell.

He had noticed Perkins was dressed in a fake uniform, topped off with a chauffeur's cap with a red band on which had been painted Salvation Army. The hat lacked the army's crest.

Perkins was charged with attempting to obtain money under false pretenses.

Note to Visitors —
We Ship Anywhere
Recent out-of-state orders include carpet to Cleveland, Chicago, New York and Las Vegas, at prices lower than in those cities . . . carpet like we have installed in the Fontainebleau, Blue Horizon, Kimberly, Broadripple, Felix Young's Restaurant, etc. Come in and let us show you that our delivered price (we ship F.O.B. Miami) will be below what you'd pay back home.

We bought a contract surplus of raw wool and had a famous mill — one of the finest carpet manufacturers — tuft this material into the most gorgeously colored, nubby twist — broadloom carpet. See it tomorrow.

The moment you walk on this all-wool carpet you'll note the springy feel… resiliency you normally associate with the most expensive broadloom. Fine 3-ply wool creates this springiness — in a carpet so appealing to the eye… so tough and so easy to keep new-looking that you'll be proud of it for years to come.

Effects Questioned

Florida Jurists Split Over Death Penalty

TALLAHASSEE—(UPI)—A representative group of Florida jurists expressed widely divergent views Saturday on whether capital punishment helps prevent crime.

Comments of judges ranged from one who "doubts" the death penalty prevents many crimes, to another who favors "public hangings."

Many judges had no fixed opinion. Others felt capital punishment is a deterrent in some crimes, particularly rape, and a few said juries are virtually doing away with it by recommending mercy in a majority of cases.

Seven states have abolished it.

The most recent was Delaware, in 1958. Minnesota and North Dakota banned it in the early 1900s while Maine, Michigan, Rhode Island and Wisconsin did away with the death penalty in the 1800s.

But there has been an increase in the number of states with capital punishment since World War I. Before that war, 12 states had abolished it. Five have since reinstated it, Kansas only recently.

* * *

MOST EUROPEAN countries do not have it. France and Russia are the only western European countries with it.

And the long term trend is this country has been toward reduction of the number of offenses for which the extreme penalty can be imposed.

There currently are 31 types of offenses punishable by death in one or more states.

But executions have declined in the past 25 years—dropping from 155 in 1930 to 76 in 1955. Executions occurred in only 19 states in 1955.

The growing disuse of it by juries is responsible for the lack of agitation to repeal it some states.

It is difficult to obtain valid comparisons because of regional differences in crime rates and other factors.

The uniform crime reports of the FBI for 1951 showed a murder rate per 100,000 population in New England of 1.2, for instance, against 12.4 in East, South and Central regions.

* * *

THE MOST RELIABLE statistics available apparently is comparisons among the murder rates of adjacent states, which show no significant differences in murder rate although some states abolished the death penalty years ago.

Michigan, with no death penalty, had a murder rate in 1951 of 4.4 per 100,000 population. The neighboring states of Ohio and Indiana had 4.3 and 4.7.

Wisconsin and Minnesota, which outlawed capital punishment years ago, had a murder rate of 1.3 and 0.8, compared to 1.5 in Iowa, a death penalty state.

Rhode Island, with no death penalty, has a rate of 0.9 compared to 1.1 and 1.7 in Massachusetts and Connecticut.

Most recent official state study was made in California where a special legislative committee recommended in 1957 that the state either abolish the death penalty or put a moratorium on its use.

Abolish It

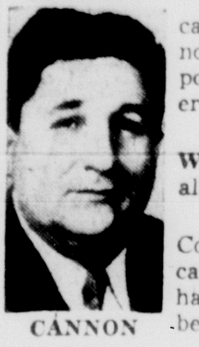
SENATE PRESIDENT-DESIGNATE DEWEY JOHNSON, Quincy, said there are good arguments on both sides, but he believes he will vote to abolish the death penalty if it comes before the Legislature.

JOHNSON

"In capital punishment, if you make a mistake, there is no way to correct it," Johnson said.

GOV. LeROY COLLINS said preliminary studies he has made of states which bar the death penalty show the crime rate has not gone up and, in some cases, declined.

States that are side by side, one having capital punishment and the other not, reflect no difference in crime rate. "It is almost impossible to justify capital punishment any longer as a deterrent to crime.



CANNON

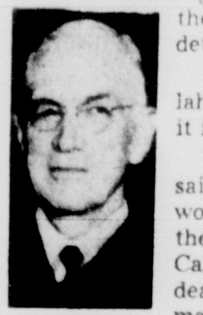
CIRCUIT JUDGE PAT CANNON, Dade County—"Dade County juries won't stand for capital punishment. In every capital case I've handled in 7 years on the bench, there has been a recommendation for mercy."

Keep It

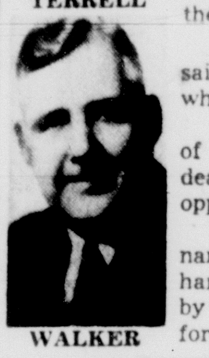
FLORIDA'S CHIEF JUSTICE, GLENN TERRELL, said the state should keep capital punishment as a deterrent to crime among "certain classes."



TERRELL

CIRCUIT JUDGE W. MAY WALKER, Tallahassee, said he's no "crank" on it but feels it is a deterrent in grave and serious offenses.

CIRCUIT JUDGE L. L. PARKS, Tampa, said all criminal law prevents crime and "there would be a lot more crimes committed if there were no provision for capital punishment." Carswell said although there are cases where death is the most merciful thing, he doubts if many criminals think of the punishment when they are committing the offense.



WALKER

Jacksonville JUDGE CHARLES LUCKIE said there are times when it is good and times when it is bad."

STATE ATTY. WILLIAM A. HALLOWES of Jacksonville, who handled a majority of the death cases in recent years, said he is not opposed to capital punishment.

One judge, who declined to be quoted by name, said "I think they ought to have public hangings." He said he watched one witnessed by 200 people "and you can bet they won't forget that."

Little House That Isn't There

LEXINGTON, N.C. — (AP) — John B. Leonard figured he'd seen the limit of ingratitude when his 1958 city tax notice listed a $4.30 billing for an ancient four-room house.

Red-faced city officials hurriedly sent a follow-up letter advising Leonard the tax had been dropped.

They suddenly remembered that last year Leonard had let city and county firemen burn the house in a training exercise.

Busy Coeds

SOUTH HADLEY, Mass. —(UPI)— About half the student body at Mount Holyoke Women's College held paying jobs last summer, according to a recent report by Drue Matthews, director of the school's appointment bureau.

Soviets Honor Yiddish Author

LONDON — (AP) — Soviet Russia has issued a new postage stamp to mark the 100th anniversary Feb. 18 of the birth of Sholem Aleichem, the Yiddish author sometimes called the Jewish Mark Twain. He was a native of the Ukraine. Tass said the stamp bears a portrait of the author and has a value of 40 kopeks (10 cents).

Worship Yields To TV Favorite

STOKE, England — (UPI) —The Rt. Rev. Anthony Otter, bishop of Grantham, has changed the time of his Lenten services on Wednesday from 7 p.m. to 7:15 p.m.

Too many parishioners want to watch a TV show on British family life call "The Archers" which is on at the earlier hour.

Ya Gotta Watch Those Heels!

"You can talk to him and talk to him," Wiley said, "but watch out he don't kick you. That's what we've got — we're dealing with a jackass."

Senator to Speak

U.S. Sen. Gale McGee, (D., Wyo.) will speak to the Dade County Bar Association at 12:15 p.m. Monday at the Columbus Hotel.

May All Work for Thy Glory

By JIM BISHOP

Go With God

A list of President Dwight D. Eisenhower's favorite poetry, prose and prayers obtained in 1957, included the Lord's Prayer; a Prayer for Generosity composed by St. Ignatius Loyola; a Prayer for the Nation from the Book of Common Worship; the 23rd Psalm; the Prayer of the Scientist in Sinclair Lewis' novel "Arrowsmith"; A Child's Evening Prayer by S. T. Coleridge; and lines on "He Prayeth Best" in Coleridge's "Rime of the Ancient Mariner," as well as William Cowper's "Light Shining Out of Darkness."

Give us, we pray, the power to discern clearly right from wrong, and allow all our words and actions to be governed thereby and by the laws of this land. Especially, we pray that our concern shall be for all the people, regardless of station, race or calling.

May cooperation be permitted and be the mutual aim of those who, under the concepts of our constitution, hold to differing political faiths: so that all may work for the good of our beloved country, and Thy glory. Amen.

DWIGHT D. EISENHOWER

What Ever Became of . . .

BIG LITTLE BOOKS?—In the depression 1930s, the biggest deal in a kid's life was promoting himself a dime so he could run to the store and buy a Big Little Book. These tomes were square, thick, about as big as a man's fist. Their 15,000 words, copiously illustrated, recounted adventures of such comic strip characters as Skippy and Little Orphan Annie. They were put out by Whitman Publishing Co. at Racine, Wis. They first appeared in '33, sold at a million-a-month rate in '35, pooped out before World War II when color comic books captured the market.

Today, Whitman's is making another stab at Big Little Books. Within the last year, it has published six new titles, based on TV characters. Now it's a question of whether a kid can promote half a dollar to buy one, because they sell for 49 cents.

Moral Issue Complicates State's Efforts to Clean Up Welfare Rolls

By JOHN L. BOYLES
Capitol Bureau Chief

* * *

Most citizens agree that dependent children are the responsibility of the state. Recent disclosures of some fraud among those receiving cash for the care of such children brought a demand for a "shakeup" in handling of welfare rolls.

But investigators have found that the reason for the steadily climbing drain on the state treasury is the increase in the number of illegitimate children. Now the issue has become — what can be done about this increase without penalizing innocent youngsters?

* * *

TALLAHASSEE — An old moral question is involved in the quest of a legislative committee for some way to penalize sinning parents without denying their children welfare aid.

The Florida Department of Public Welfare is requesting 218 million dollars for the next two years compared to 158 million received in state and federal funds for the current biennium. The Budget Commission has recommended that be increased to 174 million dollars.

For the next two years the department is requesting 78 million dollars for aid to dependent children, more than double the amount in the current budget, plus two million dollars for medicine.

The State Budget Commission has recommended the request be cut to 45 million dollars and that no additional funds be provided for drugs.

A committee headed by Rep. James N. Beck, of Palatka, has recommended abolition of common law marriages among other proposals to tighten welfare regulations.

The committee's principal target in the welfare program is aid to mothers of illegitimate children. Under present state laws, maximum aid for dependent children per family is $81 per month.

Frank Craft, acting director of the Welfare Department, recently told the committee that charges of fraud within the dependent children program are not as serious as some legislators have indicated.

He pointed out that aid to illegitimate children represents only about 25 per cent of the total expenditures for the entire dependent children assistance program.

The Welfare Department has 68,290 dependent children on its rolls. Of that total, 18,701 are white and 49,500 are Negro children."

Assistance is paid for the care of 13,476 illegitimate children, of which 12,862 are Negroes.

Aid also is provided in another classification for children of what is referred to as the "substitute daddy."

For example, a woman may have been married or established a common-law relationship with one man but produced children by other men. On the welfare rolls the children are considered to be fathered by her first or legally recognized husband.

In this group, there are 5,591 Negro and 277 white children drawing financial aid.

State Rep. E. C. Rowell of Webster believes that banning of common-law marriages and the cutting off of recipient mothers who have an illegitimate child while already on the welfare rolls would cut down on cases of alleged fraud.

Pro-Western Stand Is Rapped

Pravda Warns Iran on Policy

By Herald Wire Services

MOSCOW — Pravda has warned Iran of the "dire consequences" of its pro-Western policy.

The Communist Party organ came out in the wake of a Soviet government statement Thursday charging that a "two-faced insincere policy" on the part of Iran led to the breakdown of negotiations with the Soviet Union for a non-aggression pact.

The Russians also claimed the U. S. intervened to prevent the non-aggression treaty and worked instead for a U. S.-Iranian military agreement, currently being negotiated.

"A similar policy did not help the king of Iraq and his clique," the paper added.

Pro-Western King Faisal of Iraq was killed in the revolt in that country last July.

Austrian Chief To Visit Reds

VIENNA — Austrian President Adolf Schaerf will pay a 10-day visit to the Soviet Union late in May, the Austrian government has announced.

This will be one of three state visits to different countries planned by 68-year-old Schaerf this spring. On June 1 he will visit Sweden and then Finland.

These will all be goodwill visits since the president of Austria serves only as the ceremonial chief of state.

Flying Mice Stop the Show

World News

ROME — Young neo-Fascists broke up the performance of an anti-Mussolini play for the second time in a week by parachuting live mice down on the audience.

Women in the audience were the first to notice that mice in parachutes were interspersed among a shower of leaflets dropped at the end of the first act.

Police grabbed several of the mice in air by scrambling through the audience and seizing the tiny white, red and green parachutes, the colors of the Italian flag.

Factories Urge Birth Control

TOKYO — A weekly Tokyo magazine created a sensation with an article disclosing that 82 major Japanese companies have launched birth control movements among their employes.

It said leading firms have adopted the slogan, "Lower productivity in the home — raise productivity in the factories."

Spokesmen for several of the firms that have adopted the program said the article is basically correct but "too sensational and misleading."

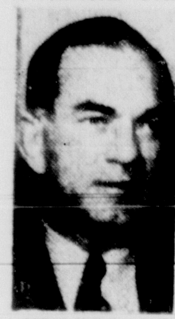
Foreign Service Upgrading Urged

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — Sen. J. William Fulbright, new chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said Saturday he feels the committee's main job is to help upgrade the State Department's prestige and improve its efficiency.



FULBRIGHT

The Arkansas Democrat made it clear in an interview that he has no intention of trying to run foreign policy from the Capitol and thinks Congress should follow the same policy.

"However," he said, "we can play a big role in stimulating more forceful and imaginative policies."

The scholarly legislator emphasized that there is no practical way for Congress to take the initiative. He said foreign policy "is the job of the executive department but we can stimulate and encourage the executive to take more initiative."

Fulbright, who took over the chairmanship recently from 91-year-old Sen. Theodore Francis Green (D., R.I.), said he feels strongly that the State Department and its foreign service should be improved.

He said the foreign service needs more top-flight ambassadors, more persons skilled in foreign languages, and higher pay and allowances to make it possible for able men of limited means to hold key ambassadorships.

"It is utterly inexcusable that we don't pay them enough," Fulbright said, with an addenda that the problem goes deeper than that.

"We don't have a long history and tradition of civil service that attracts the most able men," he said. "There is no tradition of excellence. Today, a young man's idea of success is to be president of General Motors or something — not to be ambassador to Iraq."

After all, he said, foreign policy is only an indirect reflection of domestic policy. He said, "they can't be divided," because "what you do abroad has got to be supported at home."

The only answer, said the onetime Rhodes Scholar and former university president, is that "the people must be educated up to the importance of foreign policy . . . there is still a lingering suspicion on the part of many that we don't really have to do all these things abroad."

Bride Must Be 16, Says New Mexico

SANTA FE, N. M. —(AP)— The New Mexico Senate treated rather lightly, then killed two bills which State Sen. William Osborn (D., Rosewell) said were "good and necessary."

The bills would have lowered the age for marriage with parental consent from 16 to 14 for women and 18 to 16 for men. The other was a companion bill lowering the age on statutory rape from 16 to 14.

"Now, the only way a girl of 14 can get married is to have a doctor's certificate that she is pregnant," he said. "A lot of kids are finding out about this and using this means to force the marriage."

Osborn said the proposed ages are the same as those in Texas.

The bill was defeated 22-10.

But Burglars Stay on the Job

SYRACUSE, N.Y. —(UPI)— Mrs. Beverly Goodnow told police the following items were missing from her apartment when she returned from a two-weeks' stay with relatives:

A couch, a chair, two end tables, two lamps, a coffee table, a bed, spring and mattress, a dresser, a kitchen table and four chairs, a television set, a radio, a phonograph and six rugs.

Check That Toll For Jersey Trip

EASTON, Pa. —(UPI)— A Lafayette College expense ledger for a year in the 1840's came to light recently and included such items as: "Building whitewashed, $3.50; 103 pounds of beef, $4.12; toll to Jersey for a girl, 24 cents; to stranger for apples and pears, 44 cents."

Washington Star Building Sold

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Sale of The Star building, home of The Washington Evening and Sunday Star, was announced. The price was not disclosed.

The building, at 11th and Pennsylvania Ave. NW, was sold to James C. Dulin, a Washington banker and lawyer.

The Star will move soon to its new building in southeast Washington.

The sale included a building now occupied by a drug store adjoining The Star. The structure, the announcement said, will be remodeled for modern, air-conditioned offices.

Golda Meir to Get Bond Honor Here

Mrs. Golda Meir, minister for foreign affairs of the State of Israel, will be guest of honor March 6 at a Miami Beach dinner marking the 1959 Inaugural Conference of State of Israel Bonds.

MRS. MEIR

Admission to the dinner will be through the purchase of $1,000 or more in Israel Bonds.

This year the bond campaign must raise a minimum of 75 million dollars nationally to provide for the thousands of Jewish immigrants to Israel.

The dinner and other sessions of the two-day conference will be held in the Fontainebleau Hotel.

Dr. Joseph J. Schwartz, vice president of the Israel bond organization, said the national tribute to Mrs. Meir will recognize her 30 years of "historic leadership as a pioneer builder of Israel."

Among the projects listed by Dr. Schwartz on which the funds will be used are irrigation projects, increase in citrus production for foreign markets expansion of the merchant fleet and growth of new towns.

Surfsiders To Take Office

The Surfside Civic Association will install officers at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the Surfside Town Hall.

Officers are Louis J. Gold, president; Louis B. Hoberman and Alex Ross, vice presidents; Kenneth Wolis, secretary, and Louis Hirsh, treasurer.

A Cityful of Hoosiers Needs a Ride

EVANSVILLE, Ind. — (AP) — Officials of Indiana's fifth largest city still were looking Saturday for someone to run the local bus lines while stranded residents simply looked for empty taxicabs.

Only one company indicated it might be willing to fill the gap created when the Evansville City Coach Lines abruptly halted service because of large financial losses.

That firm was the St. John Transportation Co. of Dayton, Ohio, which has the city bus franchise for Terre Haute, Ind.

Evansville Mayor William Davidson said he had been told by the St. John Co. that it would file a petition immediately with the Indiana Public Service Commission asking for a temporary permit to provide bus service here.

John W. Van Ness, PSC chairman, said in Indianapolis the commission probably would grant a temporary permit.

Mayor Davidson said that if the labor and management groups involved could get together, Evansville's 128,000 residents might have bus service again by Tuesday night or Wednesday morning.

Truth Wins Him Acquittal

HARTFORD, Conn. — (UPI) — Casimir A. Rosinski, 41, admitted he smelled like a brewery following a traffic accident in West Hartford, but he insisted he wasn't drunk.

A Common Pleas Court jury acquitted Rosinski when he explained he works in a brewery and always smells that way.

4 Showgirls, 8 Hands...No Diamonds

By JOY REESE SHAW
Herald Staff Writer

Show Business Has Changed

. . . agree Janie Thomas and Shirley Forrest

Are diamonds still a girl's best friend?

I had put the question to two of the prettiest girls in show business and those were two of the answers.

We sat in the half-light of the Latin Quarter's Lounge and talked things over. The plush Palm Island Club, seemed oddly quiet in mid-afternoon.

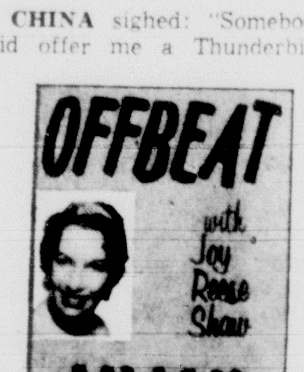
"Remember the fabulous tales Big Annie (a wardrobe mistress) told us about the old days," asked Shirley. "The champagne, mink stoles, and wall safes for the valuables?"

* * *



CHINA sighed: "Somebody did offer me a Thunderbird in Vegas once — drove it right up on the lawn. I turned it down.

* * *

DANY confessed all: "Someone gave me a little gold cross once and it had a diamond in it."

"Times have changed. Show business has changed. And I guess people in it have changed," observed Shirley, a former schoolteacher who taught German.

CHINA majored in psychology at Pasadena City College in California. But, she admitted, she doesn't always use it on the fresh guys.

"I tell 'em to drop dead," she said.

DANY: "I haven't had a date in two months."

CHINA: "Who wants to go out at 3 a.m.?"

The girls sleep until 1 p.m. wash, iron, shop and do the hum drum duties of other working girls by day.

In between, they pursue their hopes — and hobbies . . . China her sketching, painting and photography; Dany her song-writing. Shirley is reading a book on Nietzche's philosophy.

And the pay? Good showgirls earn an average of $100 a week, they indicated — $200 in Cuba and Vegas.

What do the girls find most annoying about the business?

JANIE: "Drunks who grab at your legs. You see, I come out in a bird cage and . . ."

CHINA: "The phoniness. Everyone has a facade."

Morals in show business are far higher than in movies and television "where the stakes are high," they agreed.

SHIRLEY: "It's the grey-flannel people you have to worry about — the clean-cut Ivy-League boys. The agencies are full of them."

Like China said, a phony world. Make-believe. Magic.

Diamonds?

. . . none on Shirley

It's Taxes First, Then Ambulance

CLEVELAND, Tenn. —(AP)— "I came to pay my city taxes, so I may as well pay them while I wait," said Helen Beaty. She was waiting for an ambulance.

At the hospital, attendants said Miss Beaty was badly shaken by her fall but that no bones were broke."

3 Children In Chains; Dad to Jail

LILLINGTON, N.C. —(AP)— a 12-year-old girl testified here that she and her younger brother and sister spent Christmas in chains.

The children's father, Russell Allen, a Harnett County farmer, was sentenced to six years in prison by County Recorder's Court Judge Robert B. Morgan. Allen was charged with wilful neglect and assault.

The children, Mary Lee, 12; Geraldine, 10, and Jerry, eight, were found in chains at the home last week.

The father said he chained the children to keep them from running loose.

Mrs. Irene Geddie, who lives in the same small house with her 10 children, was sentenced to two years for aiding and abetting in the mistreatment of the youngsters.

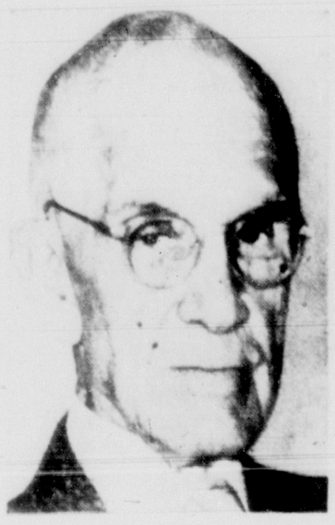
Dr. Townsend Doesn't Know How Old He Is

By JOY REESE SHAW
Herald Staff Writer



Dr. Townsend
. . . speaks here today

Don't peddle this around, but someone in the Townsend family is fibbing.

Dr. Francis Everett Townsend — father of the Townsend Plan for oldsters — thinks he was 93 on Jan. 13.

"But my sister says she's 94, and she was always two years older," declared the doctor.

"I don't know if the Bible is wrong or my sister is fudging."

The retired physician also has a kid brother, 75.

At 92 or 93, whichever he be, the veteran crusader for more and better things for the nation's elderly is a keen-witted, peppy man who looks and acts far younger.

"That's because I don't worry," he announced. "Worrying is what makes you sick and kills you. And I find nothing attractive about dying."

Here to speak to a meeting of Dade Townsendites at 3 p.m. today in Bayfront Park, the proponent of a national insurance plan for the old and infirm terms worry "a habit."

How to break the habit?

"That unloads lots of things," he advised with a vigorous nod.

Other than vitamins (Townsend brand) and freedom from worry, the grand old "man with the plan" has none of the usual pat formulas for staying fit.

"I eat when I'm hungry and sleep when I'm sleepy," he announced. He travels around the country alone, mostly by plane.

"It's faster and I like to get where I'm going."

He's not sure exactly where he's going — but he's sure it's forward.

"We've made a lot of progress," he said of his insurance plan. He figures he'll live to see it in full fruition "if I can stick it out 20 more years."

Under the Townsend Plan, a tax would be imposed on all goods and services involving incomes over $250 monthly. Receipts would go to provide a fund (averaging $140 a month) for each person over 60 as well as the ill and incapacitated.

The doctor sees the plan as a big answer to many problems.

UNEMPLOYMENT: "Half the 13 million working folks over 60 would retire if they could afford it, creating new jobs for the young."

RECESSIONS: "It would bring 20 million people into a buying market, stimulating and stabilizing the economy."

OTHER PROBLEMS: "Stamp out poverty and you stamp out ignorance, crime, disease, delinquency."

There are plenty of people who agree with the doctor. He mas 16,000 club members in Dade alone. And there are 2,000 clubs in the U. S. supporting his plan. More than 4,000 turned out to hear a forerunner speech by George R. Gose, whom the doctor terms his "first lieutenant."

Townsend conceived his dream in the depression-wracked years of 1929 when he looked out a window and saw three elderly women groveling in a garbage can — and has fought for it (now revised and modified) all the way to the White House through a recent conference with President Eisenhower. "I didn't learn anything, I don't know if he did or not."

He's glad for the advances in the Social Security program but considers it "ill-conceived and unfair," with people who need it the most getting the least.

He sees much economic advantage to Florida in his own plan because of the many retired people here.

The only real danger he can see in it is that old folks will be so much happier and get so much more respect they'll live longer and swell the population.

"Already America is worrying about the swelling population," he reminded.

But Townsend isn't.

"We'll just populate Mars or some other planet," he declared.

He recalled the strange things he has seen occur since he was born in a log cabin in Illinois. "And tomorrow will be just as strange." The doctor's eyes grew thoughtful.

"There's one thing I miss though," he announced. "Mud."

He told how he used to slosh through the mud to go to school, and how he always had to leave his shoes at the steps . . . and how it sometimes took three or four mules to get an empty wagon through the mud to the granary. "It was good, rich, black mud."

Getting back to his subject, he predicted.

In fact, he'd like to be around to start a Townsend Plan on Mars.

"It would be a good thing, here, or there or anywhere," said the old warrior.

And he meant it.

2 Ex-Policemen Sentenced in Slaying

HARRISBURG, Ill. — (AP) — Two former Harrisburg policemen were sentenced to one to 14 years in prison for fatally shooting a 14-year-old girl during a police chase.

Winston Gidcumb, 34, and Glen Schwartz, 27, pleaded guilty to charges of manslaughter, reduced from murder, in the slaying of Margo Hallwood of Millington, Mich., July 21, 1958.

The fatal shooting occurred as Miss Hallwood and Del Whitaker, 17, also of Millington, were driving through Harrisburg on their way to Arkansas where they had planned to be married.

Gidcumb and Schwartz, in uniform but riding in Schwartz' personal car, took after the couple when Whitaker drove through a stop sign.

The policemen said at the time that they fired several warning shots when Whitaker ignored commands to stop his car. Schwartz said one of the bullets apparently richocheted off the highway and stuck the girl.

Whitaker told authorities he had feared the pursuing car carried robbers or teenagers looking for trouble.

Gidcumb and Schwartz left the police force after the shooting. They were using Schwartz' car because the official police car was in a repair shop.

Vizcaya Lecture Series Slated

Robert Hunter, director of Vizcaya, will begin a series of lectures on "Western Architecture from an Art Historian's Point of View" at the museum on Wednesdays, beginning Feb. 18.

The lectures will be at 10:30 a.m. on five consecutive Wednesdays. They will be illustrated by a new series of slides just received from Europe.

At Hotel or Golf Course, A Bookie's Not Far Away

Town's Wide Open Page 14

It doesn't matter—a downtown Miami hotel or public Miami Beach golf course — you can lay a horse bet easy as pie at either place.

A crime commission investigator did it with a performance which would never win an Oscar for acting.

About 12:30 p.m. Friday he walked into the Bayshore locker room for the first time in his life and went up to a clubhouse employe.

When the investigator-turned-horseplayer made overtures about making a bet, the clubhouse employe declared:

"How the hell do I know who you are. Let me see your identification."

An identification card showing the investigator as a University of Miami student was quickly produced.

"My wife goes to the university," offered the clubhouse employe, thus establishing a rapport between the two.

He then turned the investigator over to a locker room attendant with a sign signifying "this guy is OK."

It was as simple as that. On Saturday the investigator returned for his winning loot. This time the bet-taker, Chuck Oliver, was ready. Without a word he pulled a wad of bills totaling $70 and handed it over to the investigator.

Unknown to clubhouse employes, however, a Herald photographer, complete with a loud sports shirt and golf clubs, took a picture of the transaction.

At the Pan American Hotel, 27 NE 2nd Ave., he did business with a fat man known as Sammy the Mayor, sitting right in the lobby.

He was sent to Sammy the Mayor by a cab driver and an acquaintance who hangs out near the hotel.

"Take him to Sammy," the cabbie told his friend when the investigator inquired about "some fast action."

Action he got as another Herald cameraman clicked away. But this time he wasn't so lucky. His $10 went down the drain with a stumble-footed nag.

But you can't always be a winner. Unless maybe you're a bookie with the percentages rigged in your favor.

How hot is the "heat" when police agencies put it on the bookies?

A spot check of 120 of the bookmaking arrests here in the winters of 1956, 1957 and 1958 discloses that less than one third ended in state courts.

The rest never came to trial or were written off in city courts with suspended sentences, or light fines.

Even some of those who were tried in state courts got light or suspended sentences.

In 1956, The Herald exposed the beginning return of vice to Miami Beach. A flurry of arrests followed in a great cleanup fanfare.

Police Chief Romeo Shepard was fired and Mike Fox, who is still there, came promising into office.

But the raids turned out to be mostly window dressing. Few went to jail.

All were charged with gambling but the case trailed off into the oblivion of legal objections. Eventually, it was rejected by state court prosecutors because the evidence was so slim. They sent it back to Miami Beach Municipal Court.

Then, nabbed March 20, 1956, at a tourist court in North Dade were Ralph Shea, Katherine Barzee, Sergei Kirpatovsky and Angeline Skerich. It was a big raid but all charges were dismissed in Criminal Court after Harold Forman, state's witness, backed out of the case.

Later, two big operators — Isadore Beck and Harry Katz —got a lengthy trial following their arrest on gambling charges. Beck was given a year's probation and Katz went his way with a suspended sentence.

After another big raid—on a Bal Harbour hotel — Rudy Kane thanked the court for a suspended sentence although Jack Myrick got a six-month term.

Jack Rand, nabbed Feb. 20, 1957, in the 17600 block on Collins Ave., also received six months. That was about as tough a break as any got.

Two other Miami Beach raids about the same time ended with a suspended sentence for Mrs. Ida Schulbert and a wrist-slap $500 fine for Mickey Grasso.

All in all, during the past three years the courts mostly have levied fines against convicted gamblers.

That is, when the evidence was good enough for the state to win convictions.

And More to Come . . .

TOMORROW — in another inside report from The Herald's investigating team you'll see just how cock-sure the bookies are. They'll give you curb service in some cases or pick up your bets while you sun on the beach. You'll find it Monday morning in

Roads Rank Tops On 'Crucial' List

Meeting Set With Campbell

By LEO ADDE
Herald Staff Writer

Metro commissioners Saturday put "everyday" roads — on which Dade Countians travel the most miles and have the most accidents — at the top of the agenda for a conference Wednesday to get crucial county projects rolling.

Almost to a man, the commission agreed that roads will be the number one problem when members sit down with County Manager O. W. Campbell to swap ideas on "master" projects.

Expressways, super highways and main arteries will be discussed, but ordinary roads will get the most attention.

Commission Chairman Walter Weiss said roads all over the county "are horrible," and that it will cost between 65 and 70 million dollars to bring them up to standard.

"We must get on with deciding specifically what to do and how to pay for it," Weiss said in emphasizing the urgency of getting down to business on long talked-about projects which include, as well as roads, water resources, airports, parks and Interama.

Typical of other commissioners' comments on roads and the allied problem of traffic congestion:

* * *

ALEX GORDON: "Our traffic situation is already intolerable, and if allowed to continue will stifle county growth."

* * *

JOE BOYD: "I get nervous every time I think about our roads. Metro must arm itself with the money and plans to widen existing rights of way, and to bridge the Miami River at 22nd, 32nd and 42nd avenues. We're pipe-dreaming if we expect Tallahassee to pay for it."

* * *

BOB HAVERFIELD: "Our acute traffic congestion is the result of lack of planning. We must acquire land for roads, and find taxes other than ad valorem to pay for it all."

* * *

RALPH FOSSEY: "I believe Dade already has under way the best road program in its history. But even so, we have barely scratched the surface of our needs. That's an idea of the scope of the problem."

More than half the projects which commissioners rate among Metro's first big jobs come under the "transportation" heading. These include:

Building and financing causeways, unifying and possibly buying county transit lines, finding tax or bond revenues to pay for what's needed.

"Water resources" is a strong second in commissioners' programming. Metro seems ready to take up the massive task of putting one spigot on Dade's 26 municipal and 46 private water companies.

If there's time Thursday, the conference will get around to:

AIRPORTS — where should the area's second major terminal be located?

PARKS — The county should acquire the sites as soon as possible, Faris Cowart and Haverfield say, before land values go up.

INTERAMA — Arthur Patten leads in pushing a unanimously backed project, to which Metro has already pledged $500,000.

One Killed, 11 Are Injured In Rash of Dade Accidents

By EDDIE GONG
Herald Staff Writer

A Northwest Miami woman was killed and her two companions seriously injured Saturday in a two-car crash on the Palmetto Expressway.

Eleven other persons were hurt in three other serious accidents in Dade County. A hit-and-run driver struck two women pedestrians on MacArthur Causeway, a three-car pileup on U.S. 1 near Homestead put eight in hospitals, and a boy bicyclist was hurt at a Southwest intersection.

Driver Charged

MRS. JAMES WILLIAMS, 1760 NW 77th St., was killed when a car in which she was riding cut in front of another automobile on the expressway at NW 17th Ave., Florida Highway Patrol Trooper Robert E. Hisler reported.

Henry Grimsley, 65, of Bradenton, driver of the car, and Mrs. Williams' husband were in serious condition at North Shore Hospital.

The trooper said Grimsley was driving east on the expressway about 3 p.m. and made a left turn at 17th Ave. A westbound car driven by James Sincere, 30, of 4430 NW 173rd St., smashed into Grimsley's car. Sincere was not injured, the trooper caid.

* * *

Eight Are Hurt

EARLIER, Trooper James J. Johns said Les W. Dodson, 76, of Pittsburgh, Pa., became impatient while driving south in heavy U.S. 1 traffic south of Homestead.

Johns said Dodson pulled out to pass the car in front and collided with a northbound car. A third northbound vehicle smashed into the other two cars.

Mrs. Dodson, one of eight victims, was in fair condition at James Archer Smith Hospital. Other victims were kept in the hospital for treatment but none was hurt seriously.

The accident happened at almost the same spot where seven persons were killed in a two-car crash six months ago.

* * *

Boy Bicyclist

SEVEN-YEAR-OLD Edward Browning, 42 NW 46th Ave., was injured seriously when he drove his bicycle across a through street and was struck by a car.

Miami officer W. M. McDonald said the boy pedaled through a "yield right of way" sign at SW 48th Ave. and Fifth St. Ruthie Rice McMillan, 27, of 2141 NW 74th Ter., driver of the car, was released without charge.

* * *

Hit-Run Driver

THE HIT-RUN victims were Mrs. Susie M. Hickman, 39, and Mrs. Vera Robinson, 39, both Negroes, of 1744 NW Fifth Ave.

Mrs. Hickman was knocked 78 feet and suffered fractures of both legs and her fight arm, possible skull fracture, severe scalp lacerations and possible internal injuries. She was in critical condition.

Svengali's 'Evil Power' Goes Modern

Hypnosis -- Babies Cry for It

By MIKE MORGAN
Herald Staff Writer

Svengali probably would be real distressed to learn that his once reputed sinister and evil power, hypnosis, is now being used to cure thumbsucking.

Which just doesn't seem to be the kind of stuff for which a guy should be using mysterious powers.

It's also jim dandy for weight reduction. It often puts the cork on cases of chronic alcoholism.

A couple of medical hypnotists who really know their way around a trance (light, medium or heavy), say hypnotism is the greatest thing in the world to give you that ultra-relaxed feeling.

They are Drs. William J. Bryan Jr. and H. Joshua Sloan, of the American Institute of Hypnosis.

More than 30 Florida doctors and dentists are attending a three-day course in medical and dental hypnosis being held at the Deauville Hotel.

Few men are more experiended in the science of medical hypnosis than these two docs conducting the course.

They can put you into a trance in more ways than a certain soup distillery has soups.

Strong willed people hypnotize just as fast, often faster, than weak-willed.

In fact, if you go around saying, "I'm the type that can't be hypnotized," remember what Dr. Bryan comments:

The use of hypnotism in medicine is increasing every year. True, it has its solid application for bedwetters and thumbsuckers. But more important is the use in relieving tensions; in pre-operative and actual operative techniques.

Childbirth under hypnosis is becoming quite common—and with effective results.

Medical hypnosis has cleared certain allergies, asthma, and a host of other ailments.

Said Dr. Sloan:

"The act of putting the patient into a state of hypnosis, the use of calming, soothing words, also relaxes the dentist and helps him."

Won't Be Long

Dr. John Haldeman, left, chairman of the board of trustees of Miami's new Baptist Hospital, goes over plans for the structure with Robert L. Turchin, president of T&T Construction Co. of Miami Beach. Hospital officials signed a four-million-dollar contract with the company Saturday and said construction on the 304-bed hospital will begin next week. The hospital will be located at Kendall and will cost five and a half million dollars, built and equipped.

Could Lead to More Accurate Predictions

U.S. to Launch Four Weather Satellites

By JOHN W. FINNEY
New York Times Service

N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON — The U.S. will launch this year at least four meteorological satellites which from the vantage point of space will give the first global pictures of weather on earth.

In the opinion of Dr. Francis W. Reichelderfer, chief of the U.S. Weather Bureau, development of such meteorological satellites "offers promise of one of the most revolutionary advances in the history of the science of meteorology."

By getting into space with their instruments, meteorologists hope to acquire a much better basic understanding of how weather is formed and perhaps how it can be controlled and changed. With weather observation stations in space, it is hoped that far more accurate long-range predictions can be made about the weather.

Meteorological satellites also promise to return one of the first big dividends in the increasingly costly program of space research. In the estimate of weather bureau and space administration officials, more accurate weather predictions with satellites could eventually save the national economy billions of dollars a year.

In the initial phases of the meteorological satellite program, the emphasis will be on finding out about the global pattern of clouds which cover the earth and learning what the earth does to the heat it receives from the sun.

The first cloud cover experiment will be carried out within the next week by the Navy's Project Vanguard, which is preparing to make another long-postponed attempt to launch a full-scale satellite into orbit.

Within the 20-inch spherical satellite will be two photo-electric "eyes" which will scan the surface of the earth and determine whether it is cloudy or clear. The payload of instruments, developed by the Army Signal Corps, will include a small tape recorder which will record the observations made by the photo-electric cells and transmit them on command to ground receiving stations.

The experiment is based on the principle that clouds reflect more sunlight than do land or ocean areas. As the photo-electric cells point toward earth in the spinning satellite, therefore, they will be able to measure the differences in intensity of reflected sunlight from clouds and clear areas on earth.

The first cloud cover pictures will necessarily be relatively ill-defined because the satellite will be spinning and because the photo-electric eyes will only be able to take broad pictures from the projected 300-mile altitude.

With further development and refinements, however, it is expected that such cloud-cover experiments will be able to distinguish between individual types of clouds and spot the early development of hurricanes and typhoons.

Voroshilov Calls India Trip Off

Plane Crash in Glades Kills Pilot, Companion

By ED PFISTER
Herald Bureau Chief

LAKE WORTH — Two Lake Worth businessmen were found dead Saturday in the wreckage of an airplane they rented 24 hours earlier at Lantana Airport "to do some sightseeing and take pictures."

The victims were identified as:

Charles T. Robinson, 39, of 1221 Reo Lane, owner of Robinson's Drugstore there, a veteran flier and World War II veteran who piloted the ship.

Thomas K. Evans, 29, Carlton Rd., a contractor and former constable who figured in a long drawn out suit over election expenditures.

A Coast Guard helicopter was used in lifting the bodies out of the wreckage in a swampy and wooded area of the Everglades 14 miles northwest of Boynton Beach.

The deputies said it appeared as if a wing of the ship had struck a tree about 30 feet off the ground, flipping the plane over on its back and plunging it into two feet of water and muck.

The wing tip was torn off, and the engine was ripped off the front of the plane.

Day said both bodies were in the airplane when the helicopter and swamp buggies reached the tangled area of the crash.

The bodies were flown to International Airport in West Palm Beach and were removed to the E. Earl Smith and Son Funeral Home in Lake Worth.

International Air Service at Lantana Airport said Robinson and Evans appeared there about 1 p.m. Friday and rented the ship. Robinson was quoted as saying they wanted to do some sightseeing and take pictures with a movie camera they had along.

They took off in the rented four-place Cessna about 1:30 p.m., the air service said, with fuel for five hours flying time. The ship was radio equipped but the tower here had no record of contact with the plane.

Families of the fliers became alarmed when they failed to return at dusk Friday. Both the Civil Air Patrol and Coast Guard in Miami were alerted and started a search at dawn Saturday.

Capt. Glenn Snyder, of the CAP, spotted the wrecked plane before noon Saturday in the isolated area of the Everglades west of State Rd. 7 and directed rescue squads to the scene.

Says Bandmaster

Music Has Place In the Space Age

By PHIL MEYER
Herald Staff Writer

A note in defense of the non-scientist has been sounded by a leading Miami musician.

Silver Knight Seeks Teeners

Who are Dade County's top teenagers?

The Miami Herald, with the help of 30 top judges and Dade County High Schools, is seeking the outstanding high school seniors in each of 10 important fields. The winners will get Silver Knight Awards and the applause of the community in April 30 ceremonies.

He is Fred McCall, University of Miami bandmaster, who thinks that somewhere in all this mad rush to educate more scientists and engineers there ought to be room for a musician or two.

"I don't believe it is necessary to divert everyone's attention to science," he said. "We are still going to need some culture or we'll be in even worse trouble."

McCall will judge the music division of the Silver Knight Awards, along with Arturo di Filippi, director of the Miami Opera Guild, and Mrs. Clifton Muir, vice president of the Southeastern Region of the National Federation of Music Clubs.

A 1923 graduate of Miami Edison High, he organized the orchestra of that school. It still makes music today.

Although he thinks more people should play music for fun, McCall doesn't recommend it as a vocational aim for most teenagers.

"Music first of all is an avocation," he said. "As a profession, it is usually overcrowded, although there is always opportunity for the best ones.

"There is much wider opportunity in the field of music education. Did you know that most of the music performed in this country is done in the schools?"

This last fact is not a particularly happy one, McCall feels. It indicates that most student musicians stop blowing their horns or pounding their pianos when they finish school.

What we need are more amateur music groups—even ones like the Key Biscayne Band and Marching Society, the ill-fated group whose members almost got up enough nerve to sneak into the Orange Bowl Parade this year.

"There's definitely a place for many such organizations," he said. "But they need sponsorship, and any musical operation costs money."

As far as opportunities to learn music today, are concerned McCall is cheerful. He didn't get a chance to learn his own instrument, the clarinet, until his sophomore year in high school.

"There are more teachers now," he said. "And students seem more music-minded."

Sabotage Ruled Out

STOCKHOLM — (UPI) — No sabotage was involved in the engine trouble that forced a DC7 airliner carrying Soviet First Deputy Premier Anastas Mikoyan to land in Newfoundland Jan. 20, the Swedish Civil Aviation Board said.

The Scandinavian Airlines plane, carrying Mikoyan from New York to Copenhagen following his U.S. visit, made an emergency landing at Argentia after two engines went out.

The engines were flown back to Stockholm for examination. The board said Friday that "theories about a possible sabotage were ruled out."

Mrs. F.D.R. Takes Jab At D.A.R.

COLUMBIA, Mo. — (AP) — Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt Saturday described the Daughters of the American Revolution in an interview as "a patriotic society which has forgotten its origins and purposes."

A former U.S. representative to the U.N., Mrs. Roosevelt was commenting on an attack made on the U.N. here Thursday by Mrs. Frederick A. Groves of Cape Girardeau, Mo., president general of the D.A.R.

In an address before a Missouri D.A.R. conference Mrs. Groves asserted the powers of the U.S. Construction are being subjugated to the U.N. and have been weakened by misuse of the Constitution's treaty clause.

Mrs. Roosevelt said the D.A.R. "does wonderful work in preserving historical monuments, but their members who agree with such policies as expressed by Mrs. Groves have just gotten out of touch with the world."

Formerly a member of the D.A.R., Mrs. Roosevelt resigned when the organization refused to allow Marian Anderson, a negro concert singer, to perform in Constitution Hall in Washington, D.C. The D.A.R. owns the hall. Mrs. Roosevelt is in Columbia to address a "Women in Journalism" meeting at the University of Missouri.

Research Chief Given Wide Power

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Dr. Herbert York, 37-year-old director of defense research and engineering, has been given power to overrule all other defense agencies and services in the space weapon and missile field.

Secretary of Defense Neil McElroy issued a directive giving the young official sweeping powers. York was confirmed by the Senate less than two weeks ago for the research and engineering post.

McElroy's order came after some members of Congress had expressed uncertainty as to who was the real top man of the Pentagon's multiple missile programs.

Under the McElroy order, York apparently will have greater authority than Roy Johnson, director of the Advanced Research Projects Agency. At the time ARPA was created last year, it was billed as the top agency in missiles.

Board Still Is Not Entirely 'Sold'

Dade Faces New School Aid Decisions

By PHIL MEYER
Herald Education Writer

The reluctant decision of the Dade School Board to accept federal aid may soon have to made again — and again.

Inside Your Schools

But there are more parts of the act still to be tapped. And the long-range trend, according to a report from the National Education Association, is toward still more federal aid to schools.

The NEA, which has been accused by its critics of taking the stand that there is nothing wrong with our schools that money can't fix, is not too unhappy about this.

Describing its figures as "eye-opening," it reports that the federal government is still paying only four per cent of the cost of running the public schools. Yet, the U.S. collects almost three out of every four of the tax dollars.

Other NEA figures indicate that the problem is not so much that state and local government's can't give adequate support to their schools. It's just that they won't.

"It's a matter of values, rather than wealth," it says. "We have the money to pay for education, but we have to decide whether it's worth as much as new cars or late-model hi-fi's."

And it cites such figures as the 151 billion dollars we spent in the last 10 years for stuff to smoke, drink, and paint on women's faces as compared to only 78 billion spent on schools.

The proportion of tax money spent for schools has also gone down. In 1932, schools got 25 per cent of all taxes. Now, they get 12 per cent.

Beating the drums for more federal aid, the NEA points out that education, especially since Sputnik and the implications for defense, has become more of a national problem than a local one. The citizens of say, Dade County, Fla., stand to gain from school improvements in Podunk, Iowa, and vice versa.

Another argument along this line is the extreme mobility of the present population. Fifteen per cent of the school-age population moves from one state to another in five years.

For Dade County, the figure is even more dramatic. In five years, the most conservative estimates show, a third of our school children will have come from somewhere up north.

These are interesting arguments, as is the traditional counter-claim that much of the money in federal grants is wasted in administration. But neither will have much effect on the fate of current proposals for federal aid, such as the Murray-Metcalfe bill which would make an outright grant of $25 a pupil for next year, and more in succeeding years.

The main consideration will be just how badly the schools need the money.

While Congress is debating this proposal, which specifies that the cash must go for salaries and school construction, the Florida Legislature will be discussing essentially the same things.

Local educators are afraid that the Legislature may cut off school building funds, and the teacher associations have all but given up hope of getting a pay raise from it this session.

So if the U.S. spends what Florida is not willing to spend, the issue of federal aid to education will be pretty much settled.

The Dade School Board is already picking up some of the piddling handouts of last year's National Defense Education Act, albeit gingerly. Next year, or the year after may see it climbing aboard the federal-aid bandwagon with a will and riding it for all it's worth.

Skips Parole

Axis Sally To Stay In Prison

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Mildred E. Gillars, Nazi Germany's "Axis Sally" in World War II, has given up a chance at an early parole after serving nearly 10 years of her sentence for treason.

Miss Gillars, now 57, would have been eligible to apply for a parole from the Alderson, W. Va., Federal Reformatory for Women on March 24 after completing the minimum of her 10-to-30-year sentence.

But on Jan. 27 she mailed a waiver of this right to the U.S. Parole Board here. No reason for her decision was given.

George J. Reed, board chairman, said he had no idea why she waived. "Sometimes," he said, " a prisoner waives temporarily because he thinks he can build up a better case with more time."

A spokesman at the reformatory said Miss Gillars appears to be in good mental and physical health.

Miss Gillars was convicted of treason after a trial in Federal District Court here in 1949. GIs in the European Theater of War, who heard her beguiling voice broadcast that it was futile to resist Nazi might, dubbed her "Axis Sally" and the name stuck. She is a native of Portland, Maine.

Crowd Panics

Dance Hall Fire Hurts 35 Persons

KINGSTON, Ont. —(AP)— A gay crowd of 150 persons, mostly teenagers, were dancing in a crowded hall early Saturday. Then two scuffling men knocked over an oil stove. In the ensuing fire and panic, 35 of the dancers were injured, three critically.

Vern Jackson, 29, said there was only a small blaze as the oil began to creep across the floor and no one seemed worried. However, the fire grew and there was a sudden, searing burst of flame.

"The heat was tremendous," he said. "Everyone rushed for the doors. The crowd pushed me through a window."

Robin Murphy, 16, said "people were crying and moaning with the clothing burning right on their backs."

Girls screamed for their escorts. Some dancers were knocked down and injured. They were grabbed by others and dragged to the exits.

When a reporter reached the scene he said "there were people writhing in pain all over the ground."

Police halted passing cars and taxis and pressed them into service as emergency ambulances.

Hospital authorities said 17 persons were treated for burns or other injuries and released. Of 18 still in the hospital, they listed three as in critical condition — William Flesk, 20, Samuel Turner, 25, and Geraldine Burke, 25.

Poles Sail To Freedom, Wreck Boat

ROENNE, Denmark —(AP)— Two Polish fishermen locked up their skipper and another crew member in the cabin of their trawler Saturday and set sail for freedom.

Neither knew how to navigate, and the fog was bad. They ran the fishing boat onto a rock off this capital of the Danish island of Bornholm in the Baltic.

They boarded a float, came on into Roenne and asked police for asylum. The skipper and the other crewmen released themselves, got the boat off the rocks and came on into Roenne but not for asylum. They said they would go back to Poland after the ship is repaired.

Electra Safe? Men Who Fly It Like It

Nationwide attention was recently directed to the new jet-prop Lockheed Electra airliner after one was involved in a fatal crash in New York. What do the pilots themselves think of the aircraft and its safety?

This Is the Electra — Object of Unreserved Praise From Pilots

. . . but it was later outfitted with a kind of altimeter that had been criticized

A special 18-man evaluation committee representing the Airline Pilots Association sent the Electra through a grueling examination before the plane was put into service.

"This committee is more than reasonably confident that the manufacturers, the operators, the pilots and the public will be satisfied with the record of safety, efficiency and economy which will be achieved," the report said.

The altimeter installed in the Electra tested by the evaluation committee was of a conventional older type, not the new single-needle model installed on the American Airlines Electra which crashed near LaGuardia Field, New York, Feb. 3, killing 65. The Federal Aviation Agency, after hearing reports that pilots had complained the new instrument was too easy to misread, limited Electra bad-weather operations — unless old-style altimeters were installed.

However, a pilots' evaluation report on another new airliner sharply criticized the plane's altimeter, which is similar to the one in the Electra. In this report, the committee said "not one member felt he could get accurate altitude information at a glance."

It noted that two incidents took place during testing which demonstrated the plane's ability to handle almost any emergency.

In one incident, the Electra accidentally was landed at a greater speed and with more impact than that encountered by a carrier-based fighter plane — the hardest kind of landing known to aviation.

The Electra suffered only minor damage, and the ALPA report commented:

"The ability of the Electra to survive such impact . . . is remarkable and represents the best possible testimonial to its structural integrity."

In the second incident, the test crew inadvertently kept the landing gear down for several hundred feet while taking off. But the pilots were not even aware the gear was down because the plane continued to climb rapidly in spite of wind-drag.

Before the Electra was put into production, the ALPA committee inspected a "mock-up" of the aircraft. After the inspection, the committee recommended 63 separate modifications, ranging from better fire warning arrangements to the design of the seat arm rest.

Of the 63 recommendations, Lockheed accepted 39 for the actual production model, partially agreed to 18 and rejected only eight as unnecessary or impractical.

"That is an exceptionally high batting average for pilots' committee recommendations," an ALPA official said.

Some of the more pertinent quotes from the evaluation report, regarding the Electra's performance and safety:

LANDING — "The airplane had good control characteristics and no difficulty was experienced in making consistently good landings."

EMERGENCY POWER (during an aborted landing attempt) — "members were very much impressed with the rapid power application possible and with the immediate airplane response in climb performance. It definitely exceeded the balked landing and put-out of any propeller-driven airplane which we have ever flown."

STALLING — The stall characteristics of this airplane, in all configurations, were exceptionally good. There was no fall-off on one wing or any other adverse tendencies. In fact, the stall characteristics were very similar to a 'Cub' with ample warning indication and no violent change of attitude."

COCKPIT SMOKE EVACUATION — "it would appear that Lockheed has made a decided improvement . . ."

HANDLING (in event of multiple engine failure) — "The airplane is definitely flyable and controllable." (This test involved trying to fly the ship with two of its four engines dead, and with the hydraulic booster system inoperative. It can be compared to simultaneous power-steering failure and front-tire blowout on an automobile.

STABILITY — "High speed stability is good . . . good control response at touch-down speeds . . . responded well to the flare-out on landing . . . crosswind takeoff and landing characteristics seemed to be most normal."

COCKPIT VISIBILITY — "Contrast between the visibility from the cockpit of the Electra and from previous Lockheed transports is tremendous. Visibility . . . is excellent and Lockheed is to be commended for the special effort which has been put into producing this cockpit. (The pilots did comment that in achieving better visibility, Lockheed made the instrument panel too low. However, at least one airline flying the Electra corrected this by merely tilting the panel.)

BAD WEATHER LANDINGS — "In making ILS (instrument landing system) approaches, the airplane was found to be very easy to control on the glide slope . . . quite maneuverable and responsive and was considered by the pilots to be equal to or better than present-day transports in its handling characteristics." (A possibly significant comment, in view of the fact that the Electra which crashed Feb. 3 was making an instrument landing in bad weather.)

They Like It Because . . .

TOUGHNESS — It showed 'remarkable' structural stamina on an accidentally rough landing.
MANEUVERABILITY — Better than present-day transports.
BAD WEATHER — Easy to control on glide slope.

But . . .

ALTITUDE GAUGE — 'Can't get accurate information at a glance.' (Old-style altimeters now installed.)

U.S. Clams Up About Gauge

By DAVID KRASLOW
Of Our Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — The Federal Aviation Agency has suppressed reports of difficulties with a new altitude-measuring instrument it had received prior to the Feb. 3 crash of an American Airlines' Electra.

FAA officials refused to disclose either the nature or the number of complaints from pilots before the accident.

One informed source, however, told The Herald the FAA received reports that the altimeter needle "had been sticking."

The Lockheed turbo-prop airliner which fell into New York's East River while attempting to land at LaGuardia Airport had the new altimeter. Sixty-five persons were killed in the crash.

The FAA has since announced that Eastern and American — the two carriers that fly the new plane — could resume normal operations with the Electras if the new altimeters were replaced with the type now widely in use.

Eastern and American both announced they will use the old altimeters.

The Herald disclosed Thursday that FAA had received complaints on the altimeter before the crash.

But FAA has refused since to discuss details or to comment on why the FAA did not act on the reports of operating difficulties with the new altimeter before the accident.

"My people say they can't talk about it," Howard Bingham, press officer for the FAA, said.

FAA has stressed that the cause of the crash has not yet been determined.

The restriction on use of the altimeter is a precautionary step, the agency said.

Traffic Drops

OTTAWA — (AP) — International highway traffic between Canada and the U.S. decreased slightly in 1958 from the 1957 all time peak of 17,982,400, the Bureau of Statistics announced.

SEE CAPE CORAL!

ON THE CALOOSAHATCHEE RIVER OPPOSITE FT. MYERS—GATEWAY TO THE GULF

MEMBERS OF:
Lee County and Fort Myers Chamber of Commerce
Dade County Chamber of Commerce
Florida State Chamber of Commerce

"THERE'S A BIG, BIG DIFFERENCE between communities—and that difference becomes obvious the minute you step into CAPE CORAL! It hit me right between the eyes. I had been searching for the perfect Florida location for years and although I hadn't found what I was looking for, I never lowered my standards one bit. When I saw Cape Coral for the first time, I was glad that I'd waited, that I hadn't settled for less!

"I wanted a quality community, a thoroughly planned community, one designed for a lifetime of good living-not just another chopped-up, cleared chunk of acreage. I wanted a waterfront community, with deep, wide canals that lead to a river of size and to the open waters, so I clearly was not looking for an inland community built on a land-locked lake. I was looking for a community near a bustling, thriving city that offered all civic, cultural and medical facilities. I sought a community that attracted families of all ages—up-and-coming young families and sit-back-and-relax retired folks. And, of course, I wanted a community that offered choice homesites at reasonable prices,—so that I would be secure in the knowledge that my investment was not only safe but would continue to grow in value as the community developed.

"These are the things I looked for, that I wanted, that I would not compromise with. And these are the things that I FOUND—and then some—at CAPE CORAL! Why don't you come on out—you'll find that Cape Coral is everything that you've been seeking, wanting, waiting for, too!"

AND HERE'S AN ADDED INVITATION FROM CONNIE MACK, JR. "Like Bill, I was 'sold' as soon as I saw all that Cape Coral offered! I liked it so much that I invested my money here and stayed on to spread the good word about Cape Coral. And what an exciting year of progress it's been!—with the drawing-board dream becoming a live, breathing reality, with sales topping $11,000,000, with miles and miles of waterways and paved roads completed, with over $1,000,000 worth of improvements already in! This dynamic growth has been reflected in the increased value of each homesite. A word to the wise investor:—While prices have already begun to climb, you still have time to get in on the BIG upswing. When you see Cape Coral, you'll understand why property-wise investors have been—and are—buying at Cape Coral in ever-increasing numbers."

Race Shapes Up Between Carlo Schmid and Heinrich Krone

SCHMID

By ARTHUR J. OLSEN
The New York Times Service

BONN — The Social Democratic Party has nominated its unorthodox deputy chairman, Carlo Schmid, to run for the presidency of West Germany.

The Socialist action insured that the successor to Dr. Theodor Heuss, first president of the West German state, would be chosen in a partisan struggle which the parties sought unsuccessfully to avoid.

Dr. Heuss, 77, will end his second five-year term of office in September. He is understood to have rejected as a bad precedent suggestions that the constitution be amended to permit him a third term in office.

The federal presidency is primarily a ceremonial office. But Dr. Heuss is conceded to have endowed the presidency with particular moral stature through his nonpartisan judgments on basic issues of democracy and national aspirations.

An attempt to find a personality of similar character on whom all political parties could agree failed.

It is considered certain now that Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's Christian Democratic Union will nominate Heinrich Krone, parliamentary leader of the party, to oppose Dr. Schmid.

On the basis of party discipline, which weighs heavily in West German politics, Krone, a 64-year-old Berliner, will go into next summer's election a solid favorite.

The president is elected by majority vote of the federal convention, a body specially formed for this purpose from members of the lower house of Parliament and an equal number of electors chosen by West German's 10 states and West Berlin.

The Christain Democrats hold a solid majority in the Bundestag and control the state legislatures of seven states.

The Social Democrats said they were confident Dr. Schmid, an orator and adept debater who is personally popular with his political opponents, could attract enough votes fron non-Socialist electors to win election.

Independent observers agree that the 63-year-old politician who was trained as a lawyer and made his living as a university professor before entering politics was the only Socialist who might succeed.

His probable opponent, Krone, said he had not sought the nomination and had not yet been asked to run. He indicated, however, that he would go into the race if pressed by his party.

Spinster Amasses Millions as Clerk

By Herald Wire Services

THE BIG mystery in Chillicothe, Ohio, is how did a 92-year-old spinster parlay her meager earnings as a telephone company clerk into a 2½-million-dollar fortune.

Before Miss Margaret Ritter died Jan. 20, her neighbors knew her as a thrifty woman who wore patched dresses, lived alone in a modest frame home and "hated to spend a dime."

They knew she had money, maybe $100,000, perhaps even $200,000.

"We had no idea she had that much money," said the nephew, Andrew I. Ritter of Dayton, a 61-year-old Associated Press employe.

And his sister, Mrs. Elsie Marie Wallace of Cleveland, the other chief beneficiary, echoed that sentiment. "We knew Miss Ritter had money," she said, "but we didn't realize there was that much."

The bulk of the estate is in securities except for the deceased's home here, according to Gordon M. Graham, co-executor of the will.

Graham said that after a deduction of more than a million-dollars in federal and state taxes and $135,000 in fees, the two chief beneficiaries each will come into a trust fund of about $700,000.

The only inkling as to how Miss Ritter accumulated the fortune came from her nephew in Datyon. She had good brokers, he said, and saved for a rainy day.

Senator Given Play in Russia

MIKE MANSFIELD, Democratic senator from Montana, has received a heavy play in Moscow newspapers for his speech urging negotiations between East and West Germany.

MANSFIELD

Pravda published a column-long Washington dispatch from Tass, the official Soviet News Agency, headlined "The Reunion of Germany — that is a task for the Germans themselves."

The Tass dispatch called the speech, delivered to the U.S. Senate Thursday, a sharp criticism of the U.S. government's position on Berlin and cited Mansfield's warning that there must be peaceful negotiations leading to German reunification soon or the earnest use of force is likely to begin.

Mamie Greets Boys, Not Press

MAMIE EISENHOWER gave an interview to three Dallas, Tex., youngsters at San Antonio while anxious newspapermen waited in vain.

MAMIE

Mrs. Eisenhower invited the children to her hotel suite after receiving a request for autographs from Frank Sutherland, 10, his sister, Shelley, 14, and a friend, Sally Thompson, 13.

After 10 minutes they came out to face a throng of newsmen who waited vainly for a talk with the first lady.

A newsman asked Frank what was his impression of the visit.

"I just kept thinking," Frank grinned, "about all those newspaper reporters who tried to see her and couldn't."

Juror Bribed, Says FBI

NEWARK — (AP) — The FBI says a juror was bribed in the 1956 tax evasion trial of Abner (Longie) Zwillman, a Prohibition era figure described by the bureau as "the reputed boss of the New Jersey underworld."

FBI agents have arrested a trio of men, nearly three years after the $39,000 federal income tax dodging case ended in a hung jury. Zwillman lives in nearby West Orange and is in the vending machine business.

One of the men arrested is Peter La Placa, 56, former bodyguard and chauffeur for slain Mobster Willie Moretti. He is accused of fixing a juror for a price U.S. Attorney Chester A. Widenburner said was "less than $5,000."

Donadio and La Rosa were held in $5,000 bail each as material witnesses pending further investigation.

La Placa was held in lieu of $100,000 bail. He is charged with offering to bribe a juror between Jan. 18 and Feb. 1, 1956, and with paying a bribe between Jan. 18 and Dec. 31, 1956.

The three men were picked up within an hour after a federal grand jury here handed up an indictment.

Though known at one time as Moretti's bodyguard, La Placa was absent when that gangster was gunned down Oct. 4, 1951, in a Cliffside Park restaurant. The murder has never been solved. La Placa's son is married to Moretti's daughter.

Zwillman's six-week trial on tax evasion charges came to an end March 1, 1956, when the jury of six men and six women could not agree on a verdict . . . They deliberated two days.

More Wrongdoing?

Probers Accused Of Covering Up

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The ous[illegible] staff chief of the House subcommittee which touched off last year's Adam-Goldfine inquiry contends the subcommittee is sitting on further evidence of wrongdoing in Washington.

The accusation was promptly denied.

The charge comes from Bernard Schwartz, who was fired a year ago as chief counsel of the special subcommittee created to investigate federal regulatory agencies. Schwartz makes his charge in a newly published book, "The Professor and the Commissions."

Rep. Oren Harris (D., Ark.), the subcommittee chairman and a chief target in Schwartz' wide-ranging charges, took prompt issue with Schwartz' contention that his group is suppressing evidence of wrongdoing. Harris told a reporter:

"That's as ridiculous as the other charges he has been making in his book, which is filled with distortions, half-truths and completely false statements. Further than that it isn't worth comment."

"I think the record of this committee speaks pretty well," Harris added. He said he would announce soon what his plans will be for continuing the inquiry.

In his book, Schwartz said the subcommittee had failed to develop fully 16 TV cases on which Schwartz said he had left evidence in subcommittee files.

The 35-year-old New York University law professor said the subcommittee glossed over material he had dug up on "the almost complete lack of effective Federal Communications Commission regulation of telephones and telegrams."

Baby a Lincoln Wasn't She?

RAMSEY, N.J. — (AP) — Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Lincoln Jr., were especially happy on Lincoln's birthday—and the 16th president of the U.S. had nothing to do with it.

Their three-year-old daughter Irene was found alive in woods near the Lincolns' home after being missing for seven hours.

A doctor said Irene is suffering from exposure but otherwise is all right. However, she was taken to a hospital as a precaution.

Admiral Lauds Polaris Ships

Surprise Submarine Attack By Russia Called Possible

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The possibility of a surprise Russian submarine attack on the U.S. is very great and is causing the Navy great concern, Adm. Arleigh A. Burke says.

In a censored version of secret testimony made public Saturday night, Burke, the chief of naval operations, said "we have forces at sea all the time, searching up and down both coasts" for enemy submarines. His testimony was given before the Senate disarmament subcommittee Jan. 30.

Burke said there is no way "you can guarantee that an attack will not get through," and he added:

"There is no equipment that can guarantee that there is not a submarine at a particular spot in the ocean except in a very small area, and even then you cannot guarantee that you have got it."

On the other hand, Burke said, the Russians have an even tougher problem since the U.S. could cover "all but a very small part of Russia from launching positions at sea."

And, he added, "the free world controls the ocean, and we operate over the ocean all the time" while the Russians are "concentrated in one place."

Burke did not dispute statements by Subcommittee Chairman Hubert H. Humphrey (D., Minn) and Sen. Russell B. Long (D-La) that the Russians have about 250 long-range submarines.

He testified the Russians may have ballistic missile subs now, "but I do not think they have very many."

Burke said the first of the new nuclear-powered, missile launching Polaris submarines is scheduled to be in full operation by the fall of 1960, to be followed by others at the rate of three a year.

"Each of these submarines carries quite a few weapons," he testified, "and it does not take many of them to wipe out a considerable area, and each one of these submarines will handle quite a few areas."

If the enemy launched an attack on the U.S., Burke said, "it could not possibly catch all the submarines." Apparently speaking as though the Navy had Polaris-firing craft in operation now, Burke said:

Arleigh Burke
. . . no safety guarantee

"Our strength now, our position of power now with these submarines is that no matter what he does, he cannot avoid being destroyed."

He said that when the Navy gets significant numbers of the Polaris subs, the enemy "cannot do anything we cannot do."

Burke also told the senators that no matter how many underground shelters Russia might build, in a general nuclear war from 20 to 40 per cent of their people "would die in an all-out hydrogen bomb attack" in retaliation.

The number would depend, he said, on the fallout and the way the wind blows, how good their shelters are, how long they stay in underground shelters.

"But there is a limit on the amount of time they can stay under," he said. "And a larger portion will die — there is no way to escape that."

Burke said he would be reluctant to enter an agreement with the Soviets giving away information on subs on a reciprocal basis, unless there were "guaranteed foolproof arrangements" to assure Russia was not lying.

Eyes Break on Taxes

Herrell to Propose Help for Disabled

By JOHN B. McDERMOTT
Herald Political Writer

Totally disabled Floridians on relief will get a tax break under a bill which Rep. Cliff Herrell of Miami plans to introduce at this spring's legislative session.

HERRELL

Herrell said Saturday the break would come in exempting qualifying individuals from paying municipal taxes on utility bills.

"Old age recipients in Florida get only $56 monthly and the national average is $61," Herrell said.

"We are from 34th to 45th on the list of states in what we do for the blind, the aged and the infirm."

He said his bill has the support of "virtually every public official, both state and local, with whom I have talked."

Herrell, who is chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, said the state will have to appropriate "several million additional dollars" this year to cover routine relief payments.

"My bill will simply give some relief to the people who are not going to be getting any further help at this session and who need it," he said.

The Herrell tax-exempt bill would require that any person wishing to come in under its provisions establish proof of his plight.

Here's how the bill reads—and it is the first bill, in final form, which any of the Dade legislators have come up with for the 1959 session:

"Any Florida resident who is totally disabled by reason of old age or physical or mental infirmities and receives from the State of Florida or the U.S. government subsistence in the form of relief shall be exempt from the payment of all utility taxes imposed by any county, town or municipality within which he resides.

"The production by the said disabled citizen of a certificate of total disability from the proper agency of either the government of the State of Florida or the U.S. government before the tax assessor of the county, town or municipality wherein he resides, shall be prima facie evidence of the fact that he is entitled to such exemption."

The 60-day legislative session begins April 7.

Good Work No Excuse For Crime

MOSCOW — (UP) — Good work is no excuse for criminal behavior, The Literary Gazette said.

The youth was convicted and sentenced to 10 years imprisonment "even though he carried a Komsomol (Communist (Youth) membership card in his pocket and filled and overfulfilled his work quota repeatedly," it said.

It praised the sentence and condemned fellow workers — including some women, — who had told the court such things as: "he is a good lad, anyone can make a mistake . . . He is a good worker and we used him as an example at meetings in our factory trade union committee."

Those Saucy Little Tugs Lead a Lively, Vigorous Life

Jewel B on One End of Oil Barge in Miami River
...it's a tricky job of navigating to negotiate this trip

Cap'n George (Skeets) Hunter cut his sea teeth aboard light cruisers and a battleship—but the seaborne love of his life is a frisky little tug, the Jewel B, that is something under 20 tons.

Mostly the Jewel B tows oil barges to and from Port Everglades or Key West, but Wednesday she did a small stint of work towing an oil barge down the Miami River from around 30th St. to the oil company berth at MacArthur Causeway.

I went along for two reasons.

(1) For once I wanted to be on the not-waiting position when the bridges went up; (2) I wanted to get a tug's-eye view of the river.

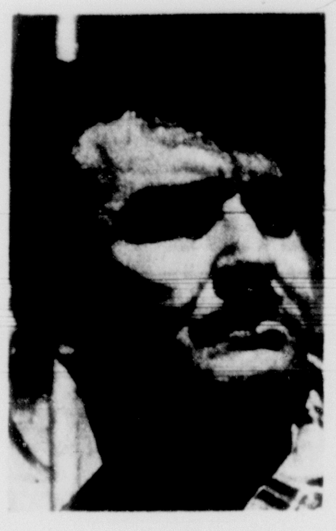
It was a splendid day for tug-boat riding.

It was the kind of a day when if a fellow ever had a nostalgia for seafarin', this would bring it out.

A brisk south wind chopped the waters of the harbor into nervous green patterns that were laced with shards of sunlight and scalloped with fresh-whipped foam.

True, this was "seafarin" in one of its mildest forms, a tow job down the Miami River — but it's not the simple job you think.

It takes two tugs to do the work. One tows the great steel hulk, and one trails. The biggest tug trails and helps hold the barge on course. This keeps the barge from cracking the whip and slewing into assorted boats and bridges.



Skeets Hunter
...know his tug

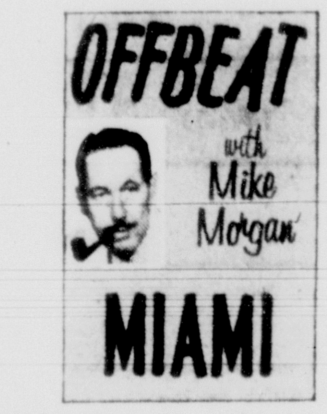
As bluff-faced Cap'n Skeets put it:

"Judgment means everything. You've got to watch the wind, waves and tide. Got to second guess them and take advantage of them wherever you can. But never let them take advantage of you.

We were in the tiny Texas deck of the Jewel B as he talked about some of the hazards of towing on the river and in the harbor.



"It's real tricky maneuvering these barges into place. One of the most important things is having good hands — they can make you or break you on handling the lines."

Skeets pointed to his mate, George Koehn, "That boy is as good as they come. He knows how to get right on those lines and make fast on split timing . . ."

Third man of the crew is Joe Ramirez who is also valued by the captain. "One of the best cooks around . . ."

The Jewel B turned out of the harbor and up the river. Her horn blasted the signal as we prepared to go under the first of nine bridges.

For once I was on the "go-ahead" when the bridge went up—felt good about it for some psychological reason.

If it's glamor you want, you won't find it on the Miami River — at least not from its mouth to 36th St.

Rusted, weary, battered tramp steamers nudge trim, smart yachts. Docks that are rotting and badly in need of paint give too much of the river a worn-out look.

Only for a short distance past 17th St. is there any natural river beauty, with tree lined banks.

One becomes aware that the day of sail is not yet passed—schooners sleek and taunt are seen everywhere.

Houseboats—there must be a sizable slice of Miamians living on houseboats—some are not much larger than piano crates; some are lavish.

At 30th St. the tugs maneuvered into position and started bringing the cumbersome oil barge down river.

This, believe me, is indeed a tense bit of navigation—often you've got to needle the barge through places where there is only a few feet leeway.

And it's a neat bit of navigation to wheel the barge under a couple of those bridges which are built over river bends and watch out for river traffic, large and small.

Remember that those great barges, riding high in the water when they are empty, catch the wind just like sails.

But Cap'ns Hunter and Johnson made the journey smooth as a hand sliding in a glove.

And I know why "Skeets" likes that perky little tug; it wheels around the water like a gull in air.

As I said earlier—maybe it wasn't real salty-type seafarin'—but it sure gives a fellow more respect for those tugboaters. Next time I'll hold my tongue when the bridge goes up to let a tug and barge through.

'Copter Flaps Pope's Robes

VATICAN CITY —(UPI)— A helicopter piloted by an American landed in a Vatican courtyard for a papal demonstration Saturday with a gust of wind from its blades that curled Pope John XXIII's hat brim, flapped his pontifical robes and blew dust in his eyes.

Nevertheless, the 77-year-old pope enjoyed the show and said he might fly in the helicopter some day.

Pilot William Coffee, 39, of Cleveland, Tenn., said he saw the wind hit the pope.

"But I knew there was no danger," he said "We landed her like a dream."

The wind half rolled up the ornate carpet spread before the pope's chair, and the pontiff threw his arms in front of his face to shield his eyes from dust and sand blown up in a minature storm.

But he took it calmly. He called the big whirlybird a "helicopterum" in a special prayer written for the occasion.

"I hope some day you will be able to fly from here to Castelgandolfo (the papal summer residence) in a helicopter," Capt. Guglielmo Bolla, an Italian aircraft company representative, told the pope.

"Today we have blessed the plane. Perhaps tomorrow we can fly in it," the pope replied. He obviously meant a "tomorrow" in the distant future.

Survey Finished By Ike's Aide

TAIPEI — (AP) — The head of the committee appointed by President Eisenhower to survey the U.S. military aid program left for Tokyo Saturday. He told newsmen he had been tremendously impressed by the progress made in the development of the Chinese Nationalist military forces.

William H. Draper Jr., who had spent three days in Formosa, said he was also gratified by the economic progress achieved on this island.

Snake Gets Nicer Home

BUFFALO, N.Y.—(AP)—Frank May, who unloads bananas from freight cars, came face to face with two little beady eyes peering over a stalk. Behind the eyes was a three-foot boa constrictor.

The Museum of Science, which had no boa, was delighted. It added the snake to its collection.

Israel Expects More Immigrants

NEW YORK — (AP) — Mrs. Golda Meir, Israeli foreign minister, said her country this year expects many more than the 30,000 immigrants who arrived last year and is happy over the prospect.

"The spirit of the country is excellent," she said as she arrived by plane for a tour in behalf of a bond sale drive by the United Jewish Appeal.

Secretary's $2 Ticket Was Far From Ordinary

Behind the scenes in the Metro traffic ticket fixing investigation quietly sits an attractive 22-year-old brunette, Miss Toby Riva Taks whose $2 city parking ticket sparked the conflagration and brought on an "outside survey" which may take Metro tickets out of the clerk's office.

She is a deputy in the office of Metro Court Clerk James Moore Crawford, who is accountable to the county commission. He was fighting off efforts to run the tickets through IBM machines across the street in the same system which absorbed county assessor's tax cards over Assessor John Gautier's protest.

Gautier's office is under the county manager's administration. The county manager, like the clerk, is accountable to the Metro County Commission.

So, Toby took her $2 ticket to Metro Judge Charles B. Snowden who sent it to City Judge Francis Sobieski's office. Then came a telephone message to Metro Clerk's office to tell Judge Snowden that his secretary's ticket was fixed.

Toby, promptly fired for placing Metro under obligation, asked personnel for a transfer and said city folk, like Mrs. Sobieski, get Metro tickets fixed so why can't Metro people get city tickets fixed.

That put the fix on Crawford's argument with the county manager to keep ticket computing machines in his own office control.

Crawford sensed the way they wind was blowing when Don Petit, of the county manager's office, said that eventually the clerk's function will come directly under Metro government and the business with tighten up "when we get an IBM operation going."

Crawford sent a memo to County Commission Chairman Walter Weiss saying he "welcomes" the outside $12,000 survey ordered by the commission.

Toby's $2 ticket didn't turn out to be just as ordinary a ticket as she thought.

Taxpayers Are Little Puzzled

Dade County unincorporated area homeowners now paying garbage collection and federal income taxes might well be puzzled. The county calls the payments taxes which are liens against the real estate. Internal Revenue, however, says they are "service charges" and therefore not an income tax deduction as real estate taxes.

Dade Attorney Knocks His Job

In a rare moment of irritation, County Attorney Darrey A. Davis complained that Metro Commissioners are using him as "a high-priced public relations man." His comment came at the end of a day in which Davis had 14 conferences, only two of which dealt with legal problems.

Some of the non-legal chores handed on to the $30,000-a-year attorney are speech-writing and acting as a back-and-forth envoy between the commission and county department heads.

Davis has a log kept of everything which crosses his desk. The score for January, in which there were 20 working days: he delivered 15,000 pages of written opinion to the 11 commissioners, and handled 764 telephone calls. "In between, I got some thinking done," he says with a wry grin.

Songbird From Miami Wins Honor

Last year, Miss McCormick, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. James J. McCormick, of 350 NE 90th St., was runnerup in the contest.

Miss McCormick, a music student at the University of Miami, will receive a $500 scholarship and will appear with the Fred Waring orchestra at Orlando, Jacksonville and Daytona Beach.

The four runnersup will get $250 scholarships.

Bride Learns To Be Prompt

VALENCIA, Spain — (UPI) — Adolfo Garrachon and Saturnina Merino were married Saturday, and this time the bride got to the church on time.

The wedding was set for last Monday, but when Saturnina arrived 30 minutes late, blaming a slow driver, Adolfo walked off. "Just teaching her promptness," he said.

'Back-Door Treasury Raids' Hit

The New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — Economy-minded conservatives in the House of Representatives have organized a drive to stop what they call "back-door raids on the Treasury."

Their success or failure could have a significant effect on the outcome of the battle of the budget. The amount of money to be made available for housing, airport construction, depressed areas and various other domestic programs is potentially at stake.

The "back-door" approach is mainly the device, used increasingly by Congress in recent years, of authorizing specified executive agencies to borrow directly from the Treasury.

It has the effect of bypassing the economy-slanted House Appropriations Committee.

Rep. Howard W. Smith, (D., Va.) has introduced a resolution to amend the rules of the House so that all proposed expenditures would be funneled through the Appropriations Committee.

Lansky To Submit To Check

No Reason Seen To Doubt Illness

By DAVE KRASLOW
Of Our Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — There is "no question" about whether Meyer Lansky will submit to medical examination to determine his physical fitness to testify before a Senate Rackets Committee, The Herald learned Saturday.

Philip K. O'Donnell, administrative assistant to committee counsel Robert Kennedy said after consultation with Lansky's physician that he has no reason to doubt that Lansky is too ill in a Hollywood hospital to testify, but that Lansky will eventually be examined by a U.S. Public Health Service doctor.

The hospitalized gambler reportedly refused to be examined Friday.

But, O'Donnell explained, PHS policy prohibits their doctors from examining persons in a private hospital. "They have to use their own equipment at their own facilities before PHS will certify that a witness is too ill or well enough to testify," O'Donnell said.

Lansky, 56, operated one of Havana's biggest gambling casinos before the Batista government's downfall. After returning to the U.S. Lansky entered a Hollywood hospital, reportedly for a heart condition. Attaches said his personal physician won't let him out of bed.

The rackets committee wants Lansky to appear in its current investigation of jukebox racketeering.

O'Donnell said he has been in touch with Lanskys' attorney and the hospital and has no reason to doubt that Lansky is ill.

"There is no question of Lansky refusing to submit to an examination," O'Donnell said. "The subpena on Lansky is still in effect and as soon as he is well enough to testify he will be called to Washington."

Drug Ring Financiers Face Quiz

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The Senate Rackets Committee said Saturday it has evidence that loans from a New York money lending firm have been used to finance some of the leading figures in the narcotics and gambling rackets.

Chief Counsel Robert F. Kennedy announced the committee will explore the allegations in hearings this week.

He declined to name in advance either the lending company, the big coin machine operator he pictured as its dominant figure, or the underworld characters who got the loans.

Kennedy termed this an important new phase of the committee's investigation of an alleged conspiracy by gangsters to control the multi-billion-dollar jukebox-coin machine industry from coast to coast.

The evidence indicates that loans of considerable size were made to some underworld figures, Kennedy told newsmen. He said the committee will attempt to learn why the money was loaned, for what purpose it was used, and whether high interest rates were charged.

Kennedy said it is reasonably common procedure for groups in the coin machine business to set up what are known as factoring companies. These provide loans to help finance the purchase of jukeboxes, pinball and vending machines.

He said the committee is particularly interested in one group which, he said, has formed several such factoring operations listing top underworld figures among their borrowers.

The counsel said he thought the story would center mainly on one company, and would show "a considerable amount of money is involved."

Kennedy said it may be Wednesday before the committee calls first witnesses in this field of inquiry. The committee's hearings are in recess until Tuesday.

Russians Visit Science Museum

Lenox R. Lohr, museum president, said the Soviet groups visited the huge museum on the shore of Lake Michigan to study U.S. scientific and industrial progress.

The Russians were among 78 tour parties from foreign countries. In all, the museum's 1958 guest list showed 7,261 tour groups and 2,504,391 individual visitors.

Harry Rich Announces '5 and 10' Sale Of Surplus Asphalt, Vinyl Floor Tile

HARRY RICH
ASPHALT TILE

A SURPLUS of floor tile at the Harry Rich showroom means real savings for Miami home owners. "We are having a five-and-ten-cent-sale," says Harry Rich, well known floor covering dealer. "Our operation in Newark, N. J., is the world's largest in tile contracting. We have thousands of floor tiles from there which were left over from the Prudential Life Insurance Co. building and other large jobs in the North. We also have great quantities of asphalt and vinyl tile left over from local installations such as the new Miami International Airport, Diplomat Hotel and Bethesda Hospital. You will find a large selection of colors and styles priced at five cents each for asphalt tile and ten cents each for vinyl tile. Each tile is nine inches by nine inches in size. For do-it-yourselfers, we give a free spreader and complete instructions. Prices also are low on the cement and tools you may need or want to install the tile. If you need floor tile, or think you may want some in the near future, measure your rooms and drive out to 8300 Biscayne Blvd. soon . . . while the selection is complete." Harry Rich also has a complete selection of carpets, rugs, rush and straw squares . . . anything in floor coverings. The beautiful showroom is open until nine p.m. Mondays and until 5:30 p.m. other days—closed Sundays.

What Will It Take for You to Trade Cars This Week? Asks Stacy Rowell

ROWELL

Automobiles have come a long way in design, power, engineering and comfort. They have changed the life of the entire nation. Today, if one does not have a car, the family's world is very limited.

"It is our job to provide the best possible transportation at the lowest possible cost," says Stacy Rowell. "We have the car for you at our nationally famous used car lot at 1200 NW 36th Street.

"Whether you have a car to trade or not, we can find a car to fit your need . . . and your budget. If you do have a car you want to trade, you will find the best deal in town at Stacy Rowell Ford.

"By the way, what would it take for you to trade cars today . . . low price, expert service, high trade, low down payment, or convenient terms? You name it, Stacy Rowell Ford has it!

"If you've been thinking at all about trading, if you've noticed the 'old bus' hasn't as much pep as it should, if you're spending more for repairs than your car is worth . . . then it's time to trade cars. But wait a minute. Don't be hasty!

"Some of the best deals in the world were never made because someone was in too big of a rush to take the first deal offered. Our advice is — shop around and compare — and be sure to shop Stacy Rowell!

"Remember, the lowest monthly payment quoted is not always the best price. Likewise the highest trade in is not always the best deal.

"But how can you know which is the best deal? One way would be to ask a close friend who really known automobile values. If you don't have anyone to ask, then select a dealer in whom you have complete confidence.

"Our salesmen have been specially trained to be of service to you . . . to help you arrive at the best montly payment for your budget, to advise you on the right car for your needs and to get you the best trade in possible.

"We don't work on a 'short term view,' even though we are one of the largest volume dealers in the South. We try our best to keep your interest at heart because we want you to come back . . . for service and for your next car. And we want a good recommendation to your friends.

"Surely this will not be the case if you feel you've been treated unfairly by anyone in our organization. Knowing this, we do all in our power to serve you and assist you."

Stacy Rowell has been prominent in automobile circles in Miami, in Florida and in the nation for more than 20 years. He also is well known for his efforts to build a better and stronger Dade County. To do this he has given much time, effort and money to various civic groups.

Rowell has built his organization into virtually an institution on the ideas and ideals quoted above . . . "treat the customer with honesty so he will come back and send his friends."

Stacy Rowell Ford, Inc., at 2751 N. Miami Ave., also has one of the finest service departments in the South. Here may be found facilities for almost any type of automobile repair at reasonable prices. Only genuine Ford replacement parts are used.

The used car headquarters of the Rowell organization is located at 1200 NW 36th St., where more than 200 clean cars are on display every day and evening.

Expect Large Finds of Rare Minerals

Russia to Expand Antarctic Bases

Compiled From Herald Services

Russia is planning to expand the scope of its Antartic explorations, evidently because it believes the frigid continent contains quantities of uranium and other metallic ores.

The Soviets will set up new stations in the Land of Queen Maud on the Atlantic coast of eastern Antarctica and on the shore of the Bellingsgauzen Sea on the Pacific coast of western Antarctica.

Russian scientists are particularly interested in eastern Antarctica because of the geological similiarity of this area to South Africa, central Australia and Brazil, where precious metals and uranium are found.

The Soviets believe western Antarctica is a continuation of the South American Andes, and by analogy with the features of Venezuela and Bolivia, they predict that oil, copper, silver, tin and lead will be found there.

Power Source On Moon Hinted

THE "VOLCANO" on the moon recently observed by the Russian astronomer Kozyrev was probably a puff of dust and gas erupting due to heating of the dust by natural radioactivity, says a British scientist.

If this is true, says Dr. J. H. Fremlin of the University of Birmingham, "a large and fairly accessible source of power should be available to future moon settlers."

How Raid Split N.Y. Cops Case

N. Y. Times News Service

NEW YORK — When Bookmaker Frank Crisafi's apartment in Brooklyn was raided by the District Attorney's rackets bureau, he was indignant.

Crisafi complained that he had paid "Joe Weiner, Connelly and an inspector" $500 as a "fix" just the day before.

What, he demanded to know, was going on?

What went on from there was the blow-off in the latest Brooklyn police corruption case, broken by the odd coincidence involving the raid on Crisafi.

Officials revealed Saturday how Crisafi unwittingly supplied the information that helped police break the case which exposed shakedown activities laid to three Brooklyn morals squad policemen.

Deputy Inspector Dominick Masella, 57, and Plainclothesmen Joseph Weiner, 42, and Norman Connolly, 37, have been suspended and are under charges of illegal wiretapping in the case.

According to Assistant District Attorney Aaron E. Koota, the three had made illegal wiretaps on the apartment of Crisafi, a bookmaker in the Bath Beach section. Koota charged that the wiretaps had been used to shake down the bookmaker.

When the members of the district attorney's rackets bureau, pursuing a homicide lead, raided Crisafi's, it touched the renewed inquiry into departmental corruption.

Crisafi, 51, told the district attorney that he worked for a "Johnny Bananas," and the arrest of the three policemen and David August, 52, alias Bananas, followed.

Police insist August was not Joseph Bonano of Brooklyn, also sometimes known as "Joe Bananas," who was picked up in the crime convention raid at Apalachin, N.Y., on Nov. 14, 1957. Bonano, about the same age, told the state troopers at the time that he was retired.

In asking for $100,000 bail for August, assistant district attorney Koota, head of the rackets bureau, said that August "has vital information concerning his activities in bookmaking and his activities with the police."

He wanted the high bail for August's own safety and to insure his appearance before a grand jury, Koota said.

Granting the bail request, Kings County Court Judge Hyman Barshay noted "regretfully" that it was a black day in the history of the police department."

"When a high officer is participating in the kind of scheme that the district attorney has outlined," Judge Barshay said, "it is time to sit up and take notice. We must get at the source of this corruption. Brooklyn has been plagued with this sort of corruption in the past."

Cloroben, the only product that ends clogging and overflow of Septic Tanks and Cesspools by eliminating the cause!

CLOROBEN WORKS FASTER, SURER. HERE'S WHY:

PRODUCT	Easy to use and non-corrosive to metal and concrete	Harmless to Useful Bacteria	Eliminates Obnoxious Odors	Dissolves Accumulated Grease and Slime	Will Maintain Necessary Digestive Conditions
CLOROBEN	YES	YES	YES	YES	YES
ENZYME	YES	YES	NO	NO	NO
BACTERIA CULTURE	YES	YES	NO	NO	NO
YEAST	YES	YES	NO	NO	NO
CAUSTIC	NO	NO	NO	YES	NO

Note that Cloroben is not an enzyme, bacteria culture, yeast or caustic. Cloroben is an exclusive chemical formula, the most effective chemical product of its kind.

If the septic tank or cesspool which services your home overflows or backs up and gives off offensive odors, almost always the cause is the thick crust of grease and slime which has coated the walls of your tank and formed a heavy layer of scum on the surface.

The only way to cure this condition is to dissolve this scum mat and grease and slime coating. Adding bacteria cultures, yeast, or enzymes can't work. They don't get at the cause of the condition. Only Cloroben ends the clogging and overflow of septic tanks and cesspools by eliminating the cause! Cloroben creates the right conditions for the rapid growth and functioning of digestive bacteria, ever present in the system, and thus keeps the tanks or cesspools in good working order.

Quick and Easy To Use. Gets And Keeps Septic Tanks And Cesspools In Good Condition.

In such Florida cities as Coral Gables, Key West, West Palm Beach, Fort Lauderdale, Hollywood, and Miami, Cloroben is the choice of local sanitary engineers as well as by the other leading sanitary engineers of cities and towns throughout the United States.

WASTES ENGINEERING

Authoritative Article By William H. Wechter, P.E., Diplomate American Academy of Sanitary Engineers. Chief Sanitary Engineer, 1st Army Engineers, Confirms Cloroben As The Truly Effective Septic Tank And Cesspool Cleaner

"Recently, the author was faced with the problem of offensive odors on a large scale in many small plants consisting of septic tanks, tile fields, soil absorption beds, or covered sand filters. Many ways of correcting the existing difficulties were tried, including the use of a plank of proper length to break up the scum in the septic tanks. Having had good fortune in keeping sewage collection systems free of grease incrustations and odors, and having succeeded in keeping a primary sewage treatment plant free from odors, by the addition of small amounts of Cloroben, we considered doing the same with these small plants.

For, the addition of a relatively small amount of Cloroben into the dosing or pump chamber for any disposal facility, such as a soil absorption bed or sand filter, keeps the facilities operable. Since this method of treatment of a septic tank effluent proved successful, the life of many similar small facilities such as septic tanks and tile field units installed throughout the country, may be extended and the expenditure of additional monies to replace or rebuild failing facilities will be postponed indefinitely."

- Kills obnoxious odors • Ends clogging and overflow of septic tanks and cesspools by dissolving grease and slime • Opens grease clogged drains and traps • Attacks and stops odor-causing bacteria, but does not affect useful organisms needed in your tank for the conversion of sewage into harmless "digested" form • Instantly kills roaches which infest drains and tanks • Pleasantly pine scented.

Contest Rules

1—Solve the puzzle as you would any crossword puzzle. Fill in your name and address. Incomplete entries ineligible.

2—To mail: Clip the puzzle coupon and paste or glue to the back of a three-cent U.S. postal card. Address to Sunny Fortune, P.O. Box 3700, Miami, Fla. No entries in envelopes will be opened.

3—Puzzles may also be deposited in the Sunny Fortune Box at The Herald front counter 200 S. Miami Ave. Postal cards are not necessary for entries dropped in this box. No entries in envelope will be opened.

4—Postmark deadline for entries is midnight Wednesday following publication on the previous Sunday or Monday. Deadline for entries at The Herald first floor counter is 5 p.m. Wednesday.

5—You do not have to buy The Miami Herald to enter. Exact size hand-drawn puzzle facsimiles are eligible. Duplicates of puzzles by mechanical means, or carbon paper will NOT be accepted.

6—The Miami Herald puzzle may be examined at circulation office of The Miami Herald or at city library free of charge.

7—Each contestant may submit as many as six entries.

8—If only one completely correct entry to each week's puzzle submitted in accordance with these rules is found, The Miami Herald will pay the winner a minimum of $300. If more than one set of correct answers is received, the award money will be divided equally among the winners.

9—If no correct entries are received in any week, $100 will be added to the original prize money each week until there is a winner.

10—Winners will be announced as soon as judging is completed. There is only one correct solution. The decision of the judges is final, and all contestants agree to abide by the judges' decision. No entries will be returned. All become the property of The Miami Herald.

11—The Miami Herald cannot be responsible for entries delayed or lost in the mails.

Answers to Last Week's Puzzle

Across

1—A house that attracts one at first sight often disappoints when inferior work is seen (Interior). — "INTERIOR" is weak. There's no suggestion that the INTERIOR work is inferior. No such objection applies to INFERIOR.

5—A SNUB is apt to make an impressionable person feel self-conscious (Snob). — Only in certain circumstances is a SNOB likely to make him feel self-conscious; if he associates with snobbish people he might be a snob himself. SNUB is better because an impressionable person is sensitive and often feels a rebuff.

7—The way an employer REWARDS his workers often shows the kind of man he is (Regards). — The way he REGARDS his workers, considers them in many aspects, more frequently than often shows the kind of man he is. Often is better with REWARDS; it applies to only one feature of his attitude toward them.

9—When we RAGE we're apt to talk irresponsibily (Rate). — It's scarcely correct that when we RATE or scold we have such a tendency to talk irresponsibly. We're more likely to do so when we RAGE, because then we're more likely to be unreasonable.

11—An excessive number of BOSSES might ruin a business (Losses). — Too many BOSSES tend to hamper a business and might indeed ruin it. As for LOSSES, an excessive number of LOSSES almost certainly would mean disaster.

12—Chastisement is apt to make a sulky-natured child MULE (Mute). — That it's apt to make him stubborn is correct Because he's already sulky-natured, chastisement is more than merely apt to make him MUTE, or silent.

13—It's probably true that we're less reluctant to DIE as we grow older (Lie). — Not LIE: It's not even probably true that elderly people have less regard for truth and honesty than young people. DIE is better; we might be in failing health or become more philosophical with age.

14—Anxiety to keep his job makes many a conscientious man SLOW at his work (Slog). — SLOG is weak because a conscientious man always tries to put his best into his work. In the face of such an anxiety he's apt to be over-careful, making him SLOW at his work.

Down

1—We're apt to be more tolerant of an excuse when it's INGENIOUS (Ingenuous). — Apt. understates with INGENUOUS, frank, simple, innocent. The restraint is better with INGENIOUS, clever, inventive; we might either admire its ingenuity or discount it for that same reason.

2—The heart of a capricious woman is often hard to READ (Rend). — However capricious, unpredictable, she is, she's still a woman and has feminine emotions; often goes too far with REND. But because she's capricious it's often difficult to know what her emotions are. READ is better.

3—Alas! We often fail in a duty, even though we OWN it to ourselves that we should do it (Owe). — When we OWE it to ourselves to do a duty, it's probably a duty that has to be done for ourselves, in our own interests; often fail goes rather far. When we OWN, admit, to ourselves that we should do a duty, it might be in somebody else's interest. We're more likely to fail to do such a duty.

4—An anticipated RISE is often much less effective (Ruse). — The main idea of a RUSE, trick, is that it shall come as a surprise; often understates. RISE is better with the restraint) the anticipated rise might be a routine promotion or a guaranteed increase in value of shares.

5—Being contradicted when you're SORE is apt to make you lose your patience (Sure). — To be SURE, certain, is not necessarily to be unreasonable; we might patiently try to convince the other person that we're right. There's a greater chance of your losing your patience when you're SORE, angry; you're already in an ill humor.

6—A WRY jest often causes us more discomfort than amusement (Dry). We're more likely to feel discomfort at a WRY jest because the humor is twisted and could be bitterly sarcastic. Not so a DRY jest, which need by no means be so harmful.

8—It's often hard to conceal our feelings when someone AMUSES us (Abuses). — It's more than often hard to conceal feelings when someone ABUSES us. Usually would be more appropriate. AMUSES is milder; amusement is not so hard to conceal as is anger.

10—An employer is usually loath to engage an inexperienced man who apparently isn't EVEN well (Ever). — Usually understates with EVER surely he's not only loath but resolved not to engage such a man (distinct, of course, from someone with a physical disability). With EVEN, the clue suggests no more than that the man is unwell at the time.

Iraq's Revolt Devouring Its Children

Col. Arif, in Shadow of Gallows, Symbol of Resistance to Reds

By GEORGE WELLER

Miami Herald-Chicago News Wire

Revolutionary Martyr

As long as Col. Abdel Salam Arif, doomed on rigged charges of attempting to assassinate Premier Kassem, does not go to the gallows Iraq's resistance to Communist takeover will stay alive. Ironically, Arif appointed the prosecutors who railroaded him to a death sentence before a Red-dominated tribunal. Kassem is handling the fate of his former, pro-Nasser lieutenant gingerly.

WELLER

Arif faces the gallows on the rigged charge of trying to murder his comrade and fellow leader of the July revolution, Premier Maj. Gen. Abdel Karim Kassem.

Though bitterly anti-Western Arif has become the martyred symbol of Iraq's disorganized resistance against creeping communism.

Rightist and centrist politicians and statesmen banished from the cabinet have been splintered into disunity by the gradual gains of pro-Communist army officers and Communist and fellow-traveling politicians.

Even in the shadow of the gallows Arif represents the nationalists' standby for counter-revolution against the Communists' steady inroads and control of radio and press.

Arif's trial was muddles, mangled and mishandled by two pro-Communist inquisitors, bullying Col. Fadel Abass Mahdawi and demagogic prosecutor Col. Majid Mohammed Amin. Both were actually trying Arif to save their own careers and perhaps lives.

To punish the ministers and officers of the fallen pro-Western regime Arif chose Mahdawi and Amin as crack inquisitors six months ago when he was minister of the interior and deputy commander of the armed forces. Iraq's revolution, like France's, is devouring its children.

In the televised courts-martial nobody has been able to stand up to the pro-Communist colonels in the courtroom where Red poets read verses and Communist claques wave gallows ropes like lassos.

In secret session, however, under the army's eyes alone Arif fought savagely for his life. Younger officers testifying, trapped between the pro-Communist clique around Kassem and Arif's possible comeback, refused to support the treason charges. The charges collapsed and Arif won.

To railroad Arif behind bars the pro-Communist judges were obligated to whip up the charge that Arif drew his revolver in a private meeting with Kassem with the intention of killing "the only true democrat of the Arabs."

The pro-Communist judges were themselves left far out on a limb because Kassem refused to testify and the prosecution, therefore, had only hearsay, no witnesses.

Before being condemned to die Arif devastatingly asked the court why the government sent him to Western Germany as ambassador after this purported attempt. Arif insisted that his intention was to kill himself out of humiliation and that Kassem asked him, "why kill yourself in my office?"

The pro-Communist court, as the charges collapsed, shoved hot-potato Arif back to Kassem with a gallows sentence tempered by a recommendation of mercy.

So gingerly is Kassem handling his anti-Communist, pro-Nasserist martyr that Arif's brother, Col. Abdul Rahman Arif has not been removed as commander of Iraq's tank school. Ironically, Arif's brother has charge of some 150 newly purchased heavy Soviet tanks.

Admiral's Copyright Is Upheld

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — A Navy legal expert said that Vice Adm. Hyman G. Rickover and other government officials may copyright speeches provided they are not delivered under official orders or as part of their official duties.

A. V. Helvestine, a patent expert in the Office of Naval Research, expressed the opinion in a letter to M. B. Schnapper, executive director of the Public Affairs Press.

Schnapper has brought suit in Federal District Court here, challenging the legality of Rickover's action in seeking exclusive rights to a Dec. 11 speech and to 22 other speeches he has delivered in the past four years.

Helvestine told Schnapper the suit contends that "no government official or employe has the right under any circumstances ever to acquire proprietary rights to his original written or spoken material.

"No theory could be more detrimental to the recruitment or retention of competent personnel," Helvestine said, "than to advise them that all their time and thought are the property of the public . . ."

He Leaves Son $10

SAN FRANCISCO — (AP) — Attorney Hiram W. Johnson Jr. cut off son Hiram W. Johnson III with $10, but bequeathed $25,000 to Marie Schow, a family friend of 40 years.

The will, filed for probate, noted: "I do not consider it fitting to excoriate him (Hiram III) nor do I wish to detail my reasons. They are explicit and plentiful."

Johnson, Jr. was a son of the late Hiram W. Johnson, who was a California governor and U.S. senator.

Cannon Fine, But No Pistols

GENOA, Italy — (AP) — It cost a Genoa widow 2,000 lire ($3) for having a .22 caliber pistol in the house but nothing for a multi-barrel ack-ack cannon in the attic.

The judge ruled the pistol was an illegal weapon. Of the cannon, an invention of the defendant's late husband, he said: "It was a souvenir of the family. The factor of affection must not be overlooked."

Pity Poor Dentist If You Have Cold

By ARTHUR J. SNIDER
Miami Herald-Chicago News Wire

CHICAGO — If you're plagued with a cold and feeling sorry for yourself, think of the poor dentist.

SNIDER

He is exposed to all kinds of respiratory germs as he works at close quarters with the dental patient.

Dr. Paul S. Rhoads, professor of medicine at Northwestern University, said in a panel discussion that colds and other respiratory infections are the most important health problems of the practicing dentist.

Other problems are duodenal ulcer, heart disease and obesity.

"In a sense," said Dr. Rhoads, "these are all occupational hazards resulting from meticulous, exacting work in which there is inevitably prolonged exchange of emotional problmes and respiratory microbes between patient and dentist and in which the dentist is more or less immobilized within a very narrow sphere of physical activity."

Art Sale Here Hits $50,000

By DORIS RENO
Herald Art Editor

Approximately $50,000 worth of art had changed hands in the Fontainebleau lobby Saturday night, during the opening of the five million dollar Art Sale and Collectors' Exhibition for the benefit of the Hebrew University in Jerusalem.

The opening night sale was scheduled to end at midnight, but the unsold paintings will remain on the walls through Feb. 28.

The most expensive painting purchased was Camille Pissarro's watercolor "Peasant Women," which brought $7,000. It was purchased by Harold Uris of New York.

Among the other more expensive items sold in the initial run was a Modigliani pencil portrait of "Beatrice Hastings" which fetched $1,600. It was bought by Mr. and Mrs. Simon Fisher of Miami Beach.

The nearly 700 paintings and sculptures in the sale were valued by the sponsors at nearly five million dollars.

The $50,000 in sales during the first four hours was for 54 items. Paintings and sculptures sold were removed immediately from the walls and replaced by fresh items.

On hand to welcome guests to the invitational opening was Mrs. Louis S. Gimbel Jr., national chairman of the Women's Division of American Friends of the Hebrew University.

This is the first year there has been a Miami showing.

UM Student Nabbed After Wild Chase

Police caught an 18-year-old University of Miami student Saturday night after an 85 mile-an-hour chase through Coral Gables that ended when the youth was spilled from his motorcycle.

Coral Gables officer C. J. Fieler said he was in a patrol car and signaled Lawrance Mathison, of 1229 Dickonson Dr., to stop when he spotted the youth speeding on the university campus.

But Mathison roared off at high speed, Fieler said, and led the patrol car on a chase that ended at Granada Blvd. and South Dixie Highway.

Fieler said Mathison, who was badly bruised, will be charged with speeding, running three red lights and "numerous" stop signs.

Italian Bridge Team Tops U.S.

NEW YORK — (AP) — The Italin team moved closer to a third successive world contract bridge title Saturday as they smothered the U.S. team in the next to last day of the tournament.

The European titleholders scored 27 international match points (IMP) to seven for the U.S. in Saturday's session. The victory put them in the lead over the Americans by 203 IMP's to 173.

Hormone Cream Dangers Seen

MEMPHIS — (UPI) — A Richmond, Va., physician said that non-cancerous tumors can result from the use of beauty creams containing hormones.

Dr. Guy W. Horsley told the Mid-South Postgraduate Medical Assembly that women should consult doctors before using hormone creams.

Budding Inventors In Season Again

By PHIL MEYER
Herald Staff Writer

The Science Fair season is under way in Dade County.

Budding inventors are showing the fruits of their work in a series of school fairs as a prelude to the big South Florida Science Fair.

The big one will be held March 18-21 in the Dinner Key Auditorium.

First of the school fairs was held last week in the library of Ponce de Leon Junior High.

The best exhibits from the ribbon-winning group will be chosen for showing in the South Florida fair.

BEANS GROWING in natural Florida soil compared to those growing in dirt to which chemicals had been added. The natural-soil beans did best.

WAVE mechanics illustrated by bouncing Christmas tree ornaments dangling on a row of strings.

REACTION tester to see how fast you can react to three different senses—touch, sight and sound.

LUNG MACHINE which you breathe into to make a plastic mock-up act the same way your lungs do.

"We'll be quite selective in picking the ones to go to the main fair," said Principal James J. Norton. "Last year, we sent 15 and had seven prize winners."

Other school science fairs which will be coming up this week are at:

Madison Junior High, 3400 NW 87th St., Wednesday, Thursday and Friday during school hours.

South Miami Junior High, 6750 SW 60th St., Wednesday at 8 p.m. and from 8:15 a.m. to 4 p.m. Thursday and Friday.

Teachers Double Up

More than one teacher in five holds an extra job in addition to his teaching duties, the Dade County Classroom Teachers Association said Saturday.

A survey of 3,000 teachers revealed 677 who said they were "moonlighters" or holders of outside employment.

A third of the teachers were single with no dependents. The survey did not show how many of the moonlighters were men with families.

'Miami Will Heed Law'

Dr. H. Franklin Williams, vice president of the University of Miami, said Saturday he thinks Miamians will heed the law rather than their prejudices when the final school integration decision is made here.

Speaking before the Mr. and Mrs. Chapter of the American Jewish Congress, the educator predicted Dade County schools will never by closed becuase of integration orders, as they were in Virginia.

He said Southern moderates are at last beginning to make themselves heard.

The Rev. Theodore Gibson, head of the Miami chapter, National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, told the group: "Negroes are going to demand desegregation. No more, no less."

Miami's Black Market Pesos May Show Up When Dice Roll

By EDWIN A. LAHEY
Chief Of Our Washington Bureau

HAVANA, Cuba — When the Havana gambling joints reopen, the sharpies from Miami Beach may be getting $100 worth of action for $70.

The possibility of these pleasant bargains arises from the presence of an active black market in Cuban pesos in the Miami area.

And the probable recirculation of "hot" pesos in the Havana gaming houses is believed to be the main reason for the long vacillation and delay in reopening the casinos here.

The South Florida black market in Cuban money is offered as one excuse for the rude experience that Murray Goodman, a Miami lawyer, had the other day at the Havana airport.

Customs officials found $42,150 in Cuban money in Goodman's baggage. Because of a mistake in interpretation, an over-eager young woman at the customs desk thought this was "hot" money, and brought about Goodman's detention briefly.

The Miami lawyer was later released with an apology when it was determined that he had the proper authority to bring this money in for the account of the Deauville Hotel, a new establishment on the Malecon, built with Miami money. The Deauville, like other new hotels, is waiting for official permission to reopen its casino.

AAA Calls Roadblocks 'Dragnets'

Miami's roadblock war among motorists, mayors, former mayors, police chiefs and judges grew hotter Saturday as a national group stepped into take sides.

The American Automobile Association labeled the roadblocks "traffic dragnets" and lined up behind former Miami Mayor Abe Aronovitz to fight the issue in court.

"We will seek to have the courts declare such police tactics as unconstitutional and unwarranted invasion of the rights of motorists everywhere," said Robert J. Finley, manager of the AAA's South Florida Division.

Joseph Braun, Chicago, who is legal committee chairman for the AAA, was in Miami and said the AAA will try to intervene in the Aronovitz suit, which is an injunction against Police Chief Walter E. Headley and the Miami City Commission.

Hearing on the petition is set for 2:15 p.m. Wednesday before Circuit Judge George E. Holt.

Chief Headley said Saturday the roadblocks will continue "in spite of Abe."

"Apparently the AAA is not interested in reducing slaughter on the highways," he said, "and I am very sorry to hear it."

The police chief said he is not worried about court action. "All the laws are on our side," he said.

'Runaways' In Miami? Probe Eyed

A Senate subcommittee studying "runaway children" talked Saturday of holding hearings in Miami, but a juvenile judge here said, "Miami has no special problem."

Sen. Thomas Hennings (D., Mo.) and his judicial subcommittee on juvenile delinquency finished sessions in New York last week.

They were probing what they said was a mass movement of homeless youngsters from the towns and villages "to the glamour spots of the nation — New York, Miami, Las Vegas, Chicago and Los Angeles."

Senior Juvenile Judge Walter H. Beckham said, however, that Miami "is no mecca for the wayward."

"We have no more and maybe fewer runaways coming here than other large cities," Beckham said.

Henning's group is making a special study of a "runaway compact" between the states which, if passed by all legislatures, would simplify the process of returning runaway children to their home areas.

Cash-Totin' Couple Held

A Negro migratory worker and his girl friend, carrying $2,240 in cash in their suitcase, were arrested in the Miami bus station Saturday night for investigation of a $15,000 Homestead holdup.

Miami police, working on a tip, picked up Earnest Washington, 33, and Norma Sanders, 21, both of Greenville, Miss., as they waited to take a bus to Galveston, Tex.

Washington told police at first he had $8. But after officers opened his suitcase and found 15 one-hundred dollar bills and other cash in a metal strongbox. Washington said he found the money in a tree in the Princeton labor camp where he worked as a tomato picker.

Police jailed the couple for investigation of armed robbery in the gunpoint theft of $15,000 in farm payroll money last Thursday from a Homestead businessman.

Ex-Jockey Shot in Holdup Try

Four men, including a wounded ex-Miami jockey, were under arrest in Hialeah Saturday after bungling an armed robbery they plotted while jammed inside a phone booth, police said.

The former jockey, Thomas Price Lyons, 26, was shot in the left hip when a half dozen Hialeah policemen stormed Bill's Fine Food Market at 2602 Palm Ave., and foiled the haphazard holdup.

Minutes before, police said, the quartet went through a series of miscues.

According to police, the four:

1—Piled out of a phone booth together before entering the market shortly before 11 p.m. closing time Friday.

2—Tied up the market's owner-operator William Kilgore, 37, then took turns sitting on him while they demanded that he remember the combination of an old empty safe he hadn't used in five years.

3—Manned the market's checkout counter for 15 minutes, waiting on customers and making change out of their own pockets because they couldn't unlock the cash register.

Gene Wakley, a cook at a nearby restaurant, noticed the strange goings on and called Hialeah police.

In the gun battle that followed, ex-jockey Lyons — the only one wounded — ran to the front of the store and tried to hide inside a pile of packing boxes. He was taken to Jackson Memorial Hospital in good condition.

Arrested with Lyons on charges of armed robbery were Louis Kripplebauer, 25, Jacob Wright, 35, and John J. Friel, Jr., 26, all of Philadelphia.

Police said they had been living at the Rancho Motel in Hialeah for about a month.

Lyons was barred from racing in 1954 when he was convicted of selling narcotics to a minor, and has a record as a drug addict himself.

Reds Reduce Political Prisoners

NEW YORK — (AP) — A Harvard law professor said the number of labor camps in the Soviet Union had been cut drastically and that Russia now had about one million prisoners, less than one-third the number prior to Stalin's death.

Prof. Harold J. Berman said on the NBC radio network program, "Image Russia," that less than two per cent of the Russian prisoners were confined for political reasons.

"Hundreds of thousands — and perhaps millions — of people have been released from the camps since Stalin's death," Berman said.

"You can see them in Moscow and talk to them about it. Whole camps have been emptied, and it's probably true that 70 per cent of the labor camps that existed before are no longer in use."

Berman said his information was based on talks with the deputy procurator general of the Soviet Union and other Russian officials. He said he believed he was the only non-Russian who had received this information.

A Real Steal In Foreign Cars

There was a real steal in used foreign cars Saturday at the Carl Kish Foreign Car Exchange, 2395 NW 36th St.

Miami Policeman W. J. Fairbanks said thieves broke into the lot office shortly after midnight, stole two 1953 Jaguars and a 1955 Triumph.

Then, just to make sure they could make an exchange at the Exchange, they took along 50 sets of car keys, Fairbanks said.

Services Monday

Cecil R. Warren, Journalist, Dies

Services will be held Monday for Cecil R. "Bony" Warren, a life-long journalist whose nickname was given him by the president of the U.S.

Mr. Warren, who was 59 and lived at 1035 SW 13th Ave., died Friday. He had suffered a stroke three weeks ago.

Mr. Warren had worked for the City of Miami Publicity Department for the last 10 years, and before that was editor of The Hollywood Herald, a reporter for The Miami News and papers in Knoxville, Tenn., and Richmond, Va.

He was a friend of presidents and a half-dozen governors. While on leave from newspaper work, he conducted Florida Sen. Spessard L. Holland's successful campaigns for governor and the U.S. Senate.

Mr. Warren came to Miami in 1925. One of his major Florida stories was the dedication of Bok Singing Tower at Lake Wales by President Calvin Coolidge.

His best known story was the graphic on-the-scene account of the 1928 hurricane in which many persons perished when Lake Okeechobee overflowed its banks.

Mr. Warren gained his nickname later while traveling with President Herbert Hoover on an inspection of the disaster area. The president called him "Bony" and the name stuck.

Survivors are his wife, Elizabeth; two sons, Bruce and John of Ventura, Calif.; four daughters, Rhea, at the University of Florida, Mrs. George Kane, Ventura, and Carole and Virginia, both of Fall Branch.

Services will be at 2 p.m. in the Tracy Funeral Home Chapel, with burial in Woodlawn Memorial Park.

Ex-Policeman Dies on Plane

James H. Gray, 62, former McKeesport, Pa., police lieutenant and city councilman, died of a heart attack Saturday while sitting in an Eastern airliner at International Airport.

The airliner was preparing to take off on a flight to Pittsburgh when Gray was stricken. His body will be sent to McKeesport Sunday.

Gray came to Florida by automobile to visit two sisters in St. Petersburg, Mrs. Tillie Blanchard and Mrs. Fred C. Allebach.

The Dade County medical examiner said Gray's death was natural and due to "heart disease."

VAN MOVERS NEEDED!

Are you interested in earning an average of $1,000 per month? That's the experience of many successful van operators driving for Aero Mayflower Transit Company, Inc., under 48-state contract. George Robinson says he nets over $1,000 per month, has paid for two tractors, owns new car, complete new household furniture, and has built substantial bank account since joining Mayflower's contract fleet in 1953. We are expanding Mayflower's service, need additional van operators 23 years or older to go into business for themselves with Mayflower. We furnish company paid training if needed, at no cost. All you need is desire to become independent businessman and a 1955 or newer model tractor titled in your name that meets Interstate Commerce Commission safety requirements. Personal references needed. Write John Davis, P.O. Box 107, Indianapolis 6, Indiana.

AIR CONDITIONED—HEATED

CERTAINLY there are many fine motels on the market, but seldom have we seen anything that is in such excellent condition, so fully equipped and with such a bona fide record of income . . . including last season.

THIS beautiful property has 26 units, near the center of Hollywood. 20' x 40' pool. 100% air conditioned, shuffleboard, ping pong, fully heated and room to expand.

WITH an $80,000 down payment, the present owners will take back a second mortgage at 6% for 15 years. Priced at only 5 times the gross income. Should net 22% after all expenses and mortgage payments.

"Tiffany Quality"
THIS ELEGANT home near Country Club Prado and St. Theresa's with it's hand-picked Tennessee Blue Stone trim, was featured in The AMERICAN HOME MAGAZINE in 1956, as perfectly planned for our wonderful climate.
THE "L"-shaped design provides complete privacy for the 70 Ft. porch with its Cuban brick floor, and guests may come and go to the Rumpus Room and filtered Screened Pool area, without entering the foyer and formal living room.
TEENAGE and adult party-givers will revel in the facilities for entertaining — the spacious terraces, dressing room, bath, bar and king-size BBQ in the pool wing.
THIS HOME has never before been offered. Now too large for the builder's family, we are proud to present to you.

SAFETY AFLOAT

STARTS WITH STURDY HULL
FIRST you want a hull so rugged that it will withstand years of pounding of motors, seas and trailer hauling and still stay tight. These are the safety factors. SECONDLY you want a smooth riding roomy hull. These are the comfort factors. NEXT you want graceful beauty and speed. These are design factors. Mercedes-Benz
HERE at last is a new type of motor car for people who expect to reap enjoyment equivalent to the sweat and toil for ownership. If you are the type of person that either through "pure insistance" or physical inability, must enter and leave a motor car in dignified or manorly way, without calisthenics, and demand a "posture chair" comfort in exchange for your thousands of dollars, Mercedes Benz takes the applause here and in the very important phases of durability, extremely long life and economy. Think of it—a good size car giving an honest 30 miles per gallon. Visit one of America's oldest factory representatives.

WHY FOREIGN CARS

OUR recent auto show was an overwhelming success. Actually more people paid more money to see foreign cars than any auto show ever held in Miami. We invite you to read some of the testimonials received during this eight day show attended by over 90,000 people. We, as Dade Countys oldest and best known importer sincerely believe, after culling the market for 15 years, offer the finest makes from Austin to Rolls Royce in 327 body styles ranging from the lowest to the highest in price, but all with one basic value to you—your moneys worth and more. This is what one "believer" says. "I drove a Hillman 128,000 miles, the Austin nearly as far and my MG 85,000 miles. No one of these ever needing repair work, which I, no expert, could not manage most easily. And upon sale of each I received well in excess of the listed market prices, even though the cars had well paid for themselves." This enthusiast had to say "I own a foreign car because performance and prestige are combined with economy of operation without sacrifice of comfort."

Thanks A Lot
Folks . . .
It's Sure
Great To Have Dad
Home Every Sunday.

They used to call us "Automobile Orphans" because our Dads were always selling cars on Sunday — but not any more! You folks have been helping us heaps by shopping for your cars on the other days of the week — Thanks again from all of us kids — and mom says thanks too!

So that Dad can be home with this boy

ALL OUR NEW CAR SHOWROOMS AND USED CAR LOTS WILL BE CLOSED ALL DAY SUNDAY

Your wonderful support of Sunday closing has made it possible for us to continue a six day week for this boy's Dad. Your many letters and phone calls are very much appreciated and your endorsement of this move has been overwhelmingly expressed by your shopping on Saturdays, Mondays and the other days and nights of the week. So — many thanks from us too!

Optimistic El Salvador Looks to Future

By WILLIAM G. GAUDET
Special To The Herald

Quiet Optimism

Despite unfavorable conditions in coffee cotton and tourism, El Salvador looks to the future with quiet optimism.

Not even the untimely eruption of Izalco volcano is stopping the nation's new accent on new means of trade and of attracting tourists.

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador — There is a strange feeling of quiet optimism in El Salvador today, despite the fact that the three elements — coffee, cotton and tourism — which could otherwise assure the country of economic prosperity, do not present a favorable tone.

GAUDET

Coffee prices have been off for some time, and there is little indication of any sudden boom upward either in demand, or in the price. Salvadoranean coffee growers, however, had anticipated the price drop even before it actually occurred, and even when prices were up they were considering what should be done when the decline came.

Out of the discussions came construction of Central American's first soluble coffee plant. A soluble plant in a coffee producing country such as El Salvador may not increase coffee comsumption, but it does present three important aspects:

1 — It tends to assist in the stabilization of prices;

2 — It increases employment within El Salvador; and

3 — It saves many dollars which otherwise would be spent on freight charges in the shipping of green coffee to foreign markets, principally the U. S.

Although cotton prices have been easing for some time, no real damage was done until recently. Cotton - planters, therefore, have not had time to come up with an answer to their problem, but one thing is definite — the problem is under intense study and if an answer is to be found, the men here will find it.

Meanwhile, to assist in the overall development within the country, a group of leading business executives have only recently formed the El Salvador Association of Industrialists with this slogan — buy, consume and use that which is produced within the country. Already more than 100 companies have joined the new organization, and the hope is that membership will exceed 500. Currently, in El Salvador there are some 700 operating companies with annual income in excess of $25,000.

Last year El Salvador felt that at long last it would be in a position to make a strong bid for the tourist dollar. A group of private business men financed construction of El Salvador's first truly modern resort type hotel, the El Salvador Intercontinental, while the government tourist bureau pushed through with its plans to construct a road and a modern hotel at the top of Cerro Verde Mountain.

Then came the truly cruel blow. Izalco volcano, which had become world famous because of the regularity of its eruptions, day and night, suddenly became inactive. The timing could not have been more inopportune, for cessation of the volcano's eruptions came [illegible] year-ed completion of its project and El Salvador Intercontinental opened its doors for the first time.

Probing into the past, there are those who insist that this is not the first time Izalco has ceased erupting, only to later start blasting with even greater fury. This, of course, is the big hope.

Although Izalco well could have been the star performer in the country's bid for tourism, it is not by any means the only attraction El Salvador offers, particularly when winter snows cover the U. S. During the last days of December and into January and February it is the dry season, warm enough for swimming, and not too warm to be uncomfortable.

So that now is going to be the new accent — climate.

French Kill 150 Algerian Rebels

ALGIERS — (AP) — French military sources announced that 150 of the Algerian rebels who tried to break into Algeria through the electric barrier along the Tunisian frontier two days ago have been killed.

French forces have been pursuing about 200 rebels who tried to pass from Tunisia to Algeria by piercing the line. The French claimed to have killed 150, captured 25, and chased most of the others back into Tunisia; 160 weapons were also taken according to a French communique.

Quickening of Cuba's Cleanup Is Seen As Castro Takes Prime Minister Role

HAVANA, Cuba — (AP) — A speedup in Cuba's social and economic housecleaning appears certain, now that Fidel Castro is taking over as prime minister.

The 32-year-old leader of the revolution that unseated Dictator Fulgencio Batista formally assumes the post of chief of government Monday. He then is expected to:

PUSH the recovery of stolen money and property illegally acquired by the past regime.

Castro has served as commander in chief under President Manuel Urritia, his handpicked choice as chief of state. Now Castro's military job will pass to his 27-year-old brother Raul, the deputy commander.

Informed Cubans said the cabinet's resignation Friday night and Castro's decision to take the prime ministry are due to these factors:

The young revolutionaries who swept into power with a broad reform program thought the cabinet was moving too slowly.

Castro had been forced to take more and more responsibilities outside his army job because everyone with a grievance sought him out.

In resigning as prime minister, Jose Miro Cardona wished Castro well. Castro is expected to retain some of the ministers.

(Castro said it was personally "distressing" for him to have to accept the premiership but that it was "necessary for the revolution."

(Miro Cardona said, "At last, for the good of Cuba, the vexatious duality of powers has ended.")

The newspaper Excelsior said the split over the pace of the revolutionary program became evident in mid-January when Miro Cardona offered his resignation.

The change in the prime ministry had a generally popular reaction. Messages of support streamed into Castro's headquarters.

Castro faces a sea of problems, including labor demands accumulated during seven years of Batista dictatorship. Under Batista, workers were not allowed to strike.

Castro has dealt personally with the labor questions, solving each issue as it arose. He solved oil union demands by getting salary adjustments. He kept sugar workers happy by suggesting they work hard for Cuba's welfare and bring up their demands after the crop was harvested.

To Help Latins

Coffee Import Law Urged

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — The State Department is reported making progress in its efforts to convince key congressmen of the need for a law giving the administration stand - by authority to impose import quotas on coffee.

RUBOTTOM

Informed sources say that Assistant Secretary of State Roy R. Rubottom Jr., who is in charge of inter-American relations, and the assistant secretary for economic affairs, Thomas C. Mann have quietly sounded out congressional opinion.

The State Department is said to want the authority so it can act quickly should coffee prices reach dangerously low levels in the future.

Although the Eisenhower administration's official policy still is in opposition to direct U.S. participation in a coffee stabilization scheme, State Department officials are said to be confident they can get a reversal if Congress is willing to go along.

The 15 Latin American coffee-producing countries have sought to stabilize the price of coffee through their own efforts since October by withholding a percentage of their exports from the market. The pact has succeeded in the last few weeks in keeping prices at higher levels than many trade pessimists thought possible last September.

However, many Latin American coffee experts still fear the pact may not be completely successful in the future unless it is reinforced with a U.S. import quota plan.

Import quotas would tend to assure Latin American countries of a steady income from the U.S. market, the world's largest, and would give them a measure of confidence in planning their economic development.

Some sources also feel that if the U.S. government had congressional authority to impose quotas, African coffee producers might modify their current opposition to joining Latin America in a withholding pact.

The quota authority would give the administration leverage in urging the Africans to join.

Haiti Raps Cuban Aid To Exiles

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti — (AP) — President Francois Duvalier charged that Haitian exiles are getting military training in Cuba, "probably" in preparation for an armed invasion of Haiti.

He called on the U.S. to stop any such invasion. Duvalier said he got his information from his "personal police" — presumably Haitian intelligence agents.

The president said he had just received a cable from one of his representatives reporting that a faction of the Cuban revolutionary movement is cooperating with "so-called Haitian political exiles" in arranging the military training.

He said the invasion would probably take place between Feb. 15 and Feb. 20.

Duvalier revealed he is sending a protest to the Cuban government over the use of Cuban territory by Haitian political exiles for such purposes.

He said the U.S., as the leader of the Western Hemisphere, has an obligation to stop any such invasion.

Duvalier disclosed that his government sent another protest last week against the use of Cuban radio facilities by Louis Dejoie, a Haitian political exile and unsuccessful presidential candidate, to make broadcasts to Haiti.

Caribbean Studies Date The Ice Age

Ice covered the earth in mammoth slow-moving glaciers well over 100,000 years ago, Miami scientists said Saturday in an announcement of new findings from the bottom of the sea.

In pinpointing the Ice Age, the scientists — from the University of Miami and the U.S. Geological Survey — based their study on samples from the floor of the Caribbean, two miles below the surface.

Using a machine which drives a tube into the sea floor, the scientists gathered sediments that had accumulated at the rate of one inch in a thousand years.

By measuring radioactivity in the samples, they determined sea temperature at the time the sediment was deposited.

The scientists who made the report were Dr. John Rosholt of the U.S. Geological Survey and Drs. Fritz Koczy, Johannes Geiss and Cesare Emiliani of the University Marine Laboratory.

Nostrils Flaring, Hooves Flying, Tudor Era Leads Field Past Grandstand First Time

Wins Turf Cup

Tudor's Boss 'Calls Shot' —Bull's Eye!

By EDWIN POPE
Assistant Sports Editor

Tudor Era's trainer told millions of TV watchers what his horse was going to do Saturday.

POPE

Then he sent Mrs. Herbert Herff's English-bred charger out to do it in the $99,150 Hialeah Turf Cup.

Following Trainer Sid Jacobs' nationally aired instructions to "go to the front and stay there," Jockey Pete Anderson moved lightly weighted Tudor Era to the front of 12 top grass-runners and bagged first place by 3½ lengths over the Hasty House Farm entry of Ekaba (second) and Mahan (third).

Time was 2:29 4-5 over a firm course.

A season-topping throng of 26,257 saw the 29th running of the mile-and-a-half turf classic. But few of that number—and none of the competing jockeys and trainers—saw or heard Trainer Jacobs deliver his pre-race advice into the NBC-TV microphone.

In a toned-down sort of way, it was horse racing's answer to Babe Ruth's famous "calling the shot" gesture to (and subsequent home run over) a centerfield fence 30 years ago.

And it was worth $62,797.50 to Tudor Era's owner.

The circumstances surrounding Tudor Era's victory were far more startling than the result itself. The six-year-old Owen Tudor-Erica Fragrans offspring, disqualified after winning last year's $100,000 International and a disappointing 11th in the Bougainvillea here two weeks ago, was the favorite under only 114 pounds.

Tudor Era paid $6.70, $4 and $3.50. Ekaba under Kenny Church and entrymate Mahan under Sammy Boulmetis returned $4.10 to place and $4.30 to show.

Mahan was a length and a half back of Ekaba — a total of five lengths off the winner.

Then, strung out as they pounded past the finish line and the fluttering flags of six countries, came (4) General Arthur, (5) Pop Corn, (6) Grey Monarch, (7) Rafty, (8) Victory Morn, (9) Fouquier, (10) Waterford 2nd, (11) King Grail, (12) Rumesnil and (13) Petare.

General Arthur, long - shot winner of the Bougainvillea, was top-weighted under 123 pounds under a change of conditions of the race from a handicap to an allowance affair.

That was just too much impost for the Brae Burn Farm racer. Bill Hartack rode General Arthur in a last-minute change that drew protests from former Jockey Jack Leonard, and, although Hartack said, "We had no excuses," it appeared that General Arthur was additionally handicapped by lack of racing room along the hedge at several intervals.

Like the toteboard said, this was a three-horse race. Anderson scrubbed Tudor Era into the lead after a couple of furlongs, then took a strong hold on the front-runner. "He's a bully," said Anderson later, "and needs handling."

As they passed the stands the first time, Petare was second with Waterford 2nd in third place.

Ekaba ranged up to second after a mile as Petare began laboring.

At a mile and a quarter, Tudor Era was in the van by a length and a half, with Ekaba second and the poorly-breaking Mahan third.

Then Announcer Fred Capossela boomed over TV, "They'll never catch Tudor Era this afternoon . . ."

"Tudor Era always runs his best on the lead," Jacobs explained afterward. "If somebody tries to run with him, he gets a little discouraged. That's what happened in the Bougainvillea when he moved to Amerigo twice and couldn't catch him."

Tudor Era is not eligible for the $100,000 added Widener Feb. 21. But four of Saturday's runners are — Victory Morn, Ekaba, Fouquier and Grey Monarch.

SATURDAY'S attendance of 26,257 compared with 23,215 for the same day last year. The handle of $2,475,625 also bettered the $2,139,664 figure for the corresponding day in '58.

After 26 days, though, Hialeah's attendance is down 4.1 per cent — 463,176 to 483,000. And its handle is off 2.2 per cent — $42,130,540 to $43,062,908.

Favored Skate won the first at $3.90. Then Greentree Stable's Eurasia, a first-time starter, carried Jockey Johnny Ruane seven furlongs in 1:22-4-5, just four-fifths of a second off the track record. Eurasia paid $12.70 and completed a 3-12 double.

Kasko Nips Dark In Baseball Golf; Gains Semifinals

By JIMMY BURNS
Herald Sports Editor

Three - time winner Alvin Dark was upset on the 19th hole by Eddie Kasko, Redleg infielder, Saturday in the quarter-finals of the Baseball Players golf tournament at Miami Springs.

"I'd just hoped to give Alvin a close match," said Kasko, competing in this tournament for the first time. Kasko won the sudden death playoff with a par four after he had lost the 18th to Dark's bogey - five, which squared the count.

The tournament, which now has a big league manager, outfielder and two infielders in the semi-finals this morning, almost produced another upset. It was avoided when Defending Champion Albie Pearson defeated Manager Mayo Smith of the Redlegs one-up on the 18th with a bogey-five after being one down and two to go.

Par escaped unscathed but two of the matches were highly competitive. Manager Al Lopez of the White Sox, twice a runner-up, beat Billy Herman, Brave coach, 5-4, and Jim Hearn, Phillie pitcher and 1951 runner-up, disposed of Al Vincent, Baltimore coach, 5-4.

For two of the contestants, the concluding day will tax their physical endurance as well as their golfing skill. In the semi-finals starting at 9:30 this morning, Lopez meets Kasko and Hearn plays Pearson.

A balky putter, plus shortening his swing, brought about Dark's downfall, despite the spectacuar start of a rally. Kasko, one-up after shooting a 40 on the front nine, had increased his lead to two-up at the 15th.

Dark used an eight-iron to chip in 25 feet for a birdie-two on the 16th. They halved the 17th, but Dark won the 18th despite three-putting when Kasko missed the green with his second shot.

A similiar fate befell Dark on the first extra hole and Kasko, who had hit the green with his approach was down in two putts.

Pearson, who out drove Smith on practically every hole, found Mayo tough because of his short game. Albie turned 1-up, with a 39 on the front side. Smith squared the match by winning the 11th with a par three and went one-up by taking the 16th, a 135-yard par-three hole.

Pearson squared the match with a par four on the 17th, when Mayo had trouble making his second shot, because his golf ball was close to a pole.

Another extra hole match appeared in the making when both contestants missed the fi-

Miamian Turk Zips 73 MPH On Water Skis

Four world outboard records were shattered Saturday as mile trials introduced the Pelican Harbor Yacht Club's two-day Flamingo regatta program.

In addition, Miamian Freddie Turk accomplished the difficult-to-believe feat of water skiing at 73 miles per hour on the canal course paralleling state road 84, west of Fort Lauderdale.

Towed by a 266 cubic inch hydroplane driven by Dave Craig, Turk traveled faster than three of the outboard record-setters while bettering the previous world ski mark of 52 mph.

Turk's amazing "low-flying" was done on one ski, four inches wide. It kicked up nearly as big a rooster-tail of spray as the swift hydro towing him.

Charlie Heston of Big Island, Va., achieved 76.118 mph to better the previous B Racing Hydro record of 70.874. It was held by Bill Tenney, whose outboard Heston piloted in his record run.

Jim Colbourn, West Palm Beach, just barely managed to eclipse the A Racing Hydro standard of 66.246 mph, inching past it for a new record of 66.853.

And Miami's Dick Spelman, who already owns more international records than any other man living, added a FU Racing Runabout record to his collection. He sped 47.182 while surpassing the former high of 44.280.

Although a dozen inboards went through the "traps," only one came close to a record. Alton Pierson of Queenstown, Md., got up to 102.7 mph while chasing the 280 cubic inch hydro record of 104.287.

The scene shifts at noon today to Pelican Harbor on the Miami side of 79th Street Causeway for a 10-class, 20-heat program of inboard-outboard racing.

Inboard divisions scheduled by Race Chairman Joe Moller include 48, 135, 266 and 280 hydros and E and F Service Runabouts.

The E and F drivers will race for the Helen Martin Memorial trophy, honoring the popular local driver who recently died in a freak automobile accident.

Outboard jockeys will compete in the A, B, C and D stock hydro and BU runabout divisions.—LUTHER EVANS.

An Instant Makes the Difference

'No Chance,' Yelled Anderson, And Swish Went Tudor Era

By RUSS HARRIS
Herald Turf Writer

A fifth of a second before the gate opened in the Hialeah Turf Cup, Jockey Pete Anderson was yelling, "No chance, no chance."

"Tudor Era had his head turned sideways and if we had started an instant sooner we might have had trouble getting away. As it turned out, Tudor Era got his mind on the business at hand and we got the lead easier than I expected," Pete said.

Once in front, Pete let the temperamental Tudor Era open a daylight lead. He didn't want anyone running with him.

Two weeks go Tudor Era had run a fast mile in the Bougainvillea handicap with Mrs. Tilyou Christopher's Amerigo. When Tudor Era couldn't dispose of Amerigo, he chucked it all and wound up finishing eleventh. This time there was no Amerigo to contend with and Anderson's task was smoother.

"I was confident he'd go all the way," said Pete. "Every time a horse got close to him, I could feel him turning on more steam."

Before the Turf Cup, Pete had explained that Tudor Era was not a "whip" horse. "You can threaten him by showing him the whip, and he'll respond. You might even hit him once and get away with it. But if you hit him twice, you're through. He just won't run."

Rochfort broke and trained the English-bred Tudor Era, although he never raced him because he had "a little falling out" with the horse's owner. The captain was here on his first visit to Hialeah and it was a "happy coincidence" that he was chosen to make the trophy presentation to the Turf Cup winner.

Bending over to talk with diminutive Pete in the winner's circle, the six-foot, six-inch Rochfort explained, "In Tudor Era's first race in England, the jockey gave him a vigorous whipping. I don't believe the horse ever got over it. He didn't race well after that and his owner (General W. P. Watt) decided to sell him."

Acquired by Mrs. Herbert Herff, wife of a Memphis auto dealer, for $15,500, Tudor Era has earned a quarter of a million dollars since arriving in the U.S. in 1956.

However, his best previous races had been heard-breakers. In 1957 he lost a nose decision to Round Table in Atlantic City's $100,000 United Nations Handicap. And last November he won Laurel's $100,000 International only to lose on a disqualification.

The 27-year-old Anderson, a native of Southampton, N.Y., once had a weakness for ice cream which threatened to end his riding career. Pete had to endure the sweat box in order to ride at 116. Now he's checking in at 112 and giving much of the credit to his bride of eight months, the former Patty Patterson of Detroit.

"She makes me stick close to the diet," said Pete. "I haven't had a dish of ice cream in ages."

Riding winners, that's his weakness now.

Vacation for Orioles? Ha, Ha--Richards

By EDDIE STORIN
Herald Sports Writer

Miami may be a vacation land for most visitors, but Paul Richards, the dapper Baltimore manager, plans to make it anything but restful for his athletes this spring.

"Yep," said the tall Texan, "I'll keep the boys busy. I figure we'll start when the dew gets off the ground and finish along about dusk.

"Out at Scottsdale (Arizona) we sometimes worked in the morning, played a game in the afternoon and worked out after the game. I don't see any reason to change that policy except when we play night games," Richards added.

Admitting he doesn't pay much attention to "details," the 49-year-old veteran said he hadn't decided on a starting time for the opening of the rookie school Monday at Miami Stadium. "But it'll be early," he volunteered.

Richards was pleased and surprised at the "major league set up" he found at the Stadium. "I've never seen the field look better," he said. "Club house facilities are great. I

John Thomas Jumps Seven Feet Again

NEW YORK — (AP) — John Thomas, the amazing 17-year-old from Boston University high jumped seven feet for the second time in three weeks and Ron Delany got the scare of his life when he won the half-mile in 1:52.2 in the New York Athletic Club games Saturday night.

Thomas, who became the first jumper in history to make seven feet in the Millrose Games several weeks ago, cleared the height on his second try.

Officials raised the height to 7 feet, 1¼ inches, and he missed on three tries. On the second however, his entire body was over and he barely touched the cross bar.

Delany finished inches ahead of Tommy Murphy of the host club in the 880.

Stride for stride in the last lap, Murphy kept pace with the struggling Olympic 1,500-meter champion.

Area Needs 2 More Big League Training Camps, Says Richards

IF TWO other cities in the area would like to have spring training camps, Manager Paul Richards of the Orioles will help them try to land major league clubs.

Richards, who arrived Saturday to get things ready for his Orioles, said it would be more convenient for exhibition games if two other teams trained between here and West Palm Beach.

PAUL RICHARDS

"With only Kansas City (WPB) and the Dodgers (Vero Beach) training on the east coast, it calls for a lot of traveling," Paul explained. "Ball players don't like to make long trips for exhibitions."

Richards brought his pitchers to Miami Beach for advance work a few years back, when the main squad trained at Daytona. He knows it'll be hot here, but rates the climate okay. He also likes Miami Stadium's facilities.

"I'm not exactly a horse race enthusiast," Mrs. Richards explained. "But they tell me everyone should see Hialeah." (It's an old southern custom and a very delightful one—if you have occasion to meet the cashiers).

Kasko Started Golfing in Army

ED KASKO, who reached the semi-finals of the Baseball Players golf by upsetting Alvin Dark, has been golfing only six years . . . "I started playing while I was in the Army," Kasko said. "I had three months to go at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo., and they couldn't send me overseas, so they assigned me to the camp links" . . . Kasko, while playing with Rochester in the International, was runnerup to Mike Goliat in voting for the most valuable player . . . Manager Mayo Smith, of the Redlegs, who lost to Albie Pearson on the 18th, says Kasko will make the Redlegs more versatile . . . Robin Roberts was kidding Jackie Robinson about getting old . . . "You'll soon be old, too," Jackie retorted . . . "Not me," quipped Roberts. "I do push-ups every morning."

Waner Gives Stan New Name

OVER A period of years, the Cardinals' Stan Musial has become known as "The Man." Now Paul Waner, all-time great hitter has a new nickname for Musial. Paul calls him "The Bench."

During a fanning bee at Miami Springs, Waner, who'll serve as a batting coach and trouble shooter for the Cardinals, was even more complimentary about Musial.

PAUL WANER

The subject of Musial came up when Waner was asked how much longer he thinks Stan can play major league baseball.

"Musial will cause a lot of devilment for another year or two," said Paul. "He can still hit when he's 50 years old. I call him 'The Bench' because Musial can play first base, the outfield and pinch hit. I think he's the greatest all-round ball player I've ever seen."

MUSIAL

This prompted Whitey Witt, former Yankee outfielder, to rise up out of his chair and inquire, "What about Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig?"

Nello Del Pra mentioned a few oldtimers, too. Waner grinned at his hecklers and pacified them with the comment, "I'm talking about players of my time. Sure, I'd like to have Ruth and Gehrig and others on my team, too."

* * *

Progress Helps Baseball

WANER OFFERS an interesting approach to any subject. He remarked, "You'll all agree there has been great improvement in automobiles. The old Model T served its purpose, but it wouldn't compare with the autos of today.

BERRA

"Baseball players have improved, although some people still insist the oldtimers were better."

"Yeah," agreed Witt. "I'll go with you on that. The equipment is better for one thing and the young players coming along get better instructions."

DEMPSEY

Waner allowed that Yogi Berra is one of the greatest catchers of the current era and added, "You can't compare him with Gabby Hartnett, because things are different. It's like comparing other heavyweight champions with Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney. All you can get out of it is conversation. There's no way to make the comparison."

* * *

You Mustn't Be Scared

WANER, WHO has starred both in baseball and golf, thinks the latter game is good for ballplayers. The wrist action is helpful, but there's a bigger reason.

"I don't like ball players who're too lazy to play golf in the winter or go hunting," Waner continued. "Both sports are good for their legs and from golfing they learn something about timing and judging distance."

Waner mentioned that young baseball prospects are advised against playing football, because of the danger of being injured.

"You can't be scared in any sport," said Waner. "Why, they were talking about the boys shouldn't play winter baseball in Cuba, because they might get shot. You have to figure the Good Lord will take care of you."

Magnetic Trap

Eddie Kasko, left, and Alvin Dark have reason to believe someone buried a magnet in the sand trap by the fourth green at Miami Springs. The National Baseball Players golf tournament rivals hit shots that landed less than a foot apart in the trap. Kasko went on to upset Dark, the tournament medalist and a favorite to win his fourth golf title here.

Lee Walls: From Wallflower To Wall-Buster in 3 Lessons

By EDDIE STORIN
Herald Sports Writer

A year ago Lee Walls, the Chicago Cubs long ball hitting outfielder, was a wallflower at the National Baseball Players Golf tournament.

"The other players," he said, "seem to accept me now. And more kids are asking me for autographs. I really feel like a big leaguer."

Actually Walls has been a "big leaguer" for three years. But prior to last spring he was strictly a journeyman ball player. Then Lee began writing headlines with his bat.

"April 24 was the big day," Walls recalls. "That's when I hit three homers and knocked in eight runs in one game against the Dodgers."

The 26-year-old Californian went on from there to fashion a neat .304 batting average and belt 25 home runs. He credits three things for his sudden rise from a .237 hitter with six homers (1957).

"First I reported to spring training 17 pounds lighter than in '57," said Walls. "This enabled me to get my bat around quicker.

"Then I got some drops to stop my eyes from watering in that strong Chicago wind. And thirdly, Roger Hornsby (Cubs batting instructor) gave me the needed confidence," he said.

"Now if I can just improve a little more . . ."

* * *

EDDIE KASKO, Redleg infielder, was battling Alvin Dark of the Cubs in Saturday's tense quarter-final match when he felt a hand in his. He looked down and a little boy smiled back.

"I really got a lift out of that," said Kasko after defeating Dark on the 19th hole. "The little guy followed me all 18 holes so I gave him my ball at the end of the match.

"You should have seen his face," grinned Kasko. "I hope he comes back tomorrow."

* * *

ALBIE PEARSON, Washington outfielder, came strolling down the 18th fairway singing the praises of his Saturday competitor, Mayo Smith.

"This guy," said Pearson, "is fabulous. I outdrive him on every hole and he comes bouncing back with sparkling chips and putts. Wow, the pressure is really getting to me."

A moment later Pearson closed out Smith when the Cincinnati manager missed, of all things, a short putt.

"ME THROW a spitball?"

Marvin Grissom, the Cardinal pitcher, claims he was falsely accused in a recent magazine article by Giant Manager Bill Rigney.

"Rigney was just trying to create an off-season baseball stir," the 41-year-old righthander said. "I definitely do not throw any spitters."

Indian Creek Pro

White's Greatest Shots Were Lost ...In the Cup

(One of a Series.)

"At Stockbridge, I used a five-iron for my tee shot on a 155-yard blind hole," White explained. "We looked for the ball when we couldn't find it on the green. It was in the hole."

JACK WHITE

The shot which White rates with that one was made later on the 192-yard eighth hole at Indian Creek with a three-iron.

"I was hitting into the sun and couldn't follow the flight of the ball," said White. "We searched for it and then remembering my Stockbridge experience, we looked in the cup and found the ball." — JIMMY BURNS

Grid Star Back at UM

Shields Gay, 230-pound, 6-3 former All-State tackle at Tampa's Plant High, has re-entered the University of Miami and will participate in spring practice beginning March 14.

Gay dropped out of school after playing for the 1956 freshman team. To be eligible next fall, he also will have to attend summer school.

"Gay is big enough to play on any team and has considerable natural ability," said Coach Andy Gustafson. "We did not feel he was particularly strong two years ago, but perhaps maturity has helped him."

Low Blow Cost Sandy Victory

DORTMUND, Germany — (AP) — Middleweight Randy Sandy of New York was disqualified for low blows Saturday night in the seventh round of a scheduled 10-rounder against Gustav Scholz of Hamburg.

Sandy was disqualified after two warnings in earlier rounds. He was far ahead on points when the referee stopped the fight. A crowd of 4,000 protested loudly against the decision.

Petty Hits Top Speed At Daytona

DAYTONA BEACH — (AP) — Lee Petty, 44-year-old stock car racing veteran from Randleman, N.C., Saturday gave the new Daytona International Speedway its fastest spin in a late model sedan.

Although this is the fastest qualifying time for the Feb. 20 Late Model Sedan 100-miler, Petty will start in 17th place. The 16 drivers who qualified last weekend got the front spots in the field.

Those who qualify in today's final time trials for the sedan race will start behind the 26 who have made the starting field, including 10 who did it Saturday.

Glenn (Fireball) Roberts of Daytona Beach, fastest on opening qualifying day at 140.58 mph in a 1959 Pontiac, has the pole position. Tom Pistone of Chicago had the best time until Petty's run—141.37 mph in a 1959 Thunderbird.

Fred Wilson of Denver, Colo., was the second fastest Saturday. He drove a 1959 Thunderbird 140.44 mph. Buck Baker of Spartanburg, S.C., did 138.82 in a 1959 Chevrolet, and Dwayne Lund of Harlan, Iowa, 136.23 in a 1959 Chevrolet.

It was a good day for the Petty family In addition to Lee's record run, his 21-year-old son Dick Petty led two qualifiers for the 100-mile Convertibles Race of Jeb. 20. He drove a 1957 Oldsmobile 127.82 mph. Shorty Rollins of Corpus Christi, Tex., was the other qualifier in convertibles with 126.42 in a 1958 Ford.

Eight convertibles have qualified. The field in that race is expected to total 12. There will be 43 sedans if all qualify.

Feature of MASCAR's opening program at the new Speedway — the 500-mile Sweepstakes for late model sedans and convertibles with a prize list of $68,500 plus lap money —will be Feb. 22.

Starting positions for this race will be determined by times in the Feb. 20 races.

Bulldogs Roll, 59-0

ATHENS, Ga. — (AP) — Quarterback Francis Tarkenton threw three touchdown passes in the rain Saturday to lead the Georgia Regulars to a 59-0 victory over the substitutes in the first major game-style football scrimmage of winter training.

In all, Tarkenton completed seven of seven passes for 146 yards. His ball handling and faking was so good that receivers often were wide open.

Tarkenton passed seven yards to Tommy Parish for one touchdown. Don Soberdash sprinted 44 yards for another.

Penrose-Streit Spear Golf Title, 10-9

From Herald Wire Services

Jack Penrose of Miami Beach and Marlene Stewart Streit of Toronto Saturday breezed through the finals of the National Amateur Mixed Foursomes Golf Tournament. They scored a 10-9 victory over Howard Everitt of Northfield, N.J., and Roma Neundorf of Toronto at Tequesta Country Club.

Sports Roundup

Penrose and Mrs. Streit, had a four-hole lead going into the final round of the 36-hole championship round.

The losers were five over par for the first nine in the afternoon. They lost the first hole when Everitt missed a 15-inch putt.

Princeton Scores on TV

Maroons Rip Gators; Auburn Streak at 29

GAINESVILLE — (AP) — Bailey Howell, the nation's fifth highest scorer, led Mississippi State to an easy 105-68 victory over Florida Saturday night and kept the Maroons in contention for the Southeastern Conference basketball championship.

Howell hit 15 field goals in 21 attempts and scored 43 points — a new Florida Gym record. So magnificent was he the Florida crowd of 4,000 gave Howell a tremendous ovation when he left the game with just under five minutes to play.

He had scored 41 points, equalling the gym record set by Florida's Joe Hobbs last year. Two minutes later, Howell came back on the floor and sank two free throws for a new record.

Florida's Bob Sherwood hit 32 points — the best a Florida player has done this season.

Tigers Set Mark

AUBURN, Ala. — Auburn's fourth-ranked Tigers trampled Louisiana State, 115-67, setting a team scoring record for their 29th straight victory.

Coach Joel Eaves' team broke their all-time scoring record of 111 points against Florence State earlier this season. Henry Hart hit 20 points for Auburn — 17 of them in the first half — while Jimmy Lee added 17 points.

Mich. State Rolls

EAST LANSING, Mich. — First-place Michigan State put on a second half power play and broke its all-time scoring record, defeating Michigan, 103-91, in a Big Ten game here.

Princeton Romps

PRINCETON, N. J.—Princeton won its 11th straight game, downing Cornell, 70-52, before a national television audience.

The victory put the Tigers in first place in the Ivy League with a 9-0 record.

After trailing 8-0 and 16-7 in the opening minutes, Princeton surged ahead on the inside shooting of Center Carl Belz to a 20-18 lead after 12 minutes of play to stay out front.

N.C. Nails 16th

CHICAGO — North Carolina, the nation's No. 2 ranked team, outclassed Loyola of Chicago, 76-57, to extend its winning 76-57, to extend its winning streak to 10 games and season record to 16-1.

Frost, Alvarez Clash for PB Tennis Crown

Herald Service

WEST PALM BEACH—William Alvarez of Madellin, Colombia scored his second straight upset over seeded players Saturday in the South Florida Tennis championships at Howard Park to move into today's finals against defending Champion Jack Frost of Monterey, Calif.

Alvarez was forced to go three sets before eliminating second seeded Berger Folke of Stockholm, 1-6, 6-3, 6-0.

Frost experienced less trouble as he dropped fourth seeded John Powless of Tallahassee, 6-2, 6-4.

Top ranked Mrs. Gordon Davidson, of Milwaukee had a fast first set against Carol Ann Posen of Orlando, but weakened in the second canto before pulling out with a 6-1, 7-5 win. She will meet Australia's Marie Martin in the finals.

Miss Martin had trouble solving the serves of Mrs. Nancy Montgomery, but eliminated the Palm Beach netter with overhead smashes, 7-5, 6-3.

An exhibition is planned at 1 p.m. today with Susan Provenelli, eighth ranked girl in the 11-and-under state bracket, meeting ninth ranked Susan Walton. A pair of eight-year-olds, who are among the youngest ranked players in the state will also play with Walter Power facing Vince Boganski.

Saturday's results:

Mrs. Gordon Davidson d. Carol Ann Posen, 6-1, 7-5; Marie Martin d. Mrs. Nancy Montgomery, 7-5, 6-3; Jack Frost d. John Powless, 6-2, 6-4; William Alverez d. Richards said it was difficult to speculate on what help the Miami Marlins would receive from the Orioles.

"We'll know more as spring training progresses," Paul explained. "We feel we have an abundance of Triple A talent that should take care of the needs of both Vancouver and Miami. Only time will tell for sure."

One of Miami's biggest needs probably was filled in a roundabout way Saturday when the Orioles purchased First Baseman Whitey Lockman from San Francisco. This gives Baltimore four first baseman and the Marlins are likely to end up with one of them.

Jensen Records 2nd LaGorce Ace

Andrew P. Jensen had a hole-in-one Saturday on LaGorce's 155-yard third hole. He hit a three-iron for the second ace in his golfing career — the other also coming on the same hole. In Jensen's foursome were W. F. Snyder, R. D. Ashman and Robert Shreve.

Seebers

Orlandoan's 677 Paces Pin Tourney

TAMPA — (AP) — Darlene Seebers of Orlando clung to her singles lead and Hollywood's B. J. Kennedy and Norma Admire remained in front in doubles Saturday in the women's state bowling tournament.

Seebers' 677 stood the test of Saturdays competition, and in doubles the 1,245 of Kennedy and Admire stood up easily.

Only one change took place among the top eight in singles competition. Liz Sheehan of St. Petersburg moved into third place with a 652.

The leaders:

Doubles — Kennedy and Admire, 1,245; Ester Hauck and Iris Marshall, Fort Myers, 1,229; Mimi Brick and Cecilia Douglas, Orlando, 1,208; Grace Joy and Ouida McDonald, Jacksonville, 1,206; Vivian Pinkard and Leonora Barlowe, Clearwater, 1,206.

Suggs' Third 69 Sparks St. Pete Golf

ST. PETERSBURG — (AP) — Louise Suggs whipped par Saturday for the third straight time to boost her lead to five strokes in the $7,500 St. Petersburg Women's Open Golf Championship. Her score is 208.

Miss Suggs fired a two-under par 69 over the Sunset Golf and Country Club Course. Jackie Pung clung to second place with 213.

LA Dodgers Are 'Home' To Dressen

By EDDIE STORIN
Herald Sports Writer

STORIN

Charlie (Chuck) Dressen, the little man with big baseball savvy, has virtually made a career of joining the Dodgers—first Brooklyn, now Los Angeles.

Four times he has been hired by the Dodgers as coach or manager. Three times he has left the club—twice with startling abruptness.

"Heck," claims the peppy, garrulous Dressen, "it shows they like me or they wouldn't keep hiring me back. Mr. (Walter) O'Malley (Dodger owner) and I have the fondest regard for each other."

Such "fond regard" was hard to detect in October, 1953, when Dressen and his wife, Ruth, composed the famous "three years or goodbye" letter to O'Malley.

Charlie had won two successive pennants but no World Series. He had been working on a year-to-year contract.

One night the Dressens sat down and wrote what was later described by the recipient, O'Malley, as "one pip of a letter." It outlined Charlie's feelings about a long term contract.

But O'Malley refused to budge.

The next season Dressen was managing Oakland in the Pacific Coast League.

* * *

'I Wanted Security'

"WHY DID I demand a three-year contract?" Dressen mulled the question as he teed his golf ball at Miami Springs during the Baseball Players' tournament.

"A man," he said finally, "has to have self respect or he isn't worth anything . . . even to himself.

"I think I took a lot of abuse during my last three years in Brooklyn. I was blamed, although not by the front office, for losing the pennant in 1951. In 1952 I kept reading I was going to be fired. I was fed up with that kind of talk.

"I hadn't made a lot of money as a player or coach. I did okay, but my wife and I like the better things and we spend pretty freely.

"I wanted security for us, and I felt a three-year contract would put us over the hump."

Charlie rattled on as if anticipating the next question.

"I took this job with the Dodgers on a one-year basis because things are different today. I don't feel I need the money as much, and don't forget—the Dodgers are in my hometown now, Los Angeles. That was a big factor in my decision to return."

* * *

An Effective Memory

DRESSEN GOT his start in baseball 40 years ago—also on somebody else's terms—signing for $165. "If it were now," he says, "I'd get $50,000."

A product of Decatur, Ill., Chuck once quarterbacked the Chicago Bears. "But I only weighed 142 pounds, and after I got into the higher minor leagues the Cincinnati management didn't want me playing any football.

Although he had some good years in the minors, Chuck, a third baseman, never hit over .300 in eight big league seasons—seven with the Reds, one with the Giants.

Dressen began his managerial career in 1932 with Nashville, but interrupted it long enough to return to the big leagues a year later to enjoy his top thrill.

"The Giants," Dressen recalled, "needed infield help and Bill Terry called me up late in the season. We got to the World Series and I was riding the bench in the fourth game.

"Carl Hubbell was pitching for us and we got a run to go ahead in the 12th inning. In the bottom of the 12th Washington loaded the bases with one out.

"Up comes a guy named Cliff Bolton. Terry, who was playing first base, motioned the infield in to cut off the run.

Chuck Dressen: The Long, Long Road
. . . it always leads to the Dodgers

"Now," continued Dressen, "I had seen this Bolton in the Southern Association and I knew he was slow. So I pepped out of the dugout, called time, dashed to the mound and told Hubbell and Terry. They decided to go along with me and the infield went back to try for the double play.

"Before I got seated, Hubbell had pitched, Bolton had hit a grounder, the Giants had turned it into a double play and we had a World Series victory."

* * *

Just Keep Looking

CHUCK MANAGED Cincinnati from 1934 through '37, never finishing higher than fifth. Then in 1939 Larry MacPhail brought Dressen to the Dodgers as coach under Leo Durocher.

Here Charlie's reputation as a baseball genius began to grow. He was credited with supernatural powers of mental telepathy, and people said he had X-ray eyes which enabled him to steal signs a mile away.

"I have no such powers," answers Dressen. "I just learned when I was young to watch the pitchers and pick up flaws in their delivery. If you look long enough, you can usually find something that will tip you off on the type of pitch coming."

Dressen made his first quick exit from the Dodgers to join the Yankees as a coach in 1946.

A Sport In Our Town

He left in 1948, and in 1951 slipped back to the Dodgers as manager after two successful years at Oakland.

Brooklyn broke fast and led by 13½ games in August. Out of nowhere came the Miracle Giants to tie for the lead on the season's final day and set up the fateful playoff which saw the Giants' Bobby Thomson hit one of the most dramatic home runs in baseball history.

Dressen's departure two years later was not considered surprising.

* * *

Gun Shy? Not Charlie

ACTUALLY THE "LETTER" probably set the stage for Dressen's biggest mistake—becoming manager of the Washington Senators in 1955. Chuck wasn't any more successful than his immediate predecessors, and the Senators finished last two years in a row. He left his front office post with the Senators and rejoined the Dodgers as a coach a year ago.

The move immediately set off rumors that Walt Alston's days were numbered and Charlie would replace him as manager.

"I had no ambitions to manage the Dodgers when I took the job," Charlie declared, "and I have none now. Alston and I had a talk soon after I arrived last spring and he knows where I stand.

"But," Dressen made his position clear, "those guys that wrote that I was gunshy about managing after the Washington affair are dead wrong.

"I may manage again and I may not . . . you just never can tell."

Boxers' Gloves 'Special' And So is the Kick Inside

By MEL DERRICK
Herald Sports Writer

PASTRANO

LISTON

DE JOHN

Special punchers wearing special gloves.

That's the lineup for Wednesday night's nationally televised 10-rounder matching what could be boxing's two hardest hitters — Heavyweights Mike DeJohn and Sonny Liston — at the Miami Beach Exhibition Hall.

Liston wears specially made gloves to accomodate his tremendously wide hands. Wednesday, on DeJohn's demands, he'll be wearing "special special" gloves.

Although Liston's "regular" gloves weigh the regulation eight ounces, the padding is spread over a wider area. The St. Louis slugger usually brings along a spare set for his opponent.

DeJohn, however, is having none of (1) using the gloves himself, (2) letting Liston use them.

Promoter Chris Dundee, seeing his biggest draw of 1959 flickering into nothingness, hastily called Chicago and ordered specially made gloves . . . wide enough to fit Liston, more closely shaped like standard gloves to pacify DeJohn.

* * *

MAN-TO-MAN, it's 2-1 Wednesday's bloodletting won't go the full 10. At least one Beachite allows he'll be "tremendously surprised" if it goes past three rounds.

"If Liston hits DeJohn with a right hand," he says, "they'll have to scrape Mike up with a whiskbroom. But, if DeJohn nails Liston with a left hook, they'll need a dustpan for Sonny."

Liston has 13 knockouts in 23 fights; DeJohn has 25 KOs in 42 starts.

* * *

ALTHOUGH a lawyer, a bunch of managers and fighters, and a court reporter showed up for last week's Miami Boxing Commission meeting which OK'd Billy Hall's three losses in 10 days, Commission Physician Dr. James C. McCormick says he wasn't invited.

"I feel Hall was physically able to fight Ed Beattie," says Dr. McCormick. "But nobody on the commission asked me to come there and say so" . . . Willie Pastrano left Saturday for London and, his Feb. 24 fight with Joe Erskine . . . The preliminary card there includes Dave Rent.

* * *

IF CHICAGO writer-manager-International Boxing Club foe Jack Begun doesn't make it back home safely, the world will be full of rich sports writers.

Before his current trip to Miami, Begun sent one-trip insurance policies (worth $12,500 each) to 37 people . . . including "arch enemy" Truman K. Gibson, former president of the IBC.

The last time Begun brought a fighter to Miami, it was "another Ray Robinson" (who was KO'd in the second round). This trip, he has Rocky Mortell, "another Rocky Marciano."

"So I brought a bum once," says Begun. "This kid is for real. He'll make Miami forget Bobby Dykes."

Big Week For Dogs At Hand

By JOE BROWN
Herald Greyhound Writer

Championship finals of Hollywood's Silver Anniversary Stake will be staged Tuesday night over the 3-8 mile course.

JOE BROWN

Eight of the nation's top marathon dogs seek the $10,000 purse and $500 silver trophy.

During Biscayne training, fans will receive their first look-see at something new in greyhound racing here — the double rabbit and a unique single-door starting box.

Biscayne, which opens on Feb. 27 and runs through June 2, will stage six nights of training races. Schooling jaunts start at 7 p.m.

Of the 30 kennels booked at Biscayne, 27 are moving over from Flagler and three are from other tracks.

* * *

IN ADDITION to the starting of the Gold Collar race this week, Miami Beach has cooked up a six-dog inter city match race. Top dogs from the Jacksonville and Tampa tracks are coming here to race against Beach greyhounds.

Sixteen marathon dogs will start the Gold Collar elimination grind. Four from each trial will make up the title race Feb. 23.

Among greyhounds in the eliminations are eight which came through the recent Smith Memorial affair.

The group includes the Smith winner, Sunshine State's Jarmaine, Cactus Hunter, Canadian Pacific, Get Happy, Fay's Fayzie, Alive, Dixie's Son and Essential — which finished in that order behind Jarmaine—are entered in Thursday's trials.

Other eligibles include Gene Ludeman, Naja Hannah, Rio Sancho, Scoopedo, Gold Dew, Parnell Mary, Irish Mix, Remember Mama, Schrounger, and San Ring.

* * *

Top challengers will be Bud Jack and Rio Grande Rose, winner of the other semifinal heat.

The longshot players will pin their hopes on Lou Rock, third behind Feldcrest and Bud Jack in the semifinals.

Spring Sports Take Toll On Juvenile Delinquency

DRIVING PAST a local high school athletic field these spring days is like passing a school during a fire drill — all you can see are happy youngsters.

Take Coral Gables, which won four spring titles last year for example. The Cavaliers run basketball, baseball, golf, tennis and swimming in the spring, plus spring football and intramural football.

Can you think of a better way to combat juvenile delinquency?

* * *

From Unbeaten to Winless

JIM KEES, Norland's basketball and golf coach, has gone from unbeaten to winless in one year. Last year Kees coached Edison's state championship golf team. This year Kees hasn't won a basketball game at Norland. "And," says Kees, "when I asked for golf candidates, only about 10 showed up. And half of these quit when I told them they needed their own clubs."

* * *

Cox Cracks Two Front Teeth

JIM DONATO, a member of Edison's track team in 1950, is assisting Tom Collins with the Raider thinclads this year. Donato is a social studies teacher . . . Edison's Darrel Cox, who injured his foot just prior to the Miami High football game, hasn't hit his track peak to date. But handsome Darrell did hit the high jump pole last week and cracked his two front teeth . . . Miami High business Manager Bob Conarroe deserves a pat on the back for his Orange Bowl financial figures. They kept the city from hiking the stadium pay on Edison, Jackson, Gables and Miami High . . . Ernie Yaroshuk, Jackson's top basketball player, has spent most of the season in the cheering section. First a rash and now a severe boil has sidelined Yaroshuk . . . Bill Weber, former Fort Lauderdale basketball coach, will work the Group 7, Class AA tournament. He's a good referee . . . Edison Tackle Bill Henghold has won an appointment to the Naval Academy off a scholarship test . . . Edison golder Chris Leffingwell hasn't been above 36 this season. Roy French, Jackson's head coach, is being replaced this spring by Red Tobin. French, who's enjoying the Mardi Gras at New Orleans now, will return this fall.

* * *

Swimming Splashes Back

WITH SWIMMING splashing its way into prominence, here's an abbreviated list of mermen to watch!

Edison's Janet Terry, Shirley Stobs, Lana Russell, John Tompkins, Walt White, Gray Brewer, John Curtis; Gables' Bob Magruder, Joyce Argo, Barbara Chesneau, Jim Fitzgibbon and Art Patterson; Jackson's Jackie Danielson, Smokey Ellis, and North Miami's Ray Padovan, Sandy Shapiro, Harry Wilder, Jim Procter, Ted Petras, Bruce Tyrell, Ellen Rohrback, Barbara Scanlan and Linda Ammerman.

* * *

Old Gym Picked Over New

BASKETBALL coaches are strange ones when it comes to drawing sites for their annual regional tournaments.

Group 7, Class AA decided to hold its tournament at Fort Lauderdale High. The Flying L's lack both seating capacity and sufficient parking facilities.

Stranahan, located just a few miles west of Lauderdale High, has space and a new 2,500 seat gymnasium. But coaches apparently felt Bud Marcum's Dragons were tough enough without a home court advantage.

Group 8, Class AA coaches probably are sorry now that they agreed to rotate their tournament. Last year Miami High, which had nothing, and Jackson tied during a tournament site vote. The coaches gave the '58 tournament to Jackson, the '59 to Miami High in order to break the tie vote.

So what happens. Miami High looms the power of this year's Group 8 tournament. And with a familiar court, the Stingarees could be just that much tougher.

Hialeah Cagers Top Card

Bernie Butts, Hialeah's ace guard, will be out to break Richie Berger's scoring record in the three games. The senior has a good chance of reaching 600 points.

Miami High and Edison meet in their tradition-rich rivalry Tuesday night at the Raiders' gymnasium. Miami High can win the Big Ten Conference title by whipping Edison — a feat the Stingarees haven't accomplished in five tries.

Pompano Beach risks its unbeaten record at Fort Pierce Tuesday night in the Suncoast Conference title game. Pompano won the Southern division, Fort Pierce the North.

Swimming muscles in on basketball with two meets this week.

Ladies Shine

600? 700? Looks So Easy As Local Bowlers 'Run Wild'

By DICK EVANS
Herald Sports Writer

Bowling's elite 600 and 700 clubs are being invaded by the masses.

Thirty-nine women have scored the magic 600 set since September. Twenty-seven men have hit 700 or above.

Vi Decker's 666 is closely pressed in ladies' play by Rose Ortega's 656, Phyllis Todd's 664, Dot Comey's 660 and Bette Markus' 654.

Mary Lou Graham, The Herald Bowler of the Year in 1958, has posted the most 600 sets—seven. Five of these came in January.

According to the Miami Bowler, these men have hit at least one 700 set:

These women have hit 600:

Round Table Heads 53 Gulfstream Entries

Fifty-three of the nation's leading handicap performers, headed by Round Table, have been named for the $100,000 Gulfstream Park Handicap March 21.

Horses from California and Louisiana, as well as Florida are among nominees for the mile and a quarter event, won last season by Kerr Stable's Round Table, richest thoroughbred in history.

Two other previous winners also are named — Calumet Farm's Bardstown, 1957 victor and Sam Tufano's Wise Margin, 1954 winner.

The 53 nominees have earned $7,000,000 in purses, and 34 of them are stakes winners.

Round Table, Bardstown and Wise Margin have an opportunity to duplicate the feat of Crafty Admiral, only horse to win the Gulfstream Park Handicap twice. He did it in 1952 and again in 1953.

UM Track Slate Lists Yale, Tech

Four dual and three triangular meets feature the University of Miami's 1959 track schedule announced Saturday by Athletic Director Jack Harding.

The UM will play host to Yale and Georgia Tech in back-to-back triangular tests, March 25 under lights, and March 28 in the afternoon.

Road meets carry the Hurricanes to Charleston, S.C. to oppose The Citadel, to Gainesville to face Florida and to Tallahassee for the State A.A.U. event.

Principal loss from last season's squad was Bill Bennett, versatile all-around star. Most of Coach Bob Downes' returning strength is in field events.

Among promising sophomores is quarter-miler Pete Kouwenhoven, who already has surpassed the varsity 440-record in trials.

The schedule:

March 7: Florida State University, UM track.
March 17: A. A. U. Invitation, Hollywood.
March 21: Furman University, UM track.
March 25: (Triangular Meet), Yale, Georgia Tech, Miami, UM track (night).
April 4: The Citadel, Charleston, S.C.
April 18: U. of Florida, Gainesville.
May 2: State AAU, Tallahassee.
May 16: UM Freshmen vs. High School Seniors from Dade and Broward County, UM track.

TAKE YOUR DARLING TO SEE "SAY, DARLING"

"SATISFIED SALES MANAGERS DON'T READ THIS!"

Our client due to Fabulous growth in Florida is opening new Branch offices. This tremendous expansion requires additional management. Therefore, we are recruiting managers who are presently managing salesmen successfully and who are earning up to $15,000 a year.
He must have had experience as crew manager or sales manager in direct to consumer selling. The man we want is now or has been canvassing for appointments. Our methods prohibit canvassing but we respect the experience of men who have had it.
A man who feels he has gone about as far as he can in his particular industry and is frustrated because he cannot earn more, would find this position most appealing.
This man will be trained, paid during his training, and upon completion will be put in charge of a branch operation. Compensation after about six months training upwards of $20,000 per year.
For complete information send resume to E. B., Inc. (EXECUTIVES FOR BUSINESS), Suite 400, 1371 Peachtree St., N.E., Atlanta 9, Georgia. Include number of salesmen supervised, type product sold, method of merchandising and present earnings.

General and fly casting divisions hogged action, with six new pace-setters registered in the former category and five in the latter. Only one new lead was posted in the spin casting division, and none in plug casting.

Thomas S. McClary of Cutler Ridge bagged the 293-lb. jewish in Broad Creek and weighed it in at Don's Bait and Tackle, Homestead.

Bart Foth of Miami, a dedicated seeker of tarpon on fly rod, knocked over his own previous lead of 108 lbs., and hopes to register a tournament record before long. He has taken tarpon bigger than the present record of 125 lbs but not during the tournament. Foth hit his 111½-pounder with Capt. Jimmie Albright on the Rebel, Islamorada.

Biggest of the new leaders was a 480-lb. hammerhead shark which sent Mundy I. Peale of Farmingdale, N.Y., to the head of the class in the general division. Peale, president of the Republic Aircraft Corporation, fished out of Key Largo Anglers Club on Capt. Bob Lewis' Gifi II.

Other newcomers in the general division include George E. Bouckhuyt of Lakewood, N.Y., with a 21½-lb. albacore taken aboard Capt. Howard Victor's Cadet at Islamorada. Mrs. Joe D. Adams upheld feminine prestige with an 80-lb. amberjack in the Keys on Capt. Johnnie West's cruiser Mae West.

Moishe Stahl of Montreal made billfish news with a 96-lb. white marlin off Miami Beach on Capt. Shelley Speigel's Playmate. John Farrell, a Miamian, cruised on Capt. S. Loveland's Paraboots to find a 37-lb. 9-oz. snapper for a top spot in the general division.

Fly casters were busy posting new leads throughout the tournament area. Craig Heath of Milan, Mich., tried the Marco Canal and brought a snook weighing 18 lbs. 2 oz. into Meece Ellis' weighing station at Royal Palm Hammock. It was the biggest flyrod snook for the tournament in two years.

M. D. DeTar fished with Clarence Lowe out of Islamorada to capture the leading channel bass on fly—an 11-pounder. Also at Islamorada, Robert Foth caught a 50-lb. shark on flyrod aboard Capt. Cecil Keith's boat Peggy.

Lone new lead in the spin casting division was only self-improvement for 17-year-old Eric Geary of Miami, who upped his own previous snook lead by a couple of pounds. Geary's latest prize weighed 22 lbs., 1 oz., and was caught at the mouth of the Miami River.

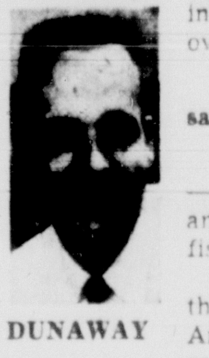
Fishing With Vic Dunaway

Wanted: YOUR Suggestions On Salt Water Fish License

For some time now, the Citizens Marine Fisheries Advisory Committee of Florida — a non-official group of sportsmen and conservationists — has been hinting that the state needs a salt water fishing license.



DUNAWAY

Now the committee has come up with its first black-and-white recommendations on the subject, and has asked the cooperation of sports anglers, commercial fishermen and legislators in drafting a sensible license program.

These are the basic recommendations made by the group:

1. A universal salt water license covering commercial fishermen, sea food dealers and sports anglers.
2. A specific clause in any license legislation which would restrict the use of subsequent revenues for the benefit of marine fisheries only.
3. A limited, short-term license or ticket-book system for Florida's tourist fishermen.

The license would cover all forms of marine life harvested by man: Shellfish, mollusks and crustaceans as well as fish.

Retail or wholesale sea food dealers' licenses would be required for commercial men, as well as the universal license.

Financing Is Necessary

THESE are trying times for a fisherman's pocketbook, what with simultaneous talk of a salt water license and a license for pole-fishing in fresh water.

Just a couple of days ago I had my ears burned by an ardent canal-bank angler, who maintained with Patrick Henry eloquence that free pole-fishing is an American heritage, as sacred as freedom of speech or the right to bear arms. That pole-fishing was not written into the Bill of Rights certainly must have been an oversight on the part of our founding fathers.

Similar howls will be sounded against any form of salt water licensing.

But we are faced by the undeniable fact that money—which can be transformed into research, management and conservation—is a vital need to the future of Florida fishing in fresh water and salt.

If fresh water fishing hits the skids, the gent with the cane pole suffers equally with the rod-and-reel man. And if dredging, pollution and simple lack of knowledge combine to kill one of Florida's greatest assets — salt water fishing — it will take more than a two-buck license to buy it back.

* * *

Wouldn't Hurt Businesses

I HAVE an idea that the loudest opposition to the proposed salt water license might come from Florida businessmen who fear it would harm their fishing-connected tourist business. I don't believe it.

A great many tourist-anglers already have witnessed the effects of poor coastal fish management in their home states, which is a principal reason they started coming to Florida in the first place. Most would be happy to see that an effort is being made to preserve their principal Florida attraction.

Besides, the cost of a temporary license would scarcely be noticed among overall angling expenses.

Let's have some readers' views on any aspect of the proposed license.

Cooper's 69 Boosts Golf Lead

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico — (AP) — Pete Cooper of Lakeland took a commanding lead in Puerto Rico's $7,500 Open Golf Tournament Saturday when he shot the third round in three-under-par 69 for a 54-hole score of 210.

From a one-stroke lead at the halfway mark, Cooper widened his margin to seven strokes. Tied for second at 217 were Joe Conrad of San Antonio, Ed (Porky) Oliver of Denver and Jose Rodriguez of Puerto Rico.

Cooper currently is in second place in total points for the Caribbean circuit. Don January has 42 points and Cooper 41.

'Releasers' Romp In Met Tourney

Arthur Scotto of Lakewood, N. J. has piled up the 93 tarpon releases on excursions out of Tom's Harbor Camp in the Keys. Scotto is from Lakewood, N. J.

Again atop the bonefish release standings is Charles Finkelstein of Coral Gables. Finkelstein has freed 33 — almost as many as his winning total of the last tournament, when bad weather held him to 40.

He fishes with Capt. J. T. Harrod out of Pier 5 and has won the bonefish release trophy for the past five years.

Frank Hendrickson of Southold, N. Y. has mopped up on a vareity of game fish out of Marco Island Inn and presently leads the all-release race with 248.

Already threatening the Met record for sailfish releases is Miamian John K. Howard, who has returned 22 of the fine gamesters to Gulfstream waters. Last year's winner, Gerry Coughlan, had only eight releases. Highest total in tourney history is 34, by S. V. R. Spaulding in 1957.

Boats Begin Streaming In

Boats and equipment from all over the United States will begin arriving in Miami early this week for the opening of the 18th annual International Boat Show at Dinner Key at 7:30 p.m. Friday.

The show's enlarged tent marina already has been set up at its new location on the north side of the Dinner Key Exhibition Building. Exhibitors will begin moving in at noon Tuesday.

Wrong Guy Thrown Out?

UM Gaffs Hot Dolphins On 2-Point Spear Again

By LUTHER EVANS
Herald Sports Writer

In an uproarious basketball brawl that completely got away from the officials, the University of Miami Saturday night defeated Jacksonville University the only way it knows how—by two points, 95-93.

A crowd of 1,083 shook up Coral Gables High Gymnasium with excited approval as the Hurricanes mastered the Dolphins for the fourth time in their five-game cage rivalry . . . and for the fourth time by a two-point difference.

Not even calling 52 fouls—26 against each team—enabled officials Charlie Russell and Doc Schwartz to keep the game under control, a fact irately noted by Jax Coach Rollie Roarke.

With 1:41 to go and Miami leading, 94-93, UM Guard Marty Snyder was fouled by Pete Fannon, only Jax player near him, on a driving layup attempt.

By the time Russell got around to notifying the official scorer, however, he mistakenly identified Forward Eddie Cone as the culprit . . . and could not be talked into changing his mind.

At game's end when somebody mentioned to Roarke "They threw the wrong man out," Roarke snarled:

"The ones who should have been thrown out were those two guys out there throwing the ball up."

"Those guys will kill basketball," he told Miami's Bruce Hale. "Please let's not have them the next time we play here."

The smartly-coached Dolphins, in command most of the second half after a 58-58 intermission deadlock, owned a 93-92 margin with 2:10 remaining.

Seconds later Snyder got loose and the "wrongman" foul decision arrived. Laughing as the Dolphins argued in vain, Snyder flubbed his first free throw, but made the second for a 95-93 lead.

Jacksonville got the ball once more but Fallon, a tremendous competitor, couldn't connect on an off-balance shot with 11 seconds remaining.

"They threw out Harry Manushaw on a fifth foul," he said, "by calling it after a traveling violation up court that automatically stopped play."

Jacksonville made a phenomenal 64 per cent of its shots; Miami hit 48 per cent.

Fallon pitched in 31 points for Jax, nine more than Guard Joe Gardner, Miami's top gun.

It was the 11th victory in 17 contests for the Hurricanes, who oppose Loyola of New Orleans Monday night at Beach Auditorium. A victory in Thursday's match with Stetson would wrap up the Florida Intercollegiate title for the UM, now 8-1 in the league.

In the prelim, ineligible seven - foot Center Mike McCoy caged 29 points to guide the Intramural All-Stars to a 99-92 decision over the freshmen.

Edison Rips Lakeland Five, 58-47

LAKELAND — Miami Edison's Red Raiders soared to an early 20-10 lead, then withstood a late Lakeland rally for a 58-47 basketball victory here Saturday night.

It was the same old story for Lakeland which now has a 2-17 record, including 11 defeats in a row. The short host cagers could not rebound with Edison, and could not hit on long shots.

Lakeland pulled to within two points in the fourth quarter at 46-44, but Jim Causey hit a pair of fielders from the corner to boost Edison out of reach. Causey's 18 points led Edison scoring.

nal green with their approaches. Mayo, who was short, pitched 40 feet shy of the pin and was three feet short with his approach putt.

Pearson's second shot went over the green, but the ball struck a spectator and was stopped a few feet from the green. Albie fluffed his chip, but almost sank a 15-footer and got his five after Mayo slid his putt past the cup.

Pearson missed a five-foot putt for an eagle three on the fifth hole. It was on this green that Hearn almost dropped a 35-footer for an eagle.

Hearn, who lost to Dark in the 1951 finals, was hitting all of his shots well, but he was cautious in his putting.

"We both had trouble with our putting," said Lopez, but he managed to get them down better than Herman.

The baseball players Saturday voted to change their tournament to medal competition next year. After 36 holes, the low 16 and ties will continue in the championship competition with the others competing in other flights.

Seminoles Win Relays

MONTGOMERY, Ala. —(AP)— The Seminoles of Florida State won the Coliseum Relays for the second year in a row Saturday night, scoring in nearly every event.

Florida State picked up most of its points in also ran performances, but Jim Casteel equalled the Coliseum record of 6.4 seconds in the 60-yard dash and won the broad jump with a leap of 22 feet 2 inches.

Butts Logs 32, But Miami High Whips Hialeah

By DICK EVANS
Herald Sports Writer

Fantastic Bernie Butts scored 32 points Saturday night but it wasn't enough as Miami High's well-balanced basketball team defeated Hialeah, 70-63.

Butts now leads the county scoring with 545 points, only 42 shy of Richie Berger's record. The 32 points hiked Boom Boom's average to 30.2 for 18 games. He has three regular season games remaining.

Bernie contacted on 13 of 37 action shots, including four straight in the second period. He was accurate on six of 10 free throws, set up five baskets with nifty passes, stole the basketball twice and took seven balls off the backboard.

But Miami High just had too much depth and rebounding power.

Somerindyke also was a deadly shooter. With the Stingarees trailing 43-36 in the third period, Somerindyke hit on four consecutive jump shots from the corner.

The always thinking Butts called time out with two seconds remaining in the first half. Butts took the ball inbounds, passed to Glen Parker who scored as the buzzer sounded.

Miami High guard Buddy Coleman executed beautiful blocks on two Butts shots. Bob Paterson, another Miami High star, was deadly on two clever under-hand buckets.

Miami High's B team won the opener.

Edgewater Nips Gables

Herald Service

ORLANDO — The combination of Claude Sherman and Stewart Hall proved too much for Coral Gables High here Saturday night as Edgewater posted a 54-51 basketball victory.

Gables held a 37-36 lead going into the final period. The lead switched back and fourth throughout the last eight minutes.

It was Sherman, who had 19 points, who put Orlando ahead for keeps with a jump shot which broke a 48-48 standoff.

Hall added two free throws a moment later and Edgewater had it svictory.

Wally Dale plunked in 24 points for Gables, which now is 11-7 on the season.

Rhubarb Pacing SORC

DuPont, Pine Orchard, Conn., compiled 111.6 points by skippering his fibre-glass craft to victory in the Miami-Nassau; fourth place in the Nassau Cup, and seventh in the Lipton Cup.

Second place in standings announced Saturday by SORC Chairman L. L. McMasters of St. Petersburg is Rhubarb's twin — Southern Star II.

Owned by James W. Mullen II of Richmond, Va., Southern Star earned 106.2 points by being third in the important 184-mile Miami-Nassau; runnerup in the Lipton, and sixth in the Nassau Cup.

Callooh, the 44-foot Nassau Cup victor sailed by New York's Emil (Bus) Mosbacher, is third with 106 points.

At least one more race, and possibly two, remains to be sailed. The St. Petersburg-Havana comes up March 14 and tentatively is scheduled to be followed by the Havana-Varadero renewal on March 20.

Gibbs Sets Mark, Wins Stock Race

Three track records fell Saturday night as Buck Gibbs captured the modified stock car feature at Hialeah Speedway. His time for the 20 laps—six minutes and 39 seconds—set a track mark.

Bruce Griffin was second and Bill Flingos third. Griffin broke the single lap record with 19.25 seconds, besting Ernie Reeves' old mark of 19.47. Flingos cracked the eight-lap standard with 2:37.60.

In the sportsman's feature, Bill Johnson sped the 15 laps in 5:19.82 to beat Johnny Roscoe and Glenn Nichols, who finished in that order.

Floridians Lose Bowling Match

Baxley Hits 42 Points, Pioneers Win

Tom Baxley, blending a jump shot with lay-ups off a fast break, poured in 42 points Saturday night as his North Miami Pioneers bombed Central Catholic, 90-60, in a Gold Coast Northern Division basketball game at North Miami.

North Miami's junior varsity outfit topped the varsity score with a 107-48 preliminary victory. Phil Caprio hit 25 points and Wally Flury added 24 in the romp.

Baxely bucketed 25 points in the final quarter. He totaled 13 field goals and 16 free throws.

SKATE followed the dueling leaders, moved outside to attain command nearing the end and lasted under pressure. JASON'S STAR saved ground while racing CHEIRON into defeat, responded well when engaged and displaced and just missed. LEEDEACON dropped back slightly entering the stretch and responded well to be wearing down the top pair.

LONGBOSS, unhurried for six furlongs, entered contention nearing the stretch and drove through a narrow opening between horses to outfinish BATTLE CAMP. The latter moved from just off the pace to attain a slight lead briefly, then was not good enough. ALBANY SQUARE rallied from far back. NET BALL gave way badly.

SCRATCHES: None.

616—FOURTH—Purse $4,000, 4-year-olds and up,

OWNERS: 1. Greentree Stable; 2. Mrs. A. A. Bigelow; 3. Elmendorf; 4. Spring Hill Farm; 5. D. G. Arnstein; 6. River Divide Farm; 7. Bonnie Brae Stable; 8. F. W. Hooper; 9. T. M. Girdler; 10. W. E. Dorland; 11. R. C. Austin; 12. Miss Carole Dunham.

LOCOWEED moved through along the inside to engage the leader and wrest command, then held sway under pressure. AUSTIN held a clear early lead, allowed LOCOWEED to move through on the turn and continued on courageously. REVOLUTIONIST reached contention early but lacked the needed late response.

SCRATCHES: Dixie Line.

Tudor Era $6.70, 4.00, 3.50; Ekaba (a—entry) 4.10, 4.30; Mahan (a—entry) 4.30.

WINNER SELECTED BY: Harris, O'Neill, Consensus, Feldman.

OWNERS: 1. Mrs. H. Herff; 2. Hasty House Farms; 3. Hasty House Farms; 4. Brae Burn Farm; 5. Greentree Stable; 6. Windfileds Farm; 7. Sanford Stud Farm; 8. Cain Hoy Stable; 9. Adele L. Rand; 10. Adele L. Rand; 11. G. D. Widener; 12. C. D. Alexander; 13. A. A. Dorato.

TUDOR ERA, taken under steadying restraint after having attained command under energetic handling, set the pace under good rating and increased his advantage during the late stages to win with authority. EKABA, close to the pace from the outset, gave way gradually through the last quarter. MAHAN broke last, entered contention after the first mile, then lacked the needed response. GENERAL ARTHUR raced within striking distance, lacked room repeatedly while attempting to rally along the hedge, then was without a response on the final straightaway.

SCRATCHES: Saim.

Carr's Net 65 Wins at Riviera

Russell Houston and Glen Strong tied in Class B with 65s, and Fred Six and Dr. Otto Dowlen deadlocked in Class C with 70s. A ball and chain tournament will be held today.

Wrestle Royal Slated Friday

The main event features Haystack "Country Boy" Calhoun, 601-pounder. The fabulous Moolah takes on Ella Waldek in a two-out-of-three fall match.

Weather Grounds 'Key' Men

Pro Grid Meeting Off, Re-Scheduled in Miami

MEMPHIS — (UPI) — Bad flying weather grounded "key" men supposed to be here for a meeting Saturday to organize a new professional football league. Delegates at the initial talks set a new meeting date in Miami Feb. 28 for the actual awarding of franchise options.

Reports from the meeting room at Hotel Peabody here showed that delegates from Denver, Columbus, Indianapolis and Atlanta were grounded by soupy flying weather.

David Cheses of Columbus took an early flight and made it here. But Virgil Pierson of Birmingham, the league's public relations man said Robert Hoag of Columbus flew as far as Cincinnati where he was stranded.

Others unable to get here because of weather conditions were Ernie Troutman of Atlanta and Murray Dulberger of Indianapolis.

Those at the meeting besides Cheses included Norman Schulman of Miami, Robert Wilson of El Paso, Tex., Jack Fiser, sports editor of Shreveport Times, Dr. Gordon Bennett of Memphis and Travis Tidwell, president of the Mid-American Professional Football League, Pierson and Roland Jacks of Birmingham.

Latest realignment showed that the Eastern cities involved would include Atlanta, Miami, Charlotte, N.C., Shreveport, La., Louisville, Buffalo, Columbus, Brooklyn and Dallas.

The Western Conference possibilities would include Denver, Memphis, St. Louis, Indianapolis, El Paso, San Antonio, Tulsa, Houston and Minneapolis.

Out of this list, six teams from each section will enter the league, to be selected at the Miami meeting.

Campbell Leading Tucson

TUCSON, Ariz. — (AP) — Joe Campbell of Knoxville, Tenn. shot his way into a three-stroke lead at the end of Saturday's third round of the $15,000 Tucson Open with a 15-under-par 194.

Professional Golf Associatian officials said Campbell's 65-64-65—194 for the par 35-35—70, 6,434-yard El Rio Course was the lowest 54-hole tournament total since 1955.

Art Wall Jr., Pocono Manor, Pa., is second with 66-64-67—197. Julius Boros, Mid Pines, N.C., who started the third round tied with Campbell, had a Saturday 70 for a 199 total.

Gene Littler, San Diego, Calif.; Walter Burkemo, Franklin Hills, Mich.; and Henry Williams Jr., Fleetwood, Pa., were grouped six strokes behind Campbell with 200s.

The leaders:

Sharpsburg Declared Out Of Widener

Fairlawn Farm's Sharpsburg was declared out of next Saturday's $100,000-added Widener Handicap because of a bruise suffered in training.

Sharpsburg is owned by Roy E. Faircloth of Johnson City, Tenn., and had won four stakes since Faircloth bought him from Calumet several months ago.

The six-year-old horse ran the five furlongs Friday in 1:00 1-5 under Trainer Tony Puglisi, but was lame when he returned to the stable.

Coy Bids For Auto Laurels

Over 40 of the nation's top midget drivers will roar off in powerful Offenhauser and Ford racers in a seven-event program at Hollywood Speedway today.

Led by 1958 champion Johnny Coy, the field will include such midget racing performers as Ed McVay of Kansas City, Bob Tattersal of Joliet, Ill., Bill Chenault of Independence, Mo., Wild Willie Hunziker of Kansas City and Bod Bogard of Indianapolis.

The event is jointly sponsored by NASCAR and Hollywood Speedway and will be run under NASCAR championship rules. Time trials start at 1:30 p.m.

BLOATED

"I had to come over," volunteered a golfer, "and get a little exercise." He complained that they had eaten a late dinner and eaten too much so he had a good reason to shoot a little golf. While resting and talking on the sidelines he met business acquaintances and friends. His trip amounted to more than exercise. Golf attracts the finest people and they meet at TWIN LAKES GOLF SCHOOL & CLUB. So STOP 'N' SOCK a few at 1090 N.W. 95th Street. Closed Fri. Eve. till opening Sat. 6:15 P.M.

Bug Brush Upsets Hillsdale

ARCADIA, Calif. —(AP)— Bug Brush, a fashionable filly, scored an upset victory over the favored Hillsdale Saturday and set a new world record in winning the $58,100 San Antonio Handicap at Santa Anita Park.

Time for the mile and one-eighth, before a thundering crowd of 49,500, was 1:46 2-5, a world record.

The battle was a three or four horse affair for the early stages, but settled down into a real struggle between the colt and the filly.

Terrang, got third in a photo finish over Seaneen. Bug Brush returned $15.10, $5.50 and $4.40; Hillsdale $3.20 and $2.60, and Terrang $6.

Hillsdale, carrying 120 pounds to 113 for Bug Brush, was given a fighting ride by his regular jockey, Tommy Barrow. But the two were outfought by Bug Brush and Angel Valenzuela.

British Entry in One-of-a-Kind Regatta
. . . Cougar will draw attention in weekend race

Coral Reef Hosts Both

1-of-a-Kind, 5-0-5 Races Head Week's Boating Card

By LUTHER EVANS
Herald Sports Writer

Two of America's most important smallboat sailing events will be offered this week in Biscayne Bay. Coral Reef Yacht Club is host for both.

LUTHER

The National 5-0-5 Championships, matching seven regional winners and runners-up in unique 16-foot planing sloops, get under way at 2 p.m. Monday.

Five races will be sailed over a seven-mile course, continuing through Thursday when the final two heats are scheduled.

Then, Friday, comes perhaps the most interesting competition ever staged in local waters — Yachting Magazine's fourth One-of-a-Kind Regatta.

Planned to settle the much-debated argument about which sailing design is the fastest, this regatta does just what the title suggests — brings out one boat of each type.

If every entrant shows up, 40 boats ranging from 14 to 36 feet in length and representing 15 states, England and Canada, will compete. The fleet will race on both a boat-for-boat and handicap basis.

The race committee will spread three to five races, depending on the weather, over Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

In addition, if conditions are favorable, straightaway speed runs will be run off on a reaching course to gather data on the top speed possible under sail.

Eric Olsen of Essex, Conn., who won the last One-of-a-Kind in 1954 with a 5-0-5 sloop, will try to repeat in a Tiger catamaran.

WITH THE TWO-FOLD goal of a national title and qualifying as the division's defender in the One-of-a-Kind, spirited races are expected in the 5-0-5 series.

Although last year's winner, Dennis Posey, will not be on hand, the 2-3-4-5 finishers of last year will try again.

They are, in order of 1958 finish: Walter Bowden, San Antonio, Texas; Ralph Dorchester, Houston; Logan Goar, Houston, and William Schildecker, Daytona Beach.

The 5-0-5's, new to local waters, get their name from being 5.05 meters (16 feet, 5 inches) in length.

Sailors Take to Bay In Predicted Log Race

With a record fleet of 21 powerboats entered, the Biscayne Bay Yacht Club today offers its sixth annual J. M. Keely Trophy Predicted Log contest.

Chairman Paul Ware will send the skippers over a 47-mile course entirely within Biscayne Bay and its seaward approaches.

Each skipper will shove off from the Donovan's Channel starting point at a time of his own choice, calculated to enable him to arrive at the finish line at exactly 3 p.m.

This puts the burden on navigational ability since no timepiece of any kind is allowed aboard.

Yachtsman who comes closest to finishing to 3 p.m. emerges the victor.

The starting fleet:

Albert T. Stearn, Sporty, BBYC; Elliott N. Park, Eloise, CRYC; Harland Snodgrass, Jabot II, BBYC; Fred W. Borton, Circe, BBYC; Daly Highleyman, Daly Double, CRYC; Col K.A. ENGRAVED invitations are being sent out for the launching next Saturday of W. L. McKnight's "Scotchie III," 77-foot yacht built by Allied Marine of Miami.

The ultra-modern yacht, biggest to be built locally in recent years, will be powered by the first two 12-cylinder (400 horsepower) diesel engines released by General Motors.

It is completely air-conditioned and has every new electronic device, such as radar, automatic steering and fathometer.

Launching ceremonies have been set between 3:30 and 4:30 p.m. by McKnight, chairman of the board of Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing Company of St. Paul, Minn.

* * *

RACES are scheduled in 10 classes in the Miami Yacht Club's semi-monthly race program at 12:30 p.m. today . . . Miami Power Squadron will start a new free class in piloting, seamanship and small boat handling on March 2 with registration at 7:30 p.m. at Sportsman's Marine, 8523 S. Dixie Highway. On March 3, also at 7:30, another class will get under way at another Sportsman's Marine location, 1260 NW LeJuene.

Outdoor Tips

How to Protect Rod

Never let your rod rest against any solid support while fighting a fish. Many a costly rod has been broken in such a manner.

* * *

Let 'Em Run

When a fish dives under a rock, or wraps your line around an obstruction, release all pressure on him and he might decide to leave his haven.

* * *

Vary Your Trolling

Lines trolled from a small boat are less apt to tangle if each is trailed at a different distance from the stern.

* * *

Wet Fish Before Freezing

Frozen fish will keep better and longer if you make sure they are thoroughly wet before storing them in the freezer.

He Takes a Swing At Spearfishers

Address letters on fishing and hunting to Outdoor Editor Vic Dunaway.

* * *

DEAR VIC, It has been established beyond doubt that spearfishermen can clean out — and have cleaned out — fishing holes that had been regularly productive for many years prior to the intrusion. It has been established abroad that spearmen have killed off a specific fish from a given area.

The charter men of the Upper Keys have learned of the problems firsthand. Reef spots that could be counted on to produce needed fish suddenly were barren after a short time of "fishing" by the spearman. Legislation saved the Keys' principal asset — angling.

We all know that at times fish are not in the mood for bait or lure, but the fish's attitude has little to do with the matter of getting a hole stuck through him.

It is elementary that most of the species hit by spearmen are those which gather in specific areas offering food and shelter. This makes easy prey of all of them — not just those adventurous few who might tackle a lure.

Makris Loses Control Of Three Bays Company

James Russell, Editor

Mortgage Is Sold at A Discount

By STAN JOHNSON
Herald Business Writer

M. A. S. (Mike) Makris, the Greek-Mexican financier, has been ousted from control of the Three Bays Line following some rough and tumble legal maneuvers.

The 31-year-old Makris contracted 19 months ago to buy the Miami shipping firm from Arthur Vining Davis for $1,883,715. He paid $150,000 down, but failed to keep up payments on a mortgage for the balance.

Davis sold the mortgage at a discount price to a group represented by Miami Attorney Irving M. Wolff who took over the company's assets last week.

Makris had also sought to buy the mortgage from Davis, but was out-maneuvered by the Wolff group which reportedly paid less than $500,000 for it.

Wolff declined to name the price or his associates, who are operating under the name of the Redstone Shipping Corp., a Liberian corporation.

However, Makris has charged in a circuit court suit that Redstone has the same principals as Caribbean Hamburg Lines Inc., a Florida corporation which has been operating the four Three Bays ships since August under a time charter arrangement.

Makris claims that Caribbean Hamburg used $48,000-a-month charter payments which it withheld from him to buy the mortgage from Davis in the name of the Redstone Shipping Corp.

Wolff says Caribbean Hamburg paid $373,000 on the charter of which $113,000 went to Three Bays and the remainder to its creditors.

Other information which came to light during the legal in-fighting:

Great Potential

Organized early in 1954 by multi-millionaire Arthur Vining Davis, Three Bays Line once operated seven ships carrying dry and perishable cargoes between Caribbean ports and Miami.

"It has great potential, former general manager.

Nelson estimates that Davis dumped more than seven million dollars into the line before selling it to Makris.

Makris' luxurious home at N. Bay Rd., Miami Beach, was bought in the name of Three Bays Line from former Miami Marlins owner Sid Solomon for $300,000, subject to a $146,655 mortgage, then deeded it to Makris father, Spiros, for an indicated price of $10.

The home has a swimming pool, tennis court and three bars.

Makris' stock in Three Bays and its parent, Victorene Navigation Co. Ltd., had been pledged as collateral to the Davis mortgage, and was auctioned off last week on the courthouse steps.

Makris submitted the high bid of $149,000, but later failed to produce the money. The stock was then sold for $148,000 to the next highest bidder, Thomas Murphy, who was quickly installed as president.

Murphy, a sturdy six-footer, and several aides maintained an around-the-clock vigil in the Three Bays offices on Pier 3 to guard against a counter attack by Makris.

Police summoned by Makris arrived at the offices with riot guns, and in the confusion—says Makris—he "snuck away" with the firm's records. Wolff says the records are still in the offices.

As the dust settled Saturday, these events developed:

MAKRIS, announcing "I shall return," [illegible] Mexico where he says he is developing a multi-million dollar shipping and seaport venture on the Tehuantepec Isthmus with the financial aid of the Rothschild interests in Paris.

HIS LAWYER, Claude Pepper, said he would press the suit against the Wolff faction effort to reinstate Makris as the sole stockholder of Three Bays Line, Inc.

WOLFF said Redstone Shipping Corp. would continue to auction off the Three Bays ships in the Bahamas (one has already been sold there) and apply the money to its mortgage.

SAVA J. KALAFATIDES, 29-year-old president of Caribbean Hamburg, said the line would continue to operate the ships under charter from the new owners—presumably the Redstone Corp.

Has Business Worries

Wall Street Is Nervous

By JOHN G. FORREST
The New York Times Service

Traders are now worrying about general business conditions, which have rebounded from the recession of last year, but which have scarcely shown the strength that many had expected.

This week, for instance, Chrysler Corp. reported a deficit of $33,000,000 for 1958, its first red ink for any year since 1932.

It is hardly a secret that new car sales are not up to expectations. Steel production is up, but, even so, steel stocks have been taking a beating in anticipation of a strike this summer.

Railroad carloadings are up, too, but the big eastern roads are still tangling with serious financial problems based on a cost-price squeeze resulting from their passenger operations.

* * *

THE STOCK MARKET reflected these mixed developments this week. Prices fell sharply on Monday, rallied on Tuesday, backed and filled on Wednesday, went downhill again on Thursday but recovered on Friday.

At the close of the week the consensus was:

"We are on a price plateau and there will be no drastic changes until there is a definite trend one way or the other in the economy."

One of the most disturbing trends is the continuing stickiness in unemployment. In January it rose by 600,000 to a total of 4,724,000. That was the third straight month in which the number of jobless had increased. Unemployment now stands at about 6 per cent of the labor force.

For January, unemployment was at its highest level in 18 years. The administration, however, is confident that unemployment will decline in coming months.

President Eiswnhower told the press this week: "I believe thoroughly that we are going to have a pick-up as the year goes on." Wall Street apparently is not too sanguine about that forecast.

* * *

INFLATION is still a concern. This week Dr. Marcus Nadler of New York University warned that the steel negotiations coming up next summer "may set a new pattern of wages which, in turn, may rekindle the forces of creeping inflation."

It is increasingly evident that 1959 may be a year of difficult labor negotiations all the way around. Even the railroads finally indicated this week that they plan a fight if necessary with the brotherhoods aimed at changing some years-old rules governing railroad workers.

This fall will see the expiration of a three-year labor-management agreement to postpone changes in the railroad work rules that lead to "make-work" or "featherbedding" practices. According to the Association of American Railroads, "featherbedding" costs the rail industry more than $500,000,000 a year.

Meanwhile, Lewis L. Strauss, secretary of commerce, urged businessmen to resist "unwarranted wage demands" and to join in the movement to hold down government spending. Such actions, he said, would "help defend our economy."

Ill-Fated Checks Are Dried Out

NEW YORK — (UPI) Fished from the East River after the crash of the American Airlines plane early this month were 50,000 checks worth about $21 million.

The Federal Reserve Bank of New York says 16 of its expert check handlers have just completed drying the checks so that they can once again move through collection channels.

Altogether there were five nylon bags full of checks on the ill-fated Electra.

Three of the bags were recovered intact. A fourth had burst open and only some of its contents were brought up. The fifth has not yet been found.

The checks represented a shipment from the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago and banks to the New York Federal Reserve Bank.

Every day millions of checks are en route between banks as part of the collection process that eventually returns them to the sender.

At the New York Federal Reserve Bank, check handlers placed the checks in an improvised dryer. Then the smudgy checks had to be sorted and listed by hand.

Missing checks were determined by comparing the checks recovered with microfilm records kept in Chicago of all the checks in the five bags.

The missing checks then were copied from the microfilm records and sent on their way.

Most banks will pay on microfilm copies of checks, drawing down the balance of the sender, but some prefer first to get the permission of their customer.

Professors Give Their Approval To Slow Inflation

Miami Herald-Chicago News Wire

CHICAGO — Creeping inflation has won the blessings of the nation's college economics professors.

They also approve the management of money and credit by the Federal Reserve System and want no part of a gold standard — now or ever.

These are the findings of a survey of 613 economics professors in leading colleges and universities by a subcommittee on economic stabilization of the joint economic committee of Congress.

Wright Patman (D., Tex.), committee chairman, hailed the survey findings as showing that more than half of the economists would give greater emphasis to maximum employment than to price stability.

He also said 85 per cent of the economists repudiate they key policy of the Federal Reserve System — confining its open market operations to buying and selling U.S. Treasury bills.

Patman charged that the Federal Reserve Board has abdicated its responsibility for the structure of interest rates by sitting back and letting long term rates rise. He pointed out that the federal government must now pay more than 4 per cent on its borrowings.

Answering a questionnaire from the committee, most economists said they believed it possible to achieve "relatively high employment" and "relatively high stability of the general price level" simultaneously.

About half the responding economists considered a 1 to 3 per cent maximum yearly price change as a satisfactory "high degree of price stability." About 10 per cent thought 5 per cent was satisfactory, and some considered 6 to 10 per cent permissable.

The economists voted 2-to-1 for standby controls to assure high employment at stable prices.

Those for controls were almost unanimous in favor of controls over business investment, prices and wages.

NW Airlines In 4th Office

The new office is in the First National Bank building, at the corner of SE First St. and Third Ave.

On opening day, the airline will serve orange juice and tidbits from the same kind of snack tray used on some of its flights.

Don't Speculate On $73 a Week

By WILLIAM A. DOYLE

Q. I am a civil service worker. My take-home pay is $73 a week. I have three children and a home with a small mortgage. I was advised by a very well-to-do man to borrow half my pension money ($1,200) and buy stock.

So I did, buying Lukens Steel. I sold it four months later, at a $275 profit. Boy, was I happy. That took care of a year's taxes on my house.

Then I did it. On the advice of this same man, I put the $1,200 into Ryan Consolidated Petroleum stock. Was I right in doing this? Do you think that I should keep trying to earn a little extra money this way?

A. You should be. Ryan Consolidated Petroleum is an out-and-out speculation. The company is showing progress in its operations and earnings. If things keep improving, this stock may do very well.

DOYLE

But it's still a "place your money and take your chance" situation. That may be fine for the "well-do-do" guy you know. But it's not for you.

Get out of this rat race while you can. Don't gamble your future security in hopes for a fast profit. If you ever come back into the market again, investigate before you buy and pick nothing but investment-grade securities.

Q. I hold 300 shares of Goodman Manufacturing. About a year ago, you advised me to keep them. Since then, the dividend has been reduced and the stock has gone down in price. Do you still think I should hold this stock?

A. Now, wait just a minute. Suppose we deal in facts, not fiction. I never advised you either to keep or sell that stock.

In your previous letter, which appeared in this column over 15 months ago, you complained that the price of this stock had fallen after you bought it. You said you purchased the stock "in anticipation of a three-for-one split and a very good earnings report." You were unhappy because the stock fell, despite the split and the good report.

I told you that yours was "a classic case of what happens when you buy on a tip." You had no one to blame but yourself. I added that the stock seemed to have prospect for the future. That still goes, even though it's not a sure thing by any means.

And Goodman stock today is selling at a higherprice than it was when you wrote your previous letter. Case closed.

'Trains Need Game Rooms'

NEW YORK—(UPI)—It isn't the lack of travelers that's hurting the railroads—it's the lack of imagination, according to a local interior designer.

In coast-to-coast travel, trains have a captive audience and therefore cars should be designed for pleasure just as ships are designed for pleasure, Philip L. Stern, director of interior design for Jim Nash Associates, Inc., said.

"With the same amount of space, but with well designed convertible cars, a train can have a game room, a gymnasium, a theater or a chapel. And a nursery would give everyone a rest," Stern said.

$15 Billion in Ads

LOS ANGELES — (UPI) — Robert W. Sarnoff, chairman of the National Broadcasting Co., predicted here that advertising revenues of all media within the next decade will climb to $15 billion from the present volume of $10,100,000,000.

Aluminum Engines?

DETROIT —(UPI)— Chrysler Corp., will have aluminum engines ready for use on its standard-sized cars in about 18 months, suppliers of the automotive firm said today.

The sources, tool and die representatives and other suppliers, said Chrysler will have both six and eight-cylinder aluminum engines ready for use on the 1961 model cars it will introduce late in 1960.

The other major auto companies will not be able to match Chrysler's aluminum engines until at least mid-1961, the sources said.

Chrysler is developing a six-cylinder aluminum engine of conventional design in hopes of using it on the small car it plans to introduce early in 1960, UPI was told.

Billy and His Patented Hamburger

He Mashed Meatball, Started Fortune

By MIKE MORGAN
Herald Staff Writer

Anyone who has lived in this nation at least three days will verify that the hamburger is as much of the warp and woof of the country as chewing gum, or the Fourth of July.

Seems hard to believe that prior to 1921 there wasn't a hamburger stand in the nation. At least, no hamburgers as we know them—flat, that is.

Billy holds another unique distinction, or at least his company, The White Castle System, does. It has a patent on a hamburger.

LAST YEAR White Castle sold more than 110 million hamburgers in its 88 stores. Did a total business of $18,500,000, most of it from burgers and coffee.

Billy didn't invent the hamburger. But he says he knows the man who did. In fact, started into business with him. His name was Walter Anderson.

A big, jovial fellow whose girth doesn't dispute his boast of having eaten more than 30,000 hamburgers since 1921, Billy Saturday recounted something of the hamburger saga.

IT WAS in Witchita that the business got on the griddle. Billy was a real estate man.

Anderson worked as a cook in an amusement park concession. In those days hamburgers were sold mainly in fairs, circuses and such places.

The cook would simply dump several balls of meat on the grill and let them simmer and steam. When anyone wanted one, the ball of meat was thrust between bread or a bun.

Anderson didn't like the ball-type hamburgers. Whenever he fixed a sandwich for himself he flattened the ball into the familiar patty of today.

Tasted so good he put them on sale—and built up the first coterie of burger fans. When the park closed for the season, Anderson smelled a good thing and decided to open his own stand in the city.

It was an excellent idea but he didn't have any cash. He carried the idea along to Ingram.

ON AN IMPULSE, Ingram provided a lease for a tiny hamburger stand, and borrowed $700 to start the venture.

"We didn't have any capital investment when we started," he recalled. "Just 700 bucks I borrowed. Pretty fair for a company that did more than $18,000,000 business last year, eh!"

The financial structure of the company is "pretty fair" right now, too. There isn't any preferred stock; there are no obligations or debts other than current operating expenses.

That Wichita stand was a money maker from its opening day. New stands were quickly opened up in several other states. (Anderson retired in 1933.)

★ ★ ★

WHAT ABOUT that patented hamburger?

Well, to be accurate, the patent deals with a method of punching five equidistant holes in the patty.

When the hamburger is cooked it rests upon a layer of onions; steam comes through the holes and cooks the meat evenly and also flavors the bun.

"Also," said the hamburger king proudly, "our patties are scientifically constructed and designed. When they're cooked they shrink very little lengthwise, the shrinkage occurs only in the thickness."

Which proves that science is good for things other than trying to get to the moon or blow up the world. A hamburger which shrinks in only one dimension is no small thing.

★ ★ ★

FOR THOSE interested in statistics: Last year the company used more than six million pounds of meat; 72 carloads of dehydrated onions (which are purchased a year in advance).

You know how one thing leads to another.

Billy wanted his clerks to wear crisp, white disposable paper caps. He set engineers to working on the problem. After four years they came up with a machine that made the kind of cap he wanted.

But the machine could turn out enough caps for his employes within a few weeks of operation so he sold paper caps to other companies.

And it all started when a guy decided to flatten out a meatball.

Billy Can Still Fry 'Em
. . . he sold 110 million last year

Russia-U.S. Economic Race Like Aesop Fable

NEW YORK —(UPI)— Aesop's fable about the tortoise and the hare is a fairly good description of the race for economic supremacy now under way between Russia and the United States.

The U.S. still is far out in front in the race, but the Russians have pledged an all-out drive to close the gap and take the lead.

* * *

Right now the Russian economy is growing at a rate of between 8 and 10 per cent a year, while the U. S. economy is dawdling along at a rate of 2 per cent a year.

On this basis, the Russians could overtake the U. S. economy some time in the 1980's. However, Russian Premier Nikita Khrushchev's boast that Russia will win the race by 1970 appears far fetched.

Economists who have studied the Russian economy estimate that Russia's gross national product — the value of all goods and services produced — is only around half as big as this country's. That would place the Russian GNP at $230 billion.

Khrushchev says that by 1965 Russia will be where the United States is today, and that in the next five years it will overtake the U. S.

Since the United States is not going to stand still during that time — and actually may grow faster in the next decade — Khrushchev's prediction has a somewhat hollow sound.

Most of Russia's production today consists of heavy goods and military items. About two-thirds of this country's gross national product, on the other hand, reflects spending for goods and services by consumers.

Although the annual rate of growth in the U. S. has averaged slightly less than 3 per cent over the last five decades, some years have seen gains of as much as 5 per cent. The rate of growth has slackened since the end of the Korean War.

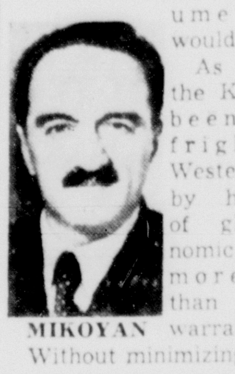
Walter Reuther, president of the United Automobile Workers, told congress last week that faulty economic policies have caused the slowing down in economic growth. He said steps should be taken to achieve a 5 per cent annual growth rate.

Some economists believe that a more favorable economic climate for investment is the answer of speeding up economic growth.

Mikoyan Lied

How Reds Rig Our Economy

NEW YORK —(UPI)— Russia appears to be able to exercise an effect on world prices far beyond what her actual volume of trade would justify.



MIKOYAN

As a result, the Kremlin has been able to frighten the Western world by her threat of global economic warfare more, perhaps, than the facts warrant.

Without minimizing the great growth of industry in the Communist bloc, careful examination of such figures as are available indicate the Reds have been extremely skillful at playing the bear's role on Western markets.

Canada was the victim of one of the most important such Soviet maneuvers. About two years ago, the Russians started dumping aluminum on the market in Britain — where Aluminium Ltd., of Canada has an important stake.

Aluminium cut the price of aluminum 2 cents a pound—to the dismay of the American producers, who felt they had to follow suit.

But just recently, a high Soviet official admitted at the 21st Communist Party congress that Russia is so short of aluminum that she "suffers great losses" by having to use heavier metals throughout Soviet industry.

This would appear to be an example of how Russia interfered with the price structure of the free world by strategically placing relatively small exports of a vital commodity.

Soviet Deputy Premier Anastas Mikoyan denied vigorously during his recent visit to the United States that Russia is trying to force world prices down by dumping tactics.

Yet hardly had Mikoyan left America when the latest edition of the official bulletin of the Soviet foreign trade ministry arrived containing a boast that Russia was doing just what Mikoyan said it was not.

China Strained

LONDON — (UPI) — British trade authorities say it is clear that Communist China's domestic economy has been "gravely overstrained" by the nationwide campaign for steel production at all costs and the regimentation of labor following the organization of peoples communes.

6.5 Million Have 2 Cars

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — The American Automobile Association (AAA) estimates that about 6,500,000 households in the United States have two or more automobiles.

The Census Bureau reported that in 1958 there were 50,400,000 households in the nation. There is no official census of automobiles, but one probably will be taken in 1960.

The latest census of television sets, taken by the bureau near the end of 1958, showed that about 41,832,000 households have television sets.

Spread Your Butter Thin

NEW YORK —(UPI)— The U.S. can afford both "guns and butter" but with the cost of national defense rising, the butter must be spread somewhat thinner for the time being, Economist Marcus Nadler says.

In his monthly review of the nation's economy for the Hanover Bank, Nadler said President Eisenhower deserves the "utmost support" of the people in his attempt to balance the budget and hold the line of inflation.

He added that if the predictions contained in the president's economic messages for 1959 materialize the year will be the best in the nation's history.

Big Tire Battle: Nylon vs Tyrex

NEW YORK —(UPI)— A scrap involving some of the titans of industry will determine whether the cord used to bind the rubber in your car tires is made of nylon or a rayon material called tyrex.

Millions are being spend on both sides. Charges and counter-charges are being leveled.

Claims and counter-claims are being advanced. The stakes are a market estimated at $275 million annually.

Ranged on one side are the nylon forces—E. I. duPont de Nemours & Co., the nation's biggest chemical company, and Chemstrand Corp., a combine of American Viscose Corp. and Monsanto Chemical Co.

On the other side is the tyrex contingent—five companies that banded together last September to promote the improved rayon cord. The five are American Enka Corp., American Viscose Corp., Beaunit Mills, Inc., Courtaulds (Canada) Ltd., and Industrial Rayon Corp.

Although both sides have marshaled impressive figures showing the superiority of their product, there are certain areas where there is at least some agreement:

—TYREX is cheaper. Nylon costs $1.20 a pound against 58 to 63 cents f[illegible]

—A NYL[illegible]as a tendency to de[illegible]flat spot when the car is in garage or dealer showroom. Nylon people say it disappears after a few minutes of driving.

But the claims clash head on in these areas:

—IMPACT RESISTANCE. Nylon people say their tires have almost three times the resistance to failure from impact damage as tyrex. Tyrex people say their tests show greater impact breaks from nylon.

—WET STRENGTH. Nylon forces say when wet tyrex loses three times more of its original strength than does nylon. Tyrex people say on the contrary their cord has greater strength when wet than nylon.

HEAT RESISTANCE. Nylon people say tyrex will fail from heat damage at a lower temperature than nylon.

The first round in the battle has gone to the tyrex forces.

Johnston Elected

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. — (UPI)— Eric A. Johnston was unanimously reelected president of the Association of Motion Picture Producers. Y. Frank Freeman was reelected the group's board chairman.

How Barron's will help you
AVOID INVESTMENT BOOBY TRAPS
in the next 17 weeks

What you do with your money in the next 17 weeks can have a serious effect on your whole financial future. The next 17 weeks will bring changes—both political and economic—which can mean crippling losses if you are unwary. Or these weeks can put you ahead financially, if you act wisely and in time. Let Barron's National Business and Financial Weekly give you the information and guidance you need.

You will see in Barron's how the values of your stocks and bonds, real estate, commodities, and cash, itself, are rising or falling as the result of changing conditions — political and economic — from week to week.

You will get clear, well-founded information each week—not only on industrial and market trends, but on the condition and prospects (the changing fortunes) of individual corporations.

Barron's never presumes to tell you which stocks or bonds to buy or sell. It does tell you the facts that affect securities—the underlying trends, immediate outlook, vital news and statistics that indicate the intrinsic values.

No other publication is like Barron's. It is especially edited for the man who is worth over $10,000, or who saves $1,000 or more a year. It is the only weekly affiliated with Dow Jones, and has full use of Dow Jones' vast, specialized information in serving you.

Try Barron's for dependable aid in making your investment decisions. Only $5 for 17 weeks' trial; full year $15. Just send this ad with your check for $5. Or tell us to bill you. Address: Barron's, 392 Newbury Street, Boston 15, Mass. MH-215

A $10,000 MISTAKE

A Wall Street Journal Subscriber's Experience

After years of unsatisfactory progress in business—earning a few dollars here and losing a few dollars there—I decided to try new tactics. I decided to broaden my outlook—to find out more about what goes on in the business world—to learn about new inventions, new industries, new ways of doing business.

One thing I did was to subscribe to The Wall Street Journal. Believe me, it has paid off. The reports in The Journal come to me daily. I get the fastest possible warning of any new trend affecting my business and personal income. I get the facts in time to protect my interests or to seize quickly a new profit-making opportunity. Last year I earned $5,000 more than the previous year. Why didn't I subscribe to The Journal two years sooner? I was wrong not to. It was a $10,000 mistake.

This experience is not unusual. The Journal is valuable to owners of small businesses. It is a wonderful aid to salaried men making $7,500 to $25,000. It can be of priceless benefit to young men who want to win advancement.

The Wall Street Journal is the complete business DAILY. Has largest staff of writers on business and finance. The only business paper served by all three big press associations. It costs $24 a year, but you can get a Trial Subscription for three months for $7. Just tear out this ad and attach check for $7 and mail. Or tell us to bill you. Address: The Wall Street Journal, 44 Broad St., New York 4, N. Y. MH 2-15

Flick Switch For Shaving

BRIDGEPORT, Conn. — (UPI) — A new electric shaver which can be adjusted for tough chin or tender neck whiskers by flicking a setting at a tiny control panel has been introduced by Sperry Rand Corp.

The company's Remington Rand electric shaver division said its new shaver represents the first adjustable shaver to hit the market.

NEW STOCK MARKET COLLAPSE JUST AHEAD?

Will YOU RECOGNIZE the Danger Signals When They Occur? It shouldn't take a genius to realize that stocks cannot keep going up in value forever! But it takes a lot more than guess work to determine exactly WHEN the turn will come. It could come at any point now. Wouldn't you like to be given advance warning?

To those few who understand it, the DOW THEORY has pointed out the right "BUY" and "SELL" stock signals nine out of ten times since its inception by Charles Dow, famed Wall Street Journal editor, more than 60 years ago. No theory is infallible, of course, but you just can't afford to overlook the tremendous possibilities in a nation-wide investment service which can proudly say:

"We Have Guessed Right on Every Major Stock Market Move Since 1946!"

To enable you to make, at first hand, an honest appraisal of our kind of Investment Service, we would like to have you become a trial subscriber to our Dow Theory Forecast Weekly Investment Service for 4 weeks, merely for the cost of postage and handling ($1). This trial places you under no obligation to continue the service and you will receive a wide range of vital investment services, including Master Stock Lists, 30 Recommended Low-Priced Stocks, a Weekly Consensus of Other Stock Service Recommendations, Model Stock Portfolios and Special Growth Stocks. Also included are "3 NEW STOCKS TO BUY NOW," the promising result of our latest special studies. No salesman will call, and this offer is open to new trial subscribers only.

SUMMARY of ADVICES ON 850 STOCKS

Now is the time to put your investment house in order to protect and increase your capital in 1959. Not for many years past have there been such wide discrepancies in the performance of individual stocks. The surprising extent to which all stocks ranked in Group I (Highest) by the Value Line Survey have outperformed all stocks ranked in Group V (Lowest) during the past nine months is a matter of record. (The audited results will be submitted to you for your own appraisal.)

Your first step should be to check each of your stocks to see how they measure up for Probable Market Performance in the next 12 months (whether in Rank I [Highest], II, III, IV, or V [Lowest]), how they rate for Value, Safety, Income, and Appreciation Potentiality over a 3 to 5 year pull. The Value Line Survey provides objective and specific measures on each count. These Rankings are available exclusively in the Value Line Survey.

With the latest SUMMARY before you, available only in the Value Line Survey, you would have at your fingertips the conclusions reached in the 1,000-page Value Line Survey, enabling you to check every one of your stocks against objective and current measurements of value, to choose the strongest and safest stocks for your own list. A copy of the latest Value Line SUMMARY will be sent you at no extra charge under the Special Introductory Offer below.

Mobs Went to 'Assembly Line' Murder

Gangland graduated from murder to massacre in Chicago on Feb. 14, 1929, when practically all of the Bugs Moran gang was shot down by a rival mob, said to be henchmen of Al Capone. But the killers never were arrested; the butchery was never solved. Killings had been common before that—but mostly one or two at a time. This was the first "assembly line" slaughter. It was part of the bootleg war in Prohibition Days. It was the Valentine's Day Massacre.

By EARL AYKROID

Associated Press Staff Writer

CHICAGO — Thirty years have passed since the St. Valentine's Day massacre, one of prohibition's goriest moments.

But the mass execution of the George (Bugs) Moran gang still is remembered as the day when gangland graduated from murder to massacre.

The small, red brick building where seven men were machine-gunned in cold blood still stands on N. Clark St., crammed among more imposing structures.

In spite of three decades, the neighborhood hasn't changed much. Buses have replaced clanging trolleys, but otherwise the area still is mainly one of rundown rooming houses and small shops.

A storage firm now occupies the former gang headquarters that rival mobsters turned into a charnel house.

Perhaps ghosts of the slain men pervade the place. When I sought entrance to the office a few days ago, I found the door locked. A woman clerk gingerly opened it after a close look at me.

"I don't like to take unnecessary chances," she apologized without further explanation.

The mass slaughter took place on Feb. 14, 1929. By that time the gang wars for Chicago's lucrative bootleg traffic had narrowed to two major factions, those of Al Capone and George (Bugs) Moran. Most of the other gangs had been decimated by machinegun, shotgun and torture in a war for profits—a war engendered indirectly by a thirsty public.

The morning dawned cold and gray. The skies held a threat of snow. It was St. Valentine's Day—a day when all the world was supposed to be in love.

It was about 10 a.m. when police received the first report of "a shooting at 2122 N. Clark St."

I was among the first newsmen to reach the scene, a low building on a busy street. Inside the front door was a small office. Back of the office was a garage containing several trucks.

The place was headquarters for the Moran gang.

The garage was a scene of carnage. Six men lay dead along the north wall, their bodies riddled by machinegun bullets. A seventh man, fatally wounded, was being carried to an ambulance by two patrolmen.

Only a police dog—tied to the axle of a truck—survived the ghastly killings that had virtually wiped out the entire Moran gang.

Moran was not there when the killers sprang their trap.

Peter and Frank Gusenberg, brothers, two of Moran's toughest muscle men; Johnny May, ex-convict and mechanic who kept Moran's trucks in operating condition; James Clark, Moran's brother-in-law; and Adam Hyer, another muscle man; Dr. Reinhart Schwimmer, an optometrist, for whom gangsters had a strange fascination, although he was not mixed up in the rackets himself; Al Weinshank, a speakeasy operator.

Rival mobsters had decided to eliminate the entire Moran faction. An execution squad, some dressed as policemen, waited in a hideout near Moran's headquarters for a day when all or most of the gang would be there.

Three men had rented rooms in a house across the street where they could watch Moran's headquarters. They occupied the rooms for a week before the killings, but disappeared immediately afterward.

Moran's henchmen began gathering in the headquarters Feb. 14. Soon there were six of them. The seventh to arrive was Weinshank, who bore a close resemblance to Moran. Police theorized the rival lookouts mistook Weinshank for the gang leader and gave the signal for the executioners to move in.

Within minutes an automobile, which witnesses took to be a police car, pulled up in front of the gang headquarters. Four or five men—two in police uniform—got out. One man in civilian attire carried an odd-shaped package wrapped in newspaper.

The uniformed men — pistols in hand—led the way into the building.

Inside, the seven men waiting for Moran looked up in mild surprise. Police raids were nothing new to them, nothing to cause much concern.

Execution Chamber of Mobsters

... scene of Valentine Day massacre

Line up against the wall, they were told.

Lulled by sight of the police uniforms, the seven did so, expecting to be frisked for weapons.

As they faced the wall, the man with the odd-shaped package quickly ripped away its covering. It was a machinegun.

The Moran boys had no time to save themselves. The machine gunner opened up with deadly accuracy. His weapon moved up and down the line of men repeatedly. There was a pause as the victims slumped one by one to the floor. Then the killer fired a final torrent of lead into the sprawled bodies.

"I saw two men in police uniforms come out of the garage," she told police. "They were carrying rifles or shotguns. There were two or three men walking ahead of the policemen with their hands in the air. They all got into an automobile and drove off. I thought police had made an arrest."

Frank Gusenberg lived briefly after the shooting.

Asked who shot him, he snarled, "Nobody." He died with his lips sealed.

Frightened out of the bootleg racket by the mass killing, which he openly attributed to Capone, Moran turned to burglary, robbery and confidence games.

He died Feb. 25, 1957, in Leavenworth (Kan.) penitentiary, where he was serving a term for bank burglary. His death, at 64, resulted from lung cancer.

The mass killing still is officially unsolved. Capone, believed by authorities to be responsible for the crime, died in 1947 after his release from prison, where he served time for income tax evasion.

Still 'Greatest'

CHICAGO —(UPI)— R. G. Hughes, former president of the National Association of Home Builders, told the group's 15th annual convention that Texas is still "the largest and greatest glacier-free state in the nation."

At least 1,000 Miamians answer to the call "Square your sets," the classic call to order for square dancers.

In church halls and recreation centers throughout the area, the craze is growing. These toe tapping Miamians range from the novice, who can just get through the Texas Star—one of the simplest of dances—to the borderline fanatic.

A fanatic, according to well known Miami caller Gene Baylis, is one who goes in for extensive traveling and fancy costumes. Baylis estimates that there are about 1,000 square dancers in the area, "and they're all awfully fine people."

One thing is certain—they have to be the cooperative type. The rugged individualist doesn't make a good square dancer. You can't go your own way when seven other people in the square are depending on you.

NEWCOMER MARY JANE RICH praises square dancing as a wonderful way to make friends in a new community. She and her husband Earl, a zoology professor at the University of Miami, moved here just a year ago from Berkeley, Calif., and are finishing a series of classes.

"Now we know everyone in the class—that's 64 people—and four of the couples get together socially in addition to the classes," she says.

The Riches hope to join one of Miami's eight square dance clubs. Even the names of the clubs have a happy sound—Kalico Kickers, Silver Spurs, Sunshine Steppers, Hurricane Squares.

Mrs. Herb Berner is another who'll vouch for square dancing as a friend builder. In summer the Berners (he's president of the 500-member Southeast Florida Square and Round Dancers Association) go to a resort in Missouri where dancers from all over the states and Canada congregate.

"You never know what the caller is going to do next and you must listen to him all the time, dancing three or four beats behind the call. If you get too far behind, you get lost. If you get too far ahead, he throws you.

"Usually the wife gets enthused about dancing first. After a few times, the husband is the one who'll say, 'Let's go square dancing tomorrow night.' "

Square dancing is for all ages. "But teenagers really make the best dancers," says one caller. "You have to get them started early, however, or they think it's 'square.' "

Petticoat or Pantalette

Square dancing has its own fashions. For both men and women.

Newest wrinkle for women is pantalettes, the ruffly kind to go under the yards and yards of skirt that flare out in the big turns. Style is to match them to your dress. Mrs. Edna Blaum, for instance, has them in white, red and yellow.

Squaw dresses are most popular. Mrs. Blaum, pert blonde wife of caller Gordon Blaum, favors the one piece, which will stay in place no matter how vigorous the dance.

Petticoats — some of which are 50 to 75 yards around the hem—are very important for the ladies.

You can pay up to $69 for a fancy, georgette dress, says Edna, "loaded with braid and gold and silver rick rack. It's the yardage of trimming that makes a dress expensive."

She also likes to buy several pairs of low priced shoes in matching colors. Flat shoes are a must. Some like 'em ballerina style with laces, others like flats with straps.

* * *

STYLES FOR MEN? Western wear, naturally. Now drip-dry western pants are coming on the market. And if you're a man who has everything, there are collar points of silver or nickel.

Other little tid bits you can buy for the dancer, according to Sets in Order, the official magazine of square dancing, are sterling silver jewelry of dancing figures, stationery with dancing figures and—save these for next year—square dance Christmas cards.

Locally there are several stores which cater to square dancers, stocking square dance patterns, squaw materials, etc.

Pantalettes Are Newest Style

Big Dance Saturday Night

You're invited to a Saturday night square dance featuring the nationally known caller Johnny LeClair from Wyoming. The dance, sponsored by the YWCA, will be held at 8 p.m. in the North Dade Armory, 13250 NE 8th Ave.

There's room for 32 squares—that's 256 dancers—and spectators are welcome. Dance floor is of inlaid wood, which most dancers prefer. Mrs. Joe Mason is chairman of the dance.

Proceeds will be used for the YWCA's year around program of service to the community.

Paraplegics Dance In Their Wheel Chairs

The Square Wheelers, a group of eight men and women paraplegics, square dance in their wheel chairs. They are so proficient they've given exhibitions.

MOTHER WRITES

'Spooning on Beach Is Disgusting'

Your South Florida Child

DEAR MRS. ENGLISH:

There is a sex problem in raising children in South Florida that one doesn't face in other areas. I have two active, curious kids, ages 5 and 8. We came here from the north a year ago.

I am so disgusted with the public spectacles of "spooning couples" who embrace each other openly on the beach, oblivious to the innocent children around them.

How can we teach our children the right attitudes towards sex when people make such an open display of themselves in an animal type fashion?

DISGUSTED MOTHER

DEAR DISGUSTED:

I agree with you that vulgar display between couples on the beach is disgusting and that police or beach patrolmen should do something to stop it. However, we will always have crude, ill bred people with us wherever we go. They are particularly evident on beaches, parks or public places ANYWHERE. It is just as evident on Lake Ontario, Atlantic City, the Carolina beaches, and Central Park in New York, as it is on the South Florida beaches. It is not a disease of South Florida residents.

However, you shouldn't deprive your children of the beach altogether because of this.

* * *

No Room For Storage

DEAR MRS. ENGLISH:

South Florida is wonderful, but there is one thing I miss about northern living. That is the additional space we had.

Here, we have a two bedroom ranch house for our family of five. We don't even have a carporte or garage.

And of course there is no attic or basement. My children have no place to store their toys. My husband has no where to put his tools.

My oldest boy is barely able to get his bike, which he needs for school, in the utility room. Every morning we take the bike outside so I will be able to run the washing machine. At night we must drag it back in so it won't be rained on and get rusty.

My four year old twins would like tricycles, but we have no place to store them, so we can't get them.

We do have a swing set in the back yard and the play ground is across the street.

There is a whole world of outdoors here — but even outdoor Florida living can be overdone.

Why don't they build the houses bigger with more storage space for our belongings?

"CRAMPED"

DEAR "CRAMPED:"

I agree with you that the houses are too small for those of limited budget. Four bedroom houses with plenty of storage space can be had, but they come higher. Still, I'm sure that in a larger house you spend half the time house cleaning whereas your smaller south Florida home is easier to care for.

Uninvited Guests Are Our Problem

DEAR MRS. ENGLISH:

I am one of those indignant mothers who is fed up with unannounced company. We had six descend on us for dinner unannounced on Christmas Day.

They were barely acquaintances from the northern city where we once lived.

Last year we had one after another uninvited guest throughout the season. My eight year old son was always being moved to the living room sofa to accommodate one of these parasites.

Everyone we know makes our headquarters their "home away from home."

MRS. S. E. C.

DEAR MRS. S. E. C.:

I don't see why you should entertain uninvited casual acquaintances at your inconvenience and expense just because they happen to be born in the same town as you.

Make it clear to all comers who aren't invited by you that you don't have room and it isn't convenient at this time to have them.

Mrs. English invites your questions. If you have a problem concerning your child, which can be discussed in this column, write her at The Miami Herald, Miami, Fla.

So What's Wrong With Mom?

What would I like to change about Mom?
.... Carol Woodward of Gables High ponders
—Herald Staff Photo by Ray Fisher

Today's Teen Panel

Today's Herald Teen Panel are from Beach High and Coral Gables. And they sounded off about what a great many teenagers feel—but seldom voice—about their parents—concern, appreciativeness.

Today's panelists are:

GABLES HIGH	BEACH HIGH
Pete Henderson	Harriet Newman
Sarah Cullen	Herb Williams
Bob Winter	Marilyn Newman
Carol Woodard	Dave Byrd

Teenagers are a surprising lot. Expect a light answer and you'll get a serious, thoughtful one. That's what happened with this week's Herald Teen Panel, which rotates among various Dade County schools.

We asked them, What would you like to change about your parents?

Various teen surveys have come up with light answers ("Wish they were millionaires;" "Dad should look like Tab Hunter.") or a listing of serious teen-parent problems.

But Dade's teens? Here are their answers.

By JEAN WARDLOW
Herald Staff Writer

Ask any Mom and Dad and they'll tell you: you can't predict teenagers. They're full of surprises. And that's the case with today's topic of The Herald Teen Panel.

Asked what they'd like to change about good ol', ever lovin' Mom and Dad, you might expect them to let themselves go with a few hundred "improvements," or to air out "problems."

Surprise! For the most part they were serious, well thought out answers like these:

"I wish that my parents weren't so good to me," said a pretty Beach panelist seriously. "I know they make sacrifices for me every day. I don't want to seem unappreciative. But I wish that they would do some things for themselves, too."

And she added, "I'd like to make them feel, though, that their sacrifices were worth it by giving them the respect that is due them and by making them feel glad that I'm their daughter."

A Gables High boy gave his main "complaint" about his father: "The trouble with my Dad is that he doesn't look after himself. I think the whole family would feel better if he'd take some time off once in a while. He works too hard."

A Beach High girl agreed that this was her complaint, too: "My parents both work, and my father works about 10 hours every day — that doesn't leave much time for me to see him. I feel that he should take it easier."

And she added that she wished her mother could take it easier, too.

"My mother has been working for 25 years. I think that she deserves a little bit of getting some home life, doing some shopping, cooking some meals."

* * *

"I wish that my mother would work," she said. "And it has nothing to do with finances, either. But I think it would be good for her."

She explained that her mother "enjoys doing housework, it's true, but I think that if she worked, now that the children are older, it could be more stimulating for her."

A boy from Gables, however, spoke up immediately, "I disagree. Being a mother is a full-time job." Most of the other panelists agreed with him. They think mother's place is where the welcome mat and refrigerator are — home.

He added that he not only has "no complaints" about his parents, but that "nowadays when so many people's home lives are so poor," he wants his parents to know that he appreciates his own.

"I'd like to get married to a real nice girl and have a large family. I think that having a happy and successful family life would be the best compliment I could give my parents."

A Beach High boy said that he appreciates the way his parents are giving him his own independence at the same time "I'm under their guidance."

And like this Beach panelist's, the general opinion was, "I have no complaints about my parents."

Oh, there were a couple of light touches, of course. A boy panelist grinned slyly and said, "I'd like to see in print that I wish my father would let me come in after 12 o'clock. He doesn't think anyone under 21 should be out after 12, and I have to leave a party so early in order to get my date home."

He heaved an exaggerated sigh. "It's difficult and I don't feel I can adjust very well."

And a male panelist offered the only complaint against Mom,' too. "I'd like her to read books with a more lasting value."

But for the most part, Mom and Dad are the top people in these teenagers' lives.

Apple Pie Will Buy A Library Book

Palmetto Elementary is a new school with a big library but not enough library books. For two years, the PTA has been working to stock the library, first with reference books and encyclopedias then fiction.

Tuesday night the PTA is having a dessert party. Homemade apple pie will be served at 7:30 p.m. in the cafetorium, 12401 SW 74th St. Later Mrs. Frank Kerdyk will review "The Child From One to Forty," and there'll be open house in the library.

Joe Lowes To Arrange Art Show

By HELEN WELLS
Herald Society Editor

April in Paris is on the calendar for Emily and Joe Lowe who are at the Fontainebleau until March 3rd. They are the donors of the Joe and Emily Lowe Art Gallery at University of Miami and spend some time in Paris each year.

While there Mrs. Lowe, an artist, will make arrangements for a one-man show in 1960.

Mrs. Lowe

Her annual competition to discover and help new talent, The Emily Lowe Award, sponsored by the Joe and Emily Lowe Foundation, is set for October in New York.

This is an international competition which had more than 4,000 entries last year out of which 40 were selected. A winner in 1953, Bernard Cathelin, young unknown Parisian painter, had his first one-man show in New York in the fall and sold every canvas exhibited.

Casa Sucre, the Lowes' Mamaroneck, N. Y. home which overlooks the Sound is where Mrs. L. does most of her painting.

Catching Up

NICE TO HEAR from Peggy McEvoy, widow of humorist and author J. P. McEvoy whom I met in Cuba. She is sojourning at the Marie Antoinette Hotel in Fort Lauderdale where she says she is trying to "shift gears" from the high powered life she and "Mac" led, to getting some projects of her own under way.

Mrs. McEvoy

Owner of the hotel is her and Mac's friend Joe Cunningham former head of El Panama in Panama. At one time when the McEvoys were there Mr. C. had the "monumental" task of housing 21 presidents of Latin American countries under his roof. A real security nightmare.

* * *

Too Intent on His Work

A "ONE TRACK MIND" says Ruth Resce of her mate, Walter. Seems Mr. R. (Butch as he's called) was in Key West filming a short of movie actor Tony Curtis for Steve Allen.

While Butch was intent on directing the film, a girl sat down beside him and talked at a great rate. He thought she was a script girl. En route home one of his crew asked him "How'd you like Janet Leigh?"

Mr. R's laconic reply was "Oh . . . was she there?"

* * *

Quit the Kidding

IF YOU WERE a struggling young singer, your telephone rang and a voice said that the great Toscanini wanted you to audition for a role at the Met you probably would do just what Herva Nelli did.

However, she found out that this was no hoax. Licia Albanese had heard her sing in 1947 and was impressed with her voice. She told Toscanini, "When you need a dramatic soprano, remember the name of Herva Nelli."

That was how Miss Nelli came to sing the lead of Desdemona in Otello at the Met in 1947. She's been going strong ever since and is singing in the next Miami Opera Guild production, The Masked Ball, Feb. 23, 25 and 28.

* * *

All Her Own Hair

BELIEVE IT OR NOT, these good looking thick braids Ruth Smith wears as a coronet on her head are her own hair. She is one of those people whose hair grows like mad—at the moment it's long enough for her to sit upon. She and Al live on Belle Mead Island with Pretty Boy, their fast talking mynah bird.

Mrs. Smith

Mr. Crum

KEY TO A FAUX PAS: Photographers and TV cameras were all ready when Ralph Crum, president of the First National Bank of Miami, and Comer Kimball, put their golden keys in the locks of the handsome new bank building.

Frank Rooney had presented them with these elegant keys to unlock the doors the day the building was dedicated. So what happened? Nothing, because the keys didn't fit the locks! The unlocking ceremony had to be done all over again.

Just Fried Chicken

A WELL KNOWN executive planning a special dinner party asked his friend, Art Bruns of Miami Springs Villas, to order him a dozen pheasants for same. The pheasants duly arrived and were placed in the deep freeze.

Came time for the dinner party and the lady of the house looked in the freezer for the prized pheasants. To her horror she saw that they were all gone. She asked the cook what had happened to them and got this answer. "Pheasants?? I don't know but the children sure have been enjoying the fried chicken!"

Metro Recreation Head To Address Springs Jrs.

Arthur Peavy, Metro superintendent of recreation, will speak at an 8 p.m. Tuesday meeting of Miami Springs Junior Woman's Club in the clubhouse, 300 Park St.

His topic is "Progress in Recreation."

Mr. Peavy is a Miami Springs resident and formerly headed that city's recreation department.

Beaux Arts Sponsors Talk by Poet Frost

Poet Robert Frost, who can keep his audience spell bound on the lecture platform as well as with his poetry, will speak to members of the Joe and Emily Lowe Art Gallery, March 3.

The lecture opens the week-long Religious-Art Festival sponsored by the University of Miami in which most of the cultural groups in the city are participating.

Robert Frost

[illegible] organization which aids the Lowe Gallery, both in a monetary way and in helping to promote an interest in art throughout the community, has arranged for Frost's appearance.

The lecture, in Plymouth Congregational Church, is open to Gallery members only. It's Beaux Arts' gift to the Gallery this year and is in place of the series of lectures which Beaux Arts has sponsored in previous winters.

Four-time Pulitzer Prize winner Robert Frost has been a winter visitor here for many years, having had a home in South Miami since 1936. He is consultant in poetry for the U.S. Library of Congress in Washington, D.C.

Invitations are out to a supper honoring Mr. Frost on March 1. Beaux Arts members are giving the party in Java Head, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Baker, 200 Edgewater Drive. The party will begin at 5:30 p.m.

Tutoring Service Begins at Barry

By DIANE LE FEVRE
Herald Correspondent

Barry College is starting a student tutoring service under the auspices of the newly-formed Student Council Education Committee.

The program has a three-fold purpose:

1. TO PROVIDE extra help for students without further burden to the faculty;

2. TO MAKE students more aware of the academic aspect of college life;

3. TO GIVE students a chance to distinguish themselves by helping others.

Barry

Diane Le Fevre

"The tutoring service is not just for those making unsatisfactory progress," explained Juanita Keeton, Miami, chairman of the education committee. "It is designed to assist anyone who would appreciate some extra help."

There is no charge for the service, but if the student receiving help wants to pay her tutor, she may do so.

The number of hours a tutor spends each week will depend on the amount of help her student needs.

Faculty members were asked to recommend students who have maintained an A or B average in their subject fields, general or specific.

Student Council has turned into an unofficial "pep squad" for the annual benefit performance, the Canadian Players' production of As You Like It, Feb. 21.

Tickets are now on sale, and reservations may be made by calling the campus store.

An Evening of Contrast, the first student speech and drama production of the year, will be presented at 8:15 tonight in the auditorium. It is open to the public.

The Plum Tree, a drama adapted from the novel by Mary Ellen Chase, and The Pot Boiler, a satire by Alice Gerstenberg, are the contrasting productions. Rosemary Schiraldi is director. Miamian Julie Bardoli is assistant.

Members of the Newman Club of the University of Miami will be guests of the Social Board at a mixer tonight at 6 preceding the drama production.

Remote Control Submarine To Be Shown at Exposition

By SHARON NELTON
Herald Correspondent

Campus and community can get a look into the future next weekend by attending the University of Miami's fourth annual Engineering Exposition.

U of M

Sharon Nelton

Featuring exhibits of engineering students as well as local and out-of-state companies, the show is being co-sponsored by professional engineering societies in the Miami area and by UM engineering students.

The exhibition marks the school's observance of National Engineers' Week. It will be in the Anastasia Building, North Campus, and will be open Friday evening and Saturday afternoon and evening.

Direct distance dialing, as it will soon exist in Miami, will be displayed by Southern Bell Telephone Co., and the Miami engineering department will show examples of city planning.

Among other features will be a model Volkswagen broken down so that viewers can see the automobile's parts. This display is by Florida Precision Instruments Co.

Engineering student John Self is chairman of the exhibition. The show is open to the public and is free of charge.

SIGMA NU and Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternities have the final talley on proceeds from their charity football game played in December. And the news is the best ever.

With the proceeds, the groups were able to donate $475.05 to UM's Yarck Memorial Fund, used for expanding student union facilities in memory of the late Dr. Paul Yarck, counselor for men.

Long Lines at Drop-Add Desk

By BUCKY CANON
Herald Correspondent

TALLAHASSEE — Things returned to normal this week on the Florida State University campus as the second semester classes got underway and students returned from a week-long break.

FSU

Bucky Canon

Long lines could be seen in front of the campus bookstores as students sold their old texts and purchased new ones. Students are given half price — at most — on their old books. The price of new ones range from $3.50 to $10 — usually towards the latter.

Even longer lines could be seen in front of the drop and add desk in Westcott auditorium. Here students dissatisifed with their schedule or with a class after the first day's attendance could drop it and substitute another. Often they would wait as much as two or three hours in this line.

Spring rush began this weekend. Approximately 150 places were vacant among the campus' 17 sororities and many FSU girls made the rounds of sorority parties in an effort to fill them.

Bids will be issued early this week.

* * *

A NEW SORORITY has been installed on the campus. National officers of Alphi Phi arrived in Tallahassee this week to install a chapter at FSU.

Alpha Phi will enter into Rush Week activities. Although they have no house, the Alpha Phis hope to live together on a dormitory floor. They plan shortly to buy or build a house of their own here.

Besides the national officers, more than two dozen girls from nearby chapters have come to Tallahassee to assist in the sorority's initial rush program.

As Fire Hazard Condemned

By BARBARA JONES
Herald Correspondent

NASHVILLE — The second floor of the Fine Arts building has been condemned for class meetings by city fire officials as a fire hazard. Fire marshalls inspected all the Vanderbilt buildings after the recent series of tragic school fires in Chicago and at Syracuse University.

Vandy

Barbara Jones

The Fine Arts Building was constructed in the early 1880's. It was supposedly scheduled to be razed at the same time or immediately after the old Kissam dormitory was razed last winter. However, a new location for the fine arts departmsnt has not been found so the building still stands.

* * *

It is generally conceded that under any rush system, someone who deserves to be a sorority member is destined to be overlooked.

Sorority members and rushees alike, however, have expressed concern because of the large number of Vandy rushes who didn't join a sorority.

This year 245 girls went out for rush but only 144 pledged. It is difficult to explain why 101 of the coeds who signed in October to participate in rush didn't pledge when Panhellenic Council implied that "there is a place in a Vanderbilt sorority for nearly every girl who desires to belong."

It is impossible to discern the number of places remaining in each sorority, since neither the Council, the Dean of Women's office, nor the sororities themselves will release the information.

Open rush is taking place but so far only five girls have accepted bids. Although there has been talk of bringing another sorority on campus nothing much has been done about it.

Community Singers Offer 'Song of Rolling Earth'

On Washington's Birthday, Feb. 22, the Miami Beach Community Singers will offer the world premiere of Richard Janaro's drama, song and dance fantasy "Song of the Rolling Earth" at Miami Beach Auditorium.

Mr. Janaro, professor of English at University of Miami, has created this fantasy around a small girl who is an orphan of the world in search of peace. The idealistic nature of the work makes it comparable to the Singers' two previous productions "Bar Kochba" and "America, Mother of Exiles."

Under the direction of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Yomen the Miami Beach Community Singers is a non-profit amateur community group made up of local citizens of Miami and Miami Beach. Each year it gives a public concert.

YW To Stage Bonnet Breakfast And a Whirl Around the World

Checked Cotton-Blend Dress is Easy to Care For

. . . worn by Mrs. Alton C. White

By BEVERLEY WILSON
Herald Fashion Editor

Traveling around the world? Or just shopping for a flattering hat to wear to your next club luncheon?

YWCA members and the Y-Matrons are thinking in terms of becoming clothes for every occasion, every figure, and every pocketbook.

First the Y will stage a bonnet breakfast at 9:15 a.m. Monday in the tearoom of Burdine's downtown store. Members will model hats by designer Leslie James. Proceeds will go towards paving the Y residence's patio.

Then the Y-Matrons will give a benefit Whirl Around the World fashion show luncheon and games party at 12:30 p.m. Thursday in Miami Woman's Club. Members will show clothes from Belk's Department Store which emphasize practical travel fabrics at modest cost.

They include the easy-care, easy on the budget costume illustrated — good anywhere in the world.

Two-piece dress of black and white checks worn by Mrs. Alton C. White is made of a cotton and arnel blend that resists wrinkling, washes and dries quickly. Dress has its own matching beret (not shown) which tucks into an easy corner of your luggage.

Gold colored sheath dress and jacket ensemble, also to be shown, is in a new fabric: washable shantung, woven of a mixture of pima cotton and cupioni rayon. It too is wrinkle-resistant, and requires only a light pressing.

Jacket may be removed when traveler arrives at her destination, and the simple sheath underneath may be dressed up with beads, to go on to an informal evening event.

Brazil's First Lady To Get Cancer Award

The first International Cancer Cytology award will be presented to the First Lady of Brazil, Senora Sarah Kubitschek, wife of President Juscelino Kubitschek, on April 20th by the Pan American Cancer Cytology Society.

Dr. J. Ernest Ayre director of the Miami Cancer Institute, and president of the PACCS, is awarding this honor in recognition of Senora Kubitschek's leadership in cancer education and for sponsoring the new Cancer Prevention Center for women in Brazil.

The presentation dinner will be held during President Eisenhower's designated Pan American week, at the Fontainbleau Hotel. Among guests will be members of the US Department of State, the Bureau of Inter-American Affairs, the Diplomatic Corps and other dignitaries.

Serving on the committee for the Award Ball are Mrs. Claude Pepper, Mrs. Drexel Rutherford, Mrs. Albert Clark, Mrs. Paul Bromberg and Jane Fisher. They met to make plans at the Miami Beach home of Phoebe Morse.

Make Use Of Tears

They are advised that if their complexions become blotchy, they should lotion themselves with warm lime-blossom tea each morning and evening. If their hands have a tendency to turn red, they should be bathed in salt water twice a week.

Tears resulting from the cold should be massaged into the skin in order to prevent dryness and cracking.

Just Fold Up Your Sailboat And Tuck It Away in Garage!

By MARY GOODFELLOW
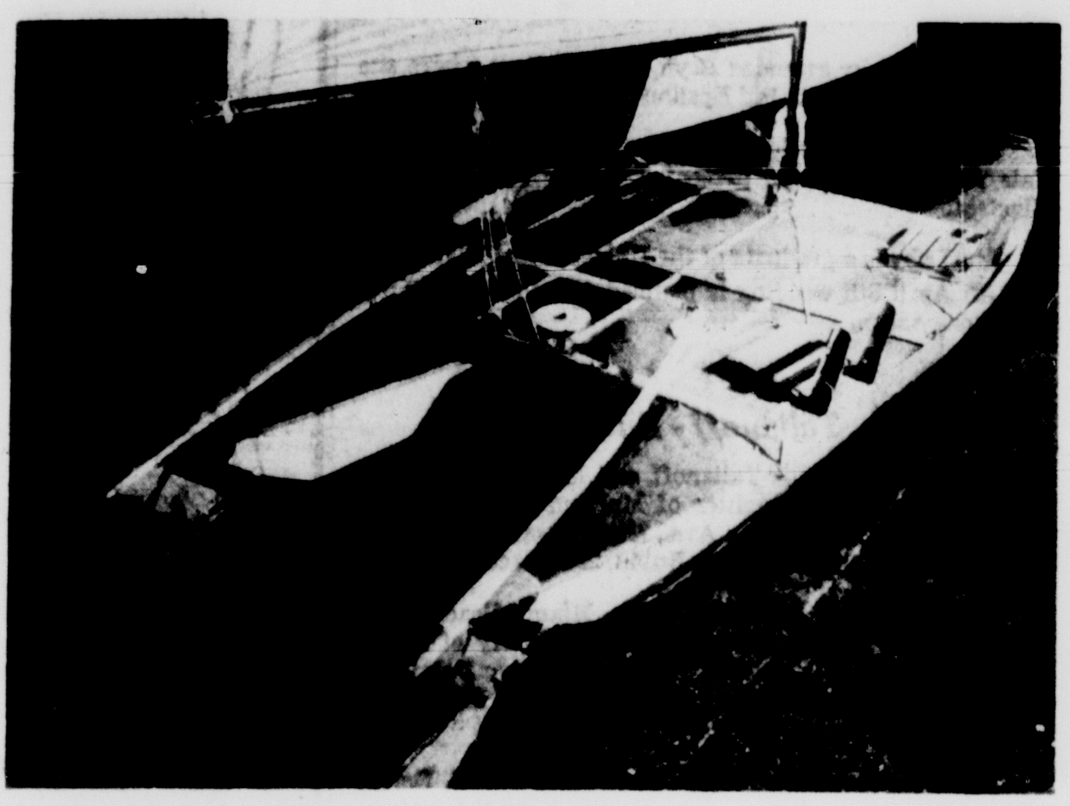
Herald Columnist

NEW YORK — This year's Boat Show turned out to be too big for the huge Coliseum. With an hourly attendance of more than 4,000 (for the 10-day period) and considering our crushed ego and trampled feet, we figured all of America had taken to the water.

With a waiting list of some 200 firms, it's no wonder that British engineer and inventor Nicholas Straussler couldn't show his collapsible 16-foot "Waverider" Catamaran (dual-hull sailboat) and had to take to suburbia for sales of his do-it-yourself model.

We met this short, plump, pleasing man at his Waldorf suite, where he showed us a cardboard model of his plywood boat ($700).

There were no problems of dry dock, for this ingenious craft folds neatly into any corner of your family garage.



Do-It-Yourself Catamaran
... 16-foot collapsible model

After some persuasion modest blonde - moustached Straussler told us about his amphibious Sherman tanks which helped win the battle of Britain. About 3,000 of these landed on the beaches of Normandy, and the inventor showed us citations from General Eisenhower and most of our top brass at that time.

Hungarian born, but a British subject for 52 years, inventor Straussler has also designed the "Lypsoid" (Dayton Rubber Company) tire, which moves smoothly through sticky mud and thick sand, and a fascinating collapsible four-seater vehicle which you can carry on your plane, and upon landing take off through the countryside at 50 m.p.h.

Bobby Larsen, son of Time exec., Roy Larsen, just back from the English boat show tells us that four Limey syndicates are thinking of building "12s" (better be better than the "Scepter") to challenge once again for the America's Cup. However, there seems to be a lack of good marine designers. What about our Catamaran friend — Nicholas Straussler?

Chic Gathering To Plan Ball

BUZZING-THE-TOWN . . . The crowned heads of society gathered once more to discuss plans for the "April in Paris Ball" (April 10) without a doubt considered the ball of balls . . . Claude "income tax" Philippe staged a terribly chic cocktail party at the Waldorf, where us peasants could gaze upon Chairmen, Duchess of Windsor, Mrs. Winston Guest and Elsa Maxwell . . . Commissioner Richard C. Patterson Jr., banker Mary Roebling, Mrs. Clarke Williams, John Ringling North, the French Consul General Raymond Laporte, Coty's Jean Despres were there.

Elsa said that the $50 jump in the usual $100 per person price of admission, was because after you dance all night at the April in Paris Ball, Charles Boyer, Claudette Colbert, Walter Slezak, and Jayne Meadows will cook your breakfast . . . Sunny side up!

Please Read Rules For Wedding Stories

Monday noon is the deadline for engagement and wedding stories to be used in the Sunday paper. Information must be in The Herald women's department by MONDAY NOON.

Engagement announcements are printed in SUNDAY papers only. Stories of weddings that take place on Saturday are printed in the Sunday paper.

For weddings that take place during the week, the stories will be printed the day after the wedding, whenever possible. Deadline for these stories is noon of the day preceding the wedding.

We publish only those weddings for which we receive information and picture before the wedding.

We ask prospective brides to decide whether they wish their engagement or wedding picture published. We print only one picture — whichever you prefer — but will use both engagement and wedding stories.

Learn How to Survive

Individual Survival Training classes, sponsored by Dade County Council of Parent-Teacher Associations, will be held at nine schools throughout Dade county starting Feb. 24.

Mrs. Bandel

Each 1st course — a series of lectures and demonstrations showing medical emergency measures — consists of three sessions, two hours each. Courses all start at 8 p.m. and are held on the same night each week for three weeks including the starting date.

Dr. Julian Rickles, civil defense chairman for Dade County Medical Association, is assigning volunteer physicians to teach the classes. Opening lecture in many of the courses will be given by Dr. Banning G. Larry, surgeon.

Students will learn how to deal with chest injuries, give artificial respiration, treat hemorrhages, fractures, apply splints and bandages, etc.

Mrs. Louis Bandel, PTA council civil defense chairman, is coordinating the program of nine courses. All courses are free and open to the public.

Following are the starting dates and locations for the courses:

APRIL 7 — Homestead Junior High, 650 NW 2nd ave., Homestead.

HONOR PIONEERS

Miami Pioneers will reminisce about "the good old days" at a 3 p.m. Valentine party today given by the Miami Pioneer Descendants in the clubhouse, 250 NW North River Dr. Philip Albury is the president and Mrs. Charles Morgan is program chairman.

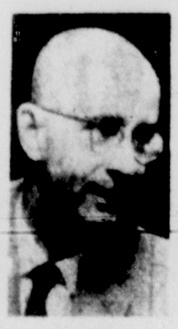
Women's Rally Topic: Can Religion Keep Peace

The first mass interfaith religious rally for women to be held here is slated for 1 p.m. Wednesday at Temple Israel of Greater Miami, 137 NE 19th St.

A joint effort of the Sisterhood of the host temple and the United Church Women, the rally will feature a discussion of "How Can Our Religion Help Us To Preserve World Peace?" by a panel of outstanding local spokesmen for Judaism and Christianity.

W. K. Williams



Stewart Austin

Seymour Samet

Joseph Narot

Members of the panel will be:

William K. Williams, executive director of the Dade County Council on Community Relations and also of the Florida Council on Human Relations.

Seymour Samet, Southeast Area director of the American Jewish Committee.

Dr. Joseph Narot, spiritual leader of Temple Israel, president of the Greater Miami Rabbinical Association.

The panel will discuss six formal questions and then hear others from the women. Among the questions are:

Is the Pope's call for an ecumenical conference a step toward world peace?

Do religions of the world have enough in common to promote world peace or are their differences too divided.

Mrs. Jack Krause is general chairman for the rally, with Mrs. Parks C. Hunter, president of the United Church Women, working with her.

The rally is open to any interested women.

BURDINE'S

A Sniff of Snuff—Wow!

WASHINGTON, D.C.
DEAR HERALD READERS:

You never know what to expect in Washington society . . . The other day I went to Sen Lyndon Johnson's office for luncheon and ended up taking snuff.

Don't think the Majority Leader of the Senate was passing out snuff. He doesn't need it . . . He can sniff which way the wind's blowing without even inhaling.

But after the luncheon in his Capitol office honoring the new Mexican Ambassador and Senora de Carrillo Flores, he and his wife, Ladybird, took their guests on a tour of the empty Senate Chamber.

Ladybird pointed out historical items like Daniel Webster's desk, now used by Sen. Styles Bridges, and Jefferson Davis' desk, traditionally used by the senior senator from Mississippi — now Senator Stennis.

Then she indicated the little box of snuff sitting on a wall ledge. Nobody has used the snuff since the late Sen. Cotton Ed Smith of South Carolina, she said, but a fresh supply is put in weekly.

The Ambassador took a pinch of it, and of course your correspondent's curiosity got the best of her. Two little grains of snuff no bigger than sand and I felt I'd inhaled the whole west wind!

The Ambassador, an occasional visitor at the Snuffers Club in Mexico City, said the trick was not to sneeze. But he said it too late. 'Snuff said.

Sen. Ellender
. . . wears headband

Before leaving the Senate floor yours truly tried the Vice President's chair just for size, and I know now why he doesn't preside very much.

The leather seat is so slippery he has a choice of ending up under the desk, which might look strange, or leaving it entirely.

* * *

THE LOUISIANA Mardi-Gras in Washington is the one big formal party of the year where senators let their hair down.

You should have seen how solons of the Upper House cut capers in outlandish costumes in front of photographers, their identity protected by masks.

Senators Barry Goldwater (Ariz.), Estes Kefauver (Tenn.), Bill Proxmire (Wis.) and Russell Long (La.) were in the masked krewe of 40 or more who cavorted, twirled and sat on the floor.

And there was dignified Sen. Allen Ellender (La.) in white tie and tails with a string of beads around his bean, the tassel hanging down the middle of his forehead. Courtly Senators Spessard Holland (Fla.) and Strom Thurmond (S.C.) were similarly adorned.

The time was 5 p.m. and trim, blonde Joan Bencivenga, who had spent the morning at the track and the afternoon in a beauty parlor, was getting edgy.

Glamor Clinic

No, this 25-year-old mother had not been betting the horses, but she had been riding them . . . since the first rosy fingers of dawn splintered the gray sky above the green and white Calumet Stable Barns at Hialeah Race Course.

For Joan is one of approximately two dozen young women in the United States with a most unusual job—race track exercise girl.

"Married to a nice boy," he continues, referring to black-haired Tony who also gallops horses for Calumet. "They have a healthy boy, nice little family."

* * *

THAT HEALTHY BOY 8-month-old Michael, will grow up to be a jockey if Mama has her say-so. "His legs are short," she says hopefully, and he's already been in the saddle, in a special harness at a local pony ring.

Joan, daughter of a Maryland steeple-chase rider, has been riding since she was three. An accomplished rider for the last 10 years, she has shown ponies and horses, once owned a champion cross-bred pony in Maryland.

"It's hard work," she says of her job which she learned from a woman trainer, Mrs. George A. Saportas in Maryland. "And the stable is careful about the horses I ride."

But accidents do happen. Joan cracked her pelvis in a fall when she was five months pregnant. "The baby was born seven weeks early, breech birth, but he was fine."

An Exercise Girl at Hialeah Race Course, She Gallops Calumet Horses

Joan and Tony work every day. During a typical morning at the track, she handles three horses—gallops them, cools them off by wetting them down and covering with a blanket, then walks them in the ring.

When the Hialeah track closes, the Bencivengas will adjourn to Gulfstream, then to tracks in New Jersey, Chicago, back to New Jersey in the fall and South Florida in the winter.

The work is the same . . . only the seasons and locales differ.

* * *

AFTER WORK at 11 A.M., she and her husband usually rush home to their apartment in West Hialeah to relieve the baby-sitter. But for two afternoons one week, Joan changed her schedule.

THE FIRST AFTERNOON, she spent three hours getting a blitz course in how to walk, stand and sit, what to wear and make-up at a North Miami modeling school.

THE SECOND AFTERNOON, she had her hair styled by a North Miami coiffure artist. Both sessions were arranged by the Miami Herald Glamor Clinic.

Now every woman knows how the right hair style can transform her, but what can anyone learn at a modeling school in one afternoon?

Well, if you're as trim-figured and supple as Joan, you soak up short-cuts to charm almost as fast as a thoroughbred streaking across the finish line.

FASHION-WISE, Joan is the tailored type. But even though she does a man's job, she can still look feminine.

(Lucky girl, she never has to exercise . . . just roller skates for fun in between riding jobs.)

* * *

"I BELIEVE Joan's greatest benefit from her blitz charm course came from her realization of the importance of correct walking," the instructor said.

"She is knock-kneed, and admits her knees always rubbed together as she walked," the instructor continued. "But she can achieve a long, graceful glide just by keeping her foot on a straight line, with the body erect over the foot on which the weight is resting, then swinging the back leg and foot forward, cutting in a little at the heel of the front foot."

"I never did anything like this before," Joan said, as she took a studied step, carefully pointing her toes slightly inward.

"My husband will think I'm crazy if I walk like this at home," she laughed.

"But you should walk like this at home, and always," the instructor admonished. "Wear your heels when you practice," she added, glancing askance at Joan's canvas sneakers.

"Ever see a cowboy getting off a bronc buster? That's my wife in heels," husband Tony chuckled later, as only a fond husband can chuckle.

...in Two Easy Lessons

In the make-up department, Joan Bencivenga was concerned about the tiny lines forming around her mouth and eyes — inevitable for the woman who spends time in the outdoors.

Joan
. . . as she was

Always wear a protective cream make-up base, the instructor advised, for the skin you neglect at 25 has to struggle for a comeback later on.

Joan's biggest make-up problem centers around the eyes . . . the downward sweep of mushrooming, pale, thick brows and protruding bones underneath.

She gritted her teeth when her brows were plucked ("I tried once and it hurt, so I quit").

The hairstylist tinted her pale lashes, which proved surprisingly long once they had been darkened. (They'll grow out in six to eight weeks).

To reduce the bulge above the eyes, brown eye shadow was applied. A little blue shadow in the center of the eyelid dramatized the depth of already very blue eyes.

Glamor Clinic

Joan's coiffure is an American Sweetheart adaptation for an all-American gal. (The Empire is on its way out, my dear).

This style has softness and flair, with waves covering too-prominent ears and teasing bangs to flatter a high, prominent forehead," the stylist explained.

Naturally, he made short work of Joan's pony tail. But although her hair is short, it still has a full look.

Nor did the stylist forget color . . . he added a rinse to bring out natural blonde highlights that were there all the time.

* * *

What did her husband say?

"Looks nice," he said softly.

Joan crinkled her mouth in a typical "Yes, dear" smile, and said firmly, "Let's get home. I've got to feed the baby."

We Were There . . . . . . At Pre-School Day

TALL THIN MOMMAS had a rare time trying to sit on the benches their pre-school age children use in the day schools sponsored by the Miami Beach Recreation Department. This was back-to-pre-school-day, when mothers go through the children's activities to learn what their boys and girls do in 'school.'

CRAYON DRAWING is a favorite pastime of children in pre-school. So the mothers had to do likewise. Here a mother draws a red heart for a Valentine.

—Herald Staff Photos by Ray Fisher

WORKING PUZZLES, where you fit the pieces into a wooden frame, is another activity. Mrs. William O'Sullivan and Mrs. Henry Dreyfus help each other on a puzzle. After games the mothers discussed the pre-school program, held in several Miami Beach parks. These pictures were taken at the Polo Park school.

Who Gets the Tip in Beauty Parlor When Three People Work on My Hair?

DEAR MISS VANDERBILT:

Where I have my hair done, there are three people who help me — a part-time operator shampoos, the owner sets it and combs it out, and a relative of the owner does little extras like taking out pins and just making one comfortable. Whom should I tip and how much? —

O.M.B., Detroit, Mich."

Amy Vanderbilt

In small shops where the owner is one of the operators, it used to be that one did not tip him, but I find that more and more it is getting to be accepted that even an owner-operator be tipped.

A quarter should be about right for the shampoo girl, but the other "floating" assistant doesn't really require a tip.

The operator who sets your hair gets 10 to 15 per cent of the bill, or sometimes more, depending upon the shop. If he also happens to wash your hair, this is taken into consideration on the tip.

What Should I Tip Beauty Shop Maid?

DEAR MISS VANDERBILT:

What do you tip a maid in a beauty shop who does no more than hand you a gown and hang up your coat? —

W. N., Toledo, Ohio

Ten cents is about average, but in some very fancy shops it might be as much as a quarter, and should be if any additional service is performed, such as the sewing on of a button or the serving of coffee and so forth.

Are You Taking Advantage Of Your Bank's Services?

By MARY MILLER
Budget Consultant
Mercantile National Bank of Miami Beach

Money Clinic

Do you know how to use your bank?

Do you know when you should have a personal (sometimes called special) checking account; when you should have a regular checking account; how you should use a savings account?

"With a regular checking account, you keep your balance up to a set minimum figure. This entitles you to many free transactions, the receipt of monthly statements, and the use of the bank as a credit reference," says Bess Tamres of Mercantile National Bank of Miami Beach.

"But suppose you don't feel that you can keep that minimum balance. Then you open a personal checking account. You buy a book of 20 checks for $2.00, pay 50 cents a month service fee, and don't worry about your balance."

On the other hand, Miss Tamres points out, some people use a personal checking account when they should be using a regular one.

There are even some depositors with personal checking account balances high enough to entitle them to the benefits of a regular account. They are passing up the advantages they could get for free.

There are also depositors keeping money at interest in a savings account, and at the same time running a personal checking account because they do not maintain a high enough balance for a regular one. If you are one of these, do some figuring.

It may turn out to be better for you to change from a personal to a regular checking account, even if you have to transfer some of your savings to your checking account. The money you would lose in interest may be less than you are paying out in fees for the special account.

Gamey Dinners . . . for the Huntsman

Oyster Shucker Is Jack Simmons, Past President of Rod and Reel

. . . he also made clam chowder, well known with friends, for game feast

By JEANNE VOLTZ
Herald Homemaking Editor

Some local wives are lucky if they ever see game bagged by huntsmen husbands, much the less get a bite of it.

Two men's clubs make a grand occasion of eating game shortly after the end of the Florida hunting season. Every mouthful of game is contributed by members. And the dinners are strictly stag.

First of this year's post-season game feasts was in the Miami Club, lunch spot in the Columbus Hotel for prominent men in town.

Between 250 and 300 pounds of game contributed by 23 members was dished up to around 140 members at this, the seventh annual game feed. It was assorted, from quail and dove to venison and antelope.

Though smaller (about 75 guests, and only for lack of more game), the Rod and Reel Club feast is older.

Rudy Adams, race car designer, enthusiastic hunter and Rod and Reel member, originated the dinners. He figures this is about the 15th. Rudy still was chief bird baster and contributor of game for last Tuesday's dinner.

But six other members added game to the pot, including Miami Police Chief Walter E. Headley's wild boar from North Carolina. John D. (Jack) Simmons made his clam chowder, other members aided with arrangements and pot tending.

Meat and fowl for both dinners is accumulated in freezers until hunting season ends—and appetites for game are enormous.

"They really eat on game night," said Bill Pederson, Miami Club captain. This is the only buffet of the year in the club. Hardy game fanciers may reload plates two or three times, though they diet on Spartan chopped steak and salad without dressing tomorrow.

The antelope was from Alaska, contribution of D. Earl Wilson. Some of the partridge and pheasant were from William D. Pawley's farm in Virginia, some venison from New York state.

Four turkeys, quail, duck, dove, goose, more partridge and venison were bagged in Florida.

Both marinate first. Salvatore likes salt, pepper and white vinegar, Rudy peannut oil and burgundy for his wild boar. Both think a tart jelly and wild rice are called for with wild game.

And both cook game at the last minute—no do-ahead cookery here.

ON ROD AND REEL MENU

Carolina Wild Boar

The Carolina boar is descendant of true Russian boar brought to North Carolina a half century ago by English sportsmen. The sportsmen's club died, time and weather sapped the strength of fences.

Now boar roam mountains in North Carolina and Tennessee. They run around 250 pounds each. Rudy cooked a 20 or 30 pound roast last week, but pared his recipe down to a five-pound roast.

Everglades pig was served, too — a small one roasted with bread stuffing. There were duck and dove, prepared by Rudy as always.

Everglades Pig Served at Rod and Reel

. . . roasted and served with red apple in its mouth

Jack Simmons' clam chowder and a fruit bowl in ice were new this year. The chowder is New England style—no tomatoes.

Roast Carolina Wild Boar

1	5-pound Carolina wild boar roast
	Salt, pepper
	Peanut oil
	Burgundy wine
	Minced onion, carrot, parsley, celery, thyme, bay leaves, tarragon, garlic, sage, green pepper
6	bruised juniper berries
2	cups Burgundy wine
4	onions
6	to 8 whole cloves
½	cup chopped celery tops with leaves
¼	cup chopped carrots
2	cloves garlic
2	bay leaves
½	teaspoon thyme
½	teaspoon sage
6	chicken livers

Sprinkle boar roast on all sides with salt and pepper. Mix three parts peanut oil to one part burgundy for marinade. In bottom of bowl just large enough for meat place a bed of minced onions, carrots, parsley, celery, a pinch or two of thyme, a bay leaf or two, tarragon, garlic, sage and chopped green pepper. Add juniper berries. Place meat on vegetables, pour in marinade to almost cover.

Rudy Adams

Cover and let stand in a cool place. Turn every hour and spoon vegetable mixture over meat. Remove meat and wipe dry.

Place in roasting pan. Add 2 cups wine, 4 onions stuck with cloves, celery tops, carrots, garlic, bay leaves, thyme and sage. Roast in a hot oven (450 degrees) 30 minutes, reduce heat to 325 degrees and roast 1½ hours longer or until done. Baste often while roasting.

Remove meat to warm platter. Add finely chopped chicken livers, bring to a quick boil, remove from heat, then bring to a quick boil again. Season, if needed, with salt and papper. Serve with roast.

Jack Simmons' Clam Chowder

4	potatoes
1	onion
2	ounces salt pork
1	quart milk or half cream and half milk
6	large clams, chopped
	Salt, pepper
4	tablespoons butter (or more to taste)
	Dry parsley flakes

Dice potatoes and onion. Boil potatoes in a small amount of water until half done. Dice salt pork and cook over moderate heat to render fat, until pork is almost done. Saute onion in pork fat until tender but not browned. Discard fat.

Heat milk or half and half. Add clams, salt pork, onion and drained potatoes. Salt and pepper to taste. Simmer for 10 minutes or until potatoes are done. Do not boil. Float butter on top and spinkle with parsley flakes. Add crackers or hard tack. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Founders' Day for 7 PTAs

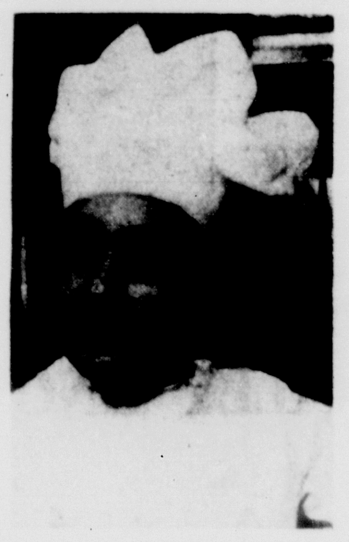
Oyster and Wild Rice Stuffing Go With Game at Miami Club Dinner

Chef Salvatore Frosceno has these words on game cookery:

"You look at the game to see if it's tough. If it's young enough roast it fast in an open pan. If it looks old and tough, moist cook it.

"Lard wild game with a larding needle. Game doesn't have enough fat to keep it tender." (By this method a slim needle stuffs salt pork or suet into and through meat or bird. A home substitute is a thin, sharp - pointed knife.)

"Use a meat tenderizer in the marinade for game if it has been in the freezer longer than two months.



Salvatore

"Game can be roasted sealed in foil, but remember to use a higher roasting temperature. I find in foil cooking the juices keep the bird moist and you don't have to worry too much about basting or larding."

But most of the game for the Miami Club dinner was roasted in an open pan and basted.

Two wine bottles were handy—dry white for birds, red for venison and antelope. Wine was dashed in from time to time. Meat or fowl not getting tender was covered with foil and finished the moist heat way.

Game needs few, but carefully chosen, side dishes, thinks Salvatore. His oyster and wild rice stuffing and hearts of palm are as annual as the game dinners.

Oyster and Wild Rice Stuffing

¾	cup butter
1½	cups cooked wild rice (about 3 ounces uncooked)
½	cup chopped onion
1	pound mushrooms, chopped
2	cups diced celery
	Salt, pepper
½	teaspoon marjoram
	Pinch sage
	Pinch thyme
3	cups chicken bouillon or stock
1	dozen oysters

To prepare wild rice place in colander and wash thoroughly. Drain and place in pan. Fill with boiling water 1 inch over top of rice. Let stand until water cools. Drain and repeat this twice, adding ½ teaspoon salt to the last boiling water.

Melt butter in saucepan. Add wild rice, onions, mushrooms, celery, salt and pepper to taste, marjoram, sage and thyme. Saute until onions are lightly browned, stirring to prevent sticking. Mix in bouillon. Bring to a boil and simmer until stuffing has absorbed liquid and rice kernels have swelled. If more liquid is needed add red burgundy wine or liquid from poached oysters.

Simmer oysters in their own juice until edges curl, chop and add to wild rice mixture. Sauteed livers and gizzards also may be used, if desired. Use as stuffing for game or serve with game. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Braised Mallard Duck

1	Mallard duck
	Salt, pepper, monosodium glutamate
	Wild rice or other stuffing
	Chicken stock
3	slices onion
¼	teaspoon thyme

Clean duck thoroughly. Season neck and body cavities with salt, pepper and monosodium glutamate. Stuff duck with wild rice or bread and apple stuffing seasoned with nutmeg. Tie or skewer openings to close.

Place in roaster with a cover. Add chicken stock to a depth of 1 inch. Add onion and thyme. Cover roaster and cook in a slow oven (300 to 325 degrees) about 1½ hours. Remove cover and cook 30 minutes longer to brown bird, basting often with drippings. Use only enough stock to prevent burning.

Hearts of Palm Salad

⅓	cup olive oil
3	tablespoons tarragon vinegar
1½	teaspoons dry mustard
1	teaspoon salt
	Freshly ground pepper
1	1-pound can hearts of palm
5	cups broken mixed greens

Combine olive oil, vinegar, mustard, salt and pepper. Slice hearts of palm crosswise ½ inch thick. Add to mixed greens. Add dressing and toss to coat greens and palm hearts. Serve at once. Makes 6 servings.

Tips for Cooking At Sea

Cooking Afloat by Kathrene Pinkerton (Barrows, $3.50)

Experience as mistress of the galley was Kathrene Pinkerton's groundwork for this book.

Over a period of several years and cruises, from short weekends to months at sea, she learned to make galley cooking appetizing and easy. And she learned how to arrange and provide a galley.

These tips she passes on like labeling cans with waterproof tape in case labels become loosened.

A novice galley cook has to remember not to fill pans full. Even on a glassy smooth sea, wash from a passing boat can tip hot foods out of a too-full pan.

Mrs. Pinkerton lists canned or dry foods which can substitute for fresh. Many of her recipes show how to use them.

She gives canned lentil soup home-galley flavor with beef extract and a tin of deviled ham. Recipes for sauces or gravies are important to giving a new flavor to ship provision canned meats.

Fish and seafood, mainstay fresh foods when far from markets, get generous attention. Mrs. Pinkerton adjusts recipes to use fish of different areas — like Cioppino, a rich seafood stew. East coast or west coast crabs can be used.

And make meals hearty, advises Mrs. Pinkerton.

"If adults' appetites increase in arithmetic progression, children's increase in a geometric one. The amount of food a child who has been swimming, water skiing, rowing and fishing all day can wolf down is simply unbelievable."

Except for outsize appetites, Mrs. Pinkerton's ideas apply elsewhere—to apartment dwellers cooking in minute size kitchens, to campers and hunters.

For and about WOMEN

Sunday, February 15, 1959 Page 25-E

From the new jewel in her tiara, the Royal Poinciana Playhouse, to her sparkling necklace, Worth Avenue, with its pendant gem, the exclusive Everglades Club, and her conservative jewel box, the Society of the Four Arts, Palm Beach presents an aura of quiet wealth on Florida's Gold Coast.

Uniformed chauffeurs stand beside their cars or on the sidewalks, many giving the family poodle an airing. White-uniformed maids walk other high-born members of the canine world, while their employers, in casual cottons and linens, stroll about shopping.

At the Society of the Four Arts, where tea is tea and no foolishness about it, dowagers, suitably hatted and gloved, chat with Marion Sims Wyeth, president of the Four Arts and Russell Plimpton, director of the Society, and admire the exhibits.

Right now they are seeing an exhibit of fabulous antique English silver. This silver, from some of the great houses in England was sent over by the National Trust of England just for this showing.

The Playhouse and adjoining Celebrity restaurant are the epitome of beauty and luxury and the social set in Palm Beach support both wholeheartedly. In the remodeled Everglades Club, the accent is on privacy and informality for its millionaire members.

Yes . . . Palm Beach is a high-born lady . . . but with a twinkle in her eye.

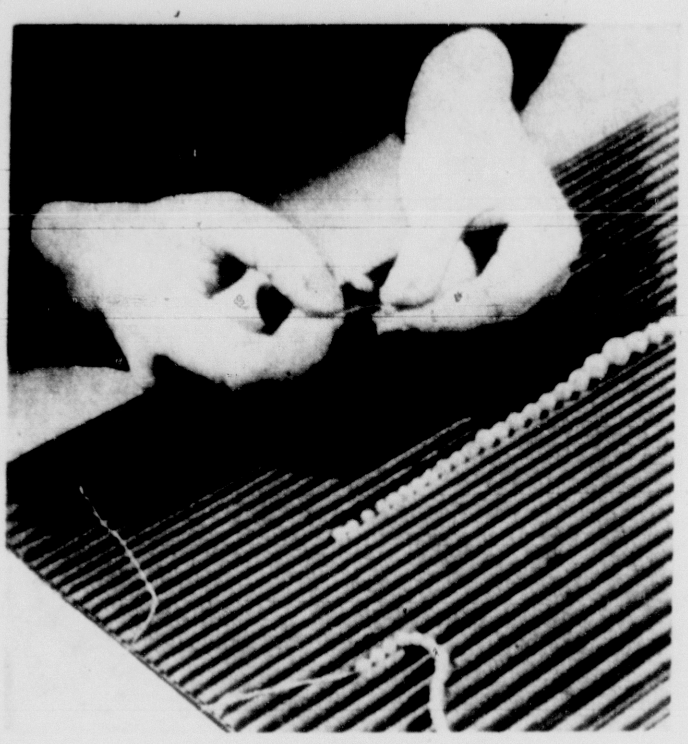
Your Beads Need Re-Stringing?



Bead Stringing Aid

. . . uses corrugated paper

By JEAN WARDLOW

Herald Staff Writer

Here are some pearls of wisdom in case you're losing a fine necklace bead by bead.

When stringing beads, arrange them first in the small grooves of corrugated cardboard. The beads then can be picked up individually and the string inserted.

Grow Parsley

EVER WANT your own garden? Well, not anything pretentious, say, just about three inches of garden. Oh, yes. Is possible. You grow it in a sponge.

It's Mrs. P.O.A.'s suggestion. The Vero Beach reader says she grows her own parsley on her kitchen window sill. Thought you might like to do the same.

"It will never get as big as the parsley you buy in stores, but it tastes like parsley and it's absolutely fresh . . . Place a clean sponge in a small planting dish and dampen with water. Pour parsley seeds into the sponge crevices. Keep sponge damp and the seeds will sprout.

Cooking Hint

A DELICATE little housekeeper named United Press International sends along a couple of handy-to-knows:

Use a moist cotton swab to clean crevices of etched punch bowls, glasses and dishes.

We're sure Mrs. UPI makes a fine passel of slaw, but we'd also like to pass along a recipe of Mrs. J.R. of Key West: to chopped or shredded cabbage add chopped celery, chopped pickles and a little pickle juice along with the mayonnaise dressing.

Wanted: New Dish

"Our church frequently has covered dish suppers and it gets to be a problem knowing what to plan. There are always potato salad and baked beans.

"But I'd like to be able to volunteer for something different, something unusual yet won't be too outlandish for everyone's appetite. I don't mind a lot of 'fixing'. Just want something different. Can the readers help?"

Bet they can. Lots of clubs in South Florida have the covered dish luncheon or supper as an entertainment stand-by. 'Member now. Not "outlandish." No chocolate covered ants.

This is a Sunday, Tuesday and Friday column for the Florida homemaker. Hints, questions and answers may be mailed with full name and address to Readers' Exchange, The Miami Herald, Miami, 30. The Herald is not responsible for the safety or efficiency of methods recommended by our readers.

Ask God To Guide You

DEAR ELEANOR HART:

In regard to Caroline who is considering divorcing her husband who was hopelessly injured in a plane accident and for whom there appears to be no recovery—I wouldn't pretend to have the wisdom to tell you what to do, for the answer must come from within your heart.

But I will tell you a truth so simple that few can believe it, but I'm sure, in your state, you will be willing to try it.

No one understands fully the torment you must have suffered, no one, that is, except God. So why not ask Him to help you arrive at the right decision? That's all you have to say. He knows your plight and may have been waiting for you to entrust Him with your problem.

Don't say, why don't you help me? Just ask Him once to guide your decision and He will make your decision the best for all concerned. But you must know that He will.

Don't be afraid. Myself and others I know will include you in our prayers.

BONNIE

Thank you, Bonnie, for thinking of Caroline. And I am sure other readers will join you in your thoughts.

* * *

To Love Again Her Real Duty

DEAR ELEANOR HART:

Caroline is to be commended for taking her marriage vows seriously, for vows are made in good faith, and are not to be abandoned lightly.

However, our God is a loving and forgiving one, who knows that we mortals are fallible, not a stern and exacting one.

One of the heroes of the Bible vowed to sacrifice the first living thing he saw upon his return from wars and this turned out to be his daughter. God does not desire human sacrifice and never expected the man to keep such a foolish vow, but he did.

In a sense, Caroline, tied to a man who is actually dead though still existing, is doing the same thing. For she is laying on the altar of duty, the sacrifice of all the happiness and love she could bring some man, thereby enriching many lives, including those of her children.

At the time that Christ came, the people adhered so strictly to the law that had been handed down to them [illegible] they were without mercy. It was up to Christ to teach them that healing disease was more important than keeping the Sabbath and that loving God and your neighbor is more important than keeping all of the ten commandments.

Love is more important than a vow made long ago when circumstances were different, and learning to love again will entail as many obligations and difficult adjustments for Caroline, who has had one unhappy experience, as remaining true to a vow.

D.E.S.

BRING YOUR HEART or meet a new heart at the YACS (Young Adult Club Spouseless) Valentine ball tonight at the Fireman's Hall, 2980 NW South River Dr. Time is 8 p.m. and you're invited if you're single, 18 to 35 years in age. This non-denominational group is also planning an American Heritage party on Feb. 22 at 8 p.m. at Vasa Hall, 3802 NE Second Ave.

Bookfellows Will Hear Historian

Dr. Rembert W. Patrick, member of the University of Florida's history department and author of several books on Florida and Southern history, will speak at the 7 p.m. Thursday dinner meeting of the Miami Bookfellows in the Miami Springs Villas.

Dr. R. W. Patrick

Dr. Patrick's topic is "The South in the Building of the Nation." He has delivered the Young Lectures in Southern History at Memphis State University and will deliver the Fleming Lectures at Louisiana State University in March.

He is active in state and regional historical and literary societies and is the Julien C. Yonge graduate research professor of history at the UF and faculty associate of the P. K. Yonge Library of Florida History.

Dr. Patrick will be introduced by Dr. Charlton W. Tebeau, head of the University of Miami's history department and author of "Florida's Last Frontier," a history of Collier county.

Dr. Ronald Wilson, pastor of Westminster Presbyterian Church, will give the invocation and the 45 member concert chorus of Miami Senior High School will sing songs of southern states.

Mrs. F. Kyle Ebersole is in charge of the party.

Train Dog, Then Child

NEW YORK — (UPI) — Children's behavior won't go to the dogs if mom first learns to discipline Fido.

"Training dogs helps train children. I'd hate to admit I was a poor mother before I started this business, but I know I'm a better mother now," said Mrs. Marcmann.

"After seeing that I could give a dog a command and get immediate results, I realized how lax my discipline was with my children.

"Now I try the same techniques on the youngsters, and it works. It's a real insult in our house to say, 'you're not minding as well as the dogs today,'" she said.

Strange Laws Of the Land

But Pennsylvania law doesn't allow a wife or girl friend to go out in a boat with a fishing husband or boy friend unless she, too, buys a fishing license.

He's the Favorite of the Stable Boys

By REGRET
Herald Staff Writer

Winners' Circle

ASK ANY STABLE BOY at Hialeah. First Landing is not only the all-time record money winning juvenile, but he's also one of the best behaved horses in the stables. A real pet, he loves sugar and attention and would probably be a lap-dog if he had his way.

Although their pet doesn't curl up at their feet by the fire, the owners of First Landing Mr. and Mrs. Christopher T. Chenery of New York and The Meadow, Doswell, Va., couldn't be much more pleased with him. A favorite for the Flamingo Stakes Feb. 28, as well as the Triple Crown races, he was ridden Wednesday by Eddie Arcaro, imported for the two-year-old from California, finishing second. Mr. Chenery is a member of The Jockey Club in New York.

His Writing Comes First

PENMANSHIP and horsemanship are paired again in Adm. Gene Markey's life. He's putting the finishing touches on a new book in his and Mrs. Markey's Bal Harbour apartment but won't even hint about what's between its covers. He admits to getting up at 7:30 a.m. to spend the morning on it so he can while away the afternoon in their Hialeah box.

The Admiral's most recent book was an historical novel about Kentucky in Civil War times. Titled "Kentucky Pride," it furnished a name for one of the Calumet Farm crack colts who's a favorite four-year-old contender this year at Hialeah.

Who Chooses What Jockey

With 1,500 thoroughbreds stabled at Hialeah (plus all those stabled elsewhere who arrive daily by van), 40 days of racing, nine races per day with from 8 to 15 horses in each race (more than 100 horses running each day) and some 40 jockeys this might become a problem in the higher mathematics.

But the answer isn't found by rolling 40 marbles across a perforated board and seeing what holes they fall into. Like everything else at Hialeah there is a system for jockey assignment well-calculated to operate without hitches.

First, there's the condition book put out every ten days by racing secretary Charles McLennan. It describes the races to be run during the next quarter of the meeting — for maiden two-year-old colts and geldings, claiming race for four-year-olds and upward, etc. On the basis of this condition book the trainers cast an eye over their four-legged proteges and decide which races they have eligibles for.

Then they pick the jockeys. Some stables have jockeys under contract, jockeys who ride every entry that stable has. Sometimes a stable has a jockey on "first call," meaning they can have him if they need him for a given race but if they don't another stable can hire him.

Jockeys, like actors, have agents (at ten per cent) and the rest of the time trainers do business with the agents. It's something like a director casting his play.

For a big traditional race, or when a horse is a particularly good one, jockeys can be hired months ahead of time. Often final assignments are made the afternoon before a race, which is the deadline.

Thus leading jockeys like Robert Ussery can average six mounts a day (he also averages just over one win a day, plus a second and a third) while lesser riders have considerably fewer. And no ouija board is required.

An Island To Themselves

DISTINGUISHED MEMBERS of the Virginia horsey set (which is distinctly separate from the Kentucky horsey set) Mr. and Mrs. Melville Church of Warrenton, Va., were at Hialeah for a few days before flying to the Bahamas.

Their hosts, also Warrenton residents, are the Russell Arundels whom the Churches joined in Palm Beach to fly to Grand Cay, a solitary island opposite Cape Canaveral which Mr. Arundel owns. Nobody lives there but a handful of Bahamian natives and the Arundels, they in their handsome stone house which Mr. Arundel built.

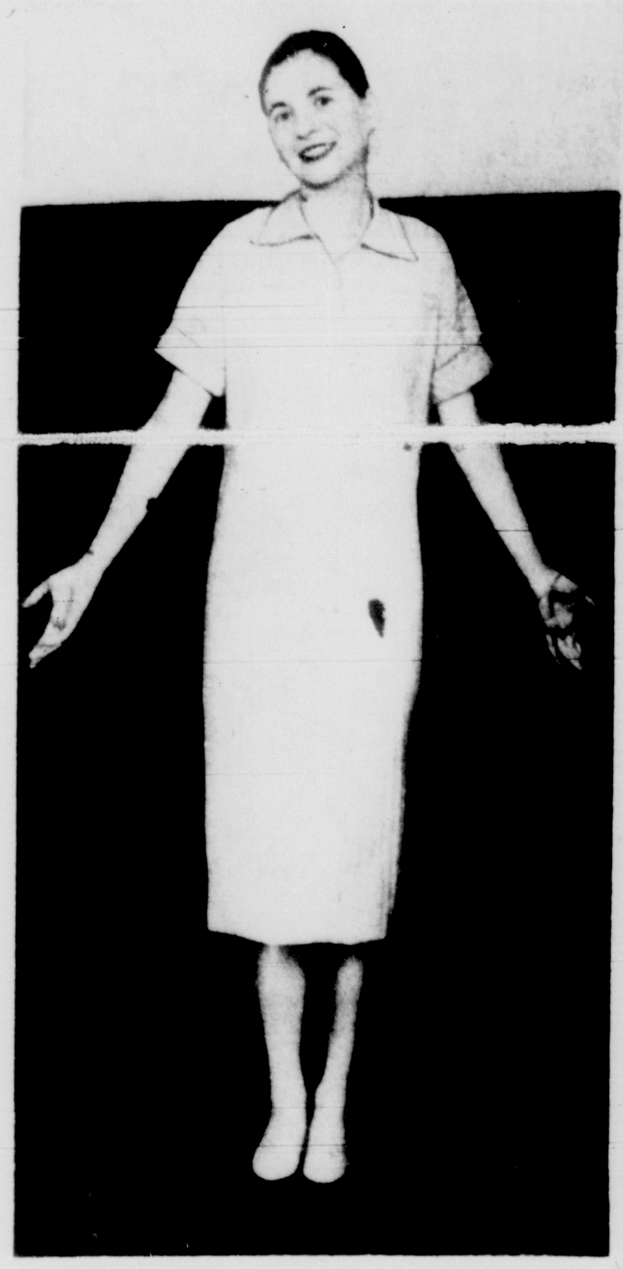
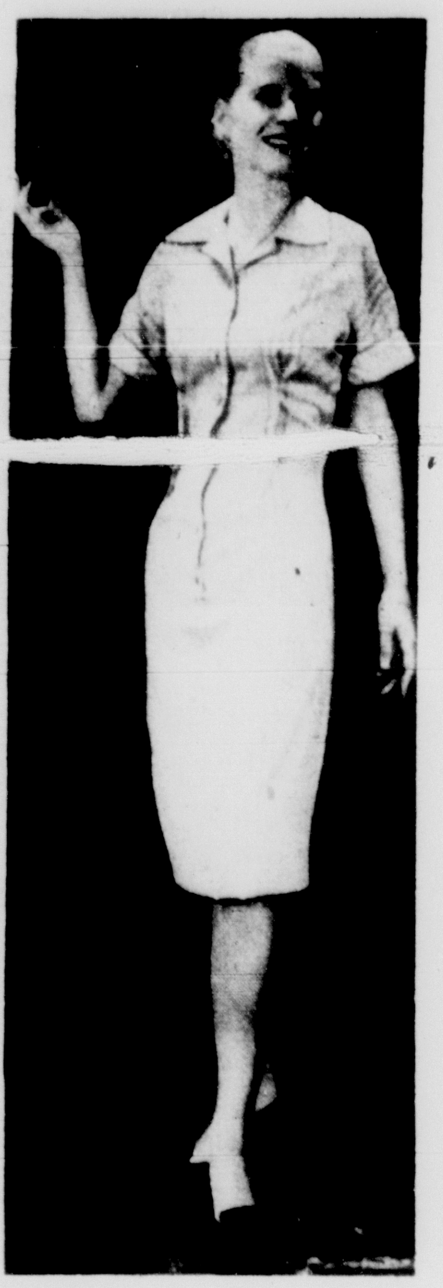
Stuck With a Sack Dress?



Last Year Chemise that she "just had to have" hasn't worn out but it has gone out of style. What to do?



This Year Pinned darts show how it can be transformed into a sheath.

By BEVERLEY WILSON
Herald Fashion Editor

"What shall I do with last year's chemise dress" is a wail we hear all over town.

Fashions Around Town

Many of the younger set are solving the dilemma quite simply: they're still wearing them, as any visit to a local junior or senior high school, and even a college campus, will attest.

"I can't afford to throw my school dresses away, but my sacks are beginning to look so baggy" is a common complaint.

Others are more imaginative. They've discovered that if their chemise is of the straight up and down variety with no detailing it's relatively simple to turn them into a smooth fitting sheath.

As almost everyone has learned to her sorrow, this can rarely be done simply by belting the chemise, as the silhouette attained is likely to be a balloon seat and tummy.

But it can be done by molding in the waistline at the sides, front and back with a series of long vertical darts. Unless the dress buttons down the front, it will also be necessary to add a side zipper.

If you're not handy with a needle, most good dressmakers can take your chemise in hand for modest cost.

And how much neater you'll look!

Music by U.S. Composers To Be Featured by Clubs

Two local music clubs are observing the National Federation of Music Clubs' American music month by presenting programs by American composers.

Coral Gables Music Club will use proceeds from its two programs for music scholarships.

Both programs are on Tuesday and open to the public—one at 2:30 p.m. in the Ewing Gallery, 362 Minorca Ave. and one at 4 p.m. in the Musicians Club of America, 303 Minorca Ave.

The 3 p.m. concert will feature compositions of Gershwin, Caesar La Monaca, Kappa Vanderhost and Leila Hall. The 4 p.m. program includes the work of Miami composers Mana-Zucca and Olive Dungan.

* * *

SOUTH MIAMI Music Club's Parade of American Music Program will be devoted to the compositions of Mana-Zucca and will be held Thursday afternoon in Mana-Zucca's home, 410 NE 17th St. Participating artists will be Estelle Pappas, John Keston, Barnett Rifkin, the club's choral group and Mme. Mana-Zucca.

Stored Meat Won't Last Forever

URBANA — Just because you neatly package meats and store them in the meat compartment of the refrigerator, don't think that you can leave them there until you feel like using them.

Unless you freeze meat, Geraldine Acker, University of Illinois foods specialist, suggests that you observe the following limits in holding fresh or processed meats in home refrigerators at 36 degrees to 38 degrees Fahrenheit.

BEEF. Standing rib roast, 5 to 8 days; round steak, 3 to 5 days; hamburger, 2 days; sliced liver, 2 to 3 days.

PORK. Loin chops, roasts and fresh pork sausage links, 3 days.

POULTRY. Turkey or chicken, 2 days.

LAMB. Loin chops and roasts, 5 to 6 days; leg or breast roasts, 6 to 7 days.

VEAL. Loin chops and roasts, 5 to 6 days; sweetbreads, 2 to 3 days.

CURED MEATS. Sliced bacon and sliced or half-ham, 7 days; whole picnic, 10 days.

TABLE-READY MEATS. Franks, bologna, luncheon meats, baked loaves and uncut Braunschweiger liver sausage, 4 to 6 days; uncut sausage (dry or semi-dry), 2 to 3 days.

Nassau's Glitter Set Meets Prime Minister's Daughter

By MARGOT SANBORN
Herald Columnist

NASSAU — Every recognizable name in the glitter set gathered for the cocktail party at Germaine and Bennett Macgregors' elegant town house overlooking all of Nassau and the harbor, to meet Mr. and Mrs. Julian Faber of London, England. She's the daughter of England's Prime Minister Harold Macmillan. The Fabers are holidaying at Government House.

Beauteous titian haired Peggy Shelton and Talbot Shelton of Bethlehem., Pa., (he's an attorney, financier and on the board of Bethlehem Steel), also were honor guests.

His Excellency the Governor Sir Raynor Arthur and gracious Lady A. were there. In their entourage were Major and Lady Oldfield, and beautiful, dark-tressed Patricia Ainley whose late father Henry Ainley was the Barrymore of the London stage. Pat just completed a wonderful season as personal manager to John Guilgud. Also in the Governor's party were Capt. Patrick Cobbold A.D.C. to the Governor and Allison Thorburn.

Nola and Bill Hawthorne (she's the ex of Yehudi Menuhin) gave a charming dinner for them at their ocean front home "Sea Cliffs," then took their guests to the swank Bahamian Club to find the place jumping.

We spotted the Sam Pecks who are here on their yacht Skylark II. She's the former Barbara Whitney, Sonny Whitney's sister and cousin of Lady Baillie, with bon vivant George Stinchfield of Palm Beach and Nantucket.

The Duke and Duchess of Sutherland were at a very gay table. Charlie Freeman, former owner of the Royal Victoria, had a special gleam in his eye for Deidre Weir (the former [illegible] Carlisle).

Nightlife with George Bourke

Winchell, First Police-Fire Benefit Emcee, to Pilot the 10th

WALTER WINCHELL, who was master of ceremonies for the first all-star show of the Miami Beach Police and Firemen's Benevolent Association in 1949, has agreed to repeat the chore for the 10th annual event at Miami Beach Exhibition Hall next Sunday. The American Guild of Variety Artists has sanctioned the appearance of any of the stars under its jurisdiction who may be in the area at the time. Deputy Fire Chief Hubert Albritton and Detective George Green are co-chairmen — they predict this benefit will be the "biggest and best of them all."

Proceeds are used to supplement the Police and Firemen's Death Benefit Fund for widows and children and to finance the association's juvenile aid and other charities.

If you are wondering what to get George Washington or the man who has everything—for his birthday give a thought to the "Fasten Your Seat Belts" flasher sign which Cypress Gardens' Dick Pope has in in his sports car. Dale Evans Rogers saw it recently and ordered one for Roy's car.

Fifi D'Orsay to Be Props Guest

THE PROPS, an organization of present and past ladies of the theater interested in setting up a Planned Retirement of People in Showbusiness organization, will have Fifi D'Orsay as guest of honor at the Props Corner of the Thunderbird Motel on Tuesday. Fifi, though a veteran of 30 years in show business, is not retired — she's featured currently in the Newcomers of 1928 revue at the Deauville.

It's just business — not treachery. Dennis Weaver, who plays Chester to Jim Arness's Matt Dillon in "Gunsmoke," has joined forces with Hugh O'Brian, who plays "Wyatt Earp." But it's in a real life real estate deal. They are partnered with Carolyn Jones, Aaron Spelling, and others in ownership of Whispering Waters Motel in Palm Springs, Calif.

Who's worried about American interests in Cuba? Not John L. Loeb. He bought 17,000 more shares of Cuban Atlantic Sugar. He now owns or has in direct trusts nearly 175,000 shares.

Harry Hershfield, one of the nation's most famous cartoonists and humorists, will be toastmaster of the Combined Jewish Appeal Celebrity Ball at the Fontainebleau Hotel on Saturday night . . . Tee hee! Debbie Reynolds was luckier than Elizabeth Taylor when they counted the cards in Photoplay Magazine's Gold Medal Award poll. That's why she'll be on hand in Photoplay's award TV show tonight. What's that saying about lucky at cards again?

Amusements

Pro-Elvis Mail Still Heavy

THERE IS EVIDENCE of a "Lest We Forget" campaign to keep the memory of Elvis Presley alive while he does his Army stint. The postcards and letters are coming in in a volume that would make you think we were giving something away. "Please print a good picture [illegible] that reflects his new mature look but we'll try to get one. In the interim, how about one of Tommy Sands?

Did you know that Fidel Castro smokes the same brand of cigars as Winston Churchill? Monte Cristos. Incidentally, the Monte Cristo club which is playing the top jazz stars is in Palm Beach—not Fort Lauderdale . . . Ted Lewis may do a short engagement at the Palm Beach Towers next month . . . Singer Fran Warren will film a TV series to be called "Night Club Girl" in Puerto Rico as soon as she completes a date at New York's International club . . .

Hialeah Jockey Harlan Dalton is making his mark in the singing business — with four "sides" on the Mark label . . . Otto Preminger is making a mystery movie called "Bunny Lake Is Missing." So does anyone remember when Baby Lake, Lou Walters showgirl at the Carillon, was "missing?" Actually she wasn't missing, she was right here in Miami Beach.

Joyce Nizzari, who is a cover girl (plus some eye-catching double truck inserts as well!) herself, calls attention to actress Claire Kelly's picture on "Expose Detective." Joyce is quite a detective herself — she spotted the picture in spite of switch in tress colors . . . Localite [illegible] be Girl of the Week on the Dave Garroway show sometime this month . . .

George Green . . . a show

Fifi D'Orsay . . . a Prop

Winter League Games on TV?

MAX COOPER, Chicago publicist who was with Pete de Met in his televised bowling and golf series, has purchased the rights to videotape games of the Cuban Baseball League next winter, with Al Helfer doing the commentary. Rights will be syndicated in this country for delayed presentation. Idea seems sound since his would be a week-day attraction which stations could show at almost any hour.

Carillon musicians should be rolling in dough with transcription money! It has been announced that Tom Kay has set up a "recording studio" on the hotel premises and will soon begin cutting discs for commercial release, directly from the Club Siam stage. Musicians Union requires fees for such recordings — in advance! Darryl Stewart singing "Waltzing Matilda" is announced as first side to be etched.

Milton Berle gets the "Person to Person" treatment on April 3 . . . Gig Young has been awarded the Silver Leaf Award by the Philadelphia Mask and Wiggers for his comedy in "Teacher's Pet." . . . And Sammy Davis, Jr., is Man of the Year, according to Mnookin-Brown Post, American Legion, in Kansas City . . . Did you know that you can still eat out of dishes with D-T—for Dupont-Tarleton at the Dupont-Plaza Hotel?

Tough Actor Widmark Was Once Teacher

KIM NOVAK weeps when the critics are cruel . . . Roz Russell capsuled the glory of a click: "Pride, prestige and cold cash" . . . Katharine Hepburn's self-portrait: "I resemble a female antelope" . . . Viewers are still tch-tching about the way Dagmar flirted with Edward R. Murrow via his "Person-to-Person" program . . . You'd never suspect from seeing him mangle men on the screen that Richard Widmark was once a college prof . . . Carol Grace of "Cold Wind and the Warm" was married (and [illegible] William [illegible] "When I'm not married to Bill," she sighs, "I'm not married to anybody." (He has her talking like he writes!)

★ ★ ★

"LES BALLET AFRICAINS" (the import from France) opened in Boston where critics rewarded it with money-in-the-bank notices. "Fascinating," "exciting," "bold and barbaric," "ugly and depraved" . . . Talk about cannibalism. The New Yorker's drama critic panned critics . . . One of the movie mags would have you believe Joan Crawford scrubs her own kitchen floor. (O. shoor) . . . Have an illusion-shatterer: Blondolls Marilyn Monroe, Brigitte Bardot, Lana Turner and Judy Holliday are strictly from peroxide . . . F. Sinatra styled his singing by echoing the smooth sounds of Tommy Dorsey's trombone . . . It's never easy, folks. Barbara Stanwyck made nine screen tests and nothing happened until the 10th which won her a contract . . . What is now considered scandal-fodder becomes history when it is put in a book. St. John Ervine's biog of Bernard Shaw discloses that Mrs. Shaw "had a morbid horror of sexual relations."

THE ORCHID GARDEN: The act called "The Guys and Two Dolls." Usually seen at smart club dates . . . Earl Grant's Decca of "Evening Rain" . . . "The Mistress" at the Guild Theater. The critics gave it fine reviews . . . Richard D. Zanuck's production of "Compulsion." Darryl's son is a chip off the old blockbuster . . . Bobby Short's wailin' at the Weylin . . . Morgana King's album, "Let Me Love You" . . . Dorothy Donegan's jazzle-dazzle at the Embers.

KATHRYN MURRAY'S series in the Satevepost, "My Husband, Arthur Murray," pulls no punches. Even tells how she attempted suicide in 1930 jumping from a window and injuring her spine. Because she felt she had no part in his life. Now she's the star . . . Remember Herta Thiele, star of the German silent film, "Maedchen In Uniform?" She lives in Switzerland: Works as a movie theater cashier and doubles as waitress in a coffee shop. The Reds offered her a theater bearing her name in East Germany, but she turned it down. Strongly anti-Nazi, too . . . Molly Bee's real name is Molly Beachboard . . . The Wm. Morris office has discovered Diane Ladd . . . Roberta Lee drops her six-year retirement to join Ben Blue's show.

History reflects the contradictions of the people who make it. Fidel Castro is a graphic example . . . Only a month ago he was a liberator who personified all the fundamental concepts of freedom — and now the massacres of his firing squads have made him the object of bitter criticism . . . As always, it is easier to win the war than the peace. There is a tremendous difference between fighting for a principle and making a reality of that concept. But, unfortunately, the new Cuban leaders appear to have confused revenge with justice.

Castro seems to have made a ghastly blunder. He has forgotten what he fought for. In a tragic way, the Conqueror Batista has become his imitator.

CAST OF CHARACTERS: Debonair Duke of Windsor, who buys an expensive face cosmetic for his feet . . . The new Rockandroll group named the Rock-Fellers . . . Herman Fisher, who for 34 of his 68 years has been a waiter at Roseland . . . Marlon Brando, who often used the name Lord Graystroke when checking into a hotel. It is Tarzan's real name in the book by Edgar Rice Burroughs . . . Efram Zimbalist, Jr., the star, who mothers a golden gibbon ape as a house pet . . . Jazz singer Beverly Kenney, who is a private eye between bookings . . . Vivian Cook, leggy brunette beaut in the Johnny Mathis-Copa show, was a theater owner last year, The Aurora in Baltimore.

Fete to Feature Miami Girl Composer

An unusual work for instruments, voices and dancers by a 16-year-old Miami girl will be one of the highlights at the annual Jewish Music Festival scheduled for 8:15 p.m. next Sunday, Feb. 22, in Temple Israel auditorium, 137 NE 19th St.

Diane

The program, part of a nation-wide annual celebration of Jewish Music Week, is being presented under the auspices of the Greater Miami Jewish Community Center with the cooperation of the Cantors Association.

The award-winning work is a musical-dramatic setting of the poem "My Garden" by the Hebrew writer Bialik. It will be performed by five dancers, harp, flute, hand drum, tambourine, and soprano and tenor voices.

The dance group is directed by Olga Suarez, who heads the Spanish dance department at Miami Conservatory. Dancers are Joyce Eisenger, Sandy Vincent, Rosita Gottlieb, Marcia Simon and Elaine Krasner.

The instrumental group, directed by Robert Strassburg, includes Adele Wright, harp, Rochelle Draizar, flute, Judith Drucker, soprano and William Royal, tenor. Miss Deutsch will handle the percussion.

Bernice Schwartz, cellist, will be featured in a performance of Bruch's "Kol Nidre," in addition to her own arrangements of several Israeli folk songs. Her accompanist will be Marten Godwin.

Cantors Samuel Gomberg of Temple Ner Tamid and Charles Kodner of Temple Beth Am, will make solo appearances. The Cantors Choir directed by Cantor David Conviser of Temple Beth Sholom will also perform. Mrs. Frances Berliner-Berstling will sing Israeli folk songs to her own accordion accompaniments.

An innovation this year will be the participation in the festival of the 45-voice Children's Choir of the Hebrew Academy, directed by Mrs. Jack Donnerstag.

Narration will be by Cantor Israel Reich of Temple Emanu-El. Mrs. Milton Sirkin is festival chairman this year.

Party for Judy Tonight

MAYBE PEOPLE are more sophisticated in Miami Beach than in other cities. At any rate, Jayne Mansfield didn't have her clothes torn off when she appeared at the opening of the Montmartre Friday night . . . Contrasts: Sober George Meany, CIO-AFL boss, dining at the next table to "Sneezing Billy" Gilbert (of the Deauville's Newcomers of 1928) at Nick and Arthur's.

'Right on My Windshield'

Mattress on Actress' Car Almost Put Her to Sleep

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. —(AP)— Sabina Bethman, German actress co-starring with Sir Laurence Olivier and Kirk Douglas in "Spartacus," had a frightening experience her first day on the Hollywood Freeway.

"The studio gave me an American car to drive," she recounts. "I had never driven a car with all those pushbuttons before so I stayed in the slow lane of the Freeway.

"I followed very slow behind a moving van when some mattresses fell out. Two or three of them fell in front of the car and one landed right on my windshield and wouldn't fall off.

"I just held on the steering wheel even though I couldn't see a thing. I was able to stop without hitting anything but the moving van went on. Maybe some family who reads this will know what happened to their mattresses and how I almost didn't get to make this picture."

Go Europe, Young Actor

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. —(AP)— Producer-impresario Dave Siegel thinks the best place for a young actor or actress to get discovered these days is not on a drugstore counter stool a la Lana Turner but in Europe.

"A star name often can be created more effectively overseas than on a local studio lot," says Siegel. He cites Brigitte Bardot who made the Top Ten boxoffice list without ever making an American-made film.

Danny Thomas Raps Over-Sensitive

Comic Going Back to Dialects

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Staff Writer

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. — Audiences have become too thin-skinned for comedian Danny Thomas who says dialect jokes are a forgotten art, thanks to over-sensitive groups and individuals.

"From now on I'm going to use as much dialect material as possible in my guest appearances," Danny vowed. "I can't use dialect stuff on my own show because it doesn't fit in.

"I'll do Yiddish, Greek, Arabic, Negro, Italian and Irish vernaculars, and to heck with the squawks.

"Dialect jokes are the best weapons available to fight prejudice. People who complain about dialect bits cause more bigotry than they prevent. After all, everybody in this country belongs to some kind of minority group."

"Those songs glorify a great and colorful era in American history. It's abominable that they have been altered," he said.

"When I was 11 years old I took a job as candy butcher in a Toledo, O., theater. During the seven years I worked there I saw the greatest dialecticians in show business. Whenever the audience was in an absolute uproar, laughing itself to death, you could bet 99 per cent of the time the comedian was doing dialects.

"There was no hatred nor hurt feelings. The people loved it.

Danny Thomas
. . . jokes fight bigotry

"And I'll tell you why. In those days you lived in neighborhoods where the butcher was usually German, the tailor Yiddish, the cop Irish and the fruit peddler Italian. Their native accents were a part of everyday life.

"Sure, they beefed and fought with one another, but they loved each other, too.

"Those people were proud of their backgrounds and old-country culture. Their laughter was genuine when they heard a visiting comic mimic their mannerisms and accents."

Danny's own beginnings in show business included dialects. But he gave them up in 1941 when he was advised that the road to stardom wasn't paved with imitations of other stars nor the accents of racial groups.

"One of these days I'm going to give a block party in my neighborhood in Beverly Hills," Danny went on. "Everyone will wear costumes representing their family origins.

"It would help us all get to know one-another better.

"Nobody has anything to be ashamed of regarding his national origins — and by golly I'm trying to prove it."

Week Brings Judy Garland and 'As You Like It'

Judy Garland
. . . Fontainebleau

By GEORGE BOURKE
Herald Amusement Editor

Judy Garland, Shakespeare's "As You Like It," a film lecture on "Israel Today" and a new comedy by Paul Crabtree are included in the varied fare due on the South Florida show scene in the week ahead.

In addition there will be appearances by opera star Robert Merrill, Sam Levenson and Harry Hershfield, veteran humorist and cartoonist.

Miss Garland comes to the Fontainebleau Hotel's La Ronde Room on Tuesday in what is believed to be her first in-person show here. She will give two shows nightly with Gordon Jenkins as her musical director.

Barry College will sponsor the appearance of the Canadian Players in "As You Like It" at Barry Auditorium on Saturday night. Curtain is at 8:15.

Denis Carey, who produced the show and who has served with the Old Vic company, Stratford-on-Avon in England and at the Stratford, Conn., Festival, says this is one of the best productions of Shake- [illegible]

Barry College will also be the scene of a student demonstration of the thespic arts at 8:15 tonight when the drama majors offer "The Plum Tree," a drama, and "The Pot Boiler," a satire, under the supervision of Sister Marie Carol, with Rosemary Schiraldi directing.

Palm Beachites will be given a chance of seeing themselves as a playwright sees them, starting on Monday night when Paul Crabtree's "Beachcombers" is unveiled at the Royal Poinciana Playhouse there.

The new play, in which Arthur Treacher and Fernanda Montel are featured, is rumored to contain prototypes of members of the resort's international colony. Treacher plays a millionaire who finds business is interfering with his sun-bathing.

Jack Manning
. . . Playhouse

"Beachcombers" will run nightly through Saturday with matinees on Wednesday and Saturday at 2:40. Miss Montel will double as headliner for the after-supper show in the Celebrity Room. Nancy Carroll, a one-time film star; Carleton Carpenter, hero of many MGM movies, Enid Markey and Lawrence Fletcher are in the cast.

Current events and entertainment are intertwined in "Israel Today," the film lecture which Cornelius Vanderbilt will present at the Miami Beach Auditorium on Wednesday and Thursday nights.

With film which was made in 16-mm color in association with Joseph Shane of California and Edgar A. Hirschbain, Israeli photographer, Vanderbilt's motion picture offers a new concept of what Israel's place is in the world today.

In his accompanying lecture he will explain what it should mean in the world of the years ahead. Included are interviews with Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion and Golda Meier.

On the theatrical scene, "Say Darling," the lively comedy about the création of a Broadway musical, will continue for its final week at the Coconut Grove Playhouse, with Jack Manning in the role originally intended for Dean Murphy. Almost 20 minutes has been scissored from the opening night running time and the result is a still funnier production.

Irene Manning
. . . 'King and I'

Another holdover is "The King and I," Rodgers and Hammerstein's lavish musical in which Irene Manning and William Chapman are co-featured at the Musicarnival in Palm Beach.

Humorist Harry Hershfield's appearance will be as toastmaster at the Combined Jewish Appeal Celebrity Ball at the Fontainebleau Hotel on Saturday night.

Among the other arrivals will be Robert Merrill, free tonight at the Deauville Hotel Cavalcade theater for the guests of Associated Hotels; Sam Levenson and Gogi Grant, due Friday at the Diplomat, and Marion Colby and the comedy team of Moonan and Farrell in the Lou Walters Revue at the Carillon Hotel on Wednesday.

Sing 'Mikado'? Try Auditions

Tryouts for both leads and chorus are scheduled for 8:30 p.m. Monday and the same time Saturday at Trinity Methodist church, 401 NE 1st Ave.

The performance will be given Sunday evening, April 27.

Contino Paying Debts

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. —(AP)— Dick Contino filed a bankruptcy petition in 1957 listing $51,983 in debts but he says he's going to withdraw it.

"I'm paying everybody off little by little," he says. "Maybe I'll have a big announcement to make before very long."

The handsome Italian has been working most of the time as a lounge act at Las Vegas' Flamingo Hotel.

"The hours are rough," he says, "but money is good."

Concert Tonight In North Miami

North Miami Concert Orchestra will play its fourth annual concert at 8:15 tonight in the North Miami Junior High School auditorium. Frank V. DiNino will conduct.

Soloist will be Susan Boguskу, lyric soprano. Also appearing will be the Miami Beach High School chorus under the direction of Aileen DiNino.

Violinist to Play At Music Club

Nana Schakert, Swiss-Russian violinist, will present a program at 4 p.m. Feb. 22 in Musicians Club, Coral Gables. She has performed with major orchestras in Europe.

Edith Lieberman will be at the piano.

Adult School Holds Art Show

The Dade County School Board of adult instruction is having a clothesline art exhibition from 1 to 5 p.m. at Coral Gables Youth Center.

It will feature ceramics, watercolors, copper enameling, oil painting, and children's work.

Carroll Baker Goes Brunette -- as Gypsy

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. — I am not sure I would have known Carroll Baker if I had met her on the street. From the blonde in "Giant" and "Babydoll," she has become as brunette as Hedy LaMarr or any of our other dark-haired beauties.

I must say it is becoming, and brings out the fairness of her skin.

"Why the dark hair?" I asked her.

"For the Gypsy sequences in 'The Miracle.' You see in the play these were just a dream, but in the motion picture they are true, and I join the Gypsy caravan," she said.

Carroll has her two babies and her husband, Jack Garfein, with her most of the time, but Jack had to go to New York, she said, to direct "Shadow of a Gun," on the stage.

The story of Carroll's husband is one of the most tragic I have ever heard. His mother, father and entire family were tortured and killed by the Nazis, but Carroll told me that it has given him a sensitivity and a sensible approach to all problems.

Unimportant things seem infinitesimal, and he accepts them as such. Their two children are named for his parents, Blanche for his mother, and Herschel for his father.

Carroll is a staunch advocate of the Lee Strasberg method of teaching and thinks the Actors' Studio is the greatest. It was there that she met her husband and both of them keep in close touch with this school which graduated such stars as Marlon Brando, Marilyn Monroe and James Dean.

"I can't tell you how kind Elia Kazan and George Stevens have been to Jack in helping him get started as a director. Of course, he had the ability, but everyone needs a helping hand," Carroll said.

She went on to say that Marilyn Monroe had been accepted in the school not because she was the famous motion picture actress, but because she met all the requirements.

"The Actors' Studio has the toughest audience in the world—the actors themselves," Carroll said, "and the pupils in the school are called upon to do stage plays. Believe me, IF you're not good, you can't make the grade.

"The school is kept up by subscriptions, and there is no fee, so they only take those who pass the most rigid tests."

Carroll won an Academy nomination for her performance in "Baby Doll" which was my unfavorite picture of all times. I very tactfully refrained from mentioning this picture.

She gave its director Elia Kazan great credit, and said she had been lucky because she had made only four motion pictures, and she had Elia Kazan and George Stevens for two of them.

Carroll comes from Pennsylvania, and I kidded her about being Pennsylvania-Dutch.

She laughed and said, "I'll say one thing for the Pennsylvania-Dutch — they certainly know how to cook. Have you ever eaten any of that food? It's so rich and heavy, and all those rich breads and pastries — they're guaranteed to tear the weight off you!"

None of Carroll's family was ever in the theater, and she started out as a dancer. She studied dancing on reaching 11, and went to New York to further her dancing career, but ended up on TV doing commercials.

It was while she was in school at the Actors' Studio that she won acclaim in the role of Robert Anderson's "All Summer Long." This established her as an actress and from then on her road led to "Giant," "Baby Doll," "The Big Country," and "The Miracle."

Carroll is a serious and dedicated actress. Since her marriage in 1955, the only time she hasn't been working was when she took time off to have her two children. She has a direct way of speaking with no affectation, and she has definite opinions but doesn't thrust her ideas on anyone else.

The $11,990 Roosevelt Model by Heritage Homes Has Three Bedrooms and a Duo-Bath

Heritage Homes

IT'S QUITE A SHOW going on today for the opening of new models by Heritage Homes in the Driftwood Acres community in West Hollywood. There will be a Legion band and drill and rodeo exhibitions, plus an electronic model home to answer all your questions.

Reibel-Shanbrun-Lazarus Corp. of Bay Harbor Islands has erected seven home designed by Charles Melov. They range from the $10,190 Madison with two bedrooms, one bath and screened porch, to the three-bedroom, two-bath Lee with screened pool.

All seven homes feature carport, Owens-Corning Fiberglas roof insulation, built-in Hotpoint electric range and oven or gas appliances, Formica or natural wood kitchen cabinets, ABC jalousie windows, American Standard plumbing fixtures, space heater and choice of colors in tiles and paints.

It's conventional financing with first and second mortgages that amortize fully in 24 years. Here's how it works on the $11,990 Roosevelt model shown in color. Down payment is $315 plus $310 for closing costs. Monthly payment of $87 pays the 6½ per cent $10,000 first mortgage and the 8 per cent $1,875 second mortgage. There is no penalty for prepayment.

Best route to the model homes is U.S. 441 to Taft Street (north of Hollywood Boulevard) and then west to beyond the Florida turnpike.

Palmetto Co[illegible] Club Estates

FAMOUS GOLF COURSES lend their names for the eight model homes offered in Palmetto Country Club Estates on U.S. 1 just north of Perrine in South Dade. The new community of 630 homes, keyed to a championship 18-hole golf course, is being developed by Porter-Wagor-Russell, Inc.

All the homes are available under the FHA program. Prices start at $13,800 for the three-bedroom, one-bath Pinehurst model. Aimed at the small family or retired couple is the $14,700 Cypress Point with two bedrooms, one bath, family room and carport. There are four homes with three bedrooms and two baths. Top priced is the $15,900 Meadowbrook which is pictured in color.

All eight homes offer built-in Westinghouse ranges and ovens with Nutone hood and fan, forced-air gas furnaces with thermostat, thermo-coated roof for increased insulation, tile baths with Crane fixtures. The electrical panel is equipped to take the heavy load of air conditioning if units are ever installed.

WITH GROUND broken in Fort Lauderdale for the state's first FHA-financed cooperative apartment, plans are being rushed for others in South [illegible]

It took almost two years of torturous hacking through a jungle of government paper work, but a $3 million FHA mortgage was finally evolved for the 184-unit Breakwater Towers in Fort Lauderdale's Harbor Beach section.

It didn't take long to sell those apartments because of the low down payments and 40-year financing provided under the FHA's Title 213 program. Gilbert Edwards, president of Investment Corp. of Florida which is the parent company, is applying for FHA commitments on two more high-rise cooperative apartments next door to Breakwater Towers.

* * *

Next in Miami

IT'S A pretty good bet that the next Title 213 cooperative in Florida will be built in the Point View section of Miami at SE 14th St. and South Bayshore Drive. Charles McKirahan, the Fort Lauderdale architect who designed Breakwater Towers, has been commissioned to develop a 13-story building with 150 units. The man behind the program is Paul Dennis of the DNB Corp. in New York.

He is a large-scale apartment house developer in New York City and he hopes to duplicate that work here in South Florida.

There used to be a three-floor limit on apartment houses, but the Miami city commission raised it to 13 last month. McKirahan says the cooperative will use only 16 per cent of the site. This will provide parking space for 150 cars and there will be room for a swimming pool if the owners ever want to chip in and install one. The FHA won't put a luxury item like that in the mortgage. Construction costs are estimated at $2.5 millions.

* * *

Bal Harbour?

NO WORD yet on what the FHA plans to do about that application for government financing of a high-rise rental apartment house on the ocean in Bal Harbour. The 350-unit Sunset Tower would cost $6 million.

Former FHA director Charles Spofford wouldn't process the mortgage application because he said Congress never intended the program to be used to finance luxury oceanfront apartments in a resort area.

The new director, John A. Grubbs, hasn't indicated how he will interpret the housing law.

Opposition to the project is building up in Bal Harbour. Representatives of the hotel industry, apartment house owners and residents came in to file protests last week with the town council. Only three of the five councilmen were on hand, so the matter was put off until the Feb. 28 meeting.

Bottoms Up!

THERE'S A MOVE underway to pump up a 350-acre island in the lower end of Biscayne Bay at the Dade-Monroe county line. J. Bruce Vining, a Miami real estate broker, is fronting for a mystery syndicate that wants to develop the property.

Feelers have gone out to the Florida Internal Improvement Board in Tallahassee because the bay bottom would have to be purchased from the state. The island would lie just north of the Keys' highway as it stretches from the mainland to Key Largo.

Vining said he will reveal the identity of his clients only if the state indicates it will accept a cash bid on the underwater acreage.

The broker says the price would probably be around $300 an acre. Development costs would run close to $5,000 an acre.

Speaking of mystery clients, it was announced two months ago that Charles Brand of Coral Gables had sold his 570 acres of Key Largo to a young Colombian named Miguel Ribero. The price was $750,000 cash. The story among real estate men today is that the heavy money for the purchase came from Carlos Prio Socarras, the former Cuban president who sat out the Batista regime in a Miami Beach penthouse.

Our Architects In the Limelight

OUR ARCHITECTS get a national salute this month from House & Home magazine. On the cover of the February issue is the Kenneth McClave home on Key Biscayne, designed by Robert Bradford Browne of Miami. The magazine devotes 11 pages to a lesson on making a house livable in hot weather. The McClave residence, with its magnificent eight feet of roof overhang, is used as an example of a protected breezeway. Also represented is work by Rufus Nims, Weed - Russell - Johnson, Pancoast-Ferendino-Skeels & Burnham, Edward Siebert, Walter Bigoney, William Rupp, James Kennedy, Kenneth Jacobson and Phillip Hiss.

It's Tailor Made To a Man's Taste

By KAY MURPHY
Herald Decorating Editor

Men are much maligned in the matter of taste. Most men have better taste than women give them credit for.

And when in doubt, they're more inclined to seek guidance—rather than waver on the brink of indecision.

Leo Belford, vice president of Belford Trucking Co., is a man who has a taste for simple elegance but he's also wise enough to know that it sometimes takes coordination to achieve this effect in the surroundings which spell home.

That's why he asked Constance George to decorate his two-bedroom apartment in Bay Harbor Islands at 1130 93rd St.

The furniture Mrs. George selected is "tailored" in its styling—as you might expect in an apartment occupied by a bachelor.

But even men with conservative wardrobe tastes are inclined to indulge themselves in colorful ties occasionally. Accessories are the "ties" in Belford's apartment.

These range from a Chinese figurine in lacquer red atop an ebony storage chest in the living room to two fanciful ceramic fish ashtrays in green and gold which rest on a rattan-framed coffee table in the Florida room.

Mrs. George has the problem of coordinating a three-in-one area. Dining room, living room and Florida room are areas within an area, rather than individual rooms, Repetition of color links the three together. She used neutrals in the background; beiges, browns and black. With lacquer red, gold and copper as accents.

To give the dining room more depth—it's the smallest area—one wall was covered with a wallpaper mural that has a Chinese motif.

To provide as much seating as possible in the living room, the longest wall backs up a curved sectional sofa—curved because this line is more graceful against a large expanse of wall.

Bachelor's Quarters Need Woman's Touch

NEW YORK — Bachelor's living quarters often lack more than the "woman's touch". They lack any touch at all. Bachelors are the only income group about whom such a generalization can be made.

Usually, lack of interest or knowledge is the basic cause—poor excuses for dull and colorless home surroundings.

If the bachelor is color-blind — and approximately 8 per cent of them are partially so—he should consult his female friends about color, or better still, a professional interior designer.

A. Dudley Kelly, well-known San Francisco decorator, recently did the apartment of a young man-about-town. From a dull beige-on-beige scheme that depressed all the young man's guests, and doubtlessly had a bad psychological effect on the young man, himself, Kelly turned it into a cheerful room that reflected the personality of the occupant.

Touches of golden-yellow were introduced in lamp shades, drapes, and small accessories such as ashtrays, framed prints, decorative pillows.

Hot Springs

Some of the hottest springs in the world are located in Iceland. In fact, says the National Geographic Magazine, the word "geyser" comes from the Icelandic.

Merritt Gets Terminal Job

Contract to build two truck terminal buildings at NW 75th St. and 25th Ave. has been awarded Robert M. Merritt, Inc. Cost is figured at $200,000.

R. J. Schneider is the architect. Electrical engineers are Brown-Seils and Associates. J. & M. Investment Co owns the property.

Going Up

NEW YORK —(UPI)— Expenditures for new construction is expected to rise 50 to 60 per cent in the next decade to a total of more than 600 billion dollars.

Never a Lack of Lacquer

The Chinese and Japanese have used lacquer for more than two thousand years. One of the earliest known records of the use of lacquer goes back to Imperial Japan many centuries ago, when the office of "Chief of Imperial Lacquer Department" was created.

The Outward Look For Urban Renewal

By EDWARD COWAN
United Press International

WASHINGTON — Does the federal slum clearance and urban rehabilitation program fall dangerously short in its preoccupation with downtown areas?

The question is one of several raised in a thoughtful essay entitled "The Challenge of Urban Renewal," published by the Urban Land Institute, a private organization based in Washington.

Its author is M. Carter McFarland, director of the federal housing agency's division of economics and program studies.

He says, in effect, that the federal slum clearance program probably is not broad enough "to accomplish the complex and many-sided job of renewing our cities."

He specifies that the program is deficient in at least two important respects. It tends to deal with downtown areas, ignoring the problem of rapidly proliferating suburbia. And it is too little concerned with renewal of non-residential areas which are run down and less economic than they need be.

"In the metropolitan age which is emerging it is difficult to isolate downtown problems and developments from those in the suburbs," McFarland said. "And, indeed, one set of forces is inter-related with the other.

"Suburban areas certainly do not have the widespread slums and blight which are found in the heart of most cities. However, urban renewal means blight [illegible]ations as well as elimination. It also means development and maintenance of sound, healthy communities. These things are as much needed in the suburbs as they are downtown."

Two barriers appear to impede the development of broad-scale urban renewal planning, McFarland said. One is that when Congress wrote the basic legislation authorizing federal slum clearance grants — the Housing Act of 1949 — it indicated an intent to use the authority only in direct support of slum clearance and redevelopment activities.

Hence, although there is in the law "sufficient authority for the assembly, planning and development of outlying open land," McFarland finds it has barely been exercised.

A second impediment to comprehensive metropolitan rehabilitation is "fractionalized governmental jurisdictions . . . in practically no situation which can be named does the jurisdiction of a single local government cover the metropolitan area of a major city."

The key parts of a comprehensive approach to urban renewal — land use control, water supply, sewage treatment and disposal, schools, transportation — must ultimately be dealt with in a unified way, not piecemeal, McFarland said.

A second deficiency in the federal program, he asserts, is the emphasis on slum clearance and residential redevelopment as distinguished from the elimination of commercial and industrial blight.

This is easy to understand, McFarland finds, for this reason: "Because of the human values involved, Congress has considered the improvement of housing conditions a proper and necessary function of the federal government. It has been reluctant to authorize federal programs to clear and rebuild cities, as cities."

But, the writer warned, "residential and non-residential blight are too closely inter-related and inter-dependent to be easily separated . . . blighted non-residential areas, if left untouched, may threaten the success of the residential urban renewal projects which are contiguous to them."

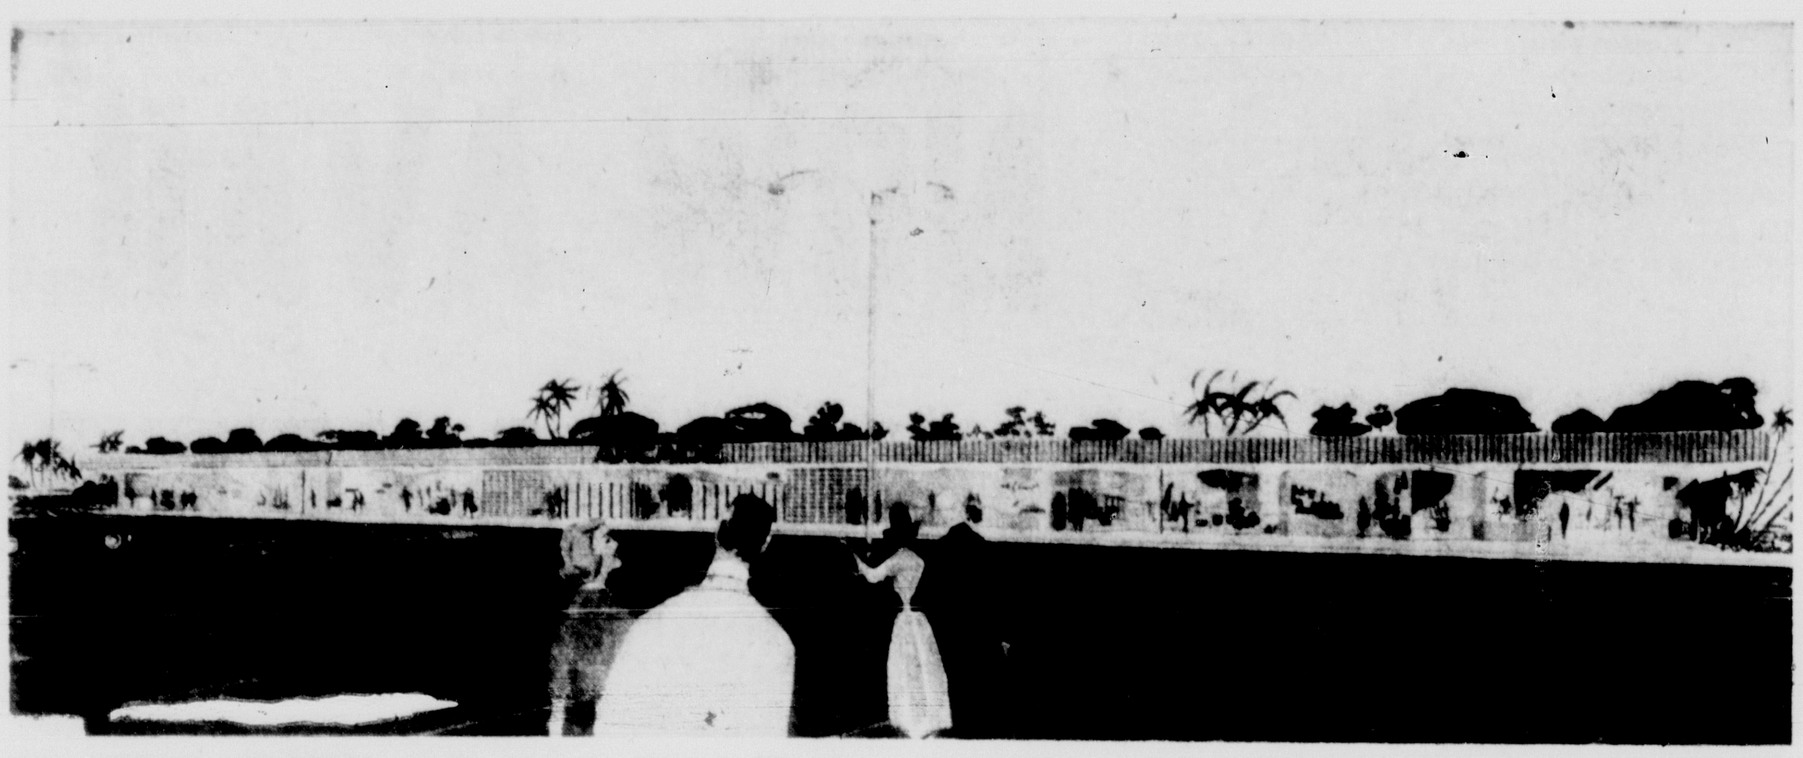
Look for New Gaslight Era

Families who "live" in their back yards during the summer may get still closer to that stage this year, say gas appliance manufacturers.

The manufacturers plan to offer a wider array of post-mounted gas lights for yard and patio, as well as for front lawn use. Also being readied for spring markets are a number of gas barbecue grills suitable for outdoor cooking.

Sole Note

NEW YORK — (UPI) — The United States Navy buys 87 per cent of all its shoes from New England manufacturers.



THE FIRST SECTION of the South Miami Heights Shopping Center has been completed by the developers, Martin and David Woolin. There are 18 stores and six offices in the center at SW 117th Ave. and Quail Roost Drive. Robert Brown engineered the building in modules of 1,000 square feet. There is parking for 400 cars. The Woolins have built 1,000 homes in the community which is designed for 5,000.

Aluminum Moves Into Housing

By HENRY J. BECHTOLD
By United Press International

NEW YORK — Aluminum will play an increasingly important role in the homeowner's future.

The use of aluminum for siding, roofing, and interior and exterior trim is growing steadily and will increase at an even faster pace in the years ahead, according to industry spokesmen.

Today the average new home has about 40 pounds of aluminum. One industry spokesman predicts the average house of the future will have 2,500 pounds of aluminum products.

In the meantime, the present homeowner is being offered myriad aluminum products for home improvement. Do-it-yourselfers are well acquainted with the virtues of aluminum screens and storm doors, but there are lesser known products made of the lightweight metal, including exterior nails, ducts, flashing, hardware, weather stripping electrical fixtures and even shower stalls.

Attention was pinpointed on aluminum at the recent national home improvement products show here where more than 80 per cent of the 300 exhibits were of aluminum products.

The home improvement industry last year consumed a record 300 million pounds of aluminum building products, an increase of about 40 million pounds over 1957.

Aluminum executives attribute the rapidly expanding use of lightweight metal for home improvement to the maintenance-free advantages of aluminum products; research and development which has resulted in new products and color finishes; and unprecedented promotional programs.

Meanwhile, new homes, like new cars, are adding more and more aluminum each year. Two of the nation's biggest aluminum producers, Aluminum Co. of America and Reynolds Metals Co., are spending huge sums to promote all-aluminum homes.

Such a home includes more than 30 aluminum products and is expected to result in savings to the home buyer of up to $6,000 in maintenance costs over a 30-year period. The industry also claims that the metal's thermal properties will cut heating and air conditioning costs substantially.

And not only the home buyer will benefit from aluminum, according to industry officials. "For the architect it opens up new possibilities of beauty and function in residential design; for builders it provides an opportunity to upgrade the quality of housing and offers a whole new merchandising approach, and for lenders it makes a better investment."

The response to aluminum homes in spot sales tests throughout the nation last year have prompted National Homes, the world's largest manufacturer of pre-fabricated homes, to come out with an aluminum line this year. And other manufacturers are working on developments to further extend aluminum usage in dwellings sold this year.

Do You Get The Picture?

When you hang pictures on papered walls, frame the pictures with wide mats and frames so that the pictures do not get lost in the wallpaper design. The Picture and Frame Institute advises choosing a mat that picks up one of the colors of the wallpaper and a frame that coincides with the styling of the wallpaper.

ADD DROP BLACK TO WHITE ENAMEL FOR FRENCH PROVINCIAL COLOR

WIPE GOLD PAINT WHILE WET

CLEAR SPRAY PROTECTS GOLD

Accent Carvings With Gold Paint

By HERMAN BAUM

(Readers with questions on the maintenance and repair of the home may receive answers by addressing The House Doctor in care of The Miami Herald. Please limit letters to one question and enclose stamped, self addressed envelope for reply.)

DEAR MR. BAUM:

I have some badly battered bedroom furniture that I want to redecorate. It is supposed to be some sort of French period design and so I was wondering about the possibility of painting it in a manner that is sometimes called French provincial. If you think this is not too much of a job for me, how is it done? Mrs. S. S. A.

ANSWER — This is just about the easiest furniture refinishing job imaginable. If you have ever used a paint brush with any degree of success, here is a way to really display your talent. If the old finish is smooth, sandpaper it down some and apply the new finish over it. If it is scratched and chipped, as most likely it will be, you should remove this finish with a chemical paint remover.

Follow directions on the label for the use of the remover. The only thing that we can add is to suggest that you use steel wool on rounded surfaces and in carvings and thoroughly wash away all traces of the remover after the varnish is off. Any remover left on the surface will keep the paint from drying.

You will need white gloss enamel undercoater, a small can of drop black color, a bottle of high quality gold paint and one of those spray cans of clear finish. A quart each of the enamel and undercoater should be enough for two or three pieces of bedroom furniture.

After the old finish is removed, sandpaper the wood thoroughly, starting with No. 0 garnet paper and finishing with No. 4-0. Fill any dents or chipped areas with wood putty and sandpaper these smooth when the putty has hardened. Wood putty is a powder that is mixed with water. Be sure that the surface is extremely smooth before you proceed to paint.

Thin about a teaspoonful of the drop black with a little turpentine. Add this gradually to the undercoater until it is the deisred color. Do the same thing with the enamel. The color should be a pale gray. Apply the undercoater to the furniture, brushing out all sags. Allow it to dry thoroughly so that when sanded, the paint comes off as a powder.

Now, sand it down with No. 4-0 garnet paper and brush off all dust. If the surface is not thoroughly covered, apply a second coat. The enamel is now applied in the same manner. The finish goes on smoother if you work in a warm room. Allow the enamel to dry for not less than two days.

The gold paint is used for highlighting carvings and molding. Select the areas that you want to use it on, apply the paint and then wipe it off before it dries. If you confine the gold to the edges of the furniture, you will have a better looking job than if you use it too enthusiastically.

Asphalt Has Its Faults

DEAR MR. BAUM:

The asphalt tile floor in my bathroom is badly discolored. Can I paint it with deck enamel? Mrs. A. M. B.

ANSWER — It is impossible to paint asphalt tile. See if a floor finisher can resurface the tile with a buffing machine.

How to Avoid A Crack-Up

J. M. C. — Your question concerns interior decorating, which we do not answer, having our hands full with the home repair problems.

C. W. H. — No concrete floor should crack up in six months — or six years, either. Of course, you should complain to the builder. Perhaps he has a conscience.

MRS. C. O. — Looks like you did get rid of those bugs — you sent them to me, and my gal Friday is still mumbling. They are case-making clothes moths.

E. H. D. — You can buy a fire alarm that is plugged into an electric outlet. It is better than a home-made contraption and easier to obtain.

Blue Chips Of No Value

DEAR MR. BAUM:

We just moved into a house that is about five years old. There is a place in the wash basin where the blue porcelain has been chipped off, showing the bare metal. What caused this? F. S.

ANSWER — The former occupant had one of those horrible jobs that required his being at work at 7 a.m. Being half asleep at such an unearthly hour, when he reached into the medicine cabinet for his razor, he knocked the bottle of rubbing alcohol off the shelf. The bare spots show where the bottle landed.

LAKEWOOD PARK

A Suburb Of Ft. Pierce and Vero Beach, Florida

"LAKEWOOD PARK, at Fort Pierce, is one of the outstanding developments in Florida and well worth study. Here is what I consider the best argument for good planning and zoning, where no honky tonk will be erected to cheapen the property next door. Here we find a strong code on drainage and street construction is enforced.

Nineteen beautiful artesian spring fed lakes are reserved for the exclusive use of property owners as well as acres of parks. Barbecue pits, shuffleboard courts, a community center is provided for good neighbor recreations, zestful living. Lakewood Park is strategically located off the S.E. coast of Florida, just ten minutes to Vero Beach, or Fort Pierce and fifteen minutes to Atlantic Ocean Beaches.

This development in my opinion offers one of the best homesite buys in Florida. I find many homes already completed and under construction. I am informed that the development is approved for mortgage loans by local Federal Savings and Loan Associations and also by a large Florida Insurance Company."

Playing in the sand and sun at Fort Pierce, just 15 minutes from beautiful LAKEWOOD PARK.

- Situated on high, dry, beautifully wooded parkland. All buildable land.
- All city conveniences as close as Ft. Pierce and Vero Beach 10 to 15 minutes away.
- Year-round swimming, sun bathing, gardening and fishing practically in your own backyard. Enjoy many gay social events at the "Lakewood Park" Village Hall.
- World's finest fishing in the Atlantic Ocean and Indian River just 15-20 minutes away.
- Served by bus lines, air lines, Florida East Coast Railroad.
- No Florida inheritance, gift or state income tax. Tax on your homesite will be approximately $1.50 per year. Homestead exemption up to $5,000.
- Over 3,000 Homesites Sold—All homes are sold with full NAHB warranty.
- 110 occupied homes—many other homes now under construction for early delivery.
- Money-back guarantee to permit you to inspect your property.
- 50 miles of roads, 23 spring-fed fresh water lakes, and acres of beautiful parks completed and now in use.
- Many lakes stocked with blue gill, bream and black bass by the Florida State Game and Fish Commission.
- Approved for first mortgage loans by three major lending institutions.
- Lakewood Park, Edmund Brant, President, is a member of the Fort Pierce and Vero Beach Chamber of Commerce, and the National Association of Home Builders.

!!IMPORTANT NOTICE!!

The fact that more than 3000 homesites have been sold in LAKEWOOD PARK, for a volume in excess of 3½ million dollars, in the first 10 completed and recorded sections is incontestable proof of the stability and permanent investment values of this established community. We would be remiss in our obligation to Florida area residents if we did not point out that the final 2 units are now being offered for sale in LAKEWOOD PARK, Florida. This property contains some of the finest wooded terrain in the entire development. These are the last homesites to be offered for sale in this deluxe and highly desirable community. Modern Gadgets

TUBE FILING System for rolled-up prints, charts, drawings and tracings has four tubes built into a steel box 12 inches wide, four inches high and 27 or 33 inches long. Units may be stacked on desk tops, secured under a tabletop, or placed in special steel cabinet holding 12 units.

★ ★ ★

SOLVENT-TYPE Parts cleaner is portable and holds parts as large as 12 by 20 inches. It has a steel case, built-in pump that recirculates the solvent, soak tank and a fountain brush fed by a 30-inch flexible tubing.

★ ★ ★

PLASTIC CONDUIT for underground cable installations is one-eighth the weight of metal pipe and can be assembled outside the ditch and lowered in place with little effort. It resists most chemicals, and requires no threading or tapering of joints.

★ ★ ★

ELECTROLUMINESCENT Lamps are glass sheets having an electrical conductive coating and phosphor layer, to which voltage is applied to produce light. Resembling glass panes, the lamps produce diffused light with little electricity. Many uses include shelf lights, signs, clock faces, and decorative lighting. Available in green, yellow and blue, they come in various sizes.

★ ★ ★

HAND CUTTING Torches for use with propane and natural gas have oxygen valves that allow smooth and gradual oxygen flow, particularly helpful in hole piercing, rivet washing and stay bolt cutting. Torch head is a machined silicon bronze forging.

★ ★ ★

HOUSEHOLD KNIFE has steel base but a tungsten carbide cutting edge, said to be four times as hard as, and to stay sharp longer than, the finest cutlery steel. The blade is claimed to outlast steel blades and can cut tomatoes, hot bread, meat and even shoe leather.

We're Up and Atom

SYRACUSE, N. Y. — Nuclear fission will run air conditioning and refrigeration equipment in the near future, a well known scientist said today.

"The technical problems have been largely solved already," according to Dr. J. F. Downie Smith. "Reactors could be used in this country now but other energy sources are less expensive.

"But within ten years nuclear fission will be employed extensively to create both heat and electricity. In some parts of the world nuclear power is already competitive with conventional generating plants. The use of such heat or electricity to 'drive' air conditioning and refrigeration equipment should be an immediate, practical application," he stated.

Don't look for a nuclear reactor in every air conditioned home or office building, though. They will be owned in nearly every case by utility companies which will continue to furnish the electricity or steam required by the customer.

With 2,504 Starts in 1958

Mackle Tapped as Busiest Builder

Mackle Co. gets the nod from House & Home magazine as the nation's busiest homebuilder of 1958. The Miami firm reported it built 2,504 units last year, four more than John Long of Phoenix.

In third place is Tom Lively's Centex Construction Co. of Dallas with 2,261. Lively also built 715 homes for the military, but these are counted as public housing.

Centex is the firm that announced this week it will build 10,000 houses on Boca Raton land purchased from Arthur Vining Davis.

"The operations of the three top builders present an interesting contrast," comments House & Home. "The Mackles spread their starts over one state in 10 different tracts and have no intention of going outside Florida. Long is a one-site builder with all of his starts on his huge Maryvale tract north of Phoenix. Centex is building in Texas, Oklahoma, Chicago and Hawaii and will go into any other market which looks promising."

Big builder Bill Levitt started just over 1,000 units in 1958. He was slowed some by the move from Levittown, Pa., which he completed in 1958, to his new Levittown.

Heftler Construction Co., which shifted from San Bernardino, Calif. to Carol City in Miami, reported 1,400 starts in 1958.

Dale Bellamah of Albuquerque reported 1,259 houses started in four cities.

Among the top 25 in the nation is P&R Construction Co. of Hialeah with 700 starts last year.

Check List In Picking Home Site

NEW YORK — (AP) — Consider the lay of the land, literally, in picking a site for your future home. Because, says one of the nation's top site developers and planners, the site or plot is the [illegible] most neglected by home buyers.

A. Carl Stelling, whose New York site engineering firm has won national awards for planning subdivisions, offers this down-to-earth advice to prospective home owners:

"The plot's location in the community, its shape, size, topography and facilities are more important than closets in the house — but they get far less attention.

"Alterations, even additions, to houses can almost always be made, but it is rarely feasible to change the lay of the land."

As a guide to potential home buyers in their evaluation of sites, Stelling's firm has prepared a checklist.

The list ranges from taxes and municipal facilities to future zoning prospects and so-called premium price corner lots.

This is Stelling's checklist:

IF POSSIBLE, pick your home site in or near an established area. If the surrounding community has "aged" gracefully — that is if its homes have been well maintained and landscaped — you can be fairly confident about the future of the neighborhood.

DETERMINE what municipal facilities apply to the site, keeping in mind that those not currently existing may be the basis for future assessments. Seek a neighborhood with as many of these facilities as possible — paved streets, street lights, trash removal service, adequate fire and police protection, adequate schools, sanitary sewers, storm sewers, public water, and mail delivery.

Look also for a nearby shopping area, houses of worship, parks, theaters and transportation.

Good sources for this type of information are local real estate agents, banks and builders. Also talk to families already living in the neighborhood. Their opinions and knowledge can prove invaluable.

CHECK the taxes on the potential site — and find out from the local planning board or your attorney if new schools, or other locally-financed improvements are planned. They are apt to boost taxes on your property in the future.

LOOK TOWARD the future. It would be profitable to visit the local town-planning commission to find out about zoning, or the lack of it, in the area of the site.

Find out, too, about any plans for highways or other projects which would affect the value of your prospective property.

If the community has a master plan, find out what it holds in store for your selected neighborhood. Your attorney will be a good source for this information.

IN EVALUATING the size of a lot, think in terms of usable space as well as total area. Generally, the space behind the house will be used for family activities, and it should be adequate in most cases for your needs.

But be certain the site allows room for future expansion — for example, for the addition of a garage, a workshop or an extra wing. If the lot is not served by a public sewer, it should be no less than half an acre in size.

In such a case, to be completely safe, try to find a site of an acre or more. Septic tanks sour the soil, and the more land you have the safer you will be where there is no public sewer.

REMEMBER that the primary function of the lot's frontage is to provide access to the road. Also remember that frontage in most communities determines the assessments for sewers, sidewalks and other municipal facilities. A frontage which is one third the depth of the plot generally provides a proper proportion. If your site is wider at the back than at the front, you're in luck because it will give you a higher proportion of usable space.

AVOID SITES which are below the level of surrounding streets. Such sites are subject to many annoyances, such as poor drainage and extreme automobile headlight glare from roads and highways. Low-level sites also create difficulties in tying into public sewer systems.

ALWAYS BE WARY of water on or near a site. There is a possibility of flooding. Lakes and streams also represent a danger to young children. Water in heavily populated areas tends, too, to become increasingly polluted and therefore less useful for recreational purposes.

THINK TWICE before paying a premium price for a corner lot. While such lots usually are upgraded on the basis of "prestige," the facts seldom justify the added cost.

In many communities, both frontages of a corner lot are subject to assessment. More important, a second "front lawn" takes the place of usable space behind the house.

Also, traffic noise and headlight glare come from two sides instead of one — and privacy is reduced.

FLOWERS CUT to order is the catchy name of a new spring fabric collection. Delphinium and baby's breath are the blooms featured in this particular print. It's an Everglaze chintz by Greeff Fabrics and you can get it through individual decorators or department store decorating shops.

The Grilling Is Legal in This Lawyer's Case

Harold Curtis, a lawyer in Rochester, N.Y., has found that when you build a better barbecue, the public beats a path to your garden gate.

Curtis, a cook-out devotee of long-standing, was unable to find a portable outdoor grill to measure-up to his standards. He retreated to his basement workshop and built one to his own specification.

Friends and neighbors were soon asking how they could get a Curtis-built barbecue. Because of this, he thought there might be a potential market for his charcoal cooker in barbecue-happy suburbias throughout the country.

Curtis arranged with Barth-[illegible] Co. of Rochester to mass produce the unit. It is now being marketed on the retail level by the Curtis Cooker Corp., 45 Exchange Street, Rochester, N.Y.

Premium models of the cooker are built with stainless steel containing 18 per cent chromium and 8 per cent nickel. Designed around a new patent-applied-for principle, the cooker for the first time gives the operator complete control over the cooking process.

The cooker is ignited by an alcohol lighter and is ready to cook in less than four minutes. The heat can be instantaneously changed from intense to low or to any degree in between.

The cooking process can even be halted—yet controlled to keep the food warm, ready for serving. The unit operates on two-thirds less charcoal than other grills having the same amount of cooking surface. Folding legs permit the cooker to be used in the fireplace or under a kitchen hood—a boon to apartment dwellers and campers.

Hungry Gotham

There are about 10,000 eating places in New York City exclusive of refreshment stands.

Aliad Signs Six-Unit Contract

Aliad Construction Co. will build a 6-unit apartment house at 227 Santillane Ave., Coral Gables, at a cost of $40,000, Miami Builders Exchange reports. Houston-Ferguson Associates are the architects for the two-story structure owned by Enterprize Properties.

an Important Message about Florida Real Estate

This message is aimed directly at all residents of South Florida and every investment minded visitor to our Sunny State. We sincerely hope you take the few minutes to read every word on this page, as there is a lot of valuable information about buying Florida Real Estate — useful to you today, tomorrow and in the years ahead.

During the past 4 years, more than 150 million dollars worth of sub-divided Florida lots have been sold to northerners, Floridians and visitors to this State. During the next 4 years, we can expect AT LEAST another 150 million dollars worth of sales. In fact, Florida Real Estate, is today considered the most marketable product in Florida — next to the Sun, Sea and Climate, which we cannot package and sell!

Because of the $10 down, $10 a month type of lot sales, the person of average means suddenly discovers that he can now own his own land in Florida because of the low monthly payments. Not too many years ago, it took an awful lot of "CASH DOWN" to buy land.

And before that it was usually the Rockefellers, Vanderbilts, Harrimans and Woolworths who were in a position to buy real estate — hold it — and sell later for great profits.

You have all read many advertisements about homesite developments, both here in Florida and in most every newspaper and magazine in the country. In fact, we are even advertising our property in Alaska! Yet we have discovered that very few people actually know the "mechanics" of real estate, such as plats, agreement for deed, abstracts, Title insurance, drainage, street building, county specifications, surveying, etc. This is understandable since the average person has actually been unable to invest in real estate until the past few years.

Garden Gong

SOUND THE CALL to supper in the garden with a Japanese temple gong. This one has a range of five notes. It's a reproduction, of course, in fine bell metal, mounted in tubular aluminum frame. Frame has baked enamel finish in brown, red or turquoise. A product of Brown Jordan of Pasadene, Calif., the gong retails for around $135 and is available through decorators.

School Bell Rings For Home Builders

The problems of business management among residential builders will be considered in a course of study sponsored by the Home Builders Association of South Florida.

The course will start sometime in March, according to S. A. Dansyear, executive secretary of the association.

Workshop on FHA and VA is on the February agenda. It's scheduled the 25th in the McAllister Hotel.

Key Biscayne At 70 Cents an Acre

There's Romance in the Story of Our Land

By MIKE MORGAN
Herald Staff Writer

IMAGINE abandoning a tract of land which included all of original Miami, most of Coconut Grove and miles of bayfront.

It happened.

Consider purchasing land on Key Biscayne at 70 cents an acre. Two men once bought most of the Key at that price.

These, and other bits of land lore I learned when I tried to find out about "a certain piece or parcel of land lying and being in the County of Dade on the North side of the Miami River, being 160 feet square known as the lot enclosed and occupied by Joseph Bethell . . ."

That is the description of the first deed of a land sale recorded in Dade County. It was filed in September 1844.

Sold by William F. English to Joseph Bethell. And who was Joseph Bethell?

There is some speculation that he was a slave owned by William F. English, who sold him the land. Or maybe a freed Negro. The lot is believed to have been somewhere in the area of where the Dupont Plaza Hotel now stands. Other than that single document in Deed Book "A." Joseph Bethell is lost to Dade County history.

★ ★ ★

WHAT HAPPENED to that 160-feet-square lot, or to Joseph and his heirs, hasn't been traced even by Harlow H Nelson — a man who probably knows as much about the early history of Dade County real estate as anyone around.

For 35 years Nelson has worked at Florida Title Co. Most of his working days have been bounded by the aisles of musty deeds and property records on file at his company, and on record at the courthouse.

He is a mild-mannered fellow, given to bow ties, checked shirts, thin black suspenders, and a passion for accuracy. He can track down the involvements of a property snarl like a hound dog after a tiring rabbit.

In the pursuit of deeds, quit claims, titles, survey records, and all the other documents given to establishing ownership of property, Nelson has acquired a vast fund of historical data which is wholly fascinating.

★ ★ ★

HE DOESN'T know anything about Bethell, but he can tell you about English — who sold the lot.

English had extensive holdings in Miami back in those days, but never had legal title. Nevertheless he sold off a good deal of his property and gave deeds to the buyers.

It is thought that English came down to South Florida around the 1830s, accompanied by a large establishment of slaves, to raise coconuts and possibly build some starch mills.

Apparently after years of effort his project failed. He left and was not heard from again.

Nelson puffed on a cigarette, a smile creased his lips: "I guess English never thought of subdividing . . . or advertising in the northern papers . . ."

The first absentee landholders, as a matter of fact the first landholders in the area (Indians excepted) were James Hagan, Rebecca Hagan, Jonathon Lewis and Polly Lewis.

In 1825 each of these received a grant of 640 acres or 'donations' from Congress. The total chunk of 2,560 acres was bounded roughly on the east and south by the bay, the north by 11th Street, the west by 7th and 17th Avenues.

★ ★ ★

GENERALLY these grants were given as rewards for services, possibly war service, or maybe just as homesteads. Who these four were, where they lived, is unknown.

Evidently the Hagans and the Lewises thought little of their grants. Considering the tangled wilderness South Florida was, they never made the first effort to homestead the property. Probably never saw it.

The four grants were permitted to lapse and eventually others acquired parcels of the land.

Nelson popped up and beckoned me to follow. He went down an aisle, pulled out a huge plat book. "Here's something interesting."

And a forefinger outlined to a square on the map. It was about 160 acres bounded by NW 37th Ave., Flagler St., NW 42nd Ave., NW 7th St. The West Flagler dog track occupies a small corner of the area.

He looked at the map and said reflectively, "This was the biggest single piece of property held together by one man in the city of Miami until 1943.

"It was acquired by C. H. Perry in 1882 as a homestead. And he homesteaded it. Never sold it until 1943.

"Almost lost it as the city grew and expanded. He never wanted to sell slices of it.

"When the bust came, he couldn't even begin to meet back city taxes. But he got it removed from the city boundaries by legislative act and that saved him. Still hung on to it and got a bit of revenue when it was leased as a golf course. Later it came into the city again.

"I'm told that once, before the bust, a rumor that a railroad station was going to be put on the land brought him an offer of three million dollars. He turned it down . . . still didn't care to sell."

★ ★ ★

THE FINGER idly traced the boundary lines. "But he finally sold the piece for maybe a little more than $100,000 in 1943."

He looked back at the map, then said slowly: "Funny thing about land in this county. The pioneers, the first families — and I mean those from around 1885-1900, never really made the big money out of real estate.

"Take any of the pioneer families that had lots of land. You would be surprised how many of them actually finally lost their property, lost money on it. Sure, some of them made fortunes — but nothing compared to what's been turned here just in the past 15 years by newcomers.

"Take the Tatum brothers. Owned hundreds of thousands of acres. Started around 1900 but lost most of it in the 1930s.

"I know of one old line family owned so much land it took a clerk two solid months just to make out the property tax bills. This family lost most of what they owned.

"It's sort of ironical . . ."

"I'LL TELL YOU another thing. Everyone talks about the great drop in land prices here in the 1925 bust. And the loss of fortunes — most of them were paper fortunes — but millions in actual cash was lost too.

"But what few people realize is that after the stock market crash in 1928, and from 1928 to about '33, land values went down here way below the 1925-26 land bust.

"Way below! Property was down to about 1915 prices. There were more bargains to be had then than after the bust, believe it or not."

"This is Key Biscayne. You know what it costs to buy a lot there now. Well, the people who bought it originally were Ezra A. Osborn and Elnathan T. Field.

"Bought most of the Key from the state in 1885. And got a piece of the southern tip of Miami Beach.

"Know what they paid? Seventy cents an acre! Yep. Seventy cents an acre. Costs you two bits just to get across the causeway to the place now . . ."

Two months ago, Desser & Garfield signed a contract to buy the 550 acres on the south end of the key for $13.5 millions. Kerr & Williams, custom builders on the island, have about 40 lots left in the north end and you might be able to buy a 75 by 100-foot one for about $7,800.

He shrugged a weary shoulder: "Heck — all I own is my home — and I hope to get it paid for some day."

Inside Story of the Man Who Boasts He'll Rule Dade County

How Does Hoffa Keep on Top?

He'd Rule Dade

"If we are to make progress in the South we will have to take over Dade County first," Jimmy Hoffa told The Herald not long ago. And the tough union boss is spreading Teamster fingers into a wide variety of fields with just that in mind. Since he's headed the union, the Teamsters here have more than doubled in size. They're aiming to organize the airline industry, and they're flirting with municipal employes and workers in several other fields. Here's the scorecard on members in Dade:

Freight truckers, 1,000; hotel doormen, 400; A&P, 300; Maule Industries, 300; Food Fair, 400; Acme Concrete, 75; Circle Cab Co., 50; Borden's and Sealtest, about 100 each.

JIMMY HOFFA

Threat to the U.S.?

You are about to read the tough truth about a tough man. The toughest man, many say, in America.

James Riddle Hoffa is not only a tough man but the undisputed boss of the country's toughest and biggest labor union — the Teamsters, whose money, muscles and organized might make many responsible citizens view with alarm as a potential threat to the welfare of the U.S.

Nobody can tell what Hoffa will do with the vast concentration of power he holds in his fist. But you will know what makes Hoffa tick and how he runs his sprawling empire after reading this remarkable inside story written by one of America's top reporters.

First of a Series

By JIM BISHOP

THE early light makes a giant sun dial of the Capitol Dome. A bus form Virginia sighs to a stop in front of the Government Printing Office. In the Soviet embassy, a secretary turns his face into the pillow. Up high in the Woodner Hotel, a bathroom door slams.

The man mixes the warm water with the cold. He gives himself a glance in the mirror, flicks the hair off his forehead, and pads out of the bathroom, through the big square bedroom, into the colonial sitting room, and to another bedroom door. There he knocks.

"Gib," he says, scratching himself. "Rise and shine. It's seven."

He waits until he hears a grunt. Then the man goes back through the rooms and into the bathroom. A final adjustment of the running water, and James Riddle Hoffa is ready for the ablutions.

In 15 minutes, he is dressed and in the kitchen. Hoffa, boss of 1,632,000 Teamsters, makes his breakfast.

The toast pops as Harold Gibbons, executive assistant to the president, comes from his bedroom tucking his shirt into his trousers.

This suite of rooms was once occupied by Hoffa's predecessor, David Beck. It is paid for by the union.

At 8:20 a.m. the briefcases are packed. Gibbons stops for cigarets at the cigar store. Hoffa waits. He doesn't smoke or drink and he is opposed to away-from-home romance.

At 8:47, their Teamster car turns in under the Teamster International Headquarters Building.

* * *

Headquarters Cost $5 Million

THE BUILDING is Beck's monument. He built it as close to the Capitol of the U. S. as he could get — 1,800 feet away — and he spent $5,000,000 trying to make a Taj Mahal out of four stories. It is air conditioned and marbled and has burled walunt walls and a free cafeteria, deep pile rugs, solid oak desks, oil paintings, and only 87 employes. Ironically, these workers in headquarters are non-union.

Hoffa walks into the office of general president, removes his jacket and sits down to his tools: A dozen telephones and an intercommunication box.

The desk is clean, the phones are on a small table to the left. A few others are inside closed drawers. His door is always open. It is dead ahead of his eyes and, before he sits in his shirtsleeves, his secretary, Miss Yuki Kato, is standing by him with the morning mail.

Hoffa reads the morning mail quickly, the mandibular muscles tensing and untensing behind the jaw. He picks up a phone, gets the chief of counsel of the Teamsters on the phone, listens for a moment, and snaps: "You lawyers are all friends of mine but you have a clique of your own which I don't like." He hangs up.

The voice is nasal staccato, defensive and yet belligerent. He talks like a man who is always ready to fight, but who prefers not to. When he listens, he does it with impatience, and sometimes stabs a piece of paper on the desk with one finger, and spins the sheet with the other hand.

Some of his subordinates use all of the four-letter words in manly conversation. Hoffa's sole profanity is to use the Lord's name in vain. He puts the mail aside, asks Miss Kato to book him on the night plane to Los Angeles, picks up a phone, and talks to a union official far away.

"Hello. Yes, Abe. Well, do what you think is right. A lot of it is B.S., you know. Okay." Hoffa hangs up. In a moment, he is on the squawk box, talking to Gibbons.

"Harold, I'm sending in a letter from Jack. You answer it. How far off is he from what he is asking? 'Uh—huh. Uh—huh. No, I don't want the fringe benefits. I know what they are. He's maybe six cents off right now. Look. I'm going there Thursday. Tell Jack to have everything ready for me. I think we ought to go for the whole thing."

* * *

Scans Through Contract

HE GLANCES through a 30-page contract about to be signed. The small eyes are smaller. They pause where they please, and skip whole paragraphs. He senses Harold Gibbons behind him and, without looking up, says: "There isn't a goddam thing wrong with this. Tell Fred to approve it."

This man does not like to write letters. Seventy per cent of his work is by telephone and intercom. The international monthly telephone bill is $4,500. Hoffa will read the carbons of letters sent by subordinates, and he allows about six seconds per letter.

Gibbons, who is also 13th vice president of the Teamsters, nods toward a phone. "George is on 24," he says. Hoffa shakes his head no. "You take him. See, he's back again. He wouldn't listen and now he's crying for help."

Four stenographers work for the man who doesn't like letters. They are in and out quickly.

Men from other offices come in casually, with no advance notice, and drop their problems, titanic and trivial, in the lap of the president. Hoffa courts this. His pride is that he knows the current problems in his headquarters and in all corners of the nation.

* * *

He's Boss--and He Knows It

THERE is an informality in this office. A permanent informality. In all of the levity, no one forgets that Hoffa is the boss — least of all, Hoffa. He administers an organization with an elephantine title: The International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Warehousemen and Helpers of America, which is worth, lock, stock and dues, about three billions of dollars.

This tough little man can raise $38,000,000 out of his headquarters today, if he needs it. Around the nation, his 900 active locals can dig up $75,000,000 in cash and negotiable securities. Jimmy Hoffa has the riches, he has the power, he has the independence — there is some question about his sense of responsibility as an American.

An area conference of Teamster officials is scheduled for 1 p.m. Hoffa sits in.

One official argues against the use of the word "whereas" on Page 23. Hoffa smiles and shakes his head in sorrow. "Look," he says sharply. "You guys been working this thing over for eight months and now, at this stage of the game, we got a lousy whereas or something? Forget it."

Sometimes the orders come with a friendly whack on the back and a big smile from the little man. It's still an order. He sits with them and fights his own men first. When they are all agreed, he calls in the truck owners and sits with his Teamsters and fights the owners. Long ago, Hoffa learned that he must fight these two fights before he can expect peace.

That night Hoffa and Gibbons went to the home of Edward Cheyfitz, a Teamster lawyer. Cheyfitz also invited a few friends, and a couple priests.

Hoffa has no religion. He believes in very little that he cannot touch or see. His wife is Roman Catholic. The children attend church. Jimmy Hoffa has never bowed his knee to anyone except his mother. He gave $265,000 to Israel; he has given cheerfully to priests and ministers but he cannot make himself say "father." He cannot look upward to anyone.

* * *

Worries About Automation

"I READ in the paper," a guest at Cheyfitz's home says softly, "that the Teamsters have just invested seven million dollars. Why do you announce those things, Mr. Hoffa?"

"Why?" says the counterpuncher. "I'll tell you why. The Teamsters have money to invest. If we tell the newspapers about it, we're bragging. If we keep it a secret, somebody finds out and we get investigated."

One of the priests wonders, out loud, about automation. Hoffa is certain that, in five years, automation will kill 25 per cent of all jobs in plants. He tells about

Europe Education Cheaper

High Costs Send Students Abroad

By GEORGIE ANNE GEYER
Miami Herald-Chicago News Wire

CHICAGO — The skyrocketing costs of an American college education are giving parents a chronic pain in the pocketbook.

Soaring tuitions, not to mention charges for room and board, are ripping a bigger and bigger hole in pop's pocket.

Universities are bulging at the seams and neither scholarships, college loans nor summer employment is keeping up with inflation on the campus.

But . . . a few parents have found a way out, a way with delicious dividends: They're sending their kids to European universities.

The advantages: Venerable universities, low, low tuition and living costs, opportunities for extensive inexpensive travel, a broader knowledge of many and varied people and peoples, and the opportunity to learn and regularly speak several languages.

One extra dividend not to be ignored: On money saved, mom and pop could make a yearly trip to Europe themselves.

* * *

HOW to do it?

Every university has its own costs, rulings, requirements, but generally a graduate of a good high school here would be accepted.

Any student should spend a few months in Europe before school starts to get the language down pat since he'll have to study in the language of the country.

IN FRANCE tuition is free, paid by the state (inflation can't stir you) and living costs are from $75 to $100 a month.

IN AUSTRIA, tuition will vary from $10 to $20 a semester, living costs from as low as $24 to as high as $60 a month. State-sponsored student sky trips are an added attraction — in top-of-the-Alps chalets at a niggardly $16 per week.

AVERAGE in Germany is from $40 to $120 a semester for tuition, from $40 to $60 a month for room and board.

IN ITALY, Approximately $30 tuition fees per semester; $65 living costs per month.

IN GREAT BRITAIN, costs tend more to approximate America's. At Oxford and Cambridge, the student can plan on paying $1,400 to $1,680.

It's safe to say that — all costs included— an American student could live, study and travel for a school year on the Continent, take one trip home (round trip via steamer — $400) and still spend less than he would spend during a college year in the U.S.

(University of Miami Officials estimate that a year at that private school (two semesters) costs the student some $1,900. Of this, $750 is for tuition, $340 for housing (in dormitories) and $50 for fees.

(At the state-supported University of Florida, where tuition is lower, the estimate is $1,000 to $1,500 for Florida residents.)

* * *

So European countries pamper him with low-cost living, specially priced student meals and tickets, and an international network of youth hostels where traveling students can stay overnight — for a mere 25 cents a night.

Hundreds of American students, especially medical students who find U.S. medical schools jam-packed, are taking this way out.

A European education not only compares, but often excels an American one. In addition, German, French, or Spanish becomes not an unrelated classroom "subject," but a live, lively, useful means of communication.

More and more European capitals — Rome and Madrid in the forefront — are building spacious, stand-out "university cities" in strikingly modern settings.

Since European degrees do not exactly match ours in requirements, it's a good idea to study the European university system fully before deciding.

The public library, the various consuls and the Institute of International Education, 116 S. Michigan Ave., Chicago, have all necessary information, and it's still not too late for the high school senior to apply for next year.

Students and parents who are interested should contact either one of the above-named sources or the university directly as soon as possible.

Upon returning to the state, they're bound to have trouble picking up old friendships, renewing old ties. It's very likely old chums will feel more than a little jealous and self-conscious and estranged due to the wide differences in experience.

Dulles Has His Good Points, But It's Time That He Quit

Views On The News:

THIS COLUMN has had a good many harsh things to say about Secretary of State John Foster Dulles.

KNIGHT

While never questioning his unbounded energy and great courage, it has long been my view that inflexibility and didacticism are not the tools of diplomacy.

True, Mr. Dulles is an implacable foe of Communism and a true champion of the freedom of man. But he is also an impassioned reformer, an evangelist who brings his gospel to a world which finds his preachments too rigidly conceived.

We need not review here the areas in which Mr. Dulles has been inadequate. They are well understood by a public long propagandized with such phrases of failure as "agonizing reappraisal" and "massive retaliation."

For those who see Mr. Dulles as the indefatigable crusader against the evils of Communism, his aversion to any form of appeasement is hailed as the administration's stoutest bulwark of strength.

But whether one disapproves of the Secretary of State as I do, or sees him as a latter day St. George, the time has come for Mr. Dulles to resign.

* * *

A Very Sick Man In One-Man Outfit

THE REASONS are twofold:

1. Mr. Dulles, now in his 71st year, is a very sick man.

2. The Department of State is a one-man organization.

Within the last two years, Mr. Dulles has undergone surgery for cancer of the stomach, suffered an attack of diverticulitis and only last Friday had a hernia operation.

Yet he has no thought of relinquishing his duties but is turning them over temporarily to Under Secretary of State Christian Herter.

Furthermore, Mr. Dulles has made it clear that he will be studying the Berlin crisis and expects to be consulted about the formulation of our policy.

So Mr. Herter, while ostensibly assuming responsibility for the conduct of foreign affairs, actually remains the No. 2 man in a one-man State Department.

Nor is the situation improved on the Presidential level. When Peter Lisagor of The Chicago Daily News asked Mr. Eisenhower if he would devote more time and energy to the conduct of foreign affairs because of Mr. Dulles' illness, the President replied:

"Well, if I do something else is going to suffer because I don't know of anything that I give as much time to, every week, and every day, as I do to foreign affairs . . . if I go in any more personal conduct of the thing, then I am going to have to neglect a few other departments, that's sure."

At a critical juncture in our history, we have an old and sick Secretary of State, an acting Secretary without authority and a President who speaks of foreign affairs as "the thing."

Not very reassuring, is it?

* * *

Who Might Succeed Him? Look At Lodge

SHOULD DULLES resign, who might succeed him?

The obvious names that come to mind are Christian Herter, the Under Secretary, Douglas Dillon, Deputy Under Secretary, and Henry Cabot Lodge, our permanent representative to the United Nations.

Christian Herter, a former governor of Massachusetts, came into the State Department with an extensive knowledge of foreign affairs and the hope that he was being groomed to succeed Dulles.

But Mr. Dulles did not want a strong Under Secretary so Gov. Herter's capabilities have never been fully tested.

Herter suffered politically in 1956 when Harold Stassen foolishly nominated him to replace Vice President Nixon on the Republican ticket. This fiasco branded Herter as being impressionable and naive.

Herter's health is not of the best, having endured a painful arthritis for many years.

C. Douglas Dillon, the Deputy Under Secretary, has a background in business and finance. He served creditably as ambassador [illegible]ance before assuming his present post.

Henry Cabot Lodge, once a member of the U.S. Senate from Massachusetts, has been this country's spokesman in the United Nations during most of the Eisenhower administration.

In this role, he has been able and effective. Cabot Lodge can trade verbal blows with the best of them and does.

Unlike Dulles, he deals in specifics and leaves the moralizing to others.

He is young (57 in July), experienced, personable, respected by his adversaries and in full physical vigor.

* * *

President's Declining Vigor Also A Reason

WHILE WE can join with the President in his prayers that Secretary Dulles will be restored to good health, the burdens and responsibilities of his office are now too heavy for him to carry.

The administrative side of the State Department, long neglected, is badly in need of reorganization.

And we cannot pretend, as does President Eisenhower, that an ill and aging Dulles "is the most valuable man in foreign affairs that I have ever known."

The President's own declining vigor is a compelling reason why the Department of State should be headed by a younger and less inflexible man than Secretary Dulles.

On the test of ability and experience, Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge would make a welcome replacement and stands well above the others who have been mentioned.

Random Notes

SEN. J. WILLIAM FULBRIGHT (D., Ark.), new chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, is urging the State Department to provide more information with respect to ambassadorial appointments . . . The Senator wants to know something about the candidate's language ability, his ability as an administrator, his ability to make friends, the nature and depth of his interest in foreign affairs generally.

Fulbright concedes that Presidents and Secretaries of State of both political parties have been under pressure from those who feel that an ambassadorship is a reward for past service or help . . . "In my opinion," he says, "we can no longer afford to give way to such pressure."

You are so right, Senator, and we hope you will not lose interest in this project if a Democrat is elected President in 1960.

Two Rated As 'Liberals' Present Some Contrasts

GOV. G. MENNEN WILLIAMS of Michigan and Gov. Robert Meyner of New Jersey are both rated as "liberals" by the Americans for Democratic Action . . . But Meyner, a fiscal conservative, has presented a balanced budget to the New Jersey Legislature while Williams of Michigan can't pay current bills without advance tax payments from industry.

As Michigan's financial mess is clouding Williams' Presidential ambitions, Arthur Krock of The New York Times observes that Meyner's accomplishment might win him one of the two blue ribbons in the Democratic convention of 1960.

And Nelson -- Surely You Remember All About Tom?

SPEAKING of governors, The Cleveland Press joins The Akron Beacon Journal in praising the promising start being made by Ohio's Mike Di Salle . . . Pre-election fears that Di Salle would be a big spender and kow-tow to organized labor are unsupported by the record.

New York state newspaper editors are sharply critical of Gov. Nelson Rockefeller for his "high and mighty" treatment of the press . . . The Rockefeller administration, they charge, "is giving every indication of becoming a government-by-handout . . . the technique used by Tom Dewey" . . . And of course Nelson, you remember Tom.

The French Take A New Look -- And They Like

FRENCH graduate students who recently visited the United States report that "the American way of life is much closer to our French way of life than we expected . . . Americans, like the French, are warm people . . . Like ours, American family life is good.

"Many Frenchmen, possibly from the American movies they see, think Americans are all wrapped up in their cars and clothes and refrigerators and don't take time to enjoy a good family life . . . This certainly is not a true picture."

The French students concluded that "only by traveling can understanding between the peoples of friendly nations be significantly improved."

Perhaps Mikoyan saw these things, too.

Curfew Spoils Nature Show

Editor The Herald: On several occasions John Vosburgh has written in The Herald about the Greynolds Park rookery where several thousand egrets and other waterfowl congregate each evening, it being the second largest cattle egret rookery in the state.

We always take our out-of-town guests to see this unique display, which is at its dramatic best just at sundown, when the park is scheduled to close.

Last Tuesday sunset occurred at 6:11 p.m. and we were getting into our car at that moment when a park attendant came by and warned us the park was closing. At 6:15 p.m. we reached the east gate, only to find it locked although it was still daylight. Another car of visitors was behind us and we waited there until the park truck arrived and the attendant announced he would let us out this time, but thereafter we would have to use the west gate after sundown.

This display of cattle egrets, American and snowy egrets, white ibis, cormorants, little blue and Louisiana herons, and other waterfowl coming in at eveningtide is one of the remarkable sights of southern Florida. But rigid enforcement of the sundown closing rule, apparently a new policy, makes it a disappointing experience.

A 10 or 15 minute grace period would make a big difference for those who enjoy such a spectacle. And isn't that what our parks are for?

Make Car Tests More Embracing

Editor The Herald: Having been a resident of New Jersey where periodical car inspections are compulsory, I fully agree with Sheriff Thomas J. Kelly's headlight inspection program.

Personally, I think every safety device on the cars of today, with their quick acceleration, their tremendous braking power, headlights and brake warning lights, should be inspected and no owner permitted to operate a car on the crowded highways today unless all are in perfect operating order.

Let's have these inspections along with those suggested by Kelly, and, I'm sure Florida can cut down the present accident toll.

Try Inflation Gardens To Help Out Oldsters

Editor The Herald: Reading Edwin A. Lahey's article on how inflation is hitting retired people makes me shudder.

I cannot understand why there is no organization that would help these peole to help themselves.

I have planted a vegetable garden and grow beans, squash, radishes, lima beans, carrots and papaya. I am a woman 64 and dug the garden by myself. Working out of doors here in winter is the healthiest occupation I know.

Why can't someone lend some of these people some ground and seeds and let them plant a vegetable plot like we used to do during the war? We called them Victory Gardens. Now they can be called Inflation Gardens.

They would be helping one another. This way their Social Security would go farther and it would not seem so much like a dole.

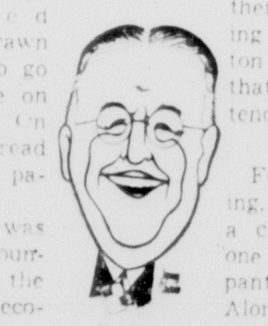
Confident Living

Prayer Can Change The World

By Norman Vincent Peale

A LITTLE over 100 years ago, on a gloomy morning in 1857, a man by the name of Lanthier, living in New York, boarded a horse-drawn street car to go to his office on Fulton St. On the way he read the morning paper.



Peale

The news was that the country was in the grip of an economic depression — in those days it was called a "panic." Lanthier, along with many others, read these pessimistic and alarming reports and worried.

Now, who was Lanthier? He was only a clerk in an office on Fulton St. But there was one important thing about Lanthier. He was a man who believed in prayer. And, under the impact of the gloomy news in his morning paper, he got an inspiration.

He sent a note to business acquaintances telling them there would be a prayer meeting in a certain office on Fulton St. daily at noon. He hoped that each of them would attend.

* * *

FOR HIS first prayer meeting, he arranged 20 chairs in a circle. That first day only one chair was filled; its occupant was Lanthier himself. Alone, he prayed that there might be a tremendous change in him and in America. The second day, a few friends joined. The next day all 20 chairs were filled.

Day after day, those men met and prayed together. Soon, a similar prayer meeting was started on Wall St.; then one on William St.; then another on Broadway. The movement spread to other parts of the country — Boston, Philadelphia, Denver, the South, the West Coast. Soon there was a great religious revival and with it came a new upsurge in the moral and spiritual life of the people. It was followed by an era of sound prosperity and progress.

* * *

IT WAS one of the greatest demonstrations of the power of united prayer and faith that this country ever witnessed. And it all began with one man, an everyday clerk, who released the tremendous power of prayer.

Lanthier's achievement was a demonstration of an age-old principle: that you can change your life, that I can change mine and that together we can change the world around us. There is positively no limit to what can happen to you, or to me, or to the world, through the power of prayer in depth — that is, real prayer.

Curbs Needed, But--

1-2 Labor Punch Breeds Trouble?

By Congressional Quarterly

WASHINGTON—A bare-knuckle brawl over labor reform is shaping up in Congress, despite moves to rush through an anti-corruption bill and deal with controversial Taft-Hartley amendments later.

Kennedy McClellan

Almost everybody — from the President down and including groups as wide apart on most matters as the AFL-CIO and National Association of Manufacturers — agrees on the need for legislation to correct the kind of extortion, bribe-taking and union strong-arm methods revealed in McClellan Rackets Committee hearings on the Teamsters, Carpenters and other unions over the past two years.

But the President and the Democrats are miles apart on another part of the labor-legislation picture — amending the Taft-Hartley Act, which contains the ground rules for collective bargaining.

The President, with the backing of most business groups, wants to toughen federal laws against secondary boycotts, put curbs on union organizational picketing and let the states handle some labor disputes now reserved exclusively for action by the federal government.

Many Democrats and nearly all labor unions think these changes would be "anti-labor."

* * *

TO WARD off the kind of fight that would kill prospects for any labor reform at all in this session, congressional leaders are seeking agreement to pass an anti-corruption bill first and then consider Taft-Hartley amendments. Sen. John F. Kennedy (D., Mass.), whose reform bill is backed by by most Democrats, favors this one-two procedure. So does Sen. John L. McClellan (D., Ark.), who is probably closer to the President than to Kennedy on Taft-Hartley.

And Sen. Barry Goldwater (R., Ariz.), who introduced the Administration labor bill and who favors even stronger Taft-Hartley changes than the President, has indicated he will go along. The Senate probably will take up labor legislation shortly after the Easter recess.

Under the two-stage plan, an anti-corruption bill would be passed combining similar provisions of the Kennedy and Goldwater bills. These outlaw labor-management bribes and collusion, make misuse of union funds a crime, guarantee periodic democratic union elections, protect unions under trusteeship from being milked by the parent union and require both unions and management to make annual reports to the Secretary of Labor on various expenses and activities.

After this bill was passed, the Senate would open up the Taft-Hartley Act to the kind of amendments the President wants.

* * *

THIS two-step procedure, however, could bring trouble both from unions and employer groups. Nobody really believes a separate Taft-Hartley amendment bill stands a chance of passage. Democrats friendly to labor are simply too strong in both the Senate and the House.

Many unions have been supporting the Kennedy bill largely because it contains three provisions, dealing with representation elections in the building industry, the Taft-Hartley definition of "supervisor" and striker voting in representation elections, favorable to labor. Agreement on a two-stage plan would mean these "sweeteners" would be taken out of the anti-corruption package and probably never get passed.

Business groups, on the other hand, also because they suspect a separate Taft-Hartley bill cannot get through Congress, oppose separating the President's secondary boycott and picketing provisions from a pure reform bill. They fear the latter would be passed and secondary boycotts and picketing provisions forgotten.

As a result, business and labor pressure could force a floor fight on the two-stage plan; and will certainly produce a floor fight if a Taft-Hartley bill gets to the floor separately.

The Senate, nevertheless, is likely to pass an anti-corruption bill shorn of Taft-Hartley provisions. Majority Leader Lyndon Johnson (D., Tex.) appears to have the votes to do it. But in the House, where business and labor lobbying will be concentrated, chances of any bill passing are much more doubtful.

The labor-management conflict killed last year's Kennedy bill. It could easily do it again.

Travel Broadening, Advisers Tell Ike

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — President Eisenhower has been advised to make some overseas trips, partly to build American prestige abroad, partly to repair his own prestige at home. Secretary of State Dulles recently suggested that he fly to Paris in April to attend ceremonies marking the 10th anniversary of the North Atlantic Pact, then stop off in London to visit Queen Elizabeth.

Pearson

Eisenhower is also being urged to fly to Russia July 4 to open the American exhibit at the Soviet Trade Fair, and to visit India as Prime Minister Nehru's guest. Secretary Dulles has been against both these trips even though Republican political leaders think they would be a great idea.

* * *

IKE CAN be very choosy about answering questions in his press conference. He doesn't know who most of the newspapermen are, but he has an unerring faculty for spotting hostile questioners. He knows which newspapers are agin him and which aren't.

Here's what happened the other day when Robert Spivack of The New York Post, a consistent critic of Eisenhower, rose to ask a question. When a newsman rises, the President nods in his direction, and the newsman then proceeds to identify himself.

"That man back there," said Ike, ignoring Spivack in favor of Edward H. Sims of the Columbia (S.C.) State.

* * *

A LITTLE later an unidentified reporter sought recognition, but the President, ignoring him, spotted Rowland Evans of The New York Herald Tribune, a stanch Republican paper owned by Jock Whitney, Ike's ambassador to the Court of St. James.

"The man right behind you," Ike said. "That's right," he added as Evans was finally recognized.

Spivack, however, was persistent. At the next press conference he came back, stood up, and said: "Mr. President . . ."

"Oh, yes," said Ike finally, "I believe that you wanted to be recognized."

"Well, I made it," observed Spivack.

* * *

JOHN Foster Dulles, Deputy Premier Mikoyan, and the British have been miles apart on Berlin and on many other matters. But when the never-say-die secretary of state had to go to the hospital for his second operation, genuine concern was felt in both London and Moscow.

The Kremlin has never expressed any love for Mr. Dulles, and the Russian press has castigated him. However, when Mikoyan was in Washington he reported to members of the diplomatic corps that he had been most favorably impressed with the secretary of state. He felt that Dulles gave him ample opportunity to be heard. He also found Dulles not stubborn and intransigent.

The British likewise have never shown any great devotion for Foster. The British press has figuratively wrung its hands over the danger of getting into war over Quemoy and Matsu; also blamed Dulles for demanding that French and British troops be pulled out of Suez in the fall of 1956.

Actually Dulles was in the hospital at that time for his first operation and the Suez decision was made by Eisenhower personally. That could be one reason why the British have become so alarmed at Dulles' second illness. The British Foreign Office knows that American foreign affairs are played almost entirely out of Mr. Dulles' hat.

* * *

MEANWHILE it can be revealed that the chief plan Dulles was trying to work out for Germany on his recent trip was establishment of an all-German council, representing East and West Germany, which could begin limited economic cooperation. This would gradually pave the way for free elections.

Dulles' idea has been that the two parts of Germany should begin living together, step-by-step, not plunge into a sudden union from which might come friction. After this preliminary cooperation, he believes, free elections could follow.

The Town Crier

BY Jack Bell

These Children Are Foredoomed

I AM ABOUT to speak out loud on a subject like Mark Twain's weather. Everybody talks about it, no one does anything about it, very seldom is it discussed in the newspapers.

We'll start, by telling the story of Nellie, a buxom Negro woman who sat at my desk with five children, the eldest just six. Nellie was brought in by her mother, a nice-looking woman greatly distressed. Nellie was being evicted. She had no money to feed her children. She looked stolid, pretty dumb — and probably was.

The big trouble with Nellie was that she never married the father of her five babies. Some months ago he was injured at work and is drawing $35 a week compensation. Last week they quarreled and the man beat Nellie up pretty badly and left.

There was a trial. The judge gave the man a suspended sentence, which means he'll go deep into jail if he beats the woman again. Then the judge told him to "see that you give her some money to feed those children."

The children were neat, polite, bright. But what chance have they to get along? I don't know how tough the laws can be in these so-called common law marriages. But we know these men don't feel bound and move on when they feel like it.

* * *

No Opportunity

WE HAD a maid last fall with "eight head of kids" and a man who just couldn't hold a job. She felt a fierce devotion to motherhood. Those children were going to eat, "if I has to steal." I happened in on them one day for the evening meal. The eight kids had bowls of rice. The man's bowl held as much as all the youngsters got. They weren't married; so what opportunity for the children?

You can sit in the Negro municipal court any morning and hear cases of women and men who've been fighting. Testimony reveals they've been living together for two, four years. Married — never. And I've never heard a judge suggest that they marry. Of course, that may be beyond his judicial prerogatives.

Let's not leave the impression that all this common-law activity is solely among the Negroes. In our Lend-a-Hand work we come onto it everywhere.

* * *

Must Get Care

THE REAL EVIL in these casual arrangements is that children will be brought into a bewildering world. I think it is pretty terrible to give birth to innocent children with three strikes on them. I think it's unfair also to our nation, to citizens who pay taxes with which to feed — all too inadequately — these little ones.

God creates us all with equal rights. But such parents foredoom their offspring. God and our fair nation decree that all men should be free. But of what value are pretty words when parents and an indifferent society make those children slaves of hunger, cleanliness, love?

I know Negro educators and ministers are fully aware of these things. I know they deplore them and say, "We are making strides." The road still is long. For these children must be cared for some way. That means welfare aid, which is woefully inadequate, yet tremendously expensive.

THE SECRET of good health, says this spry 82-year-old gentleman, is not to overindulge in food. Anthony Krvavica has heeded that policy since he came to this country from Austria in 1903 with less than $50 in his pockets. Being nearly broke didn't deter him; he studied pharmacy in night school in Chicago, then went on to operate his own drug store. Now retired, he lives with his daughter in Chicago. But every year he takes an extended vacation. Last year he went to Europe and Africa. This year he picked Florida.

State Fair Talk Puts Collins Out on Limb

By JOHN L. BOYLES
Capitol Bureau Chief

TALLAHASSEE — Did Gov. LeRoy Collins' Tampa State Fair speech hurt his chances to accomplish much of his legislative program in the forthcoming session next April?

BOYLES

Collins said he would make some political enemies but he was going to try to convince the people that there is no legislative magic that can solve the state's racial problems.

Reaction from legislators has been mixed but few of them want to concede there is no hope for further legislation to slow down, if not altogether halt school integration.

Unless the governor's committee on race relations recommends some change in the state's pupil assignment law, it is extremely doubtful Collins will lend his support to any new law in the field of segregation.

His recent remarks were reminiscent of his message to the 1957 legislature, when he said, "Thus far, the legislative program which you approved in the special session last year has proved entirely adequate in the field of race relations. I repeat my conviction that this legislation is the best that any Southern state has devised. I do not recommend that it be changed or that we go beyond it. Competent counsel advise that going further might only destroy its integrity."

On the other hand, Collins said then and has since reaffirmed the view that integration is not the paramount need of the Negro citizen.

"Negro citizens," he told the Legislature two years ago, "are woefully lacking in the most important areas of health, education, employment and housing."

* * *

Several Agree

THERE ARE perhaps several key legislators who privately agree with the governor that, as he put it, "stand-up-and-fight talk," won't make the U.S. Supreme Court decisions go away. But they are afraid to agree publicly. They aren't sure the voters would accept it.

Unfortunately, this situation may permit the heated issue of segregation to obscure the need for reforms in other areas of government extremely vital to all citizens.

* * *

Industry Moves

ECONOMY and voter appeal are not the only reasons behind the desire of many legislators to hold the line against new taxes.

National reports show that states boosting taxes are losing out in the competition for new industry. Michigan, hard-hit by the 1958 recession which crippled the auto industry, is piling up new taxes to meet the added burden of jobless claims. Small industries which might absorb some of the unemployed are leaving the state because of the unfavorable tax climate.

If Florida continues to grow as rapidly as it has in the past decade it is going to need more industry—both big and small — to provide jobs for those new citizens.

* * *

No Compromise

DESPITE all the furor over the hiring of retired federal prison employes by State Prison Director R. O. Culver the Legislature is expected to support most of the prison program.

A good number of lawmakers seem convinced Culver has made progress in revamping the state's prison system. Culver may be a little more diplomatic than before but he doesn't appear to be the kind of a career man who will compromise for the sake of politics.

Comments on the News

HERE'S WHAT other Miami Herald columnists have to say about current events and personalities:

DAVID LAWRENCE, on Khrushchev's speech to the 21st Communist Party Congress: "It was designed, of course, to show the strength and progress of the Soviets in their competition with the West. But it betrays the anxieties, the worries—indeed, the fears—of the Kremlin that the people any day may take things into their own hands and sweep the present 'czar' from his post."

* * *

WALTER LIPPMAN, on the defense budget: "Secretary McElroy's assurances about our over-all strength are quite unconvincing. For nobody is prepared to believe that by a wonderfully lucky coincidence the money needed for national defense is just the amount of money we can afford to spend if the budget is to be balanced without raising taxes."

* * *

ROBERT RUARK, on African unrest: "It will not be the bush native who throws Central Africa into turmoil, but it will be the majority of unsophisticated tribesmen who will suffer if the white man is suddenly thrust out and the rule of this country left to the opportunists, who have in the past generally proven more ruthless against their own people than the more benevolent white colonist."

* * *

WESTBROOK PEGLER, on limiting the terms of union presidents: "There are many reasons why such tenure never will be so limited. But the chief one is that the union racket is a privilege conceded by the political parties and never yet brought to book."

2-Edged Job For Lobbies

By JOHN B. McDERMOTT
Herald Political Writer

Lobbyists and special interest pressure groups may find the 1959 Florida Legislature the most unusual they have ever had to deal with.

The task for one segment of the "pressure" brigade will be relatively simple. For the other, the job ahead will be rough.

McDERMOTT

The reason?

Florida this year is faced with the problem of holding the line on new taxes while at the same time meeting demands of a state growing faster than most any other in the country.

That means lobbyists whose function is to protect their clients from additional taxes will have a sympathetic ear from the lawmakers. But those whose job it is to milk additional appropriations from the state will find the opposition stiffer.

This is not to say there won't be any new taxes. Not since the "limited" sales tax act was passed in 1949 has Florida gotten by without some expansion of this assessment. Chances are there will be another broadening of the sales tax, although probably limited to the closing of loopholes in the already existing structure.

It is a virtual certainty that there will be no sweeping legislation, such as a grocery tax which would strike the pocketbooks of every family in the state.

School teachers, who have a potent lobby and have successfully been able to obtain substantial salary increases during the last sessions—they deserved it—may make a pitch for another hike. This probably will be only a token effort to soften the legislators for 1961.

Many governmental agencies will ask for major expansions even though they know the odds are stacked against them. Again, however, the softening technique for 1961 will be in their minds.

As for the lobbyists who try to protect such things as the automobile, the timber, the mineral and the various other industries and public utilitities from additional taxation, these fellows should find the going to their liking. In fact, they are in good position to pitch for a reduction in the assessments levied against them. Not that they would stand much chance of success, but at least they won't have to be battling for their lives this time.

From all advance indications, this latter group may have the opportunity to wage an offensive fight instead of being on the defensive throughout the session.

* * *

Special Interests Pitching

STATE REP. George L. Hollahan reports the advance sales pitches by special interest groups this year are the heaviest he can recall. Sen. Joe Eaton and Reps. Cliff Herrell and David Eldredge all report being flooded with invitations to meet with organizations, both local and statewide, which are interested in specific types of legislation.

Among those with irons in the legislative fire are some South Dade growers, unhappy with the Avocado and Lime Commission; the medical associations and the naturopaths, who have squared off again now that the Supreme Court has ruled unconstitutional the 1957 law curbing naturopaths; the certified public accountants who are feuding with the public accountants; the chambers of commerce, which want a repeal of the intangible tax law.

There are countless others.

The unhappy South Dade growers, for example feel that too much of the 10-cents per crate assessment against them is spent for administrative costs and too little for advertising to benefit the industry.

* * *

Preview March 2 and 3

A PREVIEW of what Dade County can anticipate in the legislative session can be seen when the Dade legislators hold public hearings March 2 and 3 in the City Commission chambers of the Municipal Building. Individuals wishing to propose legislation may contact the delegation's attorney, Moie J. L. Tendrich, at 311 Lincoln Rd.

* * *

Orr's Firm Dissolving

IN OTHER developments, the Miami law firm of Orr, Weiss and Simon is dissolving. John B. Orr Jr., former legislator, is moving to Miami Beach with Lawrence Lazar. Sherman Weiss, former director of the Legislative Research Bureau, will go to Hollywood in partnership with Ex-House Speaker Ted David. Stuart Simon plans to open his own office . . . A number of Latin American leaders in Miami have put out feelers for Attorney Nester Morales as a possible governor candidate in 1960. Morales is an extremely high type individual, civic minded and undoubtedly would be a credit to any job he might hold. But from a practical political viewpoint, he wouldn't stand a chance of winning in the big race.

Several minority leaders, including the Latin Americans, are reported banding together with the hope of making more of an impact in politics. They feel they get attention from the office-seekers during the campaigns, only to be forgotten afterwards . . . Election of Dade State Attorney Richard Gerstein as president of the Florida Procescuting Attorneys Association is a remarkable tribute to the Miami man. Small county prosecutors heavily outnumbered the large, and the small counties had a candidate in State Attorney J. Frank Adams of Blountstown. Gerstein immediately moved after his own election to nominate Adams for vice president. Adams was accorded that honor . . . Look for the Florida League of Municipalities to push for a constitutional amendment which would make Florida eligible for urban renewal.

News Along Realty Row

ROSEN

He hit the million - dollar mark in 1958 and beat out Jack Perry by a $50,000 margin.

It was Perry who took the gold trophy the last two years.

THE BIRTHDAY BOY lighting up is Fred A. Gates of 2436 SW 22nd Ter. He marked his 91st birthday this week at a party given at the Eden Roc Hotel by Paul Caspers, the man with the flame. Gates is retired president of McKey & Poague, one of Chicago's largest realty firms. He gave Caspers his first job 42 years ago and Caspers was office manager when he resigned in 1931 to set up his own company.

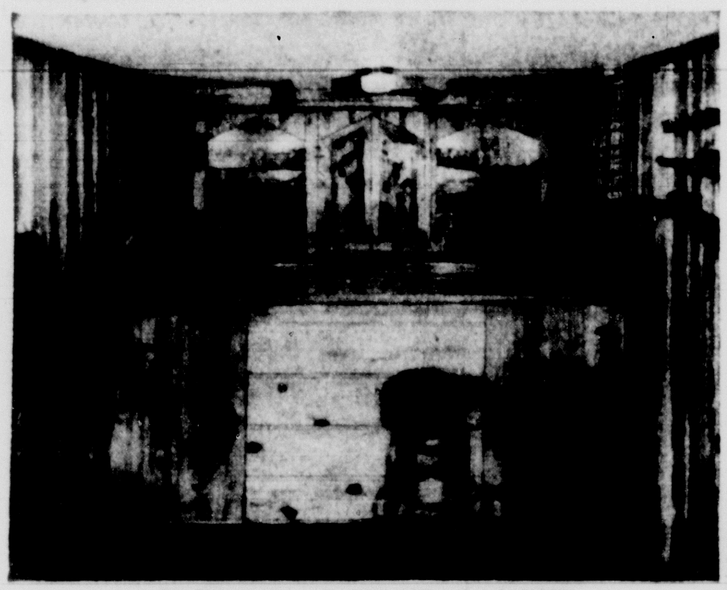
BUILD IT YOURSELF WITH CRAFT PATTERNS

BY A. NEELY HALL

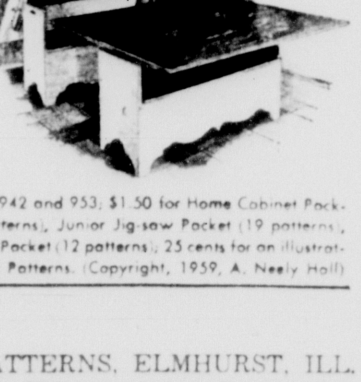


953 SNACK BAR WITH SINK AND WALL CABINETS

★ A snack bar will solve your recreation room refreshment problem. Add cabinets at the back for glassware and trophies, if you like, and a sink below the counter. Length is optional. If you extend the bar from wall to wall, as in the illustration, make a door in front and hinge the counter end to lift. Craft Pattern 953 shows how to build a simple framework for the bar, how to cover it, and how to finish the counter with plastic or linoleum. Concealed lights are provided for the shelves.

For Home Entertainment

942 A TENNIS TABLE THAT CONVERTS TO HUTCH BENCHES



★ Because of floor space required for a tennis table, we have designed this model with tilting top to convert to a pair of hutch benches after use. The benches will be invaluable for extra seating in the recreation room or on the patio; and, for snacks, one may be reconverted to a table. The bench seats are hinged to open, for storage of game equipment. The playing surface and the benches are of plywood panels. Craft Pattern 942 shows building details, with all irregularly shaped parts in full size.

★ Send 35 cents each for the Craft Patterns 942 and 953; $1.50 for Home Cabinet Packet (22 patterns), Bird House Packet (17 patterns), Junior Jig-saw Packet (19 patterns), Senior Jig-saw Packet (21 patterns), Windmill Packet (12 patterns); 25 cents for an illustrated catalog of more than 850 different Craft Patterns. Designer Snarls at Architects

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The Home Section will be happy to have architects answer the charge that they have become uninspired draftsmen for builders)

By VIVIAN BROWN

Associated Press News Feature

NEW YORK — If you want to make industrial designer Paul McCobb burn with fury, just mention the word "architect."

"The ruination of the face of America" he is likely to snort with incredulous despair. It isn't that all architects are bad, he says. It's just that "so few are good."

The well-known designer of architectural styled furniture claims:

"Most architects work purely to earn a living. They refer to themselves as creative people, but they aren't. They are draftsmen for builders, but will blame the builder if something goes wrong.

"The truth is the average architect is not taught during his schooling what goes on inside a house so he doesn't know. And you'd believe that, if you visited some of them in their own homes."

* * *

ACRE AFTER acre of houses are styled merely for size and appearance, not for living, McCobb asserts. "The builder decides a house should be so big for his plot of land, and the architiect draws a pretty picture to size, and presto, there's a house, but just try to live in it."

Lack of imagination is rampant in architectural circles as the split level ranch type house illustrates, he says.

"They latched on to that design with gusto, so most contemporary houses are alike, except for the gimmicks to attract women — lanterns, picket fences, fireplaces, outdoor barbecues," he points out.

* * *

WOMEN BUY houses emotionally, says McCobb. They should sit down and methodically figure out what they need. Instead, they fall for the architect's props.

"The light fixture or bookcase or some other thing that one could install or build for $50 often becomes the main selling point of an expensive home. The salesmen concentrates on telling his customer how to work out buying the house, and a sale is made."

McCobb has no objection to good selling techniques, but wishes women would concentrate on the important needs in a home, maybe to influence future home building.

* * *

"THE AVERAGE postwar house is mainly panels, tape and plaster. Women shop around, inviting themselves to be sold, but do not carry with them some of the useful information published on heating, equipment, roofing and other important considerations." He suggests you should ask yourself questions like these:

What will the house look like outside when it is finished? Are there enough closets? How will guests enter the house? Will the bathroom be near the children's bedroom? How will the delivery boy enter the house? Is the kitchen roomy as well as gadget happy?

A home should be more than what a builder sees, McCobb says. It is where your children will grow, where their personalities will develop, and where you will entertain. These are the main considerations in purchasing a home.

* * *

MANY ARCHITECTS do not even know the size of a bed or what the average distance of a front door step should be, he claims, yet they are responsible for building codes.

Ridiculously conceived homes are cramping the style of furniture designers, who McCobb says are many years ahead of architects in ideas.

"The average good furniture designer, unlike architects, takes into consideration all features of a project before he puts his designs into operation. These days he may be at a loss to know how to advance as he is stymied by bad room planning."

Most of the country's good architects are working on industrial things, one reason why tomorrow's home, he says "will be influenced by the design of today's factory."

MONTMARTRE HOTEL on the ocean at 47th St. in Miami Beach opens officially this weekend. The $7 million resort was designed for Harry Singer by Melvin Grossman. Robert L. Turchin was the contractor for the 300-room hotel which is situated on 500 feet of ocean frontage. Masterpiece of the decor is the life size statue of the French actress in the Bardot cocktail lounge.

PLANTERS FOR PATIO or porch require some knowledge of carpentry, it's true — but not as much as you think. Limit the length of each individual planter to six feet or less if you want to keep them "portable." Redwood, since it weathers well, is a good wood to use in this sub-tropical climate.

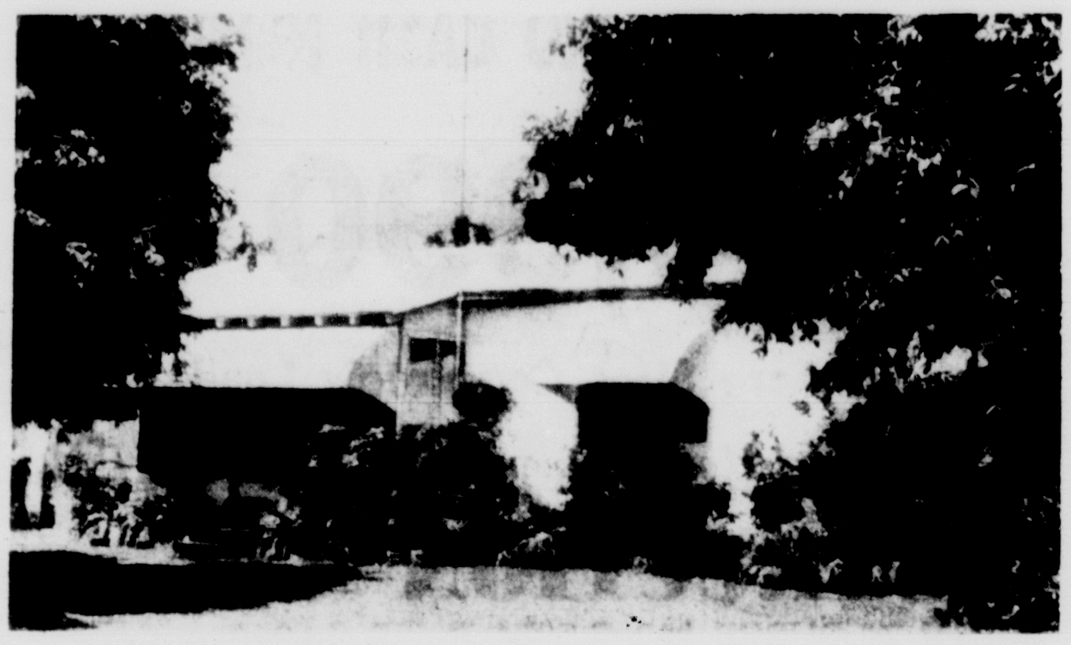
What's Your Home Worth on Today's M[illegible]

INTERIOR DESIGNER Homer Shrewsbury is the new owner of this three-bedroom, two-bath home at 970 Hunting Ridge Dr., Miami Springs. He purchased it from C. H. Terry of the Atlantic Discount Co. in Jacksonville for $30,500. There's a screen-enclosed pool. Max Massat and Mac D. Moore of the Keyes Co. and Pat Palgon cooperated on the deal.

CORNER LOT which can be used as a duplex site was a sales feature when this two-bedroom home changed hands. Mr. and Mrs. Casey Hartman paid Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Dalziel $8,000 for the dwelling. Florida Realty Bureau handled the transfer of property between the Hartmans and the Dalziels. Address of the home is 803 NW 51st St.



LARGE LOT, 100 by 160 feet, generously landscaped with shade and fruit trees, helped sell this three-bedroom, one-bath home at 1631 NW 32nd Ave. for $16,500. Mr. and Mrs. A. Suili purchased it from William Breidenbach. Realtor George Fronk's office negotiated the transaction.

FURNISHINGS WERE included in price paid for this two-bedroom, one-bath home at 1641 NW 34th Ave. John Dee Hutto Jr. purchased the dwelling from Mr. and Mrs. Scott Leinenbach for $12,500. Sylva Van Balen of Gilbert Realty handled the sale of the house.

Trade-About's Fair Pay

THEY TRADED — but not quite even. Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Gresham are the former owners of this three-bedroom, two-bath home at 18920 NW 11th Ave., which now belongs to Mrs. Elizabeth Morris, former owner of the five-bedroom, two-bath home at right. And, you guessed it, the Greshams now own Mrs. Morris' home. Carl K. Boyer, sales manager of Suburban Realty handled the switch. The coral rock home at 1905 NE 167th St., where the Greshams now reside, was built about 30 years ago. It has a guest house in back. Mrs. Morris put a sales price of $19,500 on the property. The Greshams' former home, a three-level dwelling, is three years' old. They priced it at $18,900. A difference of $600 was involved in the trade between the owners of the two properties.

A Real Pro Puts Mackle On the Map

By BEN FUNK
Associated Press Staff Writer

IN THE LAST YEAR in newspapers and magazines, there has appeared a rash of stories about Port Charlotte, a real estate development on the west coast of Florida.

It is the kind of publicity windfall every business concern dreams about but rarely gets. The man who produced it is Thomas Addis Ferris of Key Biscayne, a jovial, 51-year-old Irishman who is publicity director for the Mackle brothers.

When Port Charlotte was started, Ferris drew the job of naming the streets. Darned nuisance, he thought.

Then an idea hit him. Letters poured out to newspaper publishers, editors, columnists and reporters, solemnly advising each that a Port Charlotte street had been named in his honor.

"I have been had," one columnist declared.

"In this business, we soon learn to detect and reject the sly tricks of the publicity man. But how can you fight a thing like this?"

When Ferris was hired five years ago, the Mackles operated only in Florida and were capitalized at five million dollars. Today, they run General Development Corp. which is listed on the American Stock Exchange and worth $100 million.

How much of the credit for this phenomenal growth should go to Tom Ferris, the publicity man? Plenty, say the Mackle brothers—Frank, Robert and Elliott.

"We were builders, not promoters," says Robert Mackle, "Five years ago, we were thinking only of Florida. Tom Ferris sold us on the world. Now we have customers all over America and abroad.

"Every morning, Tom comes into our office with a score of ideas for promoting the product — good, sound ideas. He never stops selling. He travels, talking to labor unions, civic groups and anybody else who will listen."

Ferris told the story of his client in a way that was sincere and interesting.

'Florida used to be just a rich man's playground," he argues. "All over the country, thousands of people dream of moving to Florida, but they feel it is priced beyond their reach. That was true once, but not any more.

It was a story an editor could buy. Feature articles on Port Charlotte appeared in newspapers and magazines and the story was told on nationwide television and radio.

Once, while taking a group of visitors on a tour of the Mackle headquarters, he led them into an office and found its occupant under his desk fixing something. Only his feet were visible.

"This is Mr. Juliano, one of our auditors," Ferris said, quietly. "He has a little problem with early-morning wine drinking."

The guests gasped and the tour went on.

After going to sea as a youngster and toiling three years on freighters, Ferris got a newspaper job. He worked for the Newark Ledger, Toledo Blade and the Associated Press. Then publicity man Steve Hannagan hired him.

It was Hannagan who made Miami Beach — "where it's June in January" — the world's most successful Winter resort. Ferris topped Hannagan by selling the "two weeks with pay" worker on the idea that Miami Beach also is a great summer vacation spot.

Some of the most effective stunts of a good publicity man are hilariously simple. Once, at the Lord Tarleton Hotel, Ferris noticed an aquarium filled with tropical fish on the lobby wall.

On an impulse, he removed the fish from one tank, leaving only clear water. Then he concealed a rubber tube which was fixed so that every 30 seconds it would release a tiny burst of air.

Over the tank, he hung this sign: Invisible Fish, Loaned to the Lord Tarleton Hotel by Sir Robert Cunningham of the British Society of Ichthyologists.

Soon the lobby was packed with people. When the tube spurted air and bubbles broke the surface, the watchers would yell in concert:

"There she goes!"

Public Relations Director Tom Ferris of the Mackle Co. at Work

. . . his three bosses agree he's done a big job for them

Some claimed they could see the fish. One of these said it was necessary to kneel down and look up through the tank. Another argued that a straightaway stare was best.

During the week the "invisible fish" were on display, business in the lobby bar near the fish tank increased by $400 a day.

Ferris closed his agency with enough money to retire, lost it in bad investments, then landed a high-paying job as publicity director for a northern firm. But Ferris had sold himself on Florida. He resigned and headed South, stony broke.

In an unemployment office at Pompano Beach, he got a job driving a cement truck at $60 a week. With a wife and two sons to support, it was rough going, but Ferris never lost his rich sense of humor.

His truck route took him past a Seminole Indian village. Once, he borrowed his sons' toy arrows, stuck them in the sides of his truck and raced into Pompano Beach shouting that the Seminoles were on the warpath. It took the town a while to recover from that.

One day Ferris swapped his truck for an executive office in the Mackle building. It was a big step upward, but not too big for a publicity man who knows his way around.

Lincoln Topic of Dr. Mudd

A grandson of Dr. Samuel A. Mudd, the physician who set the broken leg of John Wilkes Booth, assassin of Abraham Lincoln, will talk to the Historical Association of Southern Florida at 8 p.m. Thursday.

DR. MUDD

Dr. Richard D. Mudd, an industrial physician in Saginaw, Mich., will speak on "The Lincoln Assassination and Imprisonment of the Conspirators at Fort Jefferson."

The meeting will be at Coral Gables High School, 450 Bird Rd. There is no admission charge and the public is invited.

Illustrated with slides, Dr. Mudd's talk will tell of events leading to the assassination, Booth's escape and pursuit, the trial and his grandfather's imprisonment at Fort Jefferson on Dry Torugas, his escape and capture.

The speaker is a colonel in the Air Force Reserve and flight surgeon for the 403rd Troop Carrier Wing. He also is the author of many articles and books, including the volume, The Mudd Family of the United States.

At Dinner Key

City to Get Coast Guard Air Reserve

A Coast Guard reserve aviation support unit will be established here.

Rear Adm. W. W. Kenner, commander of the Seventh Coast Guard District, said the unit will be at Dinner Key and will work with Coast Guard station personnel, assisting in search and rescue missions. It also will assist in ground support and maintenance.

Needed in the new unit are former Coast Guardsmen who held aviation ratings. The unit will meet on alternate Sundays on a paid 48-hour drill basis with two weeks active training duty each year.

Those interested should apply to the director of reserves, 150 SE Third Ave., or to the local Coast Guard recruiter, FR 9-1871.

The air station has at least one plane and one helicopter ready for takeoff at all times. Last year the Miami station took part in 477 assistance cases. Missions included aid to pleasure boats and commercial vessels in distress, rescue of hunters lost in the Everglades and help to others at sea or ashore.

'Barbudos' Who Won War Also Aid Civilians

Fierce Cuban Beards Hide Gentle Faces

By ROBERT GRUENBERG
Miami Herald-Chicago News Wire

Fidel Castro's "barbudos" (bearded ones) will long be remembered in Cuba as one of the few revolutionary armies that has not taken what it wanted when victorious. The soldiers are all around Havana, mostly doing police duty to preserve order, and only one shot—an accidental firing—has been heard in two weeks. But the beginning of the end of a good army may be in sight.

HAVANA, Cuba — Don't let the beards frighten you.

The world will remember the revolutionary armies of Fidel Castro by the shaggy, unkempt growth stretching from ear to ear and by shoulder-length hair.

The Cubans will remember the semi-ragged rebeldes (rebels) because they overthrew what appeared to be an invincible island military power.

But also, they will be remembered after they lose their beards and crop their hair, because they are different from any other army with which the Latin is familiar.

These "barbudos" (bearded ones) are gentle.

They are all around Havana, downtown as well as in the residential sections, where they may be guarding the home of a vanished Batista official against looting.

Some are directing traffic along with the Boy Scouts because the Batista police force has been broken up, is in hiding, or is simply out of a job.

When you seek directions, they are anxious to help. Sometimes, too much so.

In their loosely knit group there is a tremendous discipline. They are not allowed to accept drinks or money.

A reporter, grateful for the guidance around the sprawling, maze-like La Cabana fortress last week, offered a rebel soldier a slight payment, a token of appreciation.

"No, No, Senor, We do not accept it," he said.

Such a display is in itself revolutionary, where soldiers have been known to take what they want, when they want it, without pay of any sort.

These men pay for everything they want, you are told.

In the early days of revolutionary V-Day, Jan. 1, approximately 200 ragged, dusty rebel soldiers were at the plush, luxurious Havana Riviera Hotel, guns, beards and all.

Said Nat Kahn, an administrative aide at the place: "If anyone was better behaved I don't know of them.

"These country boys were so tired that they just went to sleep — on the floor. They didn't want to make the beds dirty.

Guns — old Springfield rifles and M-1 Garands smuggled in from the U. S., and Dominican arms captured from Batista soldiers, are everywhere in sight.

But this reporter has heard only one go off accidentally in two weeks.

Also, last week, a reporter, for the first time, saw a group of about 40 rebel soldiers being marched — and broken in — to the top sergeant's singsong, "hut-two-three-fo'."

Getting Into Jail Wasn't So Easy

KLAGENFURT, Austria — (AP) — Surprised guards found Josef Dralota, 21, recently released after serving time, squirming in pain on the ground inside the jail walls.

He explained that he had climbed back in to deliver a belated farewell gift of cigarets to friends inside, who get no tobacco ration.

He fell from the 20-foot wall and broke bones in both his feet. In his pockets were hundreds of cigarets.

Now he's serving a brief new term for breaking into jail.

Never Missed In 40 Years

LINDEN, N. J. —(UPI)— Benjamin W. Kanzler, an employe of the Esso Research and Engineering Co. here, celebrated 40 years' service with the company.

During that time, he didn't miss a day of work. He once did leave the job because of illness, but was back next day.

Kennan Fans Flames Under Europe Debate

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — George F. Kennan, former U.S. ambassador to Russia, is embroiled in another dispute over Free World tactics to be pursued in the cold war.

Controversy is nothing new to him. For almost two years now, Kennan has been advocating a policy of disengagement by both sides to ease tensions in Europe.

Early this month, Kennan expounded on his views in testimony before the Senate foreign relations subcommittee on disarmament. His testimony is expected to add new fuel to the policy debate.

That there be disengagement by Russia as well as the U.S.

That there be no one-side concessions on the part of the Free World but only in exchange for concessions by the Kremlin.

That any agreement with Russia must have built-in safeguards which would automatically apply in event of violations.

That should a general European agreement be reached with Russia, the U.S. must be prepared to go to war to protect Germany in event that nation is threatened by Soviet violations of the pact.

His argument is based on the assumption that a complete stalemate has developed in the cold war over Europe.

But Kennan sees nothing wrong with creating a neutralized Germany, one in which the major powers, over a long period, would slowly and methodically withdraw. Such a neutralized Germany, with military ties neither to the West or East, would be allowed to have sufficient ground forces to protect her borders, but not atomic weapons.

Kennan believes the West can afford such a concession on the ground that atomic bases in Germany are not vitally important because of the development of missiles with greater range.

In return, we should demand that the Russians withdraw their forces from Eastern European satellites, allowing those nations to move toward greater national independence.

* * *

Sir Laurence Olivier's leading lady in Shakespeare's Richard III was evacuated from London during the blitz and spent 1940 in Fort Lauderdale, later moving to New York. She first became known to American audiences as the dancer in Chaplin's "Limelight." Juliet is her favorite role. Claire's mother changed the spelling of the family name from Blume.

We Congratulate

Mom's Convinced Now That Television Has Influence on Children

HOUSTON, Tex. — (UPI) — Mrs. J.L. Alexander of Houston is now convinced that television has an influence on children, especially on her three-year-old daughter Vicki.

Mrs. Alexander reports that when she mentioned Vicki's grandmother to the youngster one day, the girl asked, "Where is my grandmother?" When Mrs. Alexander explained that grandmother had died many years ago, Vicki pondered a moment and asked: "Who shot her?"

'Over-the-Horizon' Transmission Is Forerunner

Worldwide TV Seen in 10 Years

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
United Press International

NEW YORK — Worldwide television . . . how soon?

"Perhaps within 10 years," says Edmond H. Leavey, president of International Telephone and Telegraph Corp., a former major general in the U.S. Army, and one of the nation's foremost experts in communications.

"By one electronics development or another, worldwide television can be a reality within a generation — perhaps within 10 years," he said. "The major problems have been solved, so this method of global communications could come as quickly as capital is made available and the relay stations are built."

A second question was: what will this mean to the world?

"Obviously, worldwide TV would bring a better understanding among all free nations of the world," said Leavey.

"Conceivably it could mean the development of a universal language and, eventually, it should lead to an unprecedented era of peace which I am sure all men, in their hearts, desire."

Already, the electronics industry has made "international television" possible, marking a big stride toward worldwide television. This was accomplished through "over-the-horizon" transmission, a technique pioneered by I.T.&T.

The first commercial television of "O-H," as it is termed, came on Sept. 13, 1957, when a program originating in the U.S. was seen in Cuba for the first time through this technique.

Explaining how this technique works, Leavey said.

"Envision the world surrounded by a gaseous blanket, five to ten miles above the surface of the earth. This is the troposphere. Television signals, 'shot from a powerful transmitter, strike the gaseous layer. Some of the signals move out into space.

"Some signals are scattered forward and drop to the earth, where they are captured by highly sensitive receivers, given new strength and transmitted on to a television station which broadcasts the program to its viewers."

In other words, "O-H" signals can be bounced from one land mass to another.

With "O-H" transmission now working smoothly between Florida and Cuba — over a 187-mile link from Florida City, Fla., to Guanabo, Cuba, just south of Havana — its future possibilities excite the imagination. Electronics experts believe it is only a question of time when this service will be worldwide.

The next step in the direction of worldwide TV, according to scientists, might be the establishment of a series of transmitters and receivers which would take the shortest route across the top of the world via land masses, with "O-H" transmitters shooting signals from one country to another.

In Europe at present there is a TV network called Eurovision. It's a system whereby one European country transmits to another by TV — not on a regular basis but only on big events such as the coronation of the pope.

Eventually, Eurovision could serve as a terminal for trans-Atlantic communication from America in the establishment of worldwide television.

Now that international television is in operation between the U.S. and Cuba, the next step could be to set up an all-Spanish - language network which would embrace Cuba, Mexico, Haiti, the Dominican Republic and Puerto Rico.

This service could later be extended down from Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, to the Argentine.

Cancer Patient Gets Treatment With Cobalt Therapy Unit
. . . $100,000 device installed at Hialeah Hospital helps treatment

Hospital Installs Cobalt Therapy Unit

By EDDIE GONG
Herald Staff Writer

The latest advance in cancer treatment equipment, a $100,000 cobalt therapy unit, has been installed at Hialeah Hospital.

The second of its type to be located in Dade County, it was put into operation the same day and gamma ray treatments were administered to a cancer patient.

It has a power output equal to a three-million-volt X-ray machine.

"We will now be able to destroy cancers located deep inside a patient without danger of destroying normal, healthy tissue," said Don Welch, director of the hospital.

The unit has a receptacle which contains small wafers of radioactive cobalt produced in a nuclear reactor.

The machine is designed to pinpoint its cancer-killing rays on any place on the patient's body. This is done by revolving the cobalt on a giant arm or holding it in a stationary position.

Installation of the cobalt unit is part of a $350,000 expansion program undertaken by the private hospital which was founded in 1951 by the Church of the Seventh Day Adventists.

Additions to the blood bank, laboratories, and emergency room facilities have also been made.

Cramer Offers Bill to Add Jurists

U.S. Court Attaches Here Find Third Judge Essential

By ARTHUR JOHNSEY
Herald Staff Writer

RTIN CRAMER

The need for more than one additional permanent federal judge for the Southern Florida district cannot now be questioned, in the opinion of U.S. Attorney James Guilmartin.

He and court authorities here pointed to the mounting burden on the District Courts as a new bill was introduced in Congress for a new South Florida judgeship.

Republican Rep. William C. Cramer, sponsoring the bill, has offered it in the last two sessions of Congress.

"The need for expeditious justice for the people of Florida or any state should not become a political football," Cramer said.

Few observers expect the heavily Democratic Congress to make it possible for President Eisenhower to name new federal judges so close to the end of his administration.

Swift population growth in Florida and the multiplicity of federal agencies may be throwing a heavier strain on the overburdened courts in the district extending from Jacksonville south than elsewhere.

A report by the administrative head of the federal court system showed that 207 civil and criminal trials in the Southern District of Florida in one year were only three less than the highest for any district in the U.S.

There are in the district five permanent judges, of whom two are in the Miami division. The report shows that District Judge Emett Choate, chief judge of the Miami division, heard 29 per cent of the district total during nine months of the fiscal year.

Judge Choate alone tried two times as many as the northern district of New York. He tried five times as many cases as all federal courts in some of the smaller states.

On Dec. 31, 1958, there were 877 pending civil cases despite strenuous efforts of the judges to keep ahead.

This was 210 more than the number of civil cases pending at the end of 1957. And 1957 showed an increase over the prior year.

To cut down on the backlog, three visiting judges now are assigned to Miami. Circuit Judge John D. Martin and District Judges Robert N. Wilkin and C. C. Wyche are assigned to aid Choate and District Judge Joseph P. Lieb.

But the attack on the big backlog of cases also has put new burdens on court administration.

Filing has become burdensome as lawyers bring in multiple pleadings.

Landscaper Is Dreamer

By NIXON SMILEY
Herald Farm and Garden Editor

I'VE OFTEN WONDERED about what influences people most when they plan the landscaping for their home grounds.

How much are people influenced by neighbors' gardens, or by photographs of gardens in newspapers, magazines or books?

How much are they influenced by the striking gardens being designed today by the leading landscape architects?

For the way people plan gardens depends on influences that go deeper and much further back in their lives than they generally realize.

The story books they read as children, nostalgic childhood scenes, daydreams that are carried into adulthood, scenic posters of "honeymoon castles" — all add their influences.

Another strong influence is the picture people have of the tropics — to them a land of perpetual warm sunshine, colorful flowers and lucious fruits.

* * *

Find Right Plants

THE PROBLEM in laying out a garden is to find the plants to implement the picture of the ideal setting that fills the mind in some vague, hazy and indefinable way.

Unfortunately it is beyond the ability of the home owner, 999 times out of a 1,000, to build this ideal garden.

Actually, there's nothing wrong with dreams. Perhaps the dreams of the artist, poet or great architect are not much different from what the rest of us dream.

But the difference between the artist and the rest of us is that the artist has worked hard for many years to implement his dreams — and not without many starts and disappointments and much soul-rending frustrations.

The main difference between genius and mediocrity is that the first will work hard to overcome frustrations while the second is satisfied to work as little possible.

* * *

Recognize Realism

WELL, NOW, YOU don't have to be a genius to make a satisfactory garden. You merely need first to court realism and to consider the limits of your abilities and the limits of your city lot.

But however you approach the making of a garden, it is mainly hard work, if not for you then for somebody else.

To plan a garden and follow through with the planting and growing of healthy plants requires study and work and work and study.

* * *

Mighty Fine Hobby

YOU CAN MAKE a hobby of your garden, as you might take up golf or crocheting, painting or miniature railroading, ceramics or flying.

And when you make a hobby of a thing, you don't mind spending money to buy books that give you more information about your special interest, and you don't mind so much shelling out money to buy the objects of your hobby — plants — and the necessary materials to care for them.

Garden Is Just an Outdoor Room

Some people now go to the expense of putting a roof over a part of their outdoor garden, and they call this part a patio.

Most of the out-of-doors which you call your garden remains uncovered, though, except for the sky above, which, in most instances, makes a better roof than we can make anyway.

Now if a garden is an extension of the house and is to be considered as an outdoor room, why not plan it as such?

Let's look on the grass as a soft rug. And what about the walls? What shall we do about them? And what about the interior decoration — or exterior decoration, if you insist?

The indoor living room of today is a place where people really live. A few years ago it was merely a parlor, where special company was taken only, and even them somewhat grudgingly.

But the modern living room is supposed to be a comfortable place for the family to gather in the evening. It should be a practical room, with much open space in the center, and with the furniture arranged so that there is a minimum of clutter.

* * *

MOST LIVING ROOMS have four walls, with appropriate doors and windows; with pictures and other decorative objects hung or placed according to the family's taste.

If we look upon the out-of-doors, or yard, as part of the home or as another living room, then the planning should be easier than where the garden is considered a separate thing.

As an outdoor room, with the earth as the floor and the sky as the ceiling, we must first consider how to build some walls.

But since the walls don't have to support anything (the sky can hold itself up very well), there is no need to have walls all around.

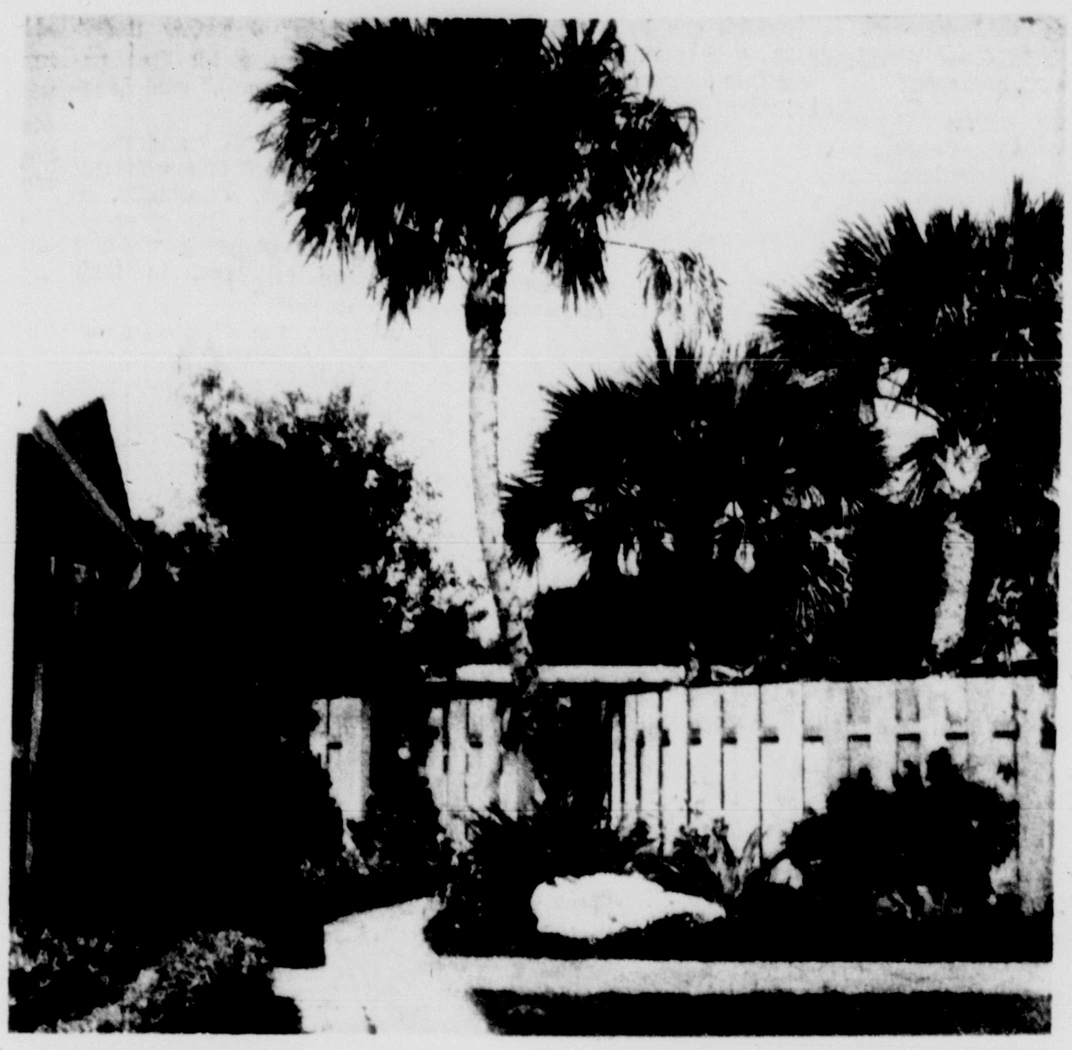
In the case of the outdoor room, we'll use the walls merely to mark the limits of the room and to provide a screen where needed which also are important functions of any wall in the home.

These walls about the garden may be made of living plants, or they may be made of stone, concrete or wood. Or they may be made of a combination of both, such as the training of vines on a fence.

* * *

AS IN THE CASE of the living room walls, the outdoor walls should be planned of material suitable for their functions.

They should serve as a screen (or maybe you like to exchange bug-eyes with your neighbor every time you step out of the house).



FENCES OR HEDGES may be made to serve the same purposes in gardens as walls are made to serve in the home. Here a cypress fence, or screen, divides the front garden from the rear garden, serving mainly for providing privacy. But the fence serves more than as a screen. It also provides background for plants, just as walls provide background for pictures and other interior decorations. Living screens can be used for the same purpose. How well you use such screening depends on your ability as a garden planner. This plan was done by the landscape architect, Frederic Stresau. —Herald Staff Photo by William Kuenzel

And, as in the case of the living room walls, they should serve as background for the setting for which they serve as background.

(You wouldn't paint the walls of your living room an acalypha red or a croton yellow — or would you?)

* * *

THE REST IS UP to you. With green living walls, for instance, you still have ample room for decorations — for the planting of gay ornamentals, and without cluttering up the middle of the green rug either.

As with the living room, the outdoor room offers endless possibilities for arrangement.

How well you do it will depend on how good an exterior decorator you are, or how much you are willing to pay to have it done by a professional exterior decorator—a landscape architect.

Big Orchid Show Opens Up Friday

Miami's 15th International Orchid Show will open its doors in Bayfront Park Auditorium at 3 p.m. Friday.

It will run through Saturday, Sunday and Monday, from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

SEYMOUR

The show's sponsors, members of the South Florida Orchid Society, are making claims that it will be "the best ever."

This year's theme is "Orchids—Nature's Masterpiece."

Seymour is dedicating his talents toward splashing this theme through the big auditorium with the help of tens of thousands of orchid bloom and tropical foliage plants used as handy props.

Both amateur, professional and commercial growers will be represented. All exhibits will be judged and winning ribbons will be in place by the time the show opens.

The International Orchid Show has grown from a small one-room exhibit until it has become the largest orchid show in the world.

And its growth has paralleled the rapid development of orchid growing in Florida, both from the standpoint of the amateur and the commercial grower.

There will be an admission charge.

* * *

Canadian Expert To Visit Gardens

Orchid enthusiasts now have another name to learn in this large family of plants—Teuscheria.

It is the name of a newly discovered orchid genus, and the new category was established in honor of Henry Teuscher, curator of the Montreal Botanical Garden.

Teuscher, one of the world's outstanding orchid growers and collectors, discovered the new genus in an Ecuadorean jungle during one of his periodic orchid hunts.

Teuscher, incidentally, is scheduled to visit Miami for three weeks, arriving in time to see the International Orchid Show which opens Friday in Bayfront Park Auditorium.

He will be a guest of the Fairchild Tropical Garden. He is scheduled to gove a lecture on his orchid-collecting experiences at 8 p.m. March 3 at the Fairchild Tropical Garden auditorium.

The Inquiring Gardeners Want to Know

Readers with queries should include a self-addressed stamped envelope. Limit queries to two or three. Complete specimens are required for identification, including a twig with foliage and flowers or fruit

* * *

QUESTION — Will you please identify the enclosed plant? I brought it from a neighboring vacant lot and planted it on the border of my garden. Now it has covered a large area and really looks good. But I'm worried. My neighbors laugh at me and say I'm cultivating a weed. Is this plant a weed? Should I dispose of it? — Mrs. V. R. Coral Gables.

ANSWER — Well, now what is a weed anyway? I'm asking you.

My own idea of a weed is that it is a plant you don't want. An ornamental is a desirable plant, if it is something you wish to grow. But an ornamental can become a weed if it gets in the way, and if you no longer want it.

Your plant is a common bryophyllum, and is widely grown in lots and gardens in the older areas of Coconut Grove and in Coral Gables. It's a good plant. It is a weed to some and an ornamental to others.

Since this plant apparently is serving you very well as an ornamental, I would recommend that you keep it. Let your neighbors to go cultivate their own weeds and you cultivate yours.

QUESTION — My mango tree is blooming, but the leaves are covered with lots of insects, like the leaves enclosed. What poison can I use to kill the insects? — Mr. C.C.A., Fort Lauderdale.

ANSWER — Don't apply insecticides to fruit trees while they are in bloom. You will kill the beneficial insects, the insects which help to pollinate the flowers and insure a set of fruit. Wait until after the fruit sets and spray with malathion.

QUESTION — My lychee tree lost its leaves last fall soon after it was planted. I'm worried. Does this tree go dormant: A neighbor suggested that it might. I paid $12 for the tree and would be furious if it is dead. — Mrs. Shelah R., Hollywood.

ANSWER — You might as well court patience. Your tree probably is dead — if it has been bare of leaves since last fall. Can't you tell when a twig is alive or dead? Break the bark with a thumb nail and see whether it is green beneath. If a twig is dry and brittle, then it can't be living.

QUESTION — Recently you ran an article about a booklet on hydroponics. I lost the item. Will you tell me where the booklet is published? — R.N. MacRae, Lake Worth.

ANSWER — The hydroponics booklet can be obtained from the State Department of Agriculture, Tallahassee, Fla. It is free.

QUESTION — Will you give me the name of a weed killer that will kill Bermuda grass? My St. Augustine grass is full of this pest. — Oscar Renney, Miami.

ANSWER — There is no weed killer that will kill Bermuda grass in St. Augustine without killing the St. Augustine.

QUESTION — Is the fittonia an indoor or outdoor plant? I bought one from the dime store but there was no instructions with it. — Mrs. Embers.

ANSWER — It's definitely for the indoors — the warm indoors. When the temperature drops below 45 this plant is in trouble.

QUESTION — The leaves of dichondra are turning yellow. First little spots get on the leaves and in a few days the leaves look like they are dying. What can I do?—Mrs. Effie Seabrook, Miami.

ANSWER — You might try spraying with the fungicide captan. This fungicide should be applied when the first signs of trouble are noted. Repeated applications must be made, according to directions, until the disease is fully controlled.

QUESTION — I have sprayed my ixora with iron, have applied chelated iron to the soil, have used gardenia fertilizer, have added magnesium sulphate, have applied aluminum sulphate and the leaves are still yellow. What now? — Signed: I've Had It.

ANSWER — I would pull up the plant and toss it out. Then I would mine the minerals and sell them and replace the spoil with good soil and replant a healthy ixora in this.

Let's face the facts: Stunted, sick plants can't always be rejuvenated. After you have given a plant a fair chance, then the best thing to do is remove it and replace it with a new, healthy one.

Only Waterfall Makes This Hit

—Herald Staff Photo By Steve Wever

WATER FALLING, old rocks, brick, African violets, tropical foliage and tropical fruits make up this scene in the closeup view of the John Connelly patio pool garden. It's the splashing of the cascading water that counts most. The other things are props. The rock is a feather-light volcanic material from the West. A hidden electrically driven pump circulates the water over the falls. The Shaw Nursery and Landscape Co. did the job.

* * *

ACTIVE WATER, such as a running brook, a splashing fountain or a waterfall, adds a touch to a garden that nothing else can.

Water long has been important in gardening. The courses of rivers were sometimes diverted through the estate gardens of English aristocrats when these fabulous places were being built in the 18th and 19th centuries.

Without the use of fountains the gardens of Versailles would be as lifeless and as cold as a Greenland landscape.

A few years ago only the very rich could afford to dig lakes in their gardens, or build massive fountains.

But the "big" landscape picture is no longer popular anyway, except in public parks. Today anyone can have a water display in the garden.

The water display can be a little pool, built to grow water plants and to reflect the trees and the sky. If it is an informal pool, a waterfall can be built in the background.

Or, if a formal pool, a jet of water can be shot into the air from the center, and the resulting splash on the surface of the pool can be enjoyed.

* * *

IF ONE IS NOT of a sentimental nature, a modern or functional three-step splash maker can be installed, which operates by spilling overflow water from a higher basin to lower basin.

In each instance the water may be circulated with the help of an electrically-driven pump, which can be cut on and off at will by flipping a conveniently located switch.

You can go a step further and install garden lighting to show up these water features in the evening. Light fixtures are now available which can be built underwater at the bottom of the pool.

* * *

HOW DO YOU build pools and install jets and erect waterfalls?

Well, now. Your library has gardening books which have designs and plans for building many kinds of pools.

You can make some minor changes if you wish to create your own design.

In the wrong place a pool can look silly. An informal pool, with waterfall stuck out in the middle of the yard, can look out of place.

And it's even worse where you have a stream cascading down a bunch of rocks which form part of the rock garden planted to cactus, agaves and other dryland plants.

Rivers go through deserts, it's true, but water and desert don't go together in a garden.

* * *

A BETTER IDEA is to have water cascading over rocks from what appears to be a tropical mountain forest.

Use palms, philodendrons and other rich foliage plants. Ferns also do well under such moist conditions.

The right location and design of a pool is not always easy. If you can afford it, better check with a landscape architect, or, better, turn the job over to him.

He will come up with an idea and follow through with it until you have a pool with splashing fountain or cascading water over rocks—whichever you prefer and your situation demands.

Dr. Dubos Will Speak At Garden

Dr. Rene J. Bubos, eminent scientist, author and staff member of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research, will speak at 8 p.m. Friday at the Fairchild Tropical Garden.

Dr. Dubos, one the world's noted bacteriologists, is expected to discuss his work in relation to the progress of medical research.

Although best known to the public for his book, "Louis Pasteur — Free Lance of Science," he is the author of several technical books dealing with microbes that cause disease.

He was born and educated in France and came to America in 1924 to work for a Ph. D. degree at Rutgers University. He was awarded his doctor's degree in 1927 for his research on the decomposition of organic matter in the soil.

Most of his research since 1927 has been in connection with medical bacteriology.

His lecture Friday will be the second this year in the annual Robert H. Montgomery science lecture series at the Fairchild Tropical Garden.

Dr. Oswald Tippo, chairman of the Yale University botany department, opened the two-lecture series Jan. 16 with a talk on "The Unfinished Business of Botany."

Dr. Dubos will be introduced by Dr. Robert T. Spicer, retired Miami Physician and formerly dean of the University of Miami school of medicine.

Old Cabbage Palm Is One of Beauty

An old cabbage palm might be a colorless tree to some folks, but not to Mrs. Sarah DeLord and her mother, Mrs. D. W. Miller, of 7990 SW 72nd Ave.

Fifteen years ago Mrs. Miller grafted some Christmas cactus into several stems of a snake cactus that was climbing up the tree.

And every year since she has kept on grafting the cactus until now when it blooms the palm is ablaze with brillian color.

Mrs. DeLord periodically sprays the cactus with orchid fertilizer.

"The snake cactus is no longer attached to the ground, but is growing in the boots of the palm," Mrs. DeLord said.

"It's spectacular when in bloom. Anybody can have the same, if they've got a cabbage palm."

Mangos Bloom More Than Once

There's nothing unusual for a mango tree to bloom twice in one season. Sometimes a mango may bloom four or five times in a year, and have as many crops of fruit. They're blooming now for the second time this season.

Landscape Architects Install Robert Neal

Robert L. Neal, Palm Beach landscape architect, has been installed as chairman of the Florida section of the American Society of Landscape Architects at a meeting in the Reef restaurant at Fort Lauderdale.

Installed as vice chairman was Bailey O. Breedlove, of Fort Lauderdale, while Donald P. Bowman, also of Fort Lauderdale, was installed as secretary-treasurer.

Guest speaker was Paul D. Colbenson, representative of the Douglas Fir Plywood association, of Clearwater, who discussed the advantages of using outdoor type plywood to build fences and patio enclosures and for other garden construction.

Iron May Help Sickly Ixora

Spraying with neutral iron may help to "green up" a sick and yellow ixora. But sometimes nothing will help. After plants get old and too far gone in decline to be rejuvenated, the best thing to do is yank them out and replant.

Kills Centipede

When you fertilize centipede grass even lightly you may be inviting trouble. But when you fertilize centipede grass heavily you are signing its death warrant.

Be Sure Fruit Is Edible One

The fruit of the daybloom and the nightblooming jessamine are toxic. Children should be discouraged from sampling any kind of fruit in the garden unless the identity of it is known for sure—and you know it is harmless.

Popenoe Back From Spain

That widely traveled plant explorer, Wilson Popenoe, has returned from Spain where he spent a year helping the Spanish government to establish a tropical fruit industry.

Dr. Popenoe and his wife, Helen, have hied it back to Antigua, Guatemala, where they own a fabulous 17th century home, widely publicized as a result of the book by Louis Adamic, "The House in Antigua."

But, in a letter to Ed Menninger, Florida publisher who was born in Topeka, Kan., the same place where Popenoe was born, he admitted having some trouble convincing the Spanish people that avocados were good to eat.

"All right," I told them, "but 50 million Latin Americans eat avocados and 50 million Latin Americans can't be wrong," Popenoe wrote to Menninger.

He told the Spaniards to raise avocados anyway, and if they wouldn't eat the fruit themselves they could sell to others who would.

"Hombre," he added, "that Mediterranean coast of Spain has a future for fruits like the avocado and lychee, and they can even grow mangos."

While in Europe he and his wife traveled to Greece and to Israel to look over possibliities for the tropical fruit industry.

"I didn't know Jews could be such wonderful horticulturists," he wrote, "but they are."

While in Spain he agreed to write a book in Spanish on tropical fruits, which he is expected to begin right away.

His first book, "The Manual of Tropical and Subtropical Fruits," published by Macmillan, is out of print. The current price is about $25 a copy for used volumes.

Before his retirement two years ago he was head of the Pan American Agricultural School in Honduras.

Dr. Popenoe's early years were spent as a plant explorer for the federal government. He did much to introduce the avocado industry to the United States.

AGRICO® PLANT FOODS
The new high organic fertilizers, made in Florida for Florida soils and growing conditions!
WHY FLORIDA SOIL NEEDS HIGH ORGANIC AGRICO
Because of its sandy, porous texture, Florida's soil continuously loses fertility through leaching. And this year-round depletion of plant nutrients is greatly aggravated by Florida's heavy summer rains. Here's how Agrico helps →
- Agrico plant foods restore organic material to depleted soils
- Agrico's organic nitrogen stays in your soil longer
- Agrico does the job with fewer applications, saves you time and money
- You get better, steadier growth using the right Agrico Fertilizer for each plant feeding job
- AGRICO FOR LAWNS, TREES AND SHRUBS 30% natural organic nitrogen—for a greener, healthier, deeper-rooted turf
- AGRINITE Natural Organic Nitrogen for year-round supplemental feeding
- AGRICO FOR GARDENS Gives you more and bigger blooms, bumper-crop vegetables
- AGRICO ROSE FOOD For big, beautiful, longer-lasting roses, even under Florida conditions

Indoor Plant Success Due To 4 Factors

SUCCESSFUL growing of indoor plants is not limited to the green-thumbed gardener who can "make anything thrive" or to the erudite student who can explain glibly the relationships between water, light and minerals in plant growth.

With a little knowledge of the nature of plants, backed up with a few simple rules, you can grow fine indoor plants without any real knowledge of dirt farming or of the complicated story of photosynthesis.

Let's consider four topics.

* * *

LIGHT—Green plants must have a source of light. The only plant that will grow in a dark closet is mold, just as mushrooms will grow in a dark cave.

But no green plants such as philodendron or a sanseviera will grow without light.

True, they will grow in subdued light, but if all the light is taken away they soon will die.

It will thrive in full sun, and in dry locations. It also will live in very subdued light, as in a rather darkened corner of your living room, or on a mantel far removed from the light of the nearest window.

An African violet, however, would quickly die in full sun, nor would it live long in the subdued light that a sanseviera will tolerate.

Thus each plant varies in its needs for light, and the home owner should know the light needs for each plant purchased for indoors.

Here is a list of several plants that will tolerate poor light conditions: Aglaonema, Dieffenbachia, Pandanus, Philodendron oxycardium (Philodendron cordatum), Sanseviera and Syngonium.

Here are several plants that require moderate light: Dieffenbachia picta 'Rudolph Roehrs' variety, Ficus decora, Ficus lyrata, Monstera deliciosa, Philodendron hastaum, Philodendron panduriforme, Saintpaulia (African violet, Schefflera, and Scindapsus aureus (Pothos).

Most flowering plants, except the African violet, require bright light in order to bloom.

They must have the kind of light they would receive in a slathouse or in the broken shade of a live oak.

Thus bright indirect light might be sufficient, or morning light, up to 10 a.m., might be sufficient.

Here are a few flowering plants in this category: Azalea, Begonia, Cyclamen, Gardenia, Hoya carnosa, the geranium and Christmas cactus.

* * *

WATER—Plants vary in their needs for water just the same as they vary in their needs for light. Succulents and cacti require fairly dry conditions.

It's all right to saturate them with water, but the soil should be permitted to dry out well before they are watered again.

Most house plants like the philodendrons, syngoniums and aglaonemas require moist conditions all the time, but with a word of caution: No standing water.

Saturate container, preferably by letting it stand in a basin of water until the soil soaks up all the water it will hold. Let the water drain and set the container back in its permanent location. It won't need watering again for a few days, perhaps.

But you must be the judge. Don't let the soil become bone dry but don't keep the soil over-set either.

When these plants are kept saturated the roots will decay. When permitted to become too dry the plants may lose their lower leaves.

* * *

SOIL—Good soil is a necessity for the growing of the lush tropical foliage plants such as philodendrons and syngoniums. But soil must be well aerated. The ideal soil for jungle type plants is that found on the floor of the jungle—the leaf mold and the deep humus-loaded soil beneath the decaying leaves. This soil, however, may be a little too much aerated for the living room atmosphere.

You can buy potting soil from most places that sell potted plants. But you also can make up your own if you prefer.

A good soil can be made by mixing equal parts of peat, sand and medium-size crushed granite. Sterilize the soil before using by heating it in an oven. But be sure that the soil is moist.

A little water placed in the bottom of the pan will aid sterilization by producing steam that will penetrate the soil mixture and kill disease organisms and pests.

* * *

FERTILIZER—Feeding, of course, is a necessity. But it can be over-done as well as under-done. Use a soluble mixture, following directions of the manufacturer. Usually directions call for a teaspoon of the mixture to a quart of water.

Plants may be fertilized every four to eight weeks, depending on the condition of the plants and the rate of growth wanted.

Plants that are kept in very subdued light require little fertilizer because they do little growing. Overstimulation, however, may encourage leggy growth.

There is an almost endless list of plants suitable for indoor culture. However, those you see offered for low prices and in large numbers are the ones that have received the test of time.

Start with these common ones, and add the rare and expensive ones gradually, depending on how far you become interested in indoor plants as a hobby.

STRIKING PLANTS are available for indoor culture in almost endless numbers. But their demands vary for light, soil, watering and fertilizing. Know your plants and their needs if you would grow striking specimens like these shown here. Illustrated are two philodendrons and a Dieffenbachia (center).

MANGOS — Those trees are coming into bloom in the Miami area. As flowers open, spray panicles with a fungicide such as copper to prevent fungus disease from attacking the bloom and destroying your chances to harvest a crop of fruit. But use no insecticides while trees are in bloom, else you will kill the pollinating insects which visit the bloom in search of nectar.

TRANSPLANTING — This is a poor time to move ornamentals or fruit trees. Wait until late spring or early summer.

TOMATOES — Many Miamians are losing their tomato plants because they failed to spray weekly with a fungicide. Once the fungus disease known as late blight gets hold of your plants they're through. Spraying infected plants doesn't help much.

LAWNS — Watering is very important during cold weather. When you hear that a cool spell is on its way, be sure to water the lawn well so that the soil will be moist when the northwest wind arrives. Grass turns brown quickly when the soil is permitted to dry out during cold spells.

POINSETTIAS — These plants can be cut back at any time now, if the bloom has faded or has gone to pieces. Otherwise you can wait until March — or as long as the bloom is worth keeping.

PLANTING — Any major planting of vegetables or annuals for spring harvest should be done this month. Unless you are adept at growing plants from seed, it is a good idea to buy started plants from garden stores or from nurserymen.

PROPAGATION — Mature cuttings of hibiscus can be put in now for rooting. Cut pieces about 10 inches long and bury about five inches in the soil.

Planting Calendar

ANNUALS — Ageratum, alyssum, balsam, blanket flower (Gaillardia), celosia (cockscomb), cosmos, globe aramanth, lobelia, marigold, morning glory, petunia, phlox, salvia, statice, stock, zinnia.

BULBS — Amaryllis, caladium, eucharis, gladiolus, gloriosa lily.

Talking House Starts Chatter Today

Ask a Question And It Answers

The Talking House—a phenomenon of electronics in a marvel of home building—hits South Florida today.

In a setting of Florida living at its best, the Talking House will begin chattering today in West Hollywood amid a row of sparkling new models of the Heritage Homes in Driftwood Acres.

The builder of the Talking House, the Reibel-Shanbrun-Lazarus Corp. of Bay Harbor Island, will present its latest offering beginning at noon today.

To see the Talking House, and six companion models, take State Road 7 (U.S. 441) to Taft Street in West Hollywood, then west to the Driftwood Acres entrance.

You can talk to the Talking House until 9 tonight after the noon opening.

This week the hours will be 2 to 7 p.m., Monday through Saturday. Next Sunday, conversations between the house and its visitors will begin at 12 noon and the house will become silent forever at 9 p.m.

* * *

Replies Promptly

COME and talk to the house. It will answer your every question promptly and completely.

If you ask about the exquisite furnishings throughout the house, the house will immediately reply: "Yes, they are exquisite. Furnishings are by Stanley Abrams, manager of Modernage's Coral Gables store."

Perhaps you will be interested in the striking cathedral-type ceiling of the living room-dining room area.

"The design of the ceiling along with the architecture of the whole house is another scientifically designed home by Charles Meloy, of 7810 SW 48th Court, Miami," the house will answer.

Bring your check sheet along. The one which shows the things you must have in your dream home. The Talking House will have them and some innovations you didn't know existed.

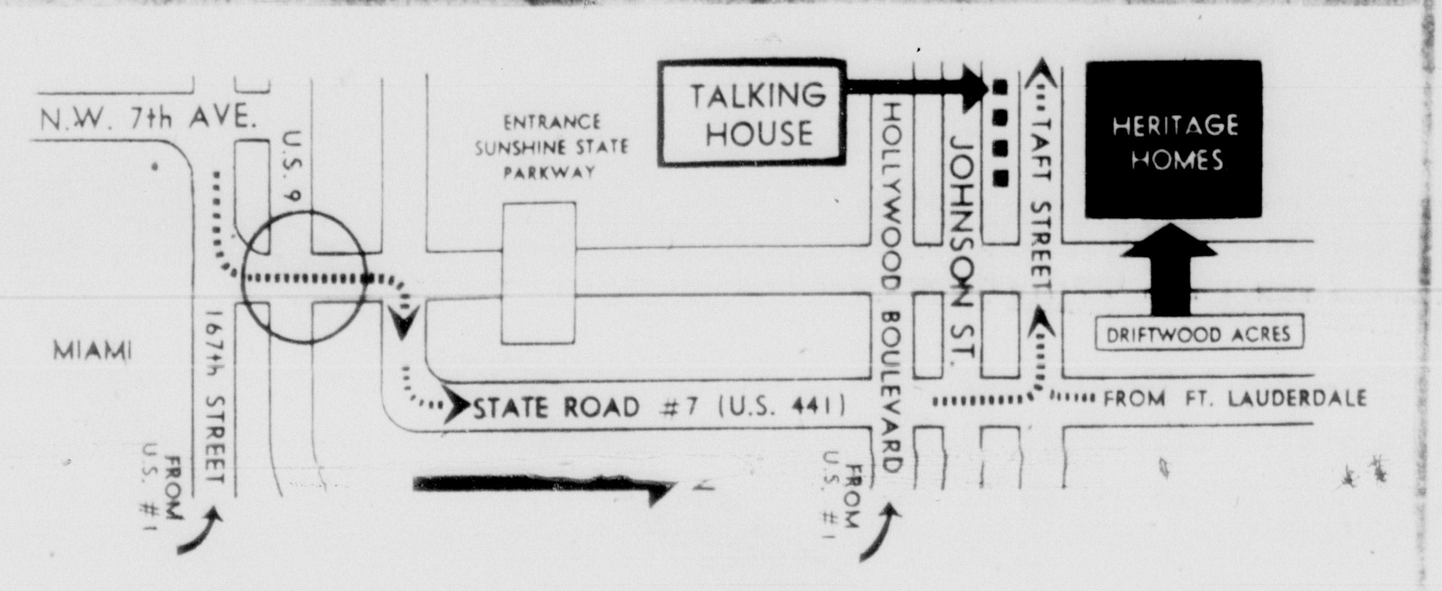
* * *

It's a Florida House

FIRST OF ALL, this house is a truly Florida house. Do you want a big swimming pool, completely screened in? Central air conditioning and heating with oversized ducts? A big carport with room for everything and then some?

"Yes," the Talking House will answer, "I have them all."

Convenience of location is another advantage offered by the three-bedroom, two-bath Talking House, and other homes in Driftwood Acres.



Talking House Easy to Find

Finding the Talking House is easy.

From U. S. 1 (Biscayne Blvd.) turn left on 163rd St. to intersection of U. S. 441, turn right over the Golden Glades interchange, stay on U. S. 441 (S. R. 7) until you get to Taft Street and then turn left.

If you come north on NW Seventh Ave., continue on over the interchange, north on U. S. 441, left on Taft Street and the Talking House is midway in row of seven new spanking models on the south side of Taft St. at N. 66th Ave.

Situated on high dry land, much of it covered with large pines which Reibel-Shanbrun-Lazarus has been careful to preserve, Driftwood Acres is almost a world unto itself.

Located on one of the main north-south routes of Florida, and within ten minutes' drive of Fort Lauderdale—the most rapidly expanding urban section in Florida—Driftwood Acres is ideally located almost in the middle of the bustling, busy Gold Coast.

It is half an hour by car from the middle of Miami, and just three minutes to the 110-mile Sunshine Parkway.

* * *

No Hidden Costs

THE USUAL EXTRAS provided by Reibel-Shanbrun-Lazarus have been added to the Talking House — no balloon mortgages, no FHA qualifying necessary, 24½-year mortgage, no title insurance required and no hidden costs.

The high ground, the inclined driveway and the beautiful landscaping are the first attractions to meet your eye when you walk up to the Talking House.

This distinctive entrance is offset by a carefully shaped planter with an inlaid glass window immediately to the left of the door.

Entering the Talking House you will notice the soft pastel shades used in the interior decorating. The shades blend in with the attractive Modernage furniture.

Indirect lighting, recessed in the side wall over the dining room, is one of those things you did not have on your check list.

Two triple-sized windows let in all available natural light to the front corner of the living room.

* * *

Kitchen's Light and Airy

YOU WOMEN will probably turn right off the dining room into the kitchen, which is light and airy because of a large awning-type window which also provides a wide view of the sloping lawn.

Over the elongated lunch bar, which separates the kitchen and the dining room, is more indirect lighting. When not in use, both the open space over the bar and the doorway can be made to add to the decor of the dining-living room area by closing the louvered, Bahama shutters across the openings.

The bedrooms are also well-lighted with large windows, shadowed midway, as are all the jalousied windows in the Talking House.

Multiple electric outlets are provided in all rooms, coupled with silent light switches.

* * *

Huge Walk-In Closets

THE MAMMOTH walk-in closet in the large master bedroom is a room by itself with its own lighting and two rows of shelves and two hanger bars with room for more shelves.

A planter nestled between the shower stall and a window in the guest bathroom is an unusual feature of the Talking House.

A handy door from the master bedroom bathroom to the pool side will eliminate tracking of wet feet through the house.

Whether you enter the pool area from the dining room or the master bedroom you slide aside one of a set of double sliding doors.

All photographs in this section were taken by Herald Staff Photographer John Walther, with the exception of the pictures on Pages 6K and 17K, and the pictures of Mr. Feinman and the organ on Page 9K.

The sturdy aluminum screening surrounding the pool area is tinted with green to minimize the glare of the sun.

The pool is flanked by non-slip limestone with a slight uplift at the water's edge as an added safety factor.

Leaving the Talking House by the carport door, you will notice the redwood paneling on the large utility room and separate laundry. A large zig-zag planter allows for plants not only within the planter but on the carport side also.

The Talking House really talks. Ask it a question today or during this week.

Special Wiring Makes House Talk

What makes the Talking House talk?

The Talking House, according to Reibel-Shanburn-Lazarus, the builder, is specially wired for the occasion.

The house is a copyrighted feature and has been shown in all of the major cities of the U.S.

Hidden wiring permits visitors to inquire about construction of the home, about the furnishings or decorations, or about individual pieces.

Whether it's technical or general information you want, the house has the answer.

Not even a woman can get in the last word with this house.

DAIRY PRODUCTS

ARE AS WELCOME AS YOUR MORNING NEWSPAPER

Satisfied customers are the best assets any business can have. Knowing this, most businesses try to do all they can to keep their customers happy. One pioneer South Florida business which specializes in satisfied customers is McArthur Dairy. In a highly competitive field, the management of McArthur Dairy knows that quality milk products that are pure, flavorful and reasonably priced will help keep customers pleased. But another factor is necessary, and that is service. McArthur home delivery fills the bill here. Courteous, prompt and efficient home delivery service has made many friends for McArthur during the 29 years the firm has served this area.

Home delivery customers may select from a long list of quality dairy products. All types of milk may be ordered . . . pasteurized grade A, homogenized grade A, chocolate milk, buttermilk, vita-rich skim milk, light or heavy cream, or half and half. Other products which may be obtained by convenient home delivery are salt or sweet butter, cottage cheese, eggs, orange juice or redi-whip. Extreme care is taken in the preparation of all McArthur dairy products. Safeguards of purity and flavor are maintained every step of the way from the Jersey cattle to door-step delivery.

RSL Planned Carefully

Large Cash Payment for Land Yielded Dividends for Builder

Low down payments, no balloon mortgages, short term mortgages—these things just don't happen without careful planning and buying.

Because the builder of the Talking House, Reibel, Shanbrun and Lazarus, was able to realize large savings on its original purchase of land in the Driftwood Acres area you — the consumer — will benefit today.

When RSL decided to buy a big tract of land in the Driftwood Acres last October, it did so with a large cash payment and got the land at wholesale prices.

With another outlay of $500,000 for development of the land, RSL was able to begin construction on the land and pass the savings on to buyers of its Heritage Homes.

"The customer gets the value of whatever we are able to save through our long-range planning," said William A. Shanburn, president of RSL.

"These extras in financing make our family homes particularly appealing to the young family which hasn't been together long enough to amass a big down payment," Shanbrun said.

"Wide stretches of play area and nearby schools assure the children of our home buyers the best in the very important years of early development."

Let's face it...

During Cold Snaps FLORIDA HOMES ARE HAPPIER HOMES!

And here's what the Medallion TALKING HOME at Driftwood Acres says:

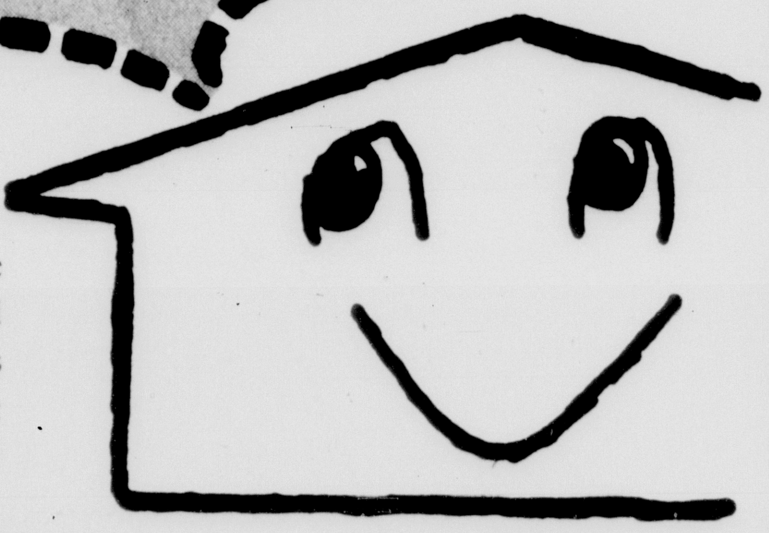
"I'm equipped with permanently-installed FUEL-TYPE HOME HEATING— proved by far the best and most economical for Florida homes. My folks will always be warm and comfortable indoors, no matter how chilly it gets outside!"



Mr. and Mrs. Homebuyer: Let's face it: Florida homes do need heat. And built-in fuel-type home heating is your cheapest insurance against shivery discomfort when cold snaps strike!

Builder Relies Heavily On Scientific Planning

A full-sized family swimming pool in a three-bedroom, two-bath house for $13,990, low down payments, no balloon mortgages, no FHA qualifying necessary with the conventional financing in Heritage Homes, 24½-year mortgage.

All these were not provided for potential buyers by the Talking House builder, Reibel-Shanbrun-Lazarus, just on a whim.

These extras were made available by RSL only after careful scientific business planning which RSL instills in all of its development and home building enterprises.

"In striving to give the consumer the most for his money," said William A. Shanbrun, RSL president, "we have retained business research firms to analyze economic, business and land-use trends.

We have employed skilled land planners and have had projections made on all facets of building.

"We have had comparative studies made in the Florida residential field, and are thoroughly informed and carefully organized to take full advantage of this knowledge," Shanbrun said.

* * *

THE PRESIDENT of RSL, who is a former consultant to the Small Business Administration in Washington, said the results of the scientific planning have been the modern Heritage Homes in Driftwood Acres.

A community of 2,000 well-designed homes on well-planned acreage surrounds the Talking House.

The building facts and planing facts so painstakingly derived by the RSL research facilities speak for themselves in the many extras in home values offered by Heritage Homes.

This careful planning by Reibel-Shanbrun-Lazarus has helped it to keep pace with the rapid growth of Florida, most rapid in the Dade-Broward area, the economic bellweather of an expanding state.

RSL chose the high-dry Driftwood Acres region because the firm realized that the new Florida home-seeker, coming largely from Northern states (and with a good sense of home values), would carefully judge the planned aspects of the area in which he settles before he made his home investment.

Albert Reibel Receives 'Medallion' Award

. . . from Broward Commissioner Frank Adler, right

Heritage Homes, with its current addition, the Talking House, is the latest in a series of building achievements by RSL.

* * *

THE REIBEL-SHANBRUN combination began back in 1956 when Albert Reibel, who had operated his own construction company with Sam Reibel in the Miami Beach area 13 years, joined William A. Shanbrun, who compiled an impressive business record in Providence, R. I., before coming to Florida a little more than three years ago.

The duo entered the home building scene with a group of "Balmoral Estates" homes at NE 149th St. and Eight Ave. in Miami.

These consisted of split-levels, tri-levels and ranch styles. The group of 42 built were quickly disposed of, much sooner than Riebel and Shanbrun anticipated.

Turning to other fields, they erected several rental apartment buildings in Bay Harbor Islands, topping this off with their own, modernistic office building on the Kane Concourse.

Less than a year ago, the successful duo became a trio with the addition of Sam Lazarus.

Reibel, a civil engineer, is in charge of all RSL construction. Heading the administration division is Morris Lazarus. Samuel P. Lazarus is treasurer of the corporation.

Saul Spitz, who has been associated with Shanbrun 12 years, is sales manager.

Chief supervisor of all construction is Les Blumberg, a graduate of the University of Miami, who directs the work of construction foremen and superintendents.

* * *

REIBEL, who is vice president of the corporation, has created the design of the RSL homes working with the architect.

New production methods to lower the cost of homes but preserve the individuality of each house are the work of Reibel. He has won several prizes for outstanding home design.

The team of Reibel and Shanbrun has built the most number of apartment houses on the Bay Harbor Islands during the last three years.

Shanbrun has not regretted his decision to leave a successful business in Providence several years back.

"I have not been disappointed in the vast potential and great future of Florida," Shanbrun said. "The growth is there without a doubt. We at RSL have tried to channel our efforts to best meet the needs of the tremendously expanding economy of the state."

The building organization, with a hand-picked staff, has a future hinged on expansion.

A horizontal expansion, with RSL widening its interests in shopping center construction, motels and apartments and an even greater emphasis on home building, is ahead for the Bay Harbor Island Firm.

But for today, the prime example of what type of work is done by RSL is the Talking House, a structure on which any builder would be proud to place his mark.

Don't Do Everything at Once

Planning to Remodel? Here Are Some Tips

Naturally not every person who visits the Talking House will want one like it.

But many who do certainly will get some ideas for large or minor remodeling jobs. The Talking House is an idea house.

So, if you should get an idea for remodeling, you will be in good company. When the finalists in last year's "Mrs. America" contest were surveyed, about three-quarters of them said they wanted to make changes to improve their homes.

Minor alterations won't cost much, but in any case, a few tips on remodeling are in order.

The first secret is not to try to do everything at once. Even if you have nothing more ambitious in mind than built-in bookcases, the job will go more smoothly if you make a step-by-step plan and stick to it.

First, make a list of the spots in your home you would like to see improved, and your tentative ideas for what you hope to achieve.

Then decide which one has top priority and go at that first.

Once you have picked your spot, allow yourself a week or so of looking around for ideas on the best way to do the job. Talk it over with the family; check the library for books on remodeling and home improvement; ask your lumber dealer or whatever dealer is concerned for his advice; and consult an architect if the extent of your project warrants it.

Some of the best ideas along remodeling lines come from sources you might not think of offhand: manufacturers of various building products.

Here are a few examples picked at random from pamphlets. Convert the carport to a garage, an extra bedroom or a playroom. And then if the room allows for it, add another carport to take the place of the original one.

Or build a storage wall in the bedroom with wardrobe closets, drawers, cupboards, and built-in vanity. Add a headboard with drawers and shelves, and under-the-bed drawers, and the bedroom then has all the storage anyone could ask for.

In the living room, a room divider that also acts as a bookcase could give that all-important room a new look.

Come Right In!

Front door of the Talking House is located beneath a canopy-type overhang with partial open work. The framing effect of the planter in the foreground and the inlaid glass window lend a distinctive quality to the entrance.

3,795 Dishes Washed a Month

It takes 73.2 minutes a day to do the dishes by hand and only 35.6 minutes to do them by automatic electric dishwasher.

Population Up

The population of West Germany has increased 6.4 per cent since 1950, while the population of East Germany has decreased about 6.3 per cent.

Corporate Profit Rise Seen

Corporate profits in the U.S. in 1959 are expected to rise to about 21.5 billion dollars, compared with $21.8 billion in 1957 and approximately $17.8 billion in 1958.

With a Slight Chinese Influence

Contemporary Furniture Used

Complementing the roominess of the Talking House is the latest in contemporary furniture by Modernage.

Under the direction of Stanley Abrams, manager of the Modernage Coral Gables store, the Talking House has taken on a general character made up of contemporary styling augmented by a slight Chinese influence.

Keeping divergent colors to a minimum, the rooms of the Talking House each have attained a personality of their own under Abrams' discerning eye.

Once you enter through the doorway, you are placed in a spacious combination living-dining room.

First thing to capture your gaze in the living room is a beautiful wrought iron butterfly clock with clusters of leaves setting off its attractive design.

The functional blue chairs in the grouping are arranged so as to offset the long living room area.

The general background of the living area of the Talking House is in the same light beige color as the walls, which are kept free of pictures and other wall decor for the most part to keep the "walls from getting too busy," Abrams said.

Coupled with the modern furniture used for the two-piece sectional and the nearby armchair is the quiet Chinese influence brought out in the pumice walnut of the coffee table and end table.

The sectional pieces are done in a collateral stripe solid blue. The melon of the tall lamp in the conversational grouping is again seen, but only once more, in the comfortable arm chair in the living room.

The blues, jades and ming blue of the dining room set provide much of the Chinese influence to the front rooms.

The walnut dining room set, which has chairs backed with ming-type style, is beneath indirect lighting provided by a co[illegible] end dining room wall.

After leaving the living-dining room, a cheery and light hallway leads to the master bedroom in the Talking House.

This room is done in whites and blues. The latter blends in with the glassy blue of the pool a few feet beyond.

The large dresser and king-sized bed are contemporary with a subtle Chinese influence. Wall-to-wall draperies line two walls of the room, covering the double sliding door leading to the pool, is set into the same wall which opens into a large walk-in closet.

The number two bedroom is done in American contemporary furniture, with elimination of handles and other hardware to "keep a clean line," according to Abrams.

The contemporary theme is carried through by the modern print in the window drapes in the big corner bedroom. A sage green forms the background of the drapes.

Carpeting in the number two bedroom is in a jade green, repeating the color which blends in with the gold and white background of the drapes.

The den or third bedroom is a man's world in itself. It has facilities for sleeping while at the same time presenting a functional appearance with a desk and corner table.

Patio furniture shows beauty and strength. In wrought iron aluminum, the furniture is completely weatherproof and guaranteed to last 100 years.

Two tables are rimmed by two armchairs and two straight chairs which are backed by white plastic.

Living Room's Wall Decorations Are Place to Avoid 'Busy Look'

Pioneer Firm in State Did Decor for Decor

The Talking House owes its finishing touches on the inside to Modernage Furniture Corp., which prepared and placed the furniture which goes so well with the rest of the decor in the house.

Modernage, through its founder, Martin H. Feinman, has become known as the symbol of furniture fashions in Florida and elsewhere since he began the business 35 years ago.

The most desirable in home furnishings, whatever the price range, has constantly been the aim of Mr. Feinman.

"My business is built on two principles: faith in Florida's future and service to the consumer," Mr. Feinman said recently.

The ever-expanding operation of Modernage has shot forward even more in the last two years with an extensive remodernization of Modernage's existing showrooms.

Recent expansion of the new Modernage Fort Lauderdale showroom to more than 60,000 square feet made it the largest showroom of its kind in the world.

The furniture company's factory-warehouse on NE Fourth Ave. in Miami is also in need of expansion, according to Feinman.

Factory-to-consumer selling enables Modernage to eliminate the middleman's profit. Modernage's huge warehousing and five-store buying power mean large factory discounts which are passed on to the buyer.

Modernage currently employs 250 persons.

Mr. Feinman recalls that when he first thought of cutting a sofa into two or three parts and of trying to sell, them as sectionals, he was ridiculed.

"Times have changed," observed Mr. Feinman, "as have peoples' tastes in furniture."

Bowl Game Organ To Be on Display

You'll be able to see one of those compact organs in the Talking House.

Through the courtesy of Philpitt's Music Store, long-time Miami business, one of the organs, which really are two organs in one, will be on exhibit.

Marshall Philpitt, manager of the pioneer music store, explained that the organ may be used as a chord organ or as two regular manual organs.

Another added feature, Philpitt said, is that the organ comes with earphones which, when used by the organ player, will mean that the music cannot be heard by anyone else.

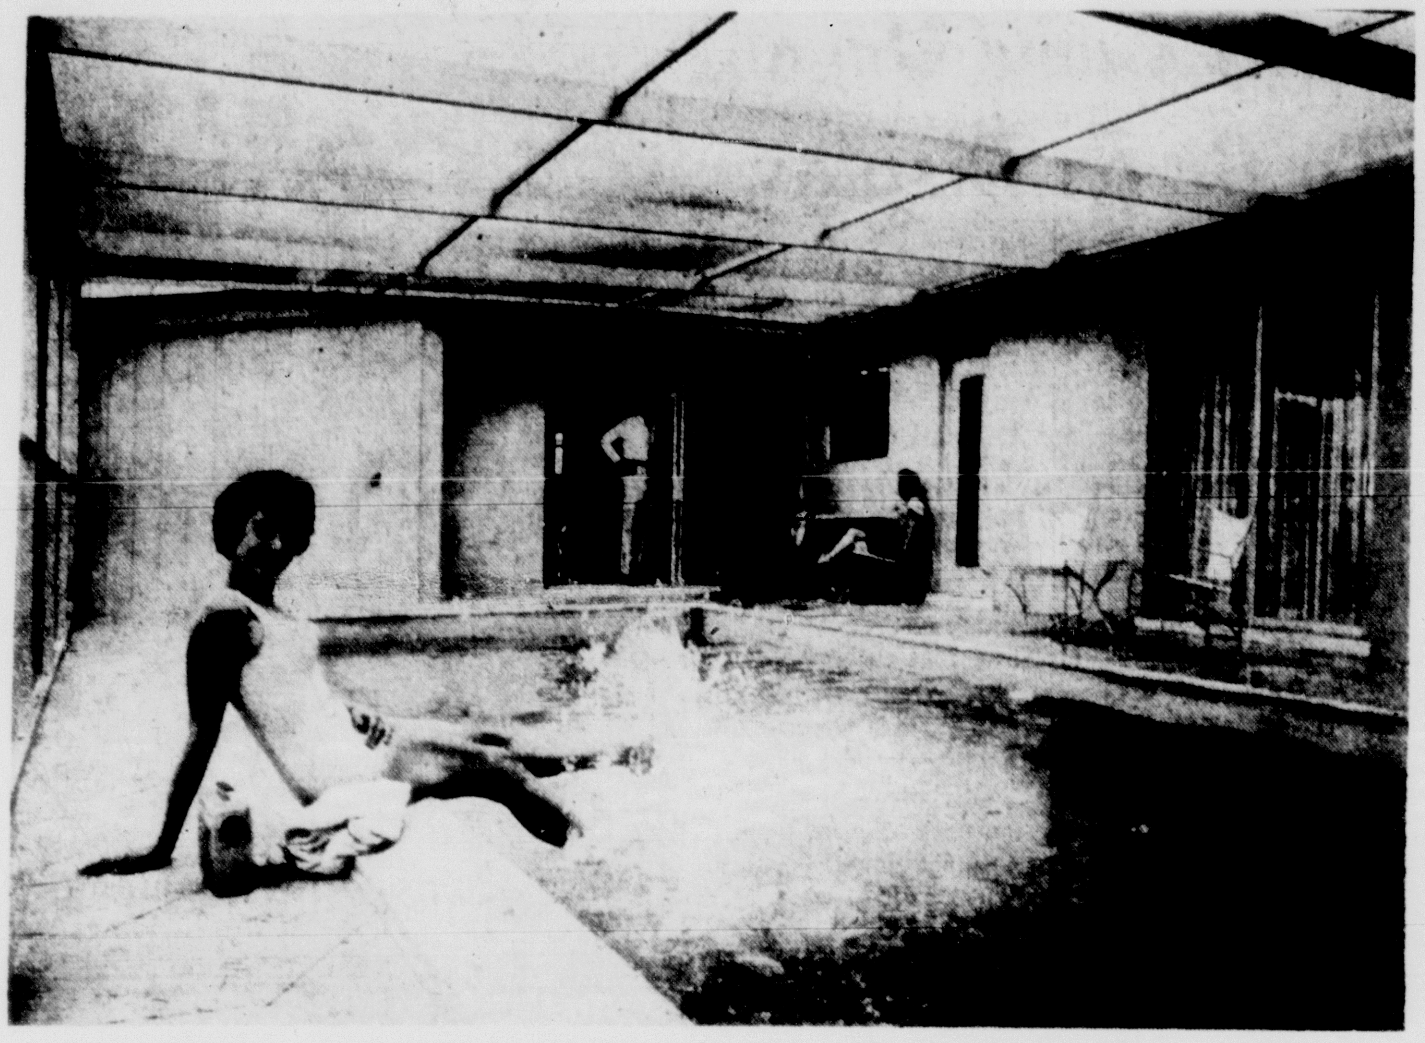
Pool Is Designed for Florida Living



Model Nancy Lee Furnish Dunks Feet In Talking House Pool

You'll Enjoy Your Pool More If You Provide Right Setting

Some of the fun in Florida outdoor living is the setting you provide for your patio and poolside enjoyment. Colorful aluminum furniture, rugged and rustic pieces such as rattan and soft but firm lounges can contribute to your comfort.

Some Floridians manage to clutter up the outdoors, however, by snatching up a willy-nilly assortment of furniture at periodic sales.

While these sales offer great possibilities for adding to patio, terrace, porch or backyard living, you should give some thought to selections.

It's just as important to keep outdoor furniture compatible as it is to keep indoor furniture in harmony.

If you happen to have furniture which must be moved inside, does it move easy? Or is it big and bulky and takes up all your storage space?

These considerations are just as important as the type of furniture and the colors you use because if the furniture must be moved often at great inconvenience, that good buy you got on it looks worse every time you have to move the furniture.

It's a good idea to stick to a theme in your outdoor setting. Add wood to wood, metal to metal when possible, or use them in combination when they are compatible.

Measure areas where you plan to put tables. If the dining area is out in the sun, a big white metal table with parasol may be better than a redwood sawbuck table.

Since you do spend so much time outdoors in South Florida, the choice of your porch or patio furniture is just about as important as choosing your living room suite.

Builder Stresses Training For Sales Representatives

Reibel - Shanbrun - Lazarus believes in putting its best foot forward. That's why it has made its sales staff, the public representative of RSL, one of the best.

The sales staff has top personnel, completely trained people who have integrity in dealing with people — an integrity based on intelligent understanding and technical knowledge.

Chief of the sales staff is Saul Spitz, who also is in charge of RSL's entire sales program. Spitz came to Florida from Rhode Island with RSL President William A. Shanbrun.

When you walk into the Talking House you'll meet a member of Spitz's staff, a person who has recently been through an extensive trainee program which will continue into the future.

Shanbrun, who inaugurated the trainee program by taking his staff for a weekend at Marathon last fall, recently directed a similar pilgrimage to Chicago for the Home Builders Convention.

"These meetings were not just a time of relaxation. They gave us the opportunity to carry on our discussions without telephone and other interruptions," Shanbrun said.

At the Marathon meeting Shanbrun and his associates, Albert Reibel, Morris and Samuel Lazarus, revealed to the staff the firm's projected plans for the next two years.

They covered all phases of general planning and merchandising; public relations and advertising; projected architectural design and some new construction techniques which may be used.

"In order for us to implement our expansion program," said Morris Lazarus, "it is important for us to have the right man in the right job.

"We know that properly trained personnel steps up the efficiency of any organization. Consequently, with the several large land purchases we currently have under consideration, it is imperative that our men be trained for this specialty."

"It is most important to us," Shanbrun said, "to have our own sales staff.

"We do not believe in hiring outside sales personnel because our sales staff is carefully indoctrinated to give an intelligent presentation to the customer.

"The day of the 'hard sell' home salesman is over," Shanbrun emphasized. "The customer wants to be told WHY a home is better, not just that it IS better."

Lunch Bar With Shutters Separates Kitchen and Dining Room

Fluorescent Lighting Makes For Brighter, Cheerier Home

That fluorescent lighting emanating from above the lunch bar between the kitchen and dining room in the Talking House is the latest in home lighting.

But if your kitchen lighting matches the national averages today, you're working with the equivalent of a one-burner electric range, according to specialists at the G-E lamp division's Nela Park in Cleveland, Ohio.

The average housewife works by only one-quarter of the light she should have by official standards for easy, comfortable, efficient seeing.

It is also much harder to prepare your family's meals under sub-standard lighting than on a one-burner range. Lighting is essential for every kitchen task — when you fix the salad, or want to wash your silver really clean.

If you have a lonely center fixture in your kitchen, you are working in your own shadow about 85 per cent of the time.

But you can remedy this.

A new kind of fluorescent tube called Home-Line gives the warm, friendly light of regular bulbs to every home lighting task where more light is needed.

Using these tubes, many dramatic, convenient lighting touches can now be built-in to your kitchen and throughout the house.

They make it simple to have a luminous panel above your sink, a concealed cornice strip under your cupboards, or a lighted valance that makes your windows as cheery as night as by day.

This perimeter lighting adds a glamorous note of soft, indirect lighting to the room you spend so much time in. Even more important, it brings you adequate, comfortable lighting right where you need it, speeding your work and easing your eyes.

Next: Hialeah

The next community scheduled to receive the golden touch of Reibel-Shanbrun-Lazarus Corp., developer of the Talking House, is Hialeah.

Definitely set for the near future, according to President William A. Shanbrun, are development of a shopping center and a subdivision in the Hialeah area.

Also in the planning stage are three other separate projects.

As RSL expands its interests into the shopping center line, further branching out into motel building and a goal of 4,000 new homes a year are in the offing for the rapidly growing Bay Harbor Island firm.

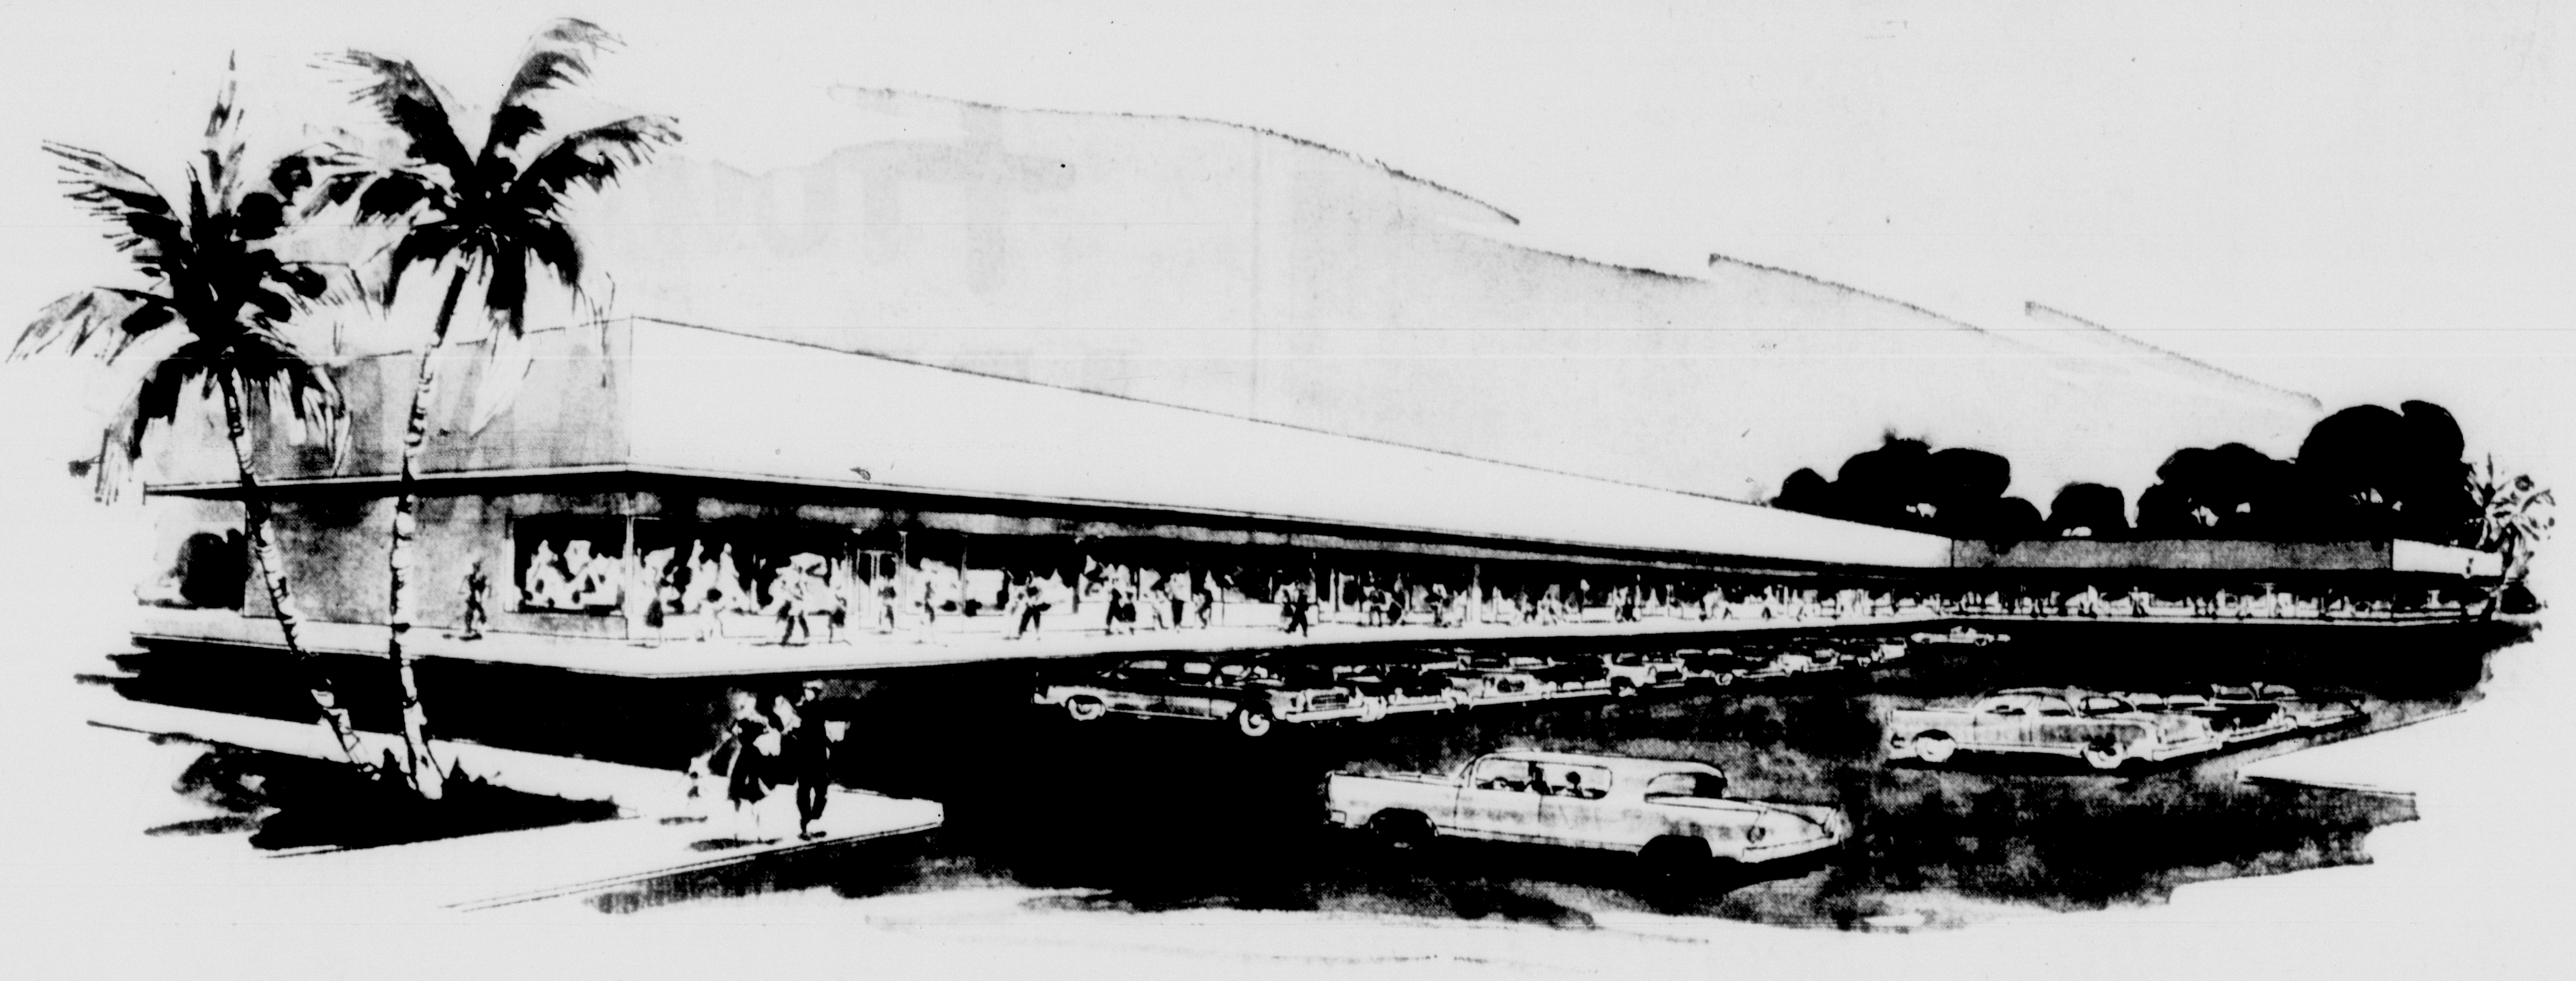
Heritage Shopping Center Will Serve 5,000 Families



Two-Floor Buildings Will Have 200,000 Square Feet of Floor Space, Parking Space for 2,000 Cars

Every Kind That's Needed

Huge New Shop Center Will Have 150 Stores

Plans for a giant shopping center, including every type of store necessary to service the 5,000 family population of Driftwood Acres and surrounding residences, were recently announced by Reibel-Shanbrun-Lazarus, builder of the Talking House and of Heritage Homes.

The center, to include 200,000 square feet of floor space and approximately 150 stores, will be located across Taft Street from the Talking House on the corner of N. 66th Ave. in West Hollywood.

The two-floor buildings will house a mammoth supermarket, service station, self-service discount department store, a bowling alley, cafeteria, professional offices, appliances, boats, furniture, floor covering, sports wear, a florist and many other stores.

As in the model area today, there will be plenty of parking. Room for 2,000 cars will be provided in the new center, according to William A. Shanbrun, president of RSL.

The Heritage Home Shopping Center will be only the first of a statewide system of such shopping centers, Shanburn said.

Hub of the centers will be the big discount department stores. Operators of the discount stores are still in the process of forming complete plans for the Florida area.

Warns You When Humidity's Too High Inside

Steamed-Up Windows Are our Radar

Steamed-up windows serve as a radar screen for the homeowner.

Unheeded, the warning means that sooner or later water will affect interior decorating, blister paint or wallpaper, rot joists, warp hardwood floors and crack ceilings.

Steamed-up windows have not been as prevalent this season as they were in Florida's cooler winter of 1957-58 but if and when drops of steam run down your windows, pay heed.

There'll never be steamed-up windows in the Talking House models which take advantage of the option of constant winter and summer air conditioning.

But all of us are not fortunate enough to have a house with air conditioning and heating.

Window engineers offer these suggestions to reduce condensation in the Florida home:

Step up the circulation of air to permit the house to breathe, and thus reduce the relative humidity inside. Circulation of air will reduce the condensation of moisture on cold surfaces.

Keep a humidiguide in the house. If relative humidity exceeds 30 to 35 per cent, and cannot be kept below this level, provide more ventilation by opening windows further.

Of course, as often happens in South Florida, the humidity may be high outside as well as inside.

When clothes are washed within the house, open a window so moisture escapes to the outside.

A well-placed fan also will help.

Moisture from cooking and boiling of foods should be vented to the outside, preferably by means of an exhaust fan. Cover pots and pans, especially when contents are boiling. Gas-burning appliances should be properly vented, as combustion of gas liberates water.

Leave bathroom door closed after bathing and open window so that moisture is expelled to outside rather than circulating through the rest of the house.

Additional ventilating may be necessary periodically. Night is the best time as this supplies fresh air for sleeping also.

Quite a Resort

The population of Nome, Alaska, is 2,000. The number of people who visited the historic gold rush town in 1958 was 2,800.

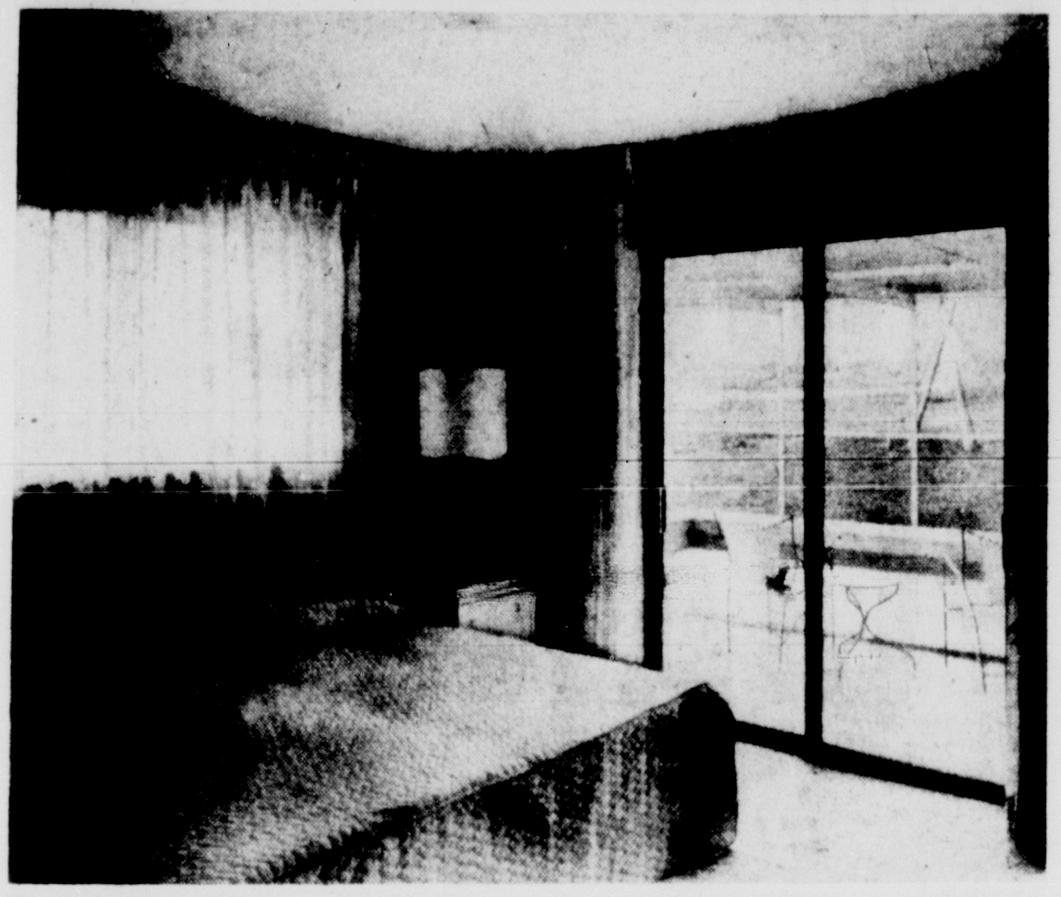
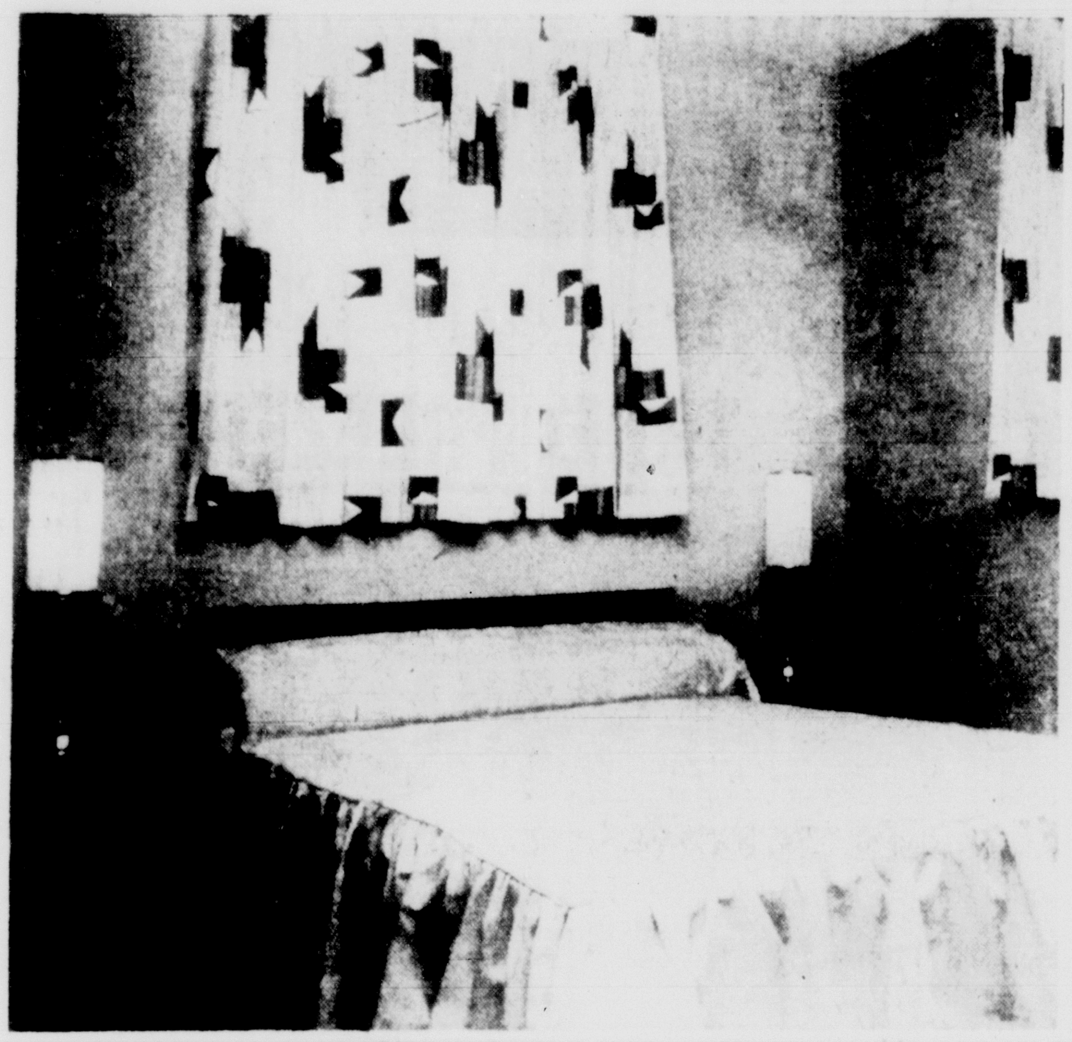
Bedrooms Show Modern Design



Master bedroom (above) is done in whites and blues, has wall-to-wall draperies lining two walls of the room and covering the double sliding door which leads to the pool. Bed and dresser are contemporary with a subtle Chinese influence. Furniture in number two bedroom (below) is done in American contemporary style, with elimination of handles and other hardware to "keep a clean line," according to the designer. 'Window drapery is a modern print and the carpeting is in a jade green in this room.



Rodeo, Carnival on Tap for Kids

A rodeo, a carnival, music and plenty of parking, all free, will be available in the Talking House locale today.

The rodeo and carnival will be in action behind the Talking House and its six neighboring models. If your youngsters are in no mood to talk to the Talking House that's probably where they will wind up, whooping it up at the rodeo and carnival.

Parking, 75 acres of it, will be available on land adjoining the models and don't worry about pools of water. The Heritage Homes are on high-dry land, dotted with pine trees.

Complementing the Talking House's soft voice will be continuous music flooding the area of the home models.

Come early and stay late, because, whether it's to see the Talking House or to just have fun, both will be around from noon until 9 p.m.

All Switches Are Silent Type; Kitchen Has Special Lighting

The Talking House abounds with electrical benefits. It has an electric range, an electric water heater, an electric refrigerator and those other electric extras which make home living that much better.

It has received the stamp of "Live Better Electrically Medallion Home" from the Florida Power & Light Co.

The Medallion means that the home is wired, lighted and equipped to provide a high standard of electrical living.

The Talking House has special lighting installed at all kitchen work areas — sink, range and counters — and in other parts of the house such as the beautiful indirect lighting recessed into the end wall of the dining room.

Silent electric switches throughout the house along with numerous double sockets give that ease of living which comes with a Medallion Home.

Minimum requirements for a Medallion Home include 100-200 amperes capacity service entrance in addition to completed circuits with outlets to proper locations for the connection of an electric range, water heater, clothes dryer and dishwasher. These insure full horsepower within and on the outside the home must have one waterproof outlet on a separate circuit.

Another requirement is an all-electric kitchen which, in the case of the Talking House, also includes air conditioning and heating unit.

Requirements for ample light for living must also be met. There must be one lighting circuit for each 300 square feet of roofed area up to 1,500 square feet and thereafter one for each 500 square feet.

All lighting fixtures will be such as to accommodate at least 150 watts of incandescent or 80 watts of fluorescent tubes, except bathroom, hallway, closet and similar areas.

Do's and Don'ts About Outlets

How to Safeguard Your Family Electrically

The more outlets you have in your home, whether it is a Talking House or one almost as nice, the more electric cords you'll probably have.

Here's a few do's and dont's to safeguard your family and home electrically.

DON'T CONNECT too many lamps or appliances to one outlet. This not only will blow a fuse, it may overheat wires dangerously.

DON'T RUN appliances or lamp cords over radiators or heaters. Heat will eat into the cord's installation.

NEVER TOUCH an electric appliance, radio, light switch or plug while you are in the bathtub or standing in a puddle near your laundry appliances. And NEVER touch an electric appliance with wet hands.

DON'T PLACE electric cords in door jambs because closing and opening the doors damage insulation.

DON'T RUN electric cords under rugs where they will wear unnoticed.

YANKING PLUGS out of sockets by pulling on the cord is laziness that can lead to trouble. Grasp the plug itself to remove it.

PERIODICALLY inspect your electric cords to see if the insulation is frayed or cracked.

DISCONNECT electric irons and other hand appliances when you are not using them.

ALWAYS employ a qualified electrical contractor to make repairs or additions in your home. Unless you are qualified, this is no "do-it-yourself" job for you.

Noiseless Glass Panels In Shower

The Shower Magic enclosures, made by Daryl Products Crop., are made to fit any standard recessed tub.

The doors roll on noiseless nylon ball bearings and can be lifted out to permit easy, quicky cleaning.

The company claims that dust, lint and soapy water cannot collect in the track recesses.

60 Appliances Are Available

The number of appliances in the home is always growing. In 1930, there were just 19 appliances available for home use.

In 1950, there were 40 and today there are more than 60.

Volcanic Ash Finds Use in Refrigerators

CORTEZ, Colo. — (UPI) — A chunk of Cochetopa Pass may one day be a standard item in the American refrigerator.

At least that's the hope of the backers of a firm which is grinding and packing volcanic ash from a 20-million-ton deposit on the Colorado mountain pass for sale as a refrigerator deodorizer.

The only other source for this type of volcanic ash — known as pumecite — is Italy, which now supplies practically all that is used in the U.S.

Mining operations by Denite Products, Inc., have barely dented the huge deposit, but officials are investigating other possible applications such as sweeping compounds, air conditioning and acoustical plastic components.

Carport Has Loads of Room

Are carports ever big enough? Is there ever enough room for all your garden tools, a washer and dryer, the kids' bikes and carts and the car too?

There's all that room and more in the spacious carport bordering the Talking House. Beside its roominess, the carport is beautiful. It is set-off by a unique planter which divides half of the carport's open side from the outside.

The planter, a square one set diagonally, trails off into a zig-zag wall which has plants tucked into its nooks and cranies on both sides.

Bordering the 21-foot by 10-foot car space are a utility room 10 feet long, a compact laundry adequate for all wash-day needs and a long, sheltered area for the kids' bikes and playthings along with the central heating and air-conditioning units.

The carport and its adjoining areas are set off by beautiful redwood which contrasts strikingly with the light pastel shades of paint on the exterior of the Talking House.

Specially heat-treated spring clips absorb shocks and rattles, hold glass firm! Unconditionally guaranteed!
- ABC Sliding Glass Doors, made with lifetime aluminum, have been tested successfully by the University of Miami Housing Research Lab. Extra heavy aluminum sections have smooth, satin mill finish. Superior wool-pile type weatherstrip and exclusive recess track design insures perfect weatherseal. Other features include silent nylon ball-bearing rollers to support heavier loads and weathertight glazing channel.

Only ABC Jalousie Windows and Sliding Glass Doors are manufactured from raw aluminum to finished product by Adams Engineering Co., Inc., South Florida's largest and most progressive manufacturer, No wonder that, wherever you go, ABC building products, including jalousie doors, awning windows, thresholds and door stops, are the "talk" of modern building.

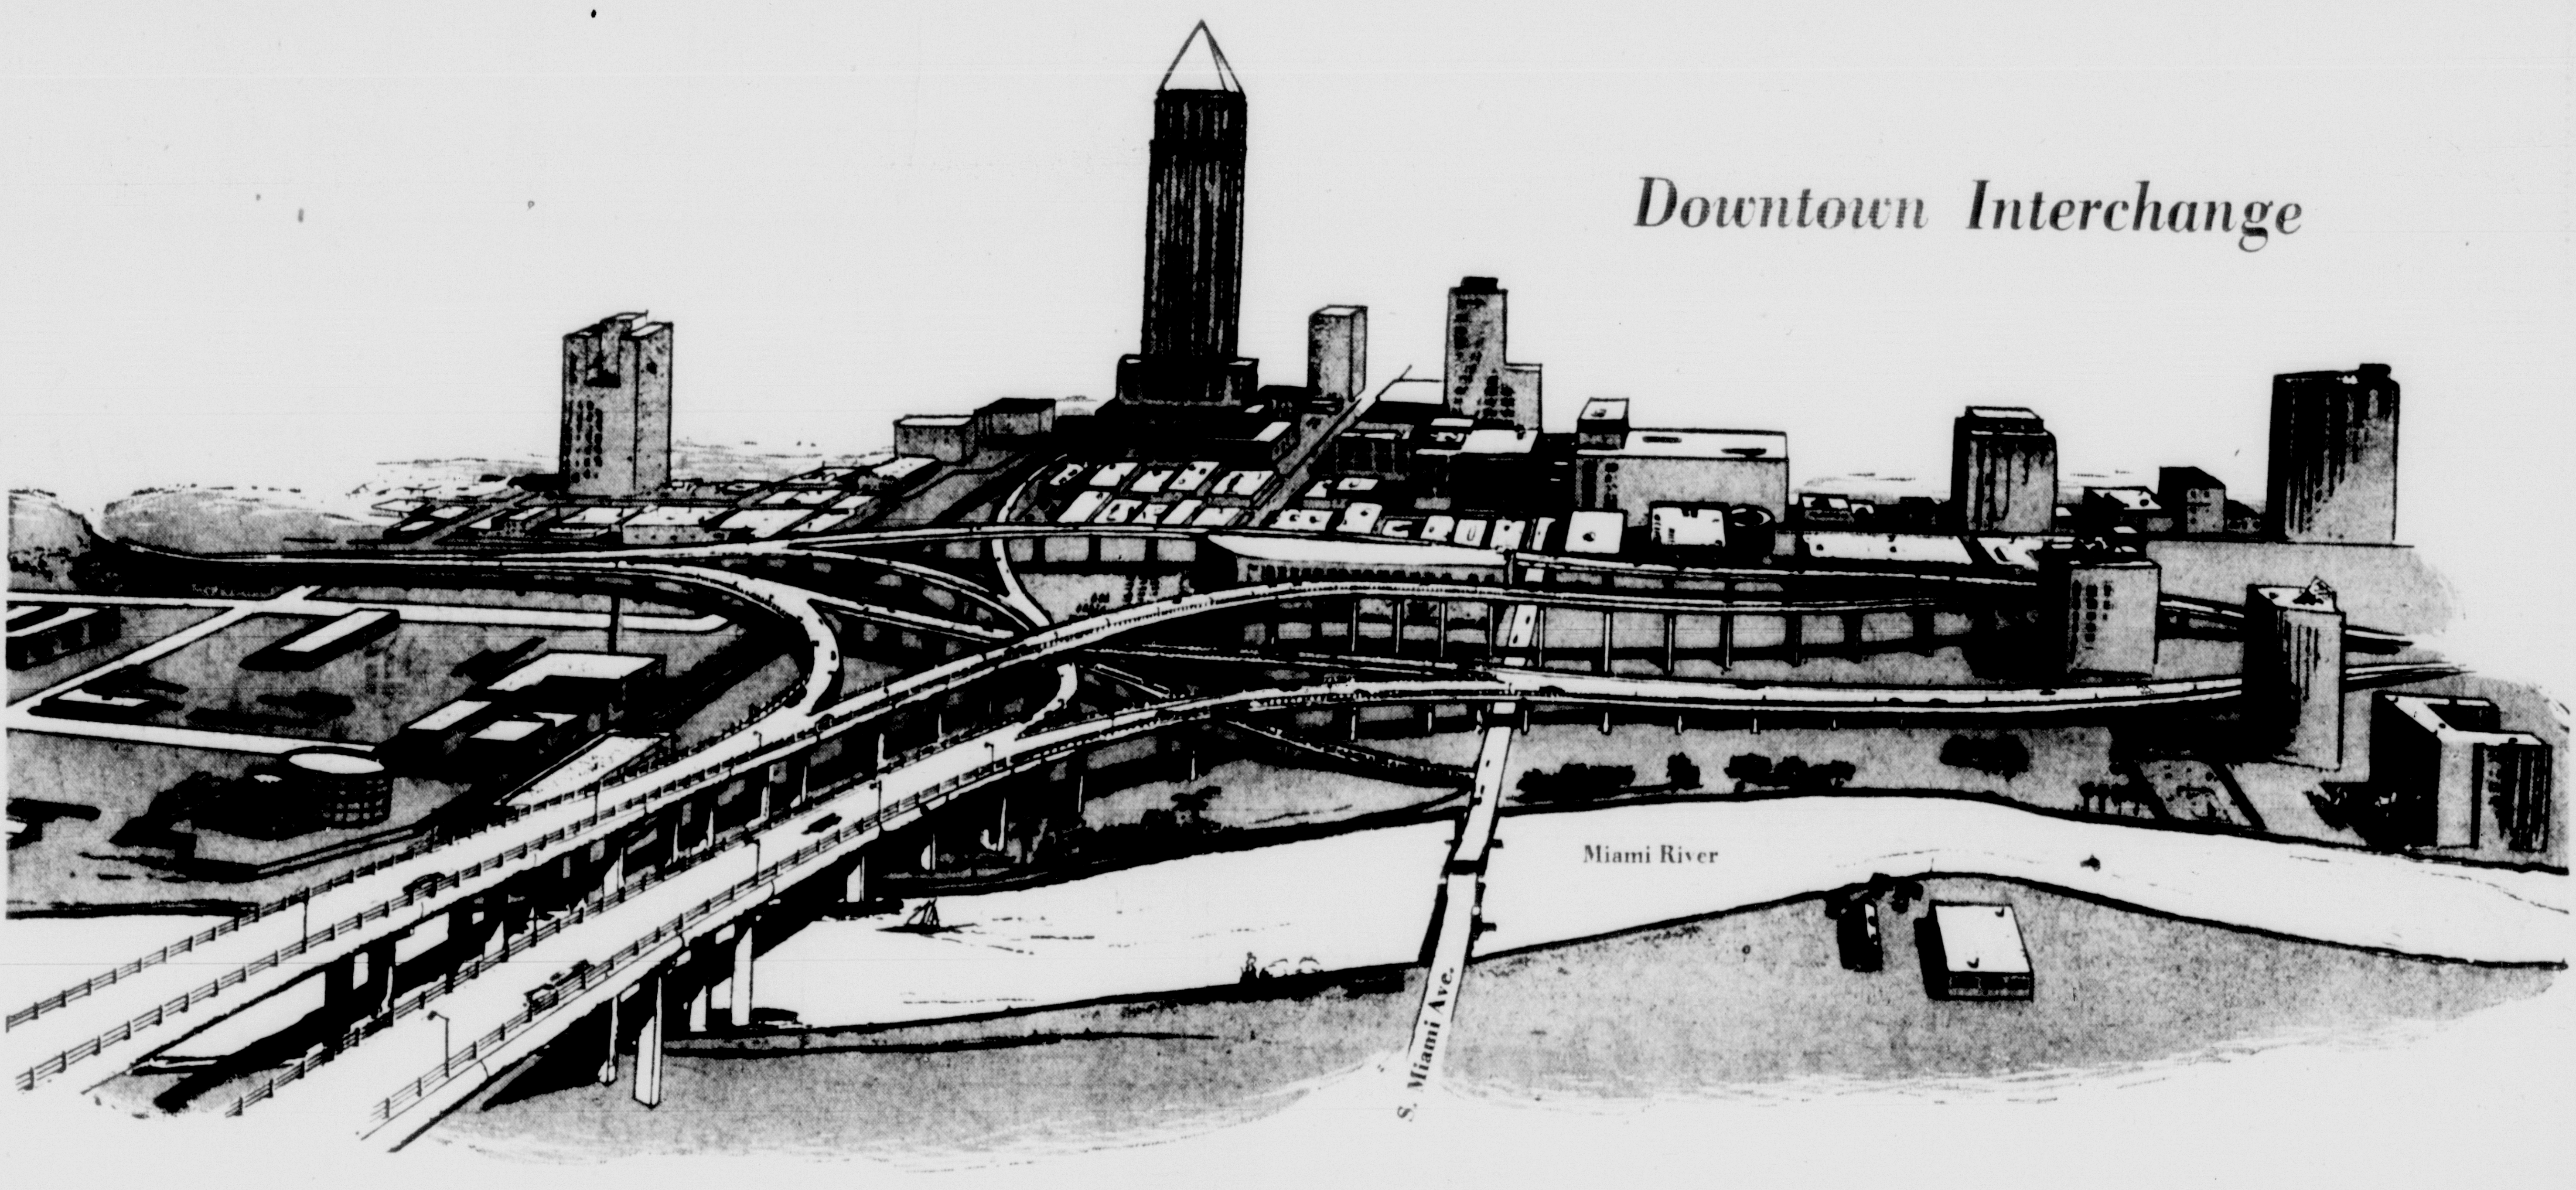
When Will Dade Get Expressways?



This Interchange, Just North of Miami River, Would Link North-South and Dixie Expressways

- County's Growth Makes Plans Obsolete
- High Cost of Land Is Slowing Progress
- Late Start on Planning Blamed for Delay

By John Morton
Herald Staff Writer

How soon will traffic-tired Dade drivers be able to zip along on expressways?

South Florida's leading road men are the first to tell you that the county's multi-million dollar network of planned expressways is already out of date.

And it's only a tiny fraction of the way toward completion.

THE FANTASTIC GROWTH of Dade County which has outstripped even the most optimistic planners.

THE LATE START in getting a comprehensive road program under way.

Two years and three months ago, the traffic engineering firm of Wilbur Smith and Associates revealed a countywide system of superhighways which was drawn from a hodge-podge of earlier plans by individuals and groups.

With this system as a starting point, and a belief that it would be adequate until 1975, the State Road Board and Dade County began planning.

* * *

Engineers Criticize System

WHAT has been accomplished since then?

This week, there are only two concrete results of that plan—the Palmetto Expressway from Golden Glades Interchange at NW 163rd St. to Okeechobee Rd. and the 20th St. overpass into Miami International Airport.

The over-all system has been criticized by "armchair experts," and by consulting engineers, too.

"Anybody who thinks these plans will solve the problems in Dade County is a damn fool," Winston Carlton, chief State Road Department district engineer, sums it up.

Carlton said the system was hamstrung in the first place—partially because "you have to use accepted procedures in predicting what you are going to need.

"Those methods just don't work down here," he added. Here's an example:

The 36th St. Expressway from Palmetto Expressway west of the airport to Alton Rd. on Miami Beach will cost in excess of 40 million dollars.

The section from NW Seventh Ave. west to LeJeune Rd. and south to the NW 20th St. overpass is designed as a revenue-producing toll structure.

But only a fraction of the vehicles which use it will pay that toll—the vehicles which travel its entire length.

"We used to think in terms of 25,000 vehicles a day on our major highways," Carlton said. "It's senseless now to think about less than 100,000."

* * *

Land Cost Stumbling Block

THE SRD is revising some of its thinking on those time-honored procedures—like waiting until you have all of the right-of-way before you start digging.

"The cost of land down here makes it almost impossible to operate that way," Carlton said.

Last week, the State Road Board was winding up just such an innovation—the condemnation suits for property along a strip of the North-South Expressway.

This major highway bisects the metropolitan area from Golden Glades Interchange at NW 163rd St. to SW 32nd Rd. It is 13 miles long.

The right-of-way for those 23 blocks cost more than three million dollars.

The right-of-way for another big part of the North-South job, a huge interchange near NW 36th St., will cost 10.5 million dollars, a little more than the actual construction figure.

This route, and the strip which extends from the big interchange to Miami Beach, is part of the Federal Interstate System. It is financed with 90 per cent federal money and 10 per cent state funds.

* * *

36th St. Road by 1962?

AT PRESENT, the engineers hope to have it under contract from NW 29th St. to NW 95th St. within the next 18 months. The southern leg is blocked pending a decision on the height of the bridge across Miami River.

The 36th St. Expressway, if everything goes well, will be in use by the beginning of 1962, SRB member William Singer said.

Another route on the timetable is four-laning of LeJeune Rd. from Tamiami Trail to U. S. 1. The SRD has given an immediate go-ahead on that project.

The Palmetto Expressway is set for completion south to SW 16th St. in about 16 months—and under contract all the way to U. S. 1 in Kendall within two years.

* * *

Other Projects in Air

SOME PROJECTS which are anybody's guess include the East-West Expressway across the middle of the urban area, the Dixie Expressway from Rickenbacker Causeway south to Kendall, and an offshore dog-leg from the Downtown Interchange to MacArthur and Venetian Causeways.

Two new projects which are designed as pay-for-themselves toll roads are a Mid-Bay Drive from Ojus, near the Broward line, to the Venetian Causeway, and overseas toll road terminating on Key Largo.

The others were the ambitious plans of November, 1956.

The Municipal engineers, meanwhile, are issuing stern warnings that the expressways won't do us much good without vast arterial street plans on the ground.

"It has been estimated," said George W. Kunde, Metro traffic engineering chief, "that our total road and street program is 900 million dollars behind."

The road planners are looking beyond what they have on paper. But their main concern at the moment, the engineers said, is transmitting the blue prints into concrete and steel.

"We must," Singer said. "We will strangle if we don't."

To bring you this comprehensive study of Dade County's expressway program, staff writer John Morton spent many hours with federal, state, county and city officials. All the stories about this program on this page and on 2J were written by him.

Thousands of Families Will Lose Their Homes

The ink is barely dry on State Road Department condemnation suits which will turn nearly 100 Northwest Miami families out of their homes in the next few weeks.

These property owners represent more than one-third of the people who live along a 23-block strip of the North-South Expressway.

Compared to the thousands who will be uprooted to make way for superhighways in the next few years, the 100 families are only a handful.

* * *

It's a Five-Step Process

TO THE SRD, condemnation is just a five-step process—cold and impersonal:

1. Appraisal of the property.
2. Cash offer to the owner.
3. Condemnation, if the owner refuses the offer.
4. A 28-day delay while the owner files an answer to the condemnation.
5. Circuit Court trial.

In the past, the state could get an "order of taking" from the court — usually within six weeks after filing condemnation — by posting double the amount of the unit appraisal. Then it could move in immediately.

"But we just don't have that kind of money any more," said Ross Stanton, attorney for the SRD.

"We'll have to wait the 28 days," Staton said, "but on the 29th day we'll be in the judge's office asking for an immediate trial."

This process, of course, applies only to the people who own property in the way of expressways.

But thousands of others are living in rental units which are spotted along the route—and heavily congested in some areas.

One of the big projects, the massive Mid-Town Interchange which centers near NW Fifth Ave. and Ninth St., will displace an estimated 1,634 families mostly Negroes.

There are several outlets for this tremendous group:

PUBLIC HOUSING — The Miami Housing Authority reports that it can take about 175 Negro families (and an equal number of whites) each year. People who are displaced by condemnation get priority attention for the low-rent housing, provided they satisfy other requirements, according to Haley Sofge, housing executive director.

PRIVATE RENTAL HOUSING — The city's largest clearing house for Negro rentals, reports that it alone could absorb more than 1,000 of the families. Says the owner of the rental agency, "I thought they (the SRD) were going to start downtown. So I jumped in ahead of them."

* * *

City, County Working on Plan

BOTH Miami and Dade County are working on a plan to make use of "displaced person" loans which are available under the Federal Housing Administration.

These loans would be made on a 40-year, 100 per cent basis to families who are forced to move.

The big problem seems to be finding developers who are willing to undertake that type of subdivision building.

Other Stories, Page 2J

How Will We Pay For Road Program?

Who'll pay for Dade's big expressways?

It has been said that it would take 900 million dollars to bring Dade County's total road program up to date. In one way or another it all has to come out of the taxpayer's pocket.

If the money comes, it will be from these sources:

* * *

FEDERAL

The Federal Bureau of Roads, administrator of the multi-billion dollar Federal Interstate System, provides from the U. S. budget 90 per cent of the cost of designated interstate roads. Florida got more than 37 million dollars this fiscal year, including other federal road aid, and is slated to receive nearly 65 million dollars during the year beginning July 1. This money is used throughout the state at the discretion of the State Road Board with Federal Bureau approval.

* * *

STATE

Florida's seven-cent gasoline tax includes four cents for primary construction of roads. This money is allocated on a percentage basis, for construction only, throughout the five State Road Board districts. The Fourth District, which includes Dade County, gets 27 per cent. It totals about 12 million dollars a year.

* * *

COUNTY

The remainder of the state gas tax, three cents, is historically earmarked for buying right-of-way and the construction and maintenance of the countys' supporting road system. Under the 30-year-old formula whereby secondary money is apportioned, Dade got just under three million dollars. The county also can build roads as "revenue projects" where they are feasible.

These projects, like the Venetian and Rickenbacker Causeways, pay for themselves by a toll which retires bonded indebtedness. The most recent revenue projects considered are the Mid-Bay Drive, Keys Causeway and the western portion of the 36th St. Expressway.

* * *

FUTURE

Both the federal government and state are considering a gasoline tax hike—1.5 cents for the U. S. and a penny for the state. The state tax, part of the road board's legislative program, would only be levied in counties which wanted it and would be returned intact for use in those counties.

A final plan for securing additional state highway money has been proposed by Gov. LeRoy Collins. It involves an increase in vehicle registration fees.

* * *

Some Expressways Would Sit on Fill

'Chinese Wall' Road Plan Attacked by Land Owners

One of the hottest points of controversy over the expressway program has grown out of State Road Department plans to put overpasses on solid banks of earth 22 to 28 feet high.

Property owners near the route have attacked this decision, claiming it will set up "Chinese walls" to cut the city into quadrants.

SRD engineers claim the filled structures, once landscaped, will be more pleasing to look at than the concrete and steel "elevated" roadways.

But their primary reason for selecting the solid fill over "els" is a matter of cost.

Opponents of the fill plan claim they will be:

MORE EXPENSIVE to maintain.

SOLID BLOCKS against the breeze, stifling the surrounding neighborhoods.

IMPASSABLE BARRIERS for children on the way to school, shoppers going to the stores and families going to their churches.

Miami Engineer Arthur E. Darlow also pointed out that solid fills will require extensive revision of the routes of fire-fighting equipment, ambulances and other emergency vehicles.

* * *

North-South Road on Fill

THE MAJOR ROUTE which is planned with emphasis on solid fill is the North-South Expressway.

Its pattern is not firmly established, but it will fit into a master traffic program compiled by Consultant Wilbur Smith and Associates.

From SW 32nd Rd. to the Miami River, the highway will be at grade level except for points where it rises to cross major streets.

Across the river, the Downtown Interchange will be on open, elevated "concrete and steel." Except for two down-sweeps to street level, the North-South will be on elevated braces to the Midtown Interchange. The SRD plans to use some solid fill and some structural elevation on the Midtown Interchange.

From the Midtown Interchange north to the 36th St. Interchange, the highway will be mainly on elevated structure with no interference to cross-town traffic.

* * *

Solid Fill Cheaper

THE MASSIVE, 90-acre 36th St. Interchange will be built on solid fill entirely, the engineers reported.

North of this interchange, here are the strips which will be elevated on solid fill.

NW 51st St. to NW 56th St.

NW 60th St. to NW 64th St.

NW 69th St. to NW 81st St.

NW 93rd St. to NW 97th St.

NW 100th St. to NW 109th St.

NW 116th St. to NW 121st St.

NW 123rd St. to NW 127th St.

NW 133rd St. to NW 139th Ter.

NW 141st St. to NW 145th St.

NW 149th St. to NW 154th St.

The highway is part of the Federal Interstate System, and is financed with 9 per cent federal funds.

The solid fill rises were chosen because they're cheaper, the engineers said, and the Federal Bureau of Roads preferred fill to more expensive concrete-steel structures.

As for the "Chinese wall" charge, Winston Carlton, SRD district engineer, is answering critics this way:

"They won't be any more Chinese walls than trees and houses are."

Under Present Planning

You'll Pay Toll On 3 Roads

Will you have to pay to ride Dade's express roads once they're built?

Of all the presently planned highways only three segments will be toll roads.

36th St. Expressway

This route will be free from the 36th St. (Seventh Ave.) Interchange eastward. A 10-cent toll will be charged for motorists using the highway between the interchange and Miami International Airport, or points along the route. But a motorist from western connectors will be able to use the facility free if he leaves the highway before the toll gate, which is slated for location just west of the Interchange.

Mid-Bay Drive

Either a 10-cent or 15-cent toll will be charged on segments of the Mid-Bay Drive. There will be a series of points where tolls will be collected.

Keys Causeway

An extension of the Mid-Bay Drive, the Keys Causeway also will have several 10-15 cent toll collection points. The toll for the full-length drive has not yet been figured.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Better steer clear of that heated argument over finances or other important matter at home today.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20) While you seem to be in a dither to be on the go, better take it easy right now, particularly while out driving.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Be particularly careful to take no chances of alienating the regard of a friend of long standing.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Planetary forces are keeping you feeling dissatisfied now, and this is a good time to make those constructive changes that will improve and enrich your present life.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) A private worry has you in a real dither, but this is a planetary challenge to see how well you handle the situation.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) This is one of those days when all your comrades seem bent upon disagreeing with your views and ideas. Don't let this bother you.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Your prestige may be jeopardized if you do not give immediate attention to important and pressing civic and business affairs.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Here is a day when you want to toss aside many an accepted and approved principle and standard. This would be most unfortunate now.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Your intuitions are not good at all today, but somehow you wish to follow them. Be wise and reflect before you take any steps.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Since there is very fine harmony existing between you and associates, wisdom would be the better part of valor and you should not insist upon winning a certain point.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Although you may want to plunge into a great deal of hard work today just to let off steam, as it were, this would only injure your health and cause some irreparable damage. You Can Be Active Despite Heart Illness

Ike Still Golfs
. . . despite his attack

By LAWRENCE THOMPSON
Herald Staff Writer

You can have fun in Florida even if you have heart trouble.

The fact that you have a heart ailment doesn't mean you must stop living normally. If you are lucky enough to live in Florida, it doesn't even mean that you must give up most activities.

You must live with moderation—but chances are that you can perform most jobs, go for long walks, fish, play golf or shuffleboard, swim, bowl and dance.

As a general rule, you can do most of the things you used to do—but not so strenuously. And you can do more of those things in Florida than you might elsewhere.

Cold, windy weather is one of the greatest enemies of a heart victim. Florida weather permits a much wider range of interests than would be advisable many places.

The important thing to remember, of course, is that each person is an individual case. Each man's heart is his own. Any heart victim should consult his doctor about what activities are safe for him. What is perfectly safe for one man might be dangerous for another.

* * *

FOR INSTANCE, only last month a young Miamian named Ed Beattie made his return to the boxing ring after a layoff of more than a year. He won by a knockout in the first round and local sports observers predict a great future for him.

The reason Beattie retired temporarily from the ring was that he had heart trouble. He had a hole in his heart. A former Olympic boxer, he had been in seven professional fights and won all of them when doctors told him an operation was advisable.

Helped by blood transfusions donated by boxing fans, Beattie had his heart operated on. Now he's back in the ring, apparently as fit as ever. Examining physicians have said he was fit for a return to his former profession.

Now that doesn't mean that every person who has had heart trouble can jump in a boxing ring and start throwing punches. Nor does it mean that the average heart victim can start playing football — although Bill Johnson, All American, once had rheumatic heart disease.

The Beatties and Johnsons demonstrate in a dramatic way that heart disease doesn't need to disable or cripple its victims. Most folks couldn't take up such vigorous exercise as football or boxing, but most of them can lead active, normal lives.

* * *

A MIAMI heart specialist puts it this way: A heart victim should be encouraged to be as active as possible, within his own limits.

This may sound like such general advice that it is meaningless, but it really isn't. The average heart victim can tell when he is exerting himself too much. If he gets short of breath, he knows it is time to rest.

More specifically, his doctor can tell him pretty well what his limitations are.

In addition to heeding his doctor's advice, the heart victim must use common sense.

He can go fishing safely, but he wouldn't be smart to lift and attach an outboard motor to a boat. In fact, all pushing, lifting or pulling should be avoided.

He can swim, but he shouldn't try to set a new speed record across the pool or battle the surf. Relaxed, easy swimming in calm water is something else.

He can do most yard work, such as trimming hedges, planting flowers, pruning trees, or he can raise a vegetable garden. He can use a power mower. But he wouldn't be wise to climb a tree, push a hand mower through tall grass, or use a scythe on weeds.

He can walk up and down stairs if he takes his time. But he shouldn't take them two steps at a time, or run.

He can drive a car or milk a cow and the woman heart victim can wash the dishes or use the vacuum cleaner. But he wouldn't drive a tractor across a plowed field or chop down a tree, and the woman wouldn't change the furniture around.

* * *

THE MAIN THING, doctors emphasize, is to take it easy in whatever is done. Let someone else take the boat off the trailer, and you can handle it on the water.

In choosing sports and other activities, the heart patient must use common sense, as well as a doctor's advice. A man whose chief exercise has been walking from his office to his car shouldn't take up weight lifting or jiu-jitsu. A golfer who played 18 holes a day in mid-day may have to limit himself to nine holes in the cool of the day.

But shuffleboard can be as much fun as tennis, and walking gets you as far as running.

Moderation is the key word for heart victims. But moderation dosen't mean stagnation. Self-pity is one of the worse after effects of heart trouble.

The person who has had heart trouble can have as much fun in Florida as nearly anyone. He's still very much alive and can enjoy a lot of living.

Sub Surfaced to Look at Balloonists

Four British adventurers — one a woman — started in a balloon named "The Small World" from the Canary Islands on Dec. 12, 1958, planning to retrace the trade winds route of Columbus to the West Indies. After four days in the air, they had to abandon their balloon, existing for days in their 15 by 8 foot combination balloon gondola and boat. Rosemary Mudie, lone woman on the expedition, tells how hope came — and left — on Dec. 23.

We collected in a rush at the stern of "The Small World" that afternoon of Dec. 23 when my husband, Colin, who had the rudder, declared excitedly we were being followed. I could hear the steady "chug-chug" sound of a motor. Then I saw, steaming toward us, a rusty-colored submarine of modern design.

We forgot Colin's instructions about the necessity of keeping our small boat balanced with two to a side, as Bushy Eiolart, our erst-while balloon commander; his son, Tim, radio operator without a radio, and I scrambled back there for a look.

"How wonderful," was Bushy's first exclamation, "we'll be able to send a message home, get some coke and beer, and perhaps 10 gallons of fresh water!"

We shouted, hollered, waved our arms and did almost everything possible to attract attention when the submarine, which we had been sure was stalking us, stopped and lay off beam not more than a mile distant.

It was a brilliant, sunny Dec. 23, the time was 4:30 p.m. and visibility was excellent. It seemed strange that the submarine couldn't recognize us since we were within good binocular range.

"It's probably an American submarine," Bushy ventured, "and they've been instructed not to stop. After all, it's a dead loss for them; they've probably given away so much food and supplies to transatlantic yachts in this area that they're bored with this type of thing."

"That's a very dirty sub," Colin, who had borrowed Tim's "specs" to see more clearly, observed. "It obviously hasn't been polished today so I doubt very much that it's American — it just doesn't look properly packaged or spic and span enough for one of theirs."

It was Colin who first suggested that it was a Russian submarine and we all finally agreed on this. It seemed so strange that the sub crew gave no sign of seeing us and it could hardly be a coincidence that they surfaced so near us in all these miles of the Atlantic. They just wanted to look us over. That's what convinced us it was a Russian sub.

After about an hour, in which the submarine criss-crossed our general area several times, the submarine disappeared to our great disappointment, for we had so hoped to get some water from it and send a radio message home.

* * *

WE HAD BEEN forced to jettison our radio transmitter on Dec. 14. Colin had dropped several message balloons over the side of the ship and we were to release several more balloons before we reached our destination but we couldn't know, of course, that none of these would be picked up. (At least, at this writing, they haven't.)

Strangely enough, we learned later, our friends thought we were perfectly safe. We didn't know that some amateur radio operator — he never has been identified — was sending out false messages, purporting to be from "The Small World."

What caused people to become suspicious of these false messages was something that was even more extraordinary — the false report on Dec. 26 that we had landed in eastern Venezuela.

We couldn't know this, but papers all over the world carried a story from Caracas, Venezuela, saying that we had landed in the sparsely settled Delta Amacuro territory, near the mouth of the Orinoco River. The false dispatch even gave such details as that we had been slightly bruised in the landing, but not seriously hurt!

The announcement was seemingly even more authentic for it was made by Dr. Oscar M. Zuloaga, Venezuela's minister of communications. He, like us, was the victim of a cruel hoax.

* * *

BLISSFULLY UNAWARE of the messages that gave our other dear ones reason for jubilation, then alarm, we sailed serenely on. Colin's ankle seemed to be improving; the swelling had gone down enough for him to hobble about the boat.

Colin, who was doing our navigation, plotted our position every two days. On Dec. 21 he was able to tell us that we now had less than a thousand miles to go to Barbados.

"We're making excellent time considering the type of craft we're sailing," he told us. "Our shortest two-day run has been 120 miles while our best has been 180 miles."

We had finally worked out a schedule of the watches at the tiller so that we had two hours on duty and six hours off. That allowed each to get adequate sleep.

Our eating habits had settled themselves into individual patterns. Bushy would eat only when he felt hungry while Colin made a regular schedule for himself and ate at those hours whether he was hungry or not. I vacillated between both schemes. Tim, who ate more than the rest of us, would store his food allotment in polyethylene bags and munch on things at odd hours.

* * *

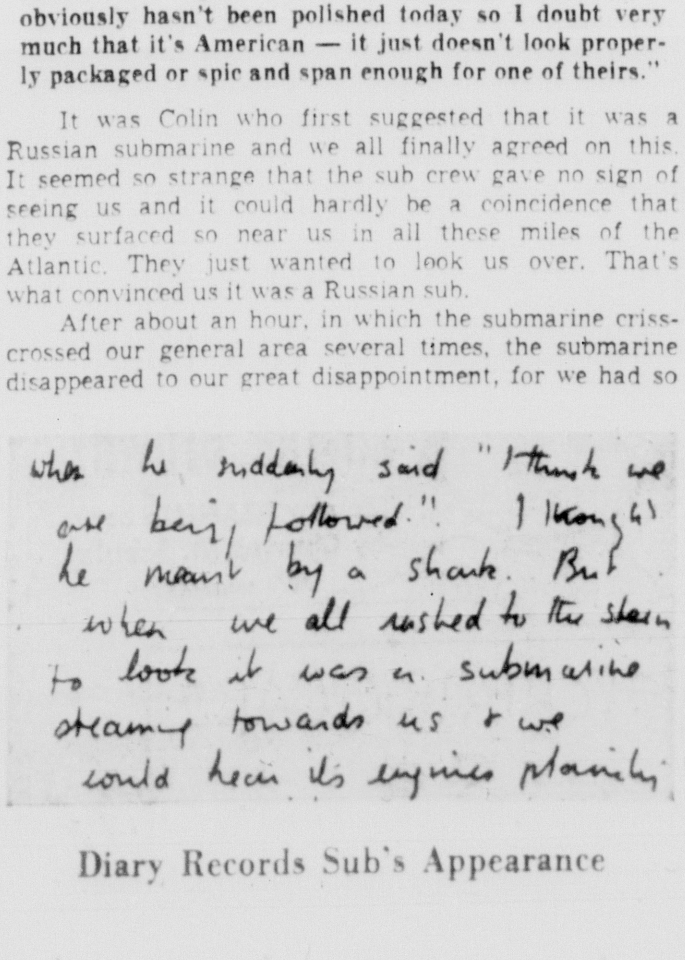
THE WEATHER held up rather well until the day before Christmas. That was a wet, stormy day. But I spent too long a time with my head down in the rolling sea and was horribly sick. Such a waste — we have so little water and eat so very little that it takes a terrible long time to refill one's stomach to a comfortable level.

But I was better off than Tim, who had an aggravated case of diarrhea. I gave him a pill and then we all shared his watches while he tried to rest.

As can be guessed, it was the oddest Christmas Eve I've ever spent. We said "Merry Christmas" to each other as we changed watches, that was all.

I only hoped that Christmas Day would be a happier occasion. For a Christmas present, I just wanted it to stop raining and for the seas to smooth.

NEXT: A Most Unlikely Christmas.



when he suddenly said "I think we are being followed". I thought he meant by a shark. But when we all rushed to the stern to look it was a submarine steaming towards us & we could hear its engines plainly

Era Was Sinful but Exciting

TENDERLOIN by Samuel Hopkins Adams, (Random, $4.95.)

Reviewed by Jack Kofoed

So far as younger readers go, this novel is a period piece. To the late author, and other old timers, it was contemporary.

The Tenderloin was a sinful acreage between 14th and 42nd Sts. in Manhattan, and boasted the gaudiest spots and most rampant gamblers, prostitutes and racketeers in town.

The section gained its name through the remark of a police captain, who had been transferred there after years in a quiet precinct.

"I've been living on chuck steak for a long time," the captain said, "now I'm gonna get myself some tenderloin." By that, of course, he meant graft.

The story concerns a young reporter, who works for the naughty Police Gazette, another newshawk (based no doubt on Mr. Adams, himself), who toiled on the respectable "Sun," and a crusading Presbyterian minister, whose driving ambition was to clean up the district single handed.

Everything is based on facts, or facts as Adams remembers them. His characters are recreations of actual people, too. The minister is indubitably Dr. Parkhurst, most famous of New York crusaders, who almost ruined himself in an Augean stables campaign.

I liked Tenderloin. Its people are all "good guys" or "bad guys." There is no attempt at shading. The picture of a fantastic era, when there was gaslight and sin, but no psychiatrists, is splendidly drawn.

To readers of modern novels, studded with profanity and inverted sex problems, Tenderloin may seem old fashioned. But the Gay 90s, of which the Tenderloin was a part, was old fashioned, too, exciting as it was, and the skilled author has brought it smartly alive.

Early Love Affair of Louis XIV

SAY NO TO LOVE. By Gerty Colin. (Coward - McCann,) $3.95)

Reviewed by Bert Collier

Louis XIV reigned over France in one of its periods of greatest glory. He was the Sun King, the resplendent monarch in his wig of flowing curls, the builder of Versailles, the absolute ruler of an empire.

That was one side of the coin. On the other was the man with barnyard morals, whose arrogance and ambition drove France into the wasting wars that sowed the seeds of the deluge that was to sweep away the monarchy.

Louis the Splendid was not a very desirable character. Modern psychiatry might explain this by citing that his mother was dominant and scheming, that Louis as a boy was forced to knuckle under the crafty Cardinal Mazarin who was his mother's lover. Freud could have made much of that.

But, regardless of what men become, each of them was once an unspoiled youth, and Louis XIV was no different. Before he became a king he had an idyllic love affair with a lovely girl who was driven from him by state policy. This is the story of that love.

A colorful romance in the classic pattern, it strikes an old-fashioned note which is refreshing in these days when violence seems to prevail as a motivation for most human actions.

What Readers Say To a Book Reviewer

UNANSWERED letters hang heavily on our collective conscience. Maybe it will exonerate me if I say the Herald receives more than 50 books a week. No, I don't read all of them. Who could? But I do my best. It doesn't leave much time to answer letters. Two from distinguished Miami Beach citizens, however, deserve attention.

Dr. Leonard Rowntree, the well-known physician, has written a book about his 50 years in medicine. It is called Amid Masters of 20th Century Medicine and is brought out by a medical publishing house, Thomas, of Springfield, Ill. Many of the doctor's friends have called up to ask when it is going to be reviewed.

Answer: As soon as possible. There are at least 30 other books ahead.

Harry Simonhoff, who wrote Jewish Notables in America 1776-1865 has produced Saga of American Jewry — 1865-1914, published by Philosophical Library. New Novel of Japan

STUART GRIFFIN, reporter from the New York Journal of Commerce, lives in Japan, thinks it's high time someone wrote a real novel about Japan, leaving out the words inscrutable, mysterious, enigmatic and painting it as a real country instead of a never never land of cherry blossoms, Mount Fuji, rice, fish, geisha and rickshaws.

Once a Japanese girl told him she tried to look bright and pleasant for her friends: "My outside face is bright and gay. But my inside one is dark and sad." So-o-o Griffin has written a book Bright Face, Dark Face, which can be ordered, it seems, from Charles Tuttle, Rutland, Vt. This seems as good a time as any to point out that we don't order books. We don't buy them, either. The publishers send them to us.

Nostalgic Memories

A CHARMING LETTER from George M Lord of Key Largo, who admits to 80 and was kind enough to remember our article of winter snows.

"I hear again" he writes, "the chime of sleigh bells on a frosty night and the throbbing aeolian music of the telephone wires. Before the snow came we skated miles along the virgin black ice of the winding river . . . for thawing out we built bonfires on the banks or in the center of the pond . . . How I would love to see again the picture of skaters circling that fire at night."

If we could only end on that note of poetry but we are constrained to use a letter signed the New England Snobs . . . "We are a group of married females . . . who are primarily interested in your book reviews. We believe in doing our own reading, and pondering rather than attending book reviews. We feel that some of the people who speak on new books are no better educated or know no better than us. Are we wrong?"

I think so, dear snobs, if for no other reason than "us" should be in the nominative case.

Just Minding His Business

MEANS TO AN END, by John Rowan Wilson, (Doubleday, $3.95)

This is Big Business in three capitals — New York, London and Paris.

"It was an unknown country . . . carpets were thick and pastel-shaded, secretaries soft of voice, doors closed automatically."

Learning Facts of Company Life
. . . scenes from 'Means to an End'

This excellent novel by an English writer shows more clearly than most how teeth and fangs lie as close to the surface in business as in the wild jungles of Africa.

Chris Marshall, a young man on the board of directors of a huge international combine, is content to sign papers, clip coupons and keep out of office politics until he is sent to London in place of an embittered predecessor.

There, in the foreign branch of his own company, he uncovers tragedy, drama and enough skullduggery to arouse all his fighting instincts. He develops from an attractive, gentlemanly fellow who makes a fourth at dinner parties to a dedicated fighter, determined to see justice done.

Chris also discovers June Lancing, an English secretary, who is in close touch with all the subterranean activities that end behind the Iron Curtain.

The picture of company life in London and Paris, of the harassed office managers, vice presidents, secretaries and executives, indicate that the tensions of business life are not exclusively American.

This book is far superior to the average office novel. It shows not only a deep understanding of group psychology where human beings are fighting for their lives, but of individuals and their personal problems.

It's a February selection for the Book of the Month Club.

'The Bastard' Storms Through War and Love

Lusty Novel Is Hit in Europe

THE BASTARD, by Brigitte von Tessin, (McKay, $4.95)
Reviewed by Mike Morgan

Seventeenth-century France is the stage for this blockbuster romance written by a German, Miss Brigitte von Tessin. It is a huge, sweeping novel in the grand panorama style.

There's something for everyone here — war, love, religion, history, sex and it's all put together in an interesting and readable fashion.

It has all the ingredients for a full-scale, historical movie but I suspect the moviemakers would have to take extreme measures to make the novel presentable as a film — or, at least, to make it come within the limits of the several Codes of Decency.

There is Gaston, Count de Racon, whose amours and sexual inclinations are noteworthy even in an age when the nobility exercised the Droits de Seigneurx without restraint.

Gaston, a fiercely proud noble, is a character of contradictions. Lecherous, savage, headstrong, he is also given to a strong sense of honor — as honor is gauged in the period of Louis XIV. This honor does not dissuade him from blackmail at one point.

Author Brigitte von Tessin
. . . German widow's first novel set in France

The novel centers on the bond which develops between the Count and his natural son, Martin.

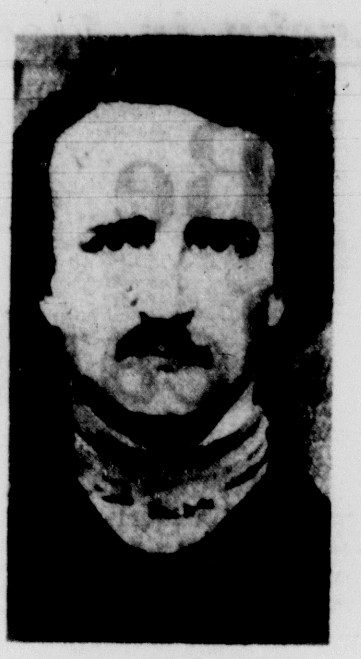
At first the count chooses to ignore Martin. Yet, as the boy shows qualities which neither of his half-brothers possess, and worships his father, the count becomes attached and protective toward Martin.

This attitude generates hatred in the heart of one half-brother, Raoul, who has sworn to kill Martin.

Several other stories are carried within the complex pattern of this sprawling novel. One factor which sets the book out is the splendid background treatment. In one sense it is a massive costume piece.

The pomp and ceremony of the court at Versailles, the world of the aristocracy, the armies of the times, life of the peasantry are all depicted, as it were, "in living color."

The book has achieved wide popularity in Europe; it should be equally successful here.



Edgar Allen Poe
. . . talent, tragedy

Poet Poe: A Haunted Genius

THE HAUNTED PALACE, a Life of Edgar Allen Poe, by Frances Winwar, (Harper, $6)

He was, indeed, a haunted man — a victim of dope, drink poverty and misery. Without talent he might have died unknown in a Baltimore flophouse or in the open gutter. As it is, he did just that—died of delirium tremens in a city hospital.

This is one of the best of the Winwar biographies. It tells everything about this great poet except his genius.

It pictures his fights and antipathies, his arguments with publishers and with such well-known poets as Elizabeth Barret Browning and Walt Whitman, his unsatisfactory marriage with a lovely girl who died at 24 of tuberculosis.

Through it all, like a black thread, runs his terrible, degrading poverty. Dostievsky could not have written a more bitter story than that of Poe's life.

The child of theatrical parents, he was still an infant when his father disappeared. His appealing young mother died of tuberculosis after giving birth to what was considered an illegitimate daughter and the little boy was adopted by the John Allens, friends of his father's family who gave him everything in the way of love and luxury.

What happened years later when he was a youth, after school in England and all the advantages of special position is never clarified.

The Allens repudiated him completely, after he was entered at West Point but could not keep up on account of lack of money. His tempestuous, stormy life from then till his death was complicated by drink, dope and fights with editors.

Poe married his young cousin, Virginia Clemm, who, declares Mrs. Winwar, was not fully developed to be a proper wife and his platonic affairs with various ladies were the "scandal" of the literary world.

Poe held a few jobs as editor of dying magazines but his work was so unusual — his colorful fancy and poetical imagination so far out of keeping with the Victorian thought of the day that he was reduced to the status of a kind of refined begger.

This is the 150th anniversary of the author who gave us such masterpieces as The Raven, Annabel Lee, The Bells, and Murders in the Rue Morgue.

He had been dead 25 years before the citizens of Baltimore erected a monument to him and he was outlived by his sister Rosalie, an undeveloped, childish character. There is no accounting for Poe's genius. Miss Winwar does not attempt to do so.

Prolific Floridian's Latest

Slaughter Writes Moving Story of Early Christianity

THE THORN OF ARIMATHEA by Frank G. Slaughter, (Doubleday, $3.95)

Florida's triple-threat author, Dr. Frank G. Slaughter, turns, in this novel, to the field in which he excels, the evocation of Biblical times with a skill that will make this latest work another best seller. He deftly combines legend, tradition and research with his highly-developed flair for historical writing to make this one of the best of his books.

Dr. Slaughter, whose literary output resembles the modern assembly line, writes novels on early Florida, stories from Old and New Testaments and the Apochrypha, and works from the medical profession, for he deserted the healing art for the lively art of authorship. He alternates among the three fields with scarcely a change of pace.

But production-line activity implies formula, and that is only partly true about the prodigious labors of this Floridian. In fact "The Thorn of Arimathea" is different from his previous novels on Biblical themes.

Roman Centurion and Veronica of Veil
. . . two of chief characters in 'Thorn of Arimathea'

It is at times a moving story of a search for faith and understanding on the part of the Roman centurion who becomes the friend of Joseph of Arimathea, owner of the tomb in which Jesus was placed after the Crucifixion, and Joseph's niece Veronica, whose veil figures in the Christian tradition.

Through circumstances this trio wanders through the Roman world. To this extent it is an odyssey, filled with adventure and misadventure that threaten to engulf the restless roamers.

Finally they reach a haven in Britain where the winter thorn introduced by Joseph, says tradition, still blooms at Christmas time.

Along the way Volusianus, Joseph and Veronica witness the grand monuments to Roman might, view the bustle of marketplaces, sense the ferment in the world which Rome rules but in which old Roman gods grow dim. All this is believably done.

And in the end, true to the rules of drama, the Roman soldier comes to believe in the miraculous power that is manifested through the Christian maiden. This is the logical end.

Dr. Slaughter has an enormous sense of logic, which helps explain why his books are universally successful. This will appeal to all the army of Slaughter followers. It will also win many new readers.

Glamor Boy Mate Proves To Be Thief

MY FELLOW DEVILS, by L. P. Hartley, (British Book Center $3.50).

The author is one of England's most sophisticated and skillful novelists. Not all of his books have been published in this country but in them he takes people apart and puts them together again so you cannot see the cracks, or hear their cries.

This is the story of a well-bred, intelligent, aristocratic Mayfair girl who falls in love with a film star. While Margaret Pennefeather, only daughter of a retired, intellectual father, is an heiress in a small way, her friends are drawn from different walks of life.

People met in her drawing room who would, except on committees, never have met elsewhere. Her air of detachment and her primness attracted a rising young lawyer and they became engaged.

It was then that Margaret saw Colum McInnes in a gangster film and was swept off her feet. She broke her engagement to Nicholas Burden, had a spectacular wedding in Venice, was introduced to a new world. Her discovery that her husband was a thief, her complete disillusionment and her conversion to religion form the theme of the book.

Hartley unfolds this rather hackneyed plot carefully and sincerely. His picture of the sheltered heroine, long on ideas and short on experience, would do credit to Henry James.

In drawing the film star, her erring husband, his typewriter falters. A successful actor who is also a burglar is too much of an enigma for even Hartley to represent.

Negro Lore a Major Book

More Fine Work By Langston Hughes

THE BOOK OF NEGRO FOLK LORE, edited by Langston Hughes and Arna Bontemps (Dodd Mead, $6.50).
TAMBOURINES TO GLORY, by Langston Hughes, (Day, $3.50).

As a columnist on the Chicago Defender he has always taken the opposite point of view from Richard Wright who wears racial inequality like a cross and whose books, brilliant in their way, are depressing reading for both races.

Hughes is Amos and Andy in the flesh. He wrote the lyrics for Street Scene, and his Tambourines to Glory is really a jocund collection of character sketches, featuring Laura Reed and Essie Belle Johnson, two Harlem ladies who decide to start their own church and make money.

"We don't do anything else useful," says broad-bosomed Essie, "and it would beat home relief."

The anthology of Negro folk lore is something much needed. The two editors have divided it into sections as Memories of Slavery, Animal Tales, Ghost Stories, On The Levee and gospel songs.

There are plenty of familiar names, such as Paul Lawrence Dunbar, James Weldon Johnson, Ralph Ellison, Richard Wright, Zora Neal Hurston, and, of course, the editor

But what Negro anthology can afford to omit, as this one does, the Uncle Remus tales, by Joel Chandler Harris; Ol' Man Adam and His Chillun and Child of God, by Roark Bradford and even the book that is said to have sparked the Civil War, Harriet Beecher Stowe's Uncle Tom's Cabin?

It might seem that white folks are excluded except for the extracts from Lafcadio Hearn and Lyle Saxon.

Nevertheless, it's a valuable contribution to a section of American life that has never received its full quota of recognition.

Author, Critic Win Awards

BRUSHING UP ON ART SHOWS

Hicken Paintings Convey a Mood

By DORIS RENO
Herald Music and Art Editor

Art Reviews

Boston painter Philip Hicken's one-man at the Playhouse Gallery, Coconut Grove, does not represent the first bow this excellent painter has made to the Greater Miami area, but it does show him in more affluent circumstances, pictorially, than the earlier and smaller exhibitions at Studio Craft Shop.

The show, in two of the small Playhouse galleries, is composed principally of watercolors (though there are one or two large oils included), and there are enough of them to give viewers a good understanding of Hicken's principal virtues—which are cleanness of palette, clarity of line and excellence of design, and conveyance of mood.

Some of the paintings make an almost monumental use of planes that is rare in watercolor painting.

Spaces are beautifully related, and the impression of cleanness and freshness is strengthened by the breezy, but never gaudy, color employed.

Our favorites from the show are "Neap," "Nantucket Dunes," "Landfall No. 2," "Roccian No. 4," "Beached," and "North from Manset." The show is available through Saturday.

REYNA YOUNGERMAN'S one-man at Miami Beach Art Center presents this local painter in a better light than any preceding showing she has had in the area.

This painter is growing constantly in her utilization of color and in compositional strength. Though earlier in her Miami career she specialized in portraits, it is Miss Youngerman's work in landscape that has added most to her stature.

There are a number of really superior pieces in this show, of which our top favorites are "Avignon Fountain" and "Fishing Village, South France."

There are two other one-mans at the Beach Center during this viewing period, both by New Yorkers — the painters Harry Hering and Lawrence Hirsch.

Hering has a number of examples of what may be called true watercolors — in contrast to those which use the watercolor medium in the manner of oil. These are his best offerings — for he also has a good many of the other sort, which are too detailed, too busy, and too tight.

"Wet Day in Gloucester, Mass." is one of the "real" ones, as is the charming piece "Around the Fountain," which is, perhaps, the most attractive of them all.

Lawrence Hirsch has some delightful caseins on view — and, like Hering, some not-so-delightful overblown pieces which misuse the medium.

The still lifes are a bit precious, and the show is not, somehow, integrated with itself. But the approach is earnest and sincere all the way down the line, and the good pieces are very good indeed.

The excellent watercolors include "Abington Square," which projects a real mood and "Early Morning Catch," which may be the best item in the show. The current viewing period will conclude Thursday.

IT'S A VERY GOOD show of Mexican prints now current at El Centro, in the McAllister Hotel — one which again puts forth the silk-screen technique in a new and interesting light.

The silk-screen technicians are S. Steinlauf and Judson Briggs, and their work in this medium is very tasteful and attractive. In some of the other graphic media Steinlauf recalls Diego Rivera a little too persistently, but in the silk-screen technique he is original and conclusive. This seems, too, to be his favorite technique.

Also recalling Rivera is the work of J. O. Tajoner, who stresses woodcuts. His work is very clean and incisive, and his conceptions have impact.

Also on view at El Centro are good graphics by G. Buxtos, who portrays the work folk of Mexico; Pablo O'Higgins, who does studies of people; and an artist named simply Mexiac, whose "The Prayer" is a quite powerful piece. The closing day is Saturday.

* * *

THE ENGLISH artist Ena O'Brien, who is now living in South Florida, has a one-man at the Huber Galleries, Miami Beach, which presents her in several lights — as a portrait painter, a landscape artist, and a painter of still lifes.

She does effective work in all, but her best achievement, as indicated in this show, is probably in portraiture.

Some of the works in this category, as "Tasha" and "Alouette," are well-conceived; others of the portraits have a little touch of "cuteness," that detracts.

Several of the still lifes, such as "Bouquet," are outstanding, others are a little too primitivized.

* * *

FRANKLIN ADAMS, New Orleans painter, has his second one-man at the Studio Craft Shop, Coconut Grove, but his style and approach have changed so much since last year that the work is scarcely recognizable as being by the same artist.

Adams is now striving to make his effects through the use of color alone, without even much help from form and certainly none from composition. He uses color well, not audaciously or flashily but aside from this, the paintings have no meaning or appeal.

The most attractive one, color-wise, is "Dark Bower."

* * *

BERT BOUCHER'S one-man at the Village Corner Gallery is hit-or-miss, so far as presentation goes, but contains some attractive work.

The artist has not troubled much about proper frames or mats, and has included a good deal of sketch material that goes better in the studio than on the wall. The presence of so much study material tends to detract from the finished pieces.

On the whole we find Boucher's drawings most successful, particularly those of French landscapes. There are also some good woodblocks on display. The show is scheduled through Feb. 28.

* * *

RAUL VIEYRA'S seascapes and other pieces at the Gallery Restaurant, Coral Way, are strictly representational, and of them all we like the seascapes least.

The study of "Horses in the Desert" we like, and the two still lifes, and one or two of the mountain-scenes. The exhibition continues through February.

DALMA CHRISTENSEN'S show at the Eve Tucker Galleries, Miami Beach, has already closed. It presented work that is derivative but not totally unimaginative, and in some of the canvases the paint is applied with a good bit of know-how.

VERDI OPERA DEBUT NEARS

Miami Awaits 'Masked Ball'

Martha Lipton   Mario Zanasi
. . . mezzo and baritone

An opera that will be 100 years old this year will be produced for the first time in Miami next week.

Verdi's "Masked Ball," premiered in Rome in 1859, will be presented by Miami Opera Guild Monday evening, Feb. 23, in Dade County auditorium.

Further performances are scheduled for Wednesday evening, Feb. 25, in Miami Beach auditorium, and Saturday evening, Feb. 28, back in Dade County auditorium.

The opera will not provide the only debut in this production for it will bring here for the first time the Metropolitan Opera dramatic soprano Herva Nelli, one of Arturo Toscanini's "discoveries" and one of his favored singers in opera and oratorio recordings.

"The Masked Ball" will also return to Miami for the second consecutive season one of the most important Met tenors, Richard Tucker.

Tucker, who made his local debut last season in "Tosca," helped select "Masked Ball" for this season's presentation.

When asked last year by Dr. Arturo di Filippi, the guild's impresario, which of several roles he would prefer to sing here this season, he picked that of Richard, Count of Warwick in "Ballo." It is one of his favorite roles at the Met.

Miss Nelli will have the part of Amelia, wife of Reinhart, Richard's secretary.

"Ballo's" cast, so far as major roles are concerned, will be almost entirely derived from seasoned Metropolitan Opera singers. The others will be mezzo-soprano Martha Lipton, who'll be Ulrica, the astrologer, and baritone Mario Zanasi, who'll be Reinhart.

"Ballo" has a small cast, and two of the three minor roles will be carried by singers from New York's City Opera company.

They will be coloratura soprano Eva Likova, who'll be Oscar the page, and basso Joshua Hecht, who'll have the role of Sam.

The role of Tom, the other conspirator, will be carried by Edward Doe, formerly of Miami, who now sings with several companies including the Cincinnati Opera.

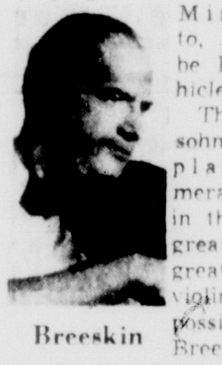
"Ballo," as all guild productions during the past seven or so seasons, will be conducted by Emerson Buckley of New York City.

Music and Art

Breeskin Is Soloist Tonight

Barnett Breeskin announces that he has decided not to conduct his Miami Beach Civic Orchestra when he appears as soloist with the group at the 8:15 concert tonight in Miami Beach auditorium.

Though he will conduct the rest of the concert, Breeskin says that Marten Godwin will have the baton during the playing of Mendelssohn's E Minor Concerto, which will be his solo vehicle.



Breeskin

The Mendelssohn has been played innumerable times in this area, by great and less-great visiting violinists. It is possible that Breeskin may be the first home-town violinist to give it a performance.

This will be the Beach Civic Orchestra's fifth concert in a series of eight this season. All concerts are free to the public.

The rest of the program will consist of the overture to Nicolai's opera "The Merry Wives of Windsor," Demarest's arrangement of the Bach Fugue in G (The Lesser), the L'Arlesienne Suite No. 1 by Bizet, and the Liszt Hungarian Rhapsody No. 2 arranged for orchestra by Muller-Berghaus.

Boca to Hold Crafts Preview

The preview of the ninth annual exhibition of arts and crafts sponsored by the Boca Raton Art Guild is set for 7 p.m. Thursday in the Mizner room of the Boca Raton Hotel and Club.

Awards will be given opening night in the categories of "classic realism" and "modern."

DORATI CONDUCTS, KENTNER SOLOIST

Minneapolis Symphony Giving Two Concerts

Antal Dorati will bring his Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra to town this week for two concerts but there will be no tickets available for either, though it is expected that both houses will be packed.

The explanation for this is that the visiting orchestra is one of the major attractions on each of two subscription series of concerts — Civic Music Association and Community Concert Association.

Cooperation between the directors of these associations — Charles H. Crandon for Civic, and Theodore F. Gannon for Community — insures two full-sized audiences for the concerts, since memberships of both series attend all concerts about 90 per cent.

The arrangement also gives the orchestra two playing dates in a major community instead of one and any orchestra manager will more happily book his ensemble into a city for a two-night stand than for a one-night. The friendly and intelligent arrangement allows more Miamians to hear more visiting orchestras than would otherwise be possible.

The Minneapolis Orchestra will perform first for members of Civic Music Association, at 8:30 p.m. Friday in Dade County Auditorium. Then it will move to Miami Beach Auditorium at the same time Saturday, to play a concert for members of Community Concert Association.

Louis Kentner
. . . soloist Saturday

Antal Dorati
. . . veteran maestro

Since the memberships of the organizations overlap to some degree, different programs will be played on the two consecutive evenings.

There will also be another major difference — there will be a soloist for the Community Concert program on Saturday.

Community's officials have selected for this occasion one of the top-ranking pianists of our era, Louis Kentner.

Further interest is aroused by the fact that Kentner, though world-famous, will be making his Miami debut. He is one of the few great pianists this city has not yet heard.

Kentner will perform with Dorati and the orchestra on Saturday the Beethoven Concerto No. 5 in E-flat major, Op. 73, called the "Emperor."

In addition the orchestra will play the Mozart Symphony No. 34 in C major, K. 338, Richard Strauss's tone poem "Don Juan," Op. 20, and Symphonic Fragments from the Second Ravel "Daphnis and Chloe" Suite.

On Friday the orchestra will perform the overture to Rossini's opera "Il Turco in Italia," Haydn's Symphony No. 95 in C Minor, the Prelude and Liebestod from Wagner's "Tristan und Isolde," the overture-Fantasie "Romeo and Juliet" of Tchaikovsky, and the Strauss "Don Juan." The Strauss work is the only repeat work programmed.

There will be no soloist at the Friday concert.

Though one of Europe's most distinguished pianists for the past 30 years, Kentner was not "discovered" by the United States until 1956, when he made a Town Hall debut. Since then he has been heard in recital and with orchestras throughout the nation.

Dorati is the fifth permanent conductor of the Minneapolis Orchestra, which was founded in 1902. The orchestra works closely with the University of Minneapolis, and its home is a beautiful auditorium on the campus.

Tucker Lists New Exhibit

Two one-man art exhibitions will open this week, one of them the seventh consecutive annual one-man by Chet Kalm at the Eve Tucker Galleries, Miami Beach. Opening today, the show continues through Feb. 28.

Kalm, formerly a Fort Lauderdale resident, attended Yale University, and studied and painted in Europe for six years. He has a studio in Brooklyn at present.

A one-man by Miami painter Eugene Massin will open at the Playhouse Gallery, Coconut Grove, Monday.

Massin, who studied at the Art Institute of Chicago and holds a Master in Fine Arts from Universitaria de Bellas Artes in Mexico, is an assistant professor of art at University of Miami. His show here will continue through Feb. 28.

Bowles to Conduct

Michael A. Bowles will be guest-conductor of the Fort Lauderdale Symphony in its concert Tuesday in the War Memorial Auditorium, Fort Lauderdale.

Pianist to Talk On Great Hymns

Composer-pianist Grace Bush of Los Angeles will speak at 4 this afternoon on "Great Hymn Writers and their Hymns" in the Dixie room of Musicians Club, Coral Gables.

Miss Bush has written more than 175 songs and piano solos, and is equally well known as a poet-lecturer and a musician. The public is welcome.

13 in Vocal Auditions At Barry

Thirteen vocal students from Miami and Fort Lauderdale will compete in the auditions of the South Florida Chapter of National Association of Teachers of Singing from 3 to 6 p.m. Wednesday at Barry College.

Judges will be George Rasely, formerly baritone of the Metropolitan Opera, who now teaches in St. Petersburg; Mrs. Jeanne Scott of Fort Lauderdale; and Edward Clarke of University of Miami music ffaculty.

The young vocalists will compete in three divisions: preparatory, student, and singer-of-the-year.

The winner in each division here may participate in auditions from the Southeastern district on March 21 at Columbia, S.C. District winners will compete in national auditions next year.

Before the auditions Rasely will deliver a 1-3 p.m. lecture and demonstration lesson in Barry auditorium.

Song Workshop Going Broadway

The Singers Workshop of Miami Conservatory, founded and directed by Roy Oliver, will present its first concert at 3 p.m. this afternoon in the concert hall of the conservatory.

The theme will be "An Afternoon on Broadway."

Among the participants will be Lee Carner, Jill Jones, Rochelle Littman, Sharlene Pariseau, Ronald Cyril, Robert McCarren, and Ilonka Jay. Mr. Jay is associate director. The public is welcome.

What Six Women Bought During Part of a Week

By JEANNE VOLTZ
Herald Staff Writer

JEANNE

No business, industry or other facet of U.S. life quite matches the efficiency of a tourist (female) prowling through the market places of a foreign land.

We were in Brazil with five other women. It was a working trip, so shopping time was limited — two hours one afternoon, 10 minutes snatched now and then between appointments and planes.

From three cities, Rio, Porto Alegre and Salvador, the six of us brought home a total of 221 items. And a U.S. businessman would never suspect some of the things we bought in the name of souvenirs would sell.

* * *

Voodoo, Beads

SOME WERE VOODOO OBJECTS:

Hands (the clenched fist said by voodoo to send the devil on its evil way), 25. They were all sizes, from bracelet charms to big ones to clutter up whatnot shelves.

Musical instruments, seven. Two were berimbaus, bow shaped string instruments so big they had to be handtoted home; one bandara, like a tambourine; three sets of bells and one giant size maraca.

Beads (in colors to assure every good luck or ward off every evil known to voodoo), 48 strings.

* * *

Lot Of Straw Bags

THE WOMEN bought things to wear and accessories as mementos of their trip, from jewels to yards of braid. These were:

Skirts (handpainted and Brazilian-made cottons), five.

Straw bags, 14. Three of the women bought out one small shopkeeper's entire stock in a half hour.

Blouses, two.

Semi-precious stones (cut but not set), three.

Bracelets (native stones and voodoo), 11.

Straw hats, three.

Sandals, one pair.

Knit shirts (for a son and husband back home), two.

Alligator wallet (for a husband), one.

Costume jewelry pins, five.

Mantillas, four.

Cuff links, five pairs.

Skirt making fabric, enough for two skirts.

Embroidered braid (for decorating skirts or sweaters), 38 meters (a meter is 39.37 inches). This was two purchases.

Carnival pins, two.

* * *

Some Coffee

EATABLES, DRINKABLES and smokes also went home as souvenirs. The list starts with Brazil's national crop:

Coffee, five packages.

Palmitos (hearts of palm.) 15 cans, and rugged on the baggage weight allowance

Jaboticaba preserves (a fruit which also grows in South Florida), one can.

Cashew nuts, one can.

Brazilian wine, two bottles.

Brazilian brandy, six bottles.

Cigars, six boxes.

Brazilian cigarets, one package.

* * *

Wooden Figures

AND THEN THERE WERE odds and ends, useful in various degrees, but souvenirs, just the same.

Mug carved of horn, one.

Indian-made ceramic figure, one.

Baskets, nine.

Wooden kitchen spoons, three.

Books, six.

Boat models (a raft used in northern Brazil), two.

Carved wooden figures, 14.

Quartz paper weights (weighty in baggage, too), two.

Religious medals, 12.

Portuguese dictionary (bought in airport en route home), one.

Sterling silver spoons, three.

Inlaid wood box, one.

* * *

Between Planes

SHOPPING FEVER raged afresh when the plane stopped in Port of Spain, Trinidad, though it was 5:30 a.m. Purchases there were two ceramic ashtrays (made in West Germany), a cameo pin, another wooden figure and nine bottles of rum.

One woman took home an empty bottle. She saw an airline steward empty a pinch bottle to serve a passenger. She didn't have a pinch bottle for her collection — but does now.

One woman longingly eyed antique doors and iron grillwork from an ancient house being torn down in Salvador. She went back to look a second time, but finally backed down.

"What would my husband think?" she said.

The Facts You Need

HOW TO GET THERE—By air, 15-hour flight from Miami at price of about $675 roundtrip.

SIZE—Slightly larger than the U.S.

CAPITAL—Rio de Janeiro with 3,000,000 population.

LANGUAGE—Portuguese is the official language but visitors can get along easily with English in the larger cities.

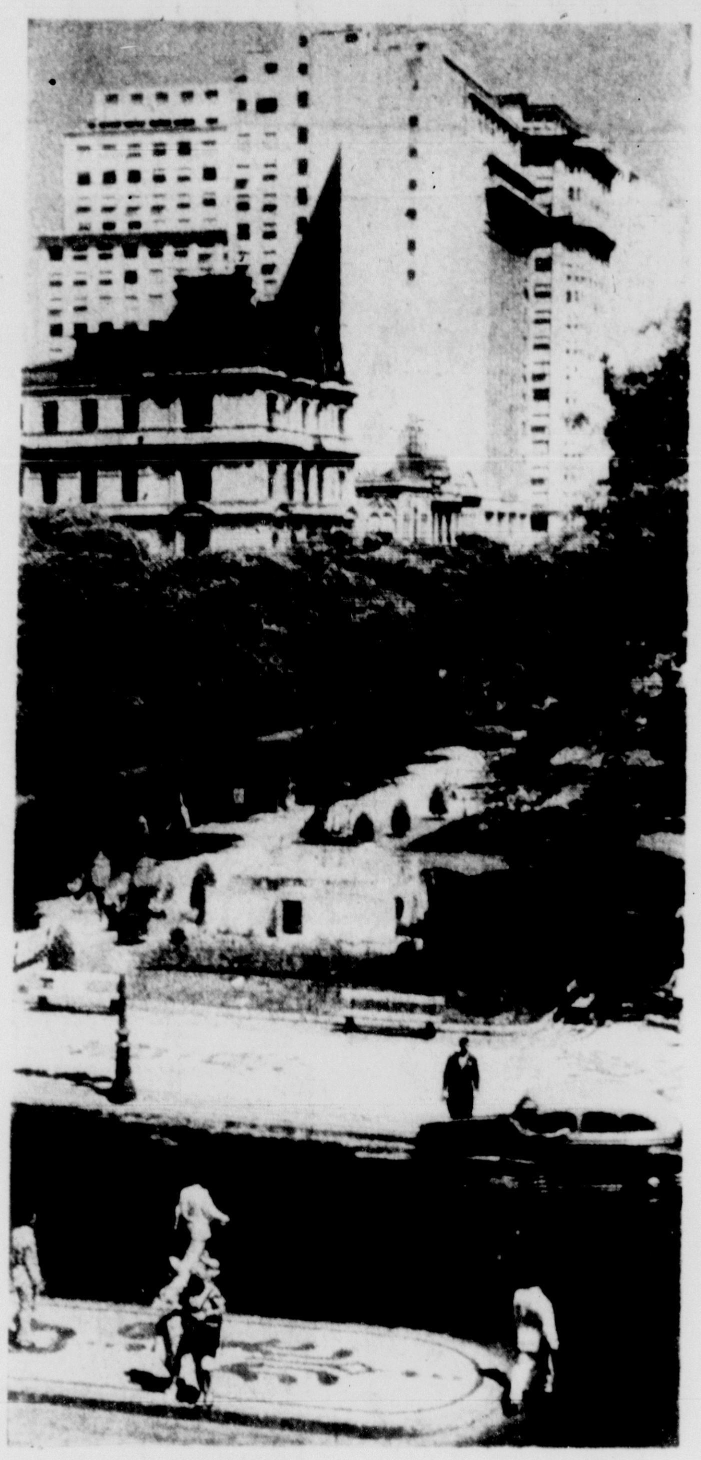
CURRENCY—Monetary unit is the cruzeiro. Although the value fluctuates, there are about 150 cruzeiros per dollar.

WHAT TO WEAR—It is always summer in Rio, but in winter, June to September, the evenings are often cool. Temperatures below 50 are seldom heard of.

WHAT TO BUY—Semi-precious stones, leather products, Portuguese silver, needlework and French perfumes.

ACCOMMODATIONS—Well-staffed luxury hotels are plentiful in the capital and in the main resort, Copa Cabana Beach. Rates start about $10 a day.

VACATIONLANDS



BUILDINGS REVEALING American and European influence stand side by side in Rio de Janeiro, beautiful South American vacation paradise. This is a scene of the Praca Floriano Peixoto in the Brazilian capital's midtown.

Safari May Enter Wilds of Amazon

By JEANNE VOLTZ
Herald Staff Writer

RIO DE JANEIRO—Hardy tourists with a yen for rugged travel soon may be able to pierce the Brazilian jungle.

The Brazilian Committee on Tourism is making plans for safaris into the heart of the jungle. Game hunting, big and small, and fishing will be major purposes of the safaris.

The expeditions also will take tourists to areas rarely visited by white men.

The hunting spot probably will be a jungle area in the western part of the state of Goias, says the tourism committee. This is north and west of Rio.

Bananal Island also is the home of Indians living in a primitive culture barely touched by 20th century civilization.

The Brazilian expeditions will be about half the cost per person of similar African hunts, said the tourism committee.

The cost is expected to be less than $1,500, not including expenses to and from Rio.

Dates have not been set for expeditions, but will be available from Committee on Tourism, Rua da Candelaria 9, Rio de Janeiro.

Hula Hoops Invade Carnival Dances

RIO DE JANEIRO — Carnival merrymakers danced through the streets last weekend with a Norte Americano twist—hula hoops.

Shops had been selling gay carnival paraphernalia for several weeks. And alongside masks and confetti in nearly every shop were stacks of hula hoops.

Men, women and children rehearsing carnival dance routines found hula hoops can be twirled to Brazilian rhythms. One small girl was twirling four at once in an impromptu demonstration.

Carnivals ended Tuesday. Nearly every city and town in the country had its wildly gay carnival processions and street dances.

But Rio boasted of the wildest, merriest of all carnivals.

THE OUTDOOR SAUNA swimming pool at the Mt. Snow ski area, West Dover, Vt. is a feature attraction of the Cisalpine Lodge which with the heated outdoor sun terrace is called Vermont's "million-dollar acre." The pool water at 110 degrees gives perfect relaxation and so super-heats the body that it is impervious to cold for short intervals. The heated deck of the terrace and 15-foot glass windbreaks create a blanket of warmer air around the pool for complete comfort even in sub-zero weather. The kidney-shaped pool is 60 by 25 feet and the only pool in the U.S. based on the Sauna principle of Scandinavian countries and Japan.

Swimming in Snow Amazes Vermonters

By JOHN B. McDERMOTT
Herald Travel Writer

McDERMOTT

WEST DOVER, VT.—Vermonters tend to rub their eyes in disbelief at what is happening "down on the farm."

"Them city folks must be downright crazy — swimming in the snow."

It's not exactly that, but it is a bit confusing. Vermont's Mt. Snow is drawing a record number of skiers this winter — and a surprising number of swimmers.

Not that Miami Beach has anything to worry about.

The New England swimmers might almost qualify for the "Polar Bear" club despite the fact they do their bathing in a 98-degree heated outdoor pool.

Yet, the air temperatures most days are way below freezing and frequently of the sub-zero variety.

Swimming, of course, is merely a sidelight to the big show at Mt. Snow which only a few years ago was part of a rolling farm near West Dover.

* * *

SKIING IS the main attraction drawing thousands of experts and novices to the slopes of this Green Mountain winter wonderland resort.

An estimated 5 to 6 million Americans have become addicted to the sport, according to recent national surveys.

Today, six separate chair lifts haul the skiers up the 3,600-foot slopes down which run 16 mountain trails ranging from two to four miles in length.

At the bottom is a big ski lodge with a roaring fireplace to warm the skiers after their chilly ride down the mountain.

Thousands of vacationers from New York, Boston and other cities flock to the ski centers for their outing on a "package" basis which includes transportation, accommodations and skiing or swimming.

come to Jamaica—it's no place like home

Think of the most beautiful place you've yet seen in the world. Jamaica is more so, outrageously so. Jamaica's the place to get away with it and/or get away from it. An enthused international "Who's Who" flocks here to do as it pleases. The sun shines all the time. In Jamaica you can find perfect peace. Yet the island pulses with theatrical contrasts between new and old, civilized and primitive. If you hanker to see the world, better do that first. Because once here, Jamaica will bewitch you—and may become all of the world you'll ever care to see.

London-Vienna Flight Had a Lot of Delays

By WILLIAM H. STONEMAN
Miami Herald-Chicago News Wire

STONEMAN

VIENNA, Austria — When fools and the fog get together anything can happen.

For example, it can take you two days and a half to make the trip from London to Vienna, normally a jaunt of five hours in a modern turbo-prop airliner of the Viscount type.

Practically nothing failed to happen when we tried to make the trip the other day.

* * *

THE LOG of our crazy voyage went like this:

6 A.M. Thursday: We stagger out of bed in Chelsea, on the southwest side of London, bathe, shave, take the dog for a final walk and pack.

We are due at the air terminal, a mile away at 9 a.m. The fog is so thick we can hardly see across the street.

8:30 A.M. We go to a taxi rank a block away and find no cabs present. After waiting a half-hour we grab one on the fly and take off for the air terminal.

10 A.M. We reach London Airport by bus and are told that the Swiss air plane to Geneva is "delayed." You can't see 100 yards across the drome.

5 P.M. After waiting all day we get the word that no planes are leaving.

9 P.M. We take the night boat train from Victoria to Paris where the weather is reported clear, hoping to catch a direct plane to Vienna at 5:30 p.m. the next day.

Half an hour out of Victoria one of the sleepers cracks an axle (they say). We wait four hours. Then the train creeps on toward Dover. The fog is still thick.

11 A.M. (NEXT DAY). We are approaching Dunkirk, France, but the tide is at ebb and we can't enter the lock at the entrance of the port. We were due here at 4 a.m.

4:30 P.M. We arrive in Paris, eight hours late and one hour too late to catch the plane to Vienna.

We get a consolation prize at Pierre's in the form of some lobster bisque, a steak two inches thick, an apple tart covered with blazing calvados and cream and a bottle of Hermitage 1953.

* * *

9:30 A.M. (SECOND DAY). At Orly Airport we are informed that the Austrian airlines plane to Vienna has been delayed one hour because there is fog at Stuttgart where we are supposed to drop some passengers.

Loud oaths from three other veterans of the night jaunt from Victoria.

11:30 A.M. We take off for Stuttgart and Vienna two hours late.

12 NOON. We take off from Stuttgart in heavy fog and are suddenly informed that the plane is going to Frankfurt am Main. Some other Austrian airlines passengers have been stranded there in the fog. This is strictly against regulations.

3:30 P.M. After nearly an hour at Frankfurt airport we discover that the passengers for Vienna had left five minutes before we arrived in Frankfurt. Just a sorry little mistake between the German Lufthansa airline, which seems to be bossing the Austrians, and Austrian Airlines.

* * *

OUR FELLOW passengers from London have missed a weekend skiing expedition and a French gentleman is threatening to sue Austrian Airlines.

"Schlamperei," he shouts at the hostess. Schlamperei is fine old word denoting "Austrian happy-go-luckiness."

* * *

5:30 P.M. We land in Vienna, just barely missing another delay because the airport is fast closing in with fog.

"The next time," says the gentleman from Reading who has missed the skiing, "we take bicycles."

"That is where you are wrong, my dear," says his pleasant wife. "The next time we just don't go at all."

How to spend two weeks in Britain for only $650

(Transatlantic fare included)

Learn how amazingly economical a vacation in Britain can be. Read these facts and figures—then clip the coupon for your free illustrated "British Travel Kit." It will open your eyes to the time of your life!

PLANNING YOUR TRIP to Britain is just as easy as arranging an ordinary vacation at home. And it needn't cost you any more.

Here are a few suggestions, just to start you off on the right foot.

1. How to get there and back for under $455. Ask your travel agent about the economy fares. You can now fly round-trip from New York for only $453.60—or go both ways by ship for less than $350.

2. How much does it cost when you get to Britain? $100 per person per week is more than enough for the time of your life. For example, you can get a good seat in a London theater for less than $2.00. Or you can stay at most country inns for under $3.50 a night.

3. What are the best seasons for touring Britain? The Spring and the Fall have definite advantages. The weather is just right for sightseeing. Roads and inns are uncrowded—and car-rental runs about 30% cheaper.

Choose Spring for the Flower Shows, the Grand National Steeplechase and the opening of the Shakespeare Plays at Stratford-upon-Avon.

Go in the Fall for the State Opening of Parliament, the Highland Games, the Lord Mayor's Show and London's most fashionable theater season.

4. How much does it cost to get around in Britain? Train travel costs as little as 2.2¢ a mile. Bus travel about 2¢ a mile. A drive-yourself car works out about 3¢ a mile per passenger seat, including gas, oil—everything!

5. How to start planning your trip to Britain. The best man to see is your travel agent. He can work miracles with your budget.

Also, clip coupon below for your free, illustrated "British Travel Kit."

The important thing is to start your planning now. The sooner you start—the easier it is to get exactly what you want.

NOTE: Add a little bit extra to your budget just for shopping. You'll get most of it back on your bargains. You can bring back $500 worth of British goods, duty-free. That's $500 for each person!

For further details—clip coupon now!

Controls Keep Portugese Poor and Country Solvent

By SYLVIA PORTER
Herald Columnist

LISBON — When you enter Portugal, you don't ask what its currency, the escudo, is selling for in the black market — an entirely normal procedure for the hep tourist to follow in most other countries.

There isn't any currency black market in Portugal.

The official rate for the Portuguese currency is 28.75 escudos for one dollar. The free market rate is 28.50 to 28.60 escudos for one dollar — meaning in Lisbon, the great American dollar actually is selling at a small DISCOUNT in terms of Portuguese money.

SYLVIA

When you talk high finance with informed sources here, you don't ask how they're handling their budget, trade, inflation problems — commonplace subjects for the visitor to pursue in most other nations.

Every escudo outstanding is backed by more than 100 per cent in gold in the Portuguese treasury. This country — heart of the third largest colonial empire in the world — has operated with a balanced budget for over a quarter-century. Portugal and her overseas territories sell a lot more to other countries than continental Portugal buys from others.

And over the past 10 years, the cost of living here has risen by less than 10 per cent and the increase last year was under 1½ per cent.

In short, when you, as an American tourist, hit Portugal — a country only about the size of Connecticut plus Maine — you almost go on the defensive about the U.S. dollar, about the way gold is flowing out of our nation now and the speed at which living costs have been climbing.

It's a peculiar and not at all pleasant feeling.

The vast majority of Portugal's citizens are appallingly poor and Portugal shares with Spain the dubious distinction of having the lowest standard of living in Western Europe.

And yet, in startling contrast, Portugal boasts one of the strongest currencies and most stable financial systems in the world.

"We are strong," one of the top financiers in Lisbon repeatedly remarked to me during a lengthy discussion. "Our currency is worth today what it was worth in 1949 and our currency will be worth in 1969 what it will be worth in 1959." And several times he emphasized.

"You cannot say the same for your U.S. dollar. We do not distrust our money and gold backing. But we are starting to distrust yours."

How has Portugal managed to achieve this remarkable financial stability? The answer, in capsule, is:

Her government has made strength of her currency a dominant aim — placed it ahead of economic development of the nation, advancement of the people. When Dr. Antonio de Oliveira Salazar came into power as Finance Minister, Premier — and dictator — after the upheaval of the '20s, he vowed to bring back a stable, rich government. He has done so.

There are rigid controls to make sure her escudo is fully backed by gold. There are controls to make sure her exports top her imports. There are controls to make sure her budget shows a surplus. There are rules making it exceedingly tough for an average businessman who can't put up stacks of collateral to get a loan from a bank on any terms.

While building is booming all over and around Lisbon and there is industrial development, there is no missing it: in Portugal as in Spain, living is for the rich and the poor just manage to survive.

"You are paying a stiff price for your solvency," I remarked to my informant as we debated control after control.

"The results are worth it," he replied. "Our people know the cost of living has remained stable. They take great pride in this."

"You cannot deny that resentment is growing and hope to silence your opponents forever by arresting them," I persisted.

"We'll take that risk," he answered. "We'll develop economically but only as fast as we can afford it, only as we can finance the advances."

Back home where you and I live, I cannot imagine such worship of dollar stability. Since the depression '30s we have made it abundantly clear that if the choice is between full employment and a strong dollar, we'll take full employment.

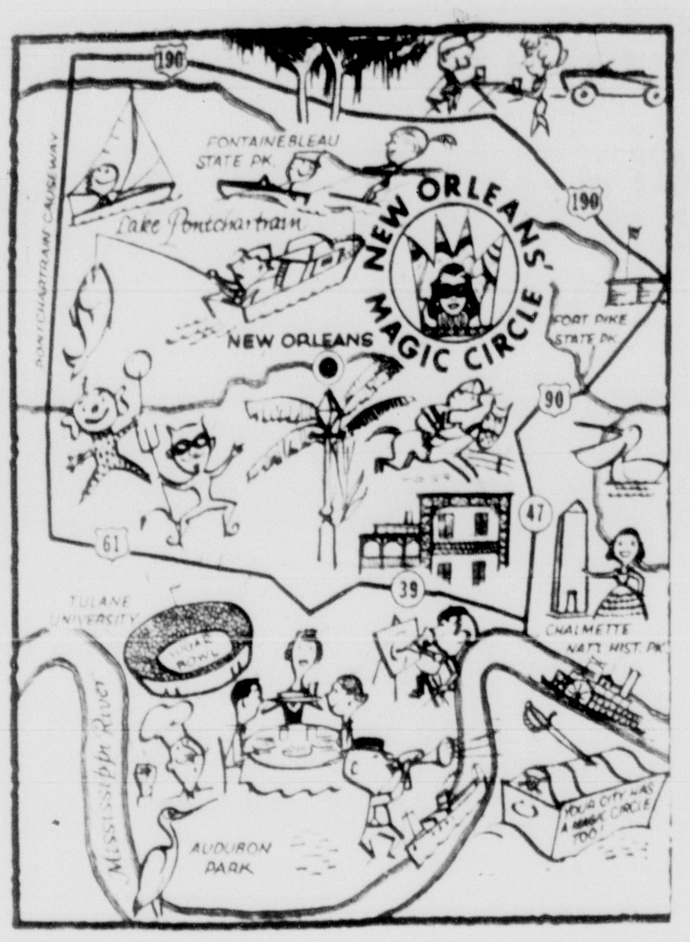
Back home I cannot conceive of such open tolerance of poverty as a way of life for so many, of such rigid controls. On this, too, we have made our views unmistakable.

Still, it's a shock to realize that as one result of the difference between our attitudes, the escudo of tiny Portugal commands a premium over the dollar of mighty America.

It's no fun at all to recognize that we also are paying a stiff price for our way of life.

Sick in England

If you're planning on a ruptured appendix or pneumonia during a European holiday, let it happen to you in England. The cordial British extend the benefits of free socialized medicine to all comers who choose to take advantage of them. This is true in no other European country.



MARDI GRAS CITY is famed for its old French Quarter, gourmet food, Dixieland jazz, the Sugar Bowl at Tulane University, Audubon Park and its bird zoo. Magic Circle tour out of New Orleans leads to Chalmette National Historical Park, Fort Pike State Park, Fontainebleau State Park and the return trip is via the 24-mile Pontchartrain Causeway.

Arizona Trek

1,200 Seek Gold

Travel News

PHOENIX, Ariz. — Ever had a hankering to search for a lost gold mine, or soak up the lore of the days when marauding Apaches and bearded prospectors fought for the wealth of frontier Arizona?

Then make a note to be in Phoenix and the Valley of the Sun on March 1 when the Spanish-attired Dons Club stages its noted Superstitition Mountain-Lost Dutchman Gold Mine Trek in the rugged mountains east of Phoenix.

The Trek—limited to 1,200 tourists on a first-come, first-go basis — puts emphasis on the legend of Jacob Waltz and his lost lode, but weaves in a wealth of the history, sights and atmosphere of both the Old and New West.

Raising Roof Is Really OK

They're raising the roof at the Virgin Isle Hotel, one of the most popular stopping places on the island of St. Thomas.

As part of the hotel's million-dollar expansion program, 15 luxury suites have been constructed atop the dining room, with the additions known as the Copenhagen Wing. Rooms have been furnished luxuriously with Danish teak furniture. Twin sinks are a special feature of spacious bathrooms, which also serve as dressing rooms.

It is planned to add 40 more guest suites this year.

You Find Ancient On Jet Into Asia

By HORACE SUTTON

SUTTON

TASHKENT, U. S. S. R. — The Tupelov is a touchy bird we discover as we fly it along the jet trail that stretches from Paris to India. We have suffered so many postponements at Russian airports, we are trying for a new record — Around the World in 80 Delays.

When we finally got off the ground for the first stage of a flight that is taking us around the world, we whizzed south to Tashkent in Soviet Central Asia, a distance of 1,863 miles, in three hours and 45 minutes.

We are now 7,267 miles from home, but for the propellerless peregrinator there are only two stops between Times Square and Tashkent.

Here in the capital of the Soviet Socialist Republic of Uzbekistan, jets may scream along the runway, but inside the air terminal there are still Uzbeks in their black and white skull caps who sit on the floor because they are not used to chairs.

Tashkent, the showpiece of Soviet development in Asia, is full of parks dedicated to railways workers, not to mention a Cultural Palace of Shoemakers.

* * *

BUT IT IS interesting only as a way station on the route to India and as a transit point for the mystery city of Samarkand only 45 minutes away by Aeroflot's Ilyushin 14.

Tashkent is a Bolshevik bore, but Samarkand is a town out of the ages, invaded by Gengis Khan, stormed by Alexander the Great, made a flourishing capital city and cultural center by world-conquering Tamurlane, and last of all, occupied for 1001 nights by Scheherezade.

Its bazaar is very likely one of the world's most fascinating, for it is inhabited by a mad swirl of Uzbeks in drooping mustaches and quilted coats with sleeves six inches too long. Nobody believes in gloves.

There are giant mountain men who come out of the surrounding crags in raw sheepskin coats, ladies wrapped in white sheets, their faces grotesquely covered by horsehair veils. Donkeys mince through the market carrying Uzbek farmers with their legs dangling to the dirt road. Occasionally a camel undulates into town.

There are piles of sour things—pickles, tomatoes, and onions, which were imported to the U.S. by Russian immigrants and are served now in New York delicatessens.

There are tomatoes, dried brown because they will not keep, baskets of padrasak, which is an orange colored flower with edible berries inside. At the spice counters there are piles of bright powder called nass, a sort of chewing tobacco which Uzbek men like to salt away in the cheek.

* * *

SAMARKAND'S bazaar has hardly changed from the days when the city flowered as Tamurlane's capital in the 14th and 15th centuries, when his empire stretched from the Danube to Central Asia, very nearly the same territory under Soviet influence today.

Tamurlane began his career as a caravan hijacker, but he rose fast, and some of the magnificent monuments of his era, still glistening in brilliant color, remain in Samarkand today.

His family and members of his court are buried in the Shakh-y-Zinda, a cluster of mausoleums, each of them opening off a center court, all of them faced with tiles of turqoise and lilac.

The most prized tomb is that of Hussam Ibn Abbas inscribed with the testimony of Mohammed that this relative most resembled the Prophet. Moslems in their black veils and bangled feet still come today, and it is said that three visits to the Shakh-y-Zinda is worth one pilgrimage to Mecca.

Travel News

Tamurlane is reportedly buried in the Gur-Emir mausoleum under a jade tombstone covered by a blue ribbed dome. Things rather went to pieces after Tamurlane died, but as the empire crumbled there was a flowering of both science and art. His grandson Ulugbek built an observatory, part of which still stands, and using 15th century knowledge he recalculated the celestial positions of 1018 stars.

His measurements of the astronomical year differed only one minute and two seconds from the calculations made by Newcombe 400 years later. For his progressive pains Ulugbek was beheaded by his conservative contemporaries, and his body lies today with Tamurlane. The grave was opened in 1941 and Ulugbek's severed spinal column was verified.

* * *

NECK-CROPPING was done in the Registran, a forum which still stands, decorated with the turquoise of Tamurlane and the red slogans of the Soviets.

The grandest relic of all is the Mosque of Bibi-Hanum, the Chinese lady who was Tamurlane's eldest wife. There seems to be some local doubt as to whether Bibi built it for Tamurlane or he for her.

At any rate, he got the bill and paid for it with a fortune carried home from India on the backs of 90 elephants.

A new hotel with a dozen deluxe suites and thirty lesser rooms all with bath will open in Samarkand in March, and not a moment too soon. The best thing about the ancient Registran Hotel named after the monument, and as far as I can see, built about the same time, is its kitchen.

Here one can eat like an Uzbek, tearing apart the round Uzbek bread sprinkled with pepper seeds, slurping a potato soup called shurpa which, like all Uzbek soups, is served in a bowl large enough to float an Uzbek bread, if an Uzbek bread could only float.

There are green winter radishes the size of Idaho potatoes, and pickled somethings called pattison that resembles artichoke hearts.

Hamburgers here are called tchum-dulma and are elongated and stuffed with hard boiled eggs.

There is also an Uzbek heartburn which threatens to accompany us as we prepare for our next jump which will take us over the Hindu Kush and into India.

Indeed, it flames with such a ferocity that I have no reason to doubt that a little bit of Uzbekistan will burn always in my heart.

Eat Atop Tower As It Revolves

Diners who want to do their sightseeing over dinner should patronize the tower restaurant in Dortmund, West Germany.

The restaurant, located in a 705-foot tower, revolves on its own axis six times an hour. Diners need not leave their tables for a view of the scenery on all sides. Built in the city's garden park, the tower also provides accommodations for diners who wish to remain stationary during meals.

German Castles

There's no limit on your stay at privately owned guest-castles in Germany. About forty of these survive, ranging in age from fifty to 1,000 years, in price from about $4.50 a day and up, everything included. Moated boarding-castles also take paying guests in low-cost Austria, for as little as $2.30 a day.

Yachts Congregate in Bahamas

THREADING their way through low-lying cays to safe anchorages off broad sand beaches are many dozens of fine yachts with enough gleaming mahogany and polished brass to earn a berth at any of the world's fine yacht clubs.

From the Banks of the Bahamas to the shore of Venezuela and to Portobello on the coast of Panama they play the trade winds of tropical America for the comfort and pleasure of a growing number of "yachtsmen-for-a-vacation" partaking of an unusual holiday of fun in the sun.

For little more than the cost of room and meals in a good resort hotel, parties of from two to 12 enjoy all the luxuries and thrills of yacht cruising in interesting waters, moving from island to island as whim dictates.

The skipper-owners of these yachts are seagoing innkeepers who cater to vacationers who just want to loll back in the cockpit and watch the sun etch ever-changing patterns on the billowing sails as multi-colored waters rush past the hull.

For these, both landlubbers and experienced yachtsmen alike, there is more fun at sea than sitting on the verandah of a tropical resort hotel talking to folks from back home.

They can be spotted by the unusual luggage carried to their sea-holiday appointments.

Few formal traveling bags are in the lot, but porters load the holds of Clippers with big canvas duffle bags, fishing and skindiving gear, underwater cameras and sports clothes packed in fold-away or throwaway pasteboard cartons. Dress-up clothes are used only when their hotel-at-sea docks at a gay resort island.

Visiting yachtsmen regard the warm waters of the Bahamas and the Caribbean as among the world's best cruising grounds. Thousands of islands and cays (pronounced keys) dot the vast archipelagos between the two Americas. The waters are rich in fish and sea life for both food and sport.

Most popular cruising centers to get aboard the charter sail yachts are Nassau, Bahamas, and English Harbour, Antigua, but there are also fine charter yachts at Panama, the Virgin Islands, San Juan, Puerto Rico and the many harbors of Cuba.

Eight schooners, seven ketches and a sloop, from 36- to 134-feet in length and accommodating up to 12 persons each, operate from the famous old Nelson's Dockyard at English Harbour.

The yachts at English Harbour are the Te Vega, 134-foot; Harbinger, 93; Voyageur, 110; Caribbe, 92; Freelance, 86; Maverick, 76; Bonaventura, 72; Pas de Loup, 70; Mollihawk, 70; Harebell, 70; Zambeze, 58; Dayspring, 56; Carinna, 54; Tern III, 53; Aurora, 41 and Sea Wanderer 36.

Cruising from Nassau, parties can go in any one of four directions, for the Bahamas archipelago is more than 750 miles long and contains about 200 islands and 2,000 smaller cays. East is Cat Island and San Salvador, where Columbus landed first, also the lower tip of Eleuthera, which stretches 100 miles north like a beckoning finger.

Abaco and its hundreds of small islands, directly north, is a favored cruising area, as is Exuma to the south and the Berry Islands, Cat Cay and Bimini to the west.

Two veteran charter skippers in the Bahamas, Capt. Art Crimmons of the Traveler and Capt. Lou Kenedy of the Bahama Alpha, say that despite their many years of Bahamas cruising they are constantly finding new and more entrancing anchorages.

Also using Nassau as headquarters are the schooner Lazy Jack, the big Gulliver and the Olad. In the winter the fleet swells with yachts which cruise Maine waters in the summer, including the Malabar X, Courageous and the Red Head. Bahamas costs are about the same as those in Antigua.

Out of St. Croix in the American Virgin Islands are more than a dozen good charter sailing yachts, includ- the Mandoo, Barnabus and Comanche.

Other fine craft can be found at Panama, with the option of sailing in either the Atlantic or Pacific.

CATCH ME shouts a vivacious vacationer as she jumps ashore from a Bahamian boat. While this craft isn't as luxurious as those described in the accompanying article, vacationers find plenty of fun aboard them for short trips.

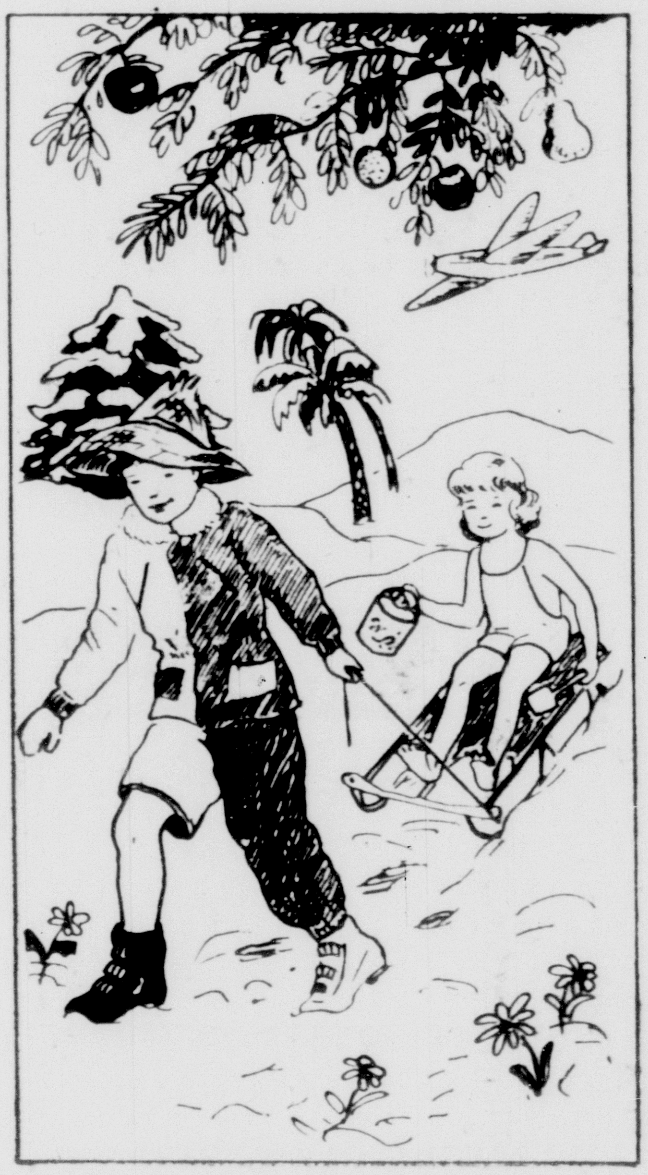
There's Plenty of Room For Error in Contest



FIND 10 'SLIP UPS' HERE

. . . you could win grab bag prize

By Cappy Dick

There are at least 10, but perhaps you can see more.

If you make a list of the errors you can spot, paste the picture on the list and send it in, you may win a grab bag prize.

Ten mystery prizes, which may be a packet of foreign stamps, a collection of foreign coins, a spinning top, a set of wire puzzles, a funny leaping frog or any one of many other items, will be given away in this contest.

Most of the mistakes in the contest picture are plainly in sight. For example, a pear, two apples and an orange are growing on the same tree. Also, flowers are growing in the snow. These are two of the errors you should use in your list. See if you can find at least eight more.

When you believe you have spotted all the mistakes, list them in a column on a sheet of paper. Clip the contest picture out and paste it on the paper. Print your name, age and address on the entry.

Finally address it to Cappy Dick at The Miami Herald, Box 630, and mail it before midnight of day after tomorrow.

All entries will be examined by contest judges to find the 10 they consider the best.

Names and addresses of the prize winners will be published here and their prizes will be sent to their homes by mail.

NOTHING ON EARTH is more lovely, more fragile, more exotic than an orchid. And nothing is more unlovely, more lumbering, more ominous than a Patton tank.

Incongruous as it may seen, the two are firmly linked, destined to travel through history together as namesakes of the same man, Gen. George S. (Old Blood and Guts) Patton of World War II fame.

NAME'S THE SAME

. . . for tank and orchid

The Cattleya Gen. Patton in today's cover photo was furnished by The Orchid Mart of Miami and the tank, appropriately, enough was through courtesy of the U. S. Army. The latter was brought in by a stalwart member of the armed forces who obviously thought toting a tank all over town in order to stick an orchid in it was a completely insane operation. The photo was taken by John Pineda, who seemed a bit inclined to take the same view as the sergeant.

But back to orchids — even aside from Gen. Patton, the orchid has always been a man's flower. Ever since the first orchid was collected nearly a century and a half ago after considerable exertion in the Brazilian jungle — and named for a man — this flower above all others has fascinated men.

There is a story about orchids and men — and the world's largest all-orchid show to be held in Miami later this month — on page 9.

★ ★ ★

TODAY'S the day for superlatives. Florida now has the world's fastest, and probably the most expensive, auto speedway at Daytona Beach. A story about the track, the man behind the track and the inaugural races being held this month is on page 4.

★ ★ ★

ANOTHER KIND of track claims Russ Harris' attention in his article on Page 3. Hialeah's Flamingo Day, one of turfdom's most highly regarded events, and by all odds the prettiest, is his subject.

And let us hasten to admit — since it is perfectly obvious anyhow—the flamingos in the color photo on page 3 are stuffed.

Of the thousands of flamingos that make Hialeah their home, none could be induced to come off the island and up to the track to have a photo taken. Photographer Mike Freeman, who says flamingos are "just so much cussedness wrapped up in pink feathers," finally gave up the unequal struggle and settled for stuffed facsimiles.

On Flamingo Day, though, the live ones come off their island en masse to stage a breath-takingly beautiful parade. They have no choice since they are herded by a number of very determined Seminole Indians.

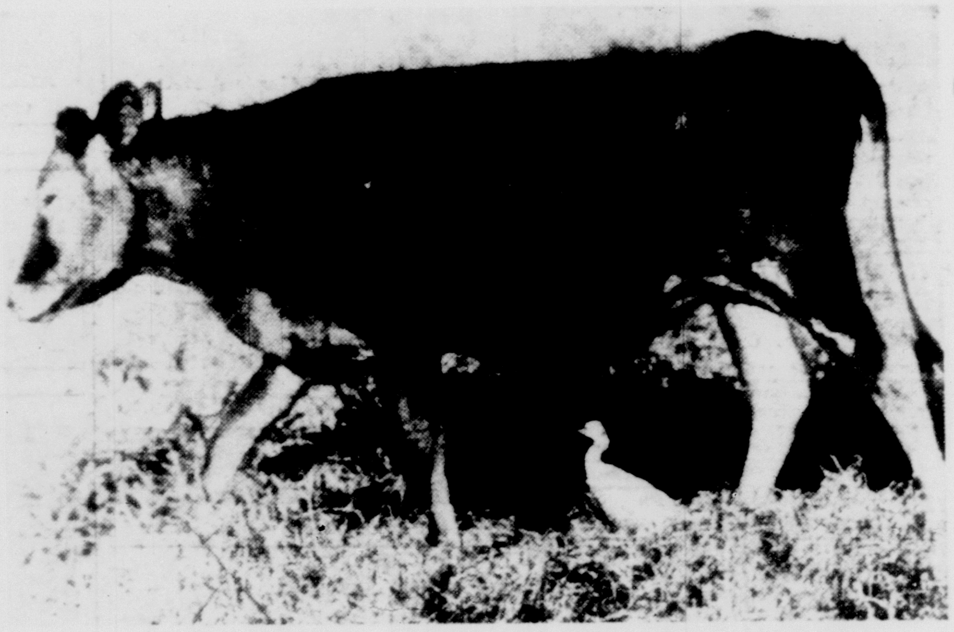
Egret's Favorite Tune: 'It's Just the Gypsy in My Soul'



CATTLE EGRET LETS COW WORK FOR HIM
. . . 'tag-along' is his favorite game

By John Vosburgh

THE CATTLE EGRET must have some gypsy blood in his veins. He is now seen in almost as many widely separated spots on the globe as John Foster Dulles or Horace Sutton.

His emigration in the last 30 years from Africa to South America, the United States, Canada and Australia has scientists looking into the record books for similar behavior on the part of other birds. They haven't found any.

The cattle egret has the distinction of being the only Old World bird to invade the New World in modern times without man's assistance. Thirty years ago they were unknown in either North or South America. Then, about 1930, they were observed in British Guinea.

How they got there will probably never be known but it is probable that they were carried by high winds, possibly from the island of St. Helina in the South Atlantic where cattle egrets had been seen. Possibly they were carried all the way from Africa, for the distance between the two continents at their nearest points is not prohibitive.

At any rate, the cattle egret made himself right at home in British Guinea where he found plenty of Brahma cattle grazing. Within 20 years there were thousands of cattle egrets not only in British Guinea but Venezuela and Colombia too.

* * *

THEN, one April day in 1952 three naturalists in Massachusetts noticed a white bird walking among a herd of heifers and to their astonishment, identified it as a cattle egret. To confirm their discovery they utilized a federal collecting permit and shot the bird, adding it officially to the North American bird list and placing the specimen in a museum at Harvard.

Two days later a cattle egret was discovered at Cape May, N. J., and on June 1, Miami's own Louis Stimson, veteran field ornithologist, observed 10 cattle egrets at Lake Okeechobee.

It may well be that the first cattle egret ever seen in this country was right here in Florida. Willard Dilley, former park naturalist of Everglades National Park, saw a cattle egret at Clewiston in 1948 but didn't report it as he assumed it was an escaped specimen from a zoo or bird farm. The similarity of the bird to the snowy egret and the immature little blue heron might account for its going unidentified for subsequent years.

Bundy believes that the rapid increase of the bird's population is due to the large number of fledglings — three or four per nest — which the cattle egret produces and the low mortality rate among young birds. At Greynolds, the nests are remarkably free from predators — either by man or animal.

He also has observed that the cattle egret's yellow bill becomes bright red during the breeding season. At this period the cattle egret acquires a brownish tinge on the neck and upper parts which accounts for its local nickname, "the buff-backed heron."

"Some birds even acquire a roseate plumage, during the breeding season," Bunday says.

* * *

THE ARRIVAL of this attractive bird as a permanent resident appears thus far to be a definite boon to the American wildlife scene. It is not only beautiful but beneficial and so far as anyone has been able to determine, is not harmful in any way.

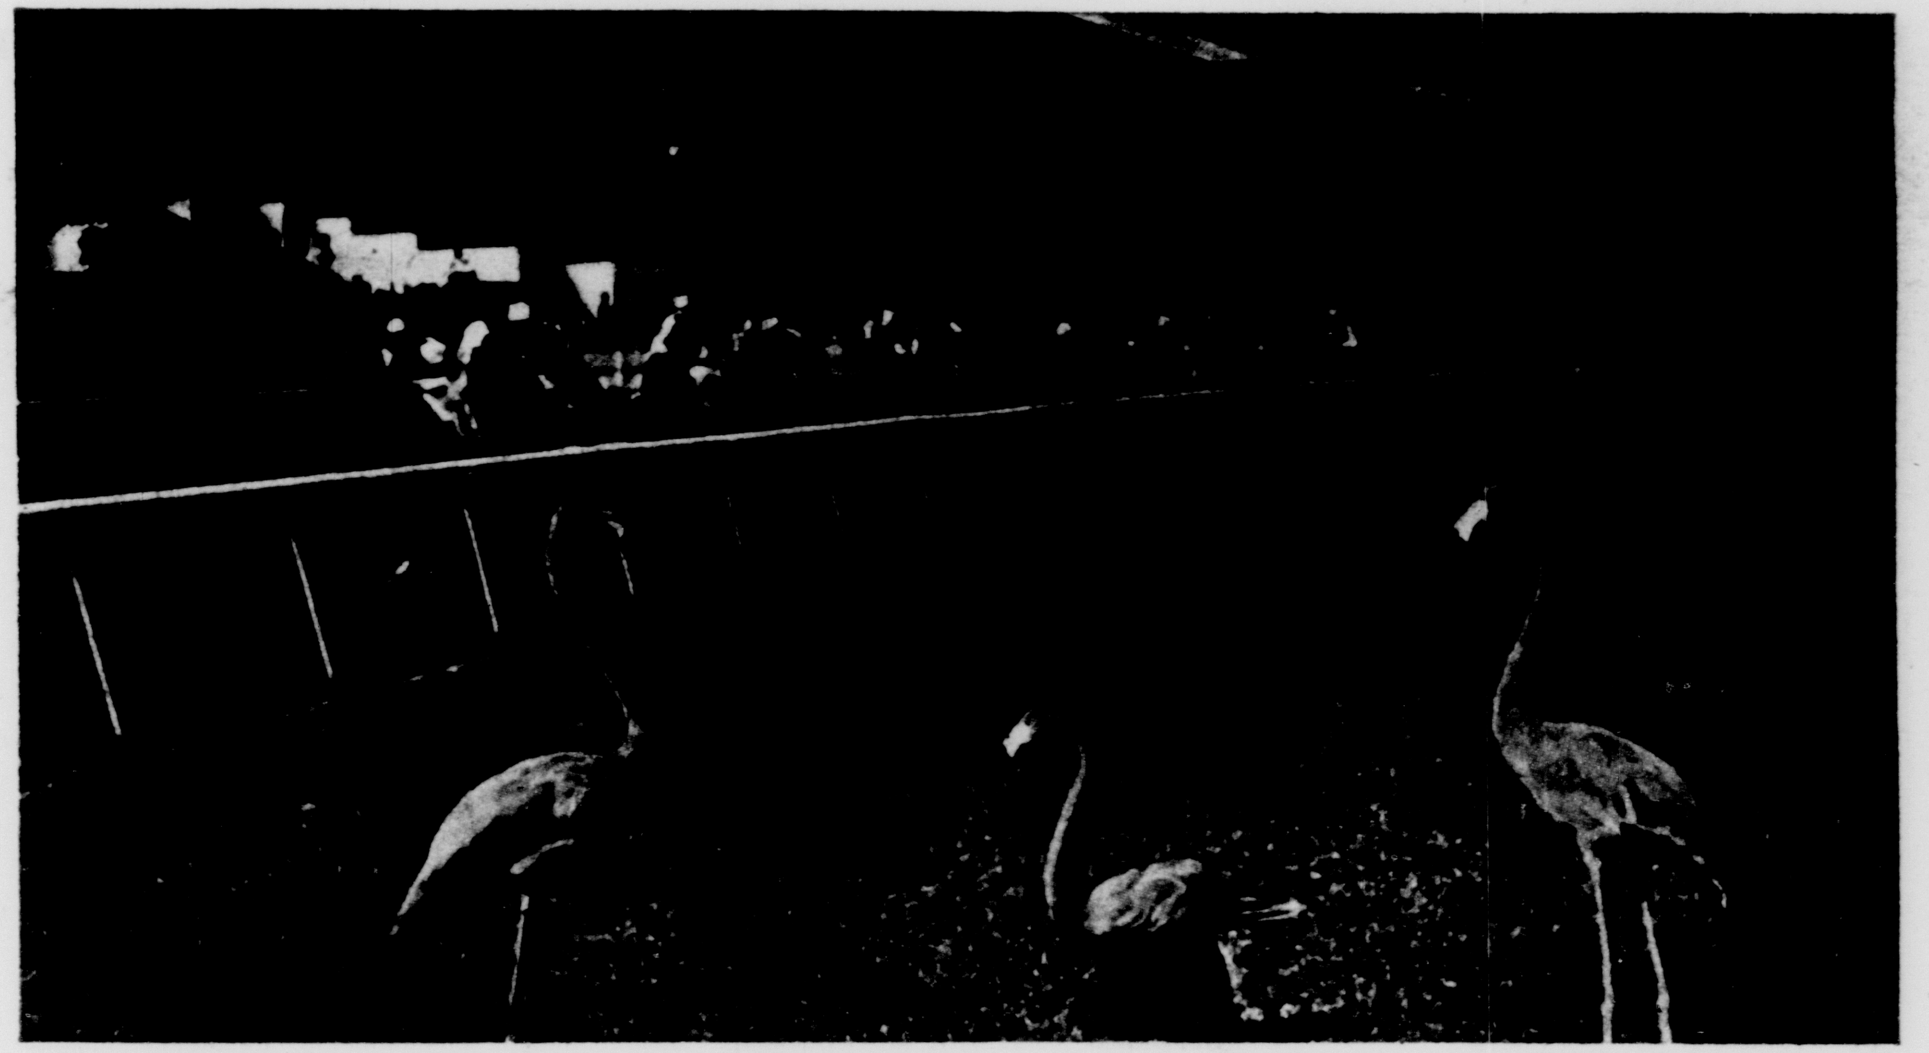
Two doctors from the Rockefeller Foundation, specializing in communicable diseases, recently made a detailed observation of the Greynolds Park colony. The doctors were looking for a certain deadly tick which, in Egypt, is associated with the cattle egret. They said that they found no evidence of the tick at Greynolds Park, site of 300 nests last season.

The cattle egret may be easily observed along the Florida Turnpike and State Route 9 where it sometimes feeds near the pavement, eating grasshoppers. Some of the flock at Greynolds Park flies as far as Fort Lauderdale to feed. Others feed as close as the pastures of local dairies.

The bird adjusts quickly to living conditions and, during last winter's cold spells, large flocks often took off for warmer climes. Later, cattle egrets, probably the same flocks, were again roosting and nesting in Greynolds Park.

No Rose-Colored Glasses Needed on Flamingo Day

Everything's in the Pink



HIALEAH FLAMINGOS LEAD AN INDOLENT LIFE, THEIR ONLY JOB IS BEING BEAUTIFUL
. . . except one day a year when the whole flock has to work for a living during Flamingo Day parade

By Russ Harris

THERE'S just no place on earth that you'd rather be!

We're talking, of course, about next Saturday, Hialeah and Flamingo Day.

Millions of Americans from Maine to Oregon will watch Hialeah's big, big, big race on the tiny screen. But they'll miss much of the real show.

TV-viewers will see a great horse race, you can be sure of that. However, to enjoy the drama, color and fun of Flamingo Day to the fullest, one must be present in the flesh . . .

Everything — or nearly everything — will be in the pink.

There'll be pink banners on Hialeah's stands, pink cloths on the dining room tables, pink programs, pink racing forms, pink starter's flag, a special pink auto for the officials.

In recent years the fans have gotten more and more into the act and have begun wearing pink in honor of the occasion. Some of the ladies have even gone so far as to have their hair tinted pink.

It has been said that a herd of pink elephants might amble through Hialeah without drawing a murmur of astonishment on Flamingo Day.

Until this happens, however, Flamingo Day will be centered around two other species: horses and flamingos.

★ ★ ★

IN HIS EFFORTS to make Hialeah "the track beautiful," the late Joseph E. Widener had 30 flamingos flown in from Cuba after he purchased the track in 1930. His joy in watching the pink birds parading about the track was short-lived.

The birds flew away the first night—no one had thought to clip their wings before they were turned loose.

Undaunted, Mr. Widener immediately ordered a new flock. This time he made certain their wings were clipped.

It was six years before the flamingos settled down enough to call Hialeah "home" and begin raising families. Since that time, hundreds have been hatched and raised.

Most often-asked question from visitors is: Are flamingos really pink, or are they, like the pink-haired ladies, tinted to make them that color?

The answer is that when they're healthy, they are pink. If they turn white, something's wrong.

To keep these rare critters in the pink, they are fed a special diet which includes boiled rice, dried shrimp, corn, dog food and concentrated vitamins.

★ ★ ★

SEVERAL YEARS AGO Hialeah stopped clipping their wings. At that time some fishermen reported sighting a few of the birds over the Everglades, hell-bent for who knows where.

However, most of them stayed. Even these zany birds have discovered what a real deal they have at the races and they hang around now without the need of barriers of any kind. After all, where can you beat working one day a year for a living?

That's how much the flamingos "work"—if you can call it that—one day a year, on Flamingo Day when the flock puts on a full-dress parade, herded by Seminole Indians decked out in their most picturesque costumes.

Joe Morrow, superintendent of grounds at Hialeah, is responsible for staging the flamingo parade which precedes the big race.

Like the thoroughbreds, the flamingos are high-strung and unpredictable. If the wind is blowing in the wrong direction, the parade master has a problem. He hopes the wind will come from the south or east, the direction in which the birds will be herded.

It usually takes two men wading around in the infield lake with hip boots, and two others paddling in boats, to get behind the flamingos and herd them to shore. Once the birds are on the turf course, six men with the aid of the Seminoles arade them . . . With half or more of the birds ble to fly, the parade is a sight to behold.

It takes the flamingos several days or even eeks to get over their trying day.

Many people who aren't racing fans come to Hialeah on Flamingo Day, but even the least sports-minded in the crowd remain to see the race which as become the first real test of the turf's glamor boys—the three-year-olds.

★ ★ ★

THE FLAMINGO TRAIL leads to Gulfstream and the Florida Derby, then on to Kentucky for the historic "run for the roses."

The Flamingo Stakes dates back to 1926 when it was run at Tampa Downs and known as the Florida Derby. The first running had a value of a mere $4,450. Now the winner takes home a purse exceeding $100,000.

However, it is not only the lure of greenbacks in a setting of pink which draws the nation's best three-year-olds to Hialeah on Flamingo Day.

The roster of past winners is proof enough that the Flamingo has become one of racing's most coveted events: Tim Tam, Needles, Bold Ruler, Nashua, Turn-To, Citation, and on and on.

This year one of turfdom's most highly regarded colts seeks the Flamingo crown . . . That, of course, is First Landing.

Will this be the start of a smashing year for an all-time giant of the turf? Or will some upstart, unheralded and un-wagered upon, steal his thunder?

That's for next Saturday to decide. See you—in the pink!

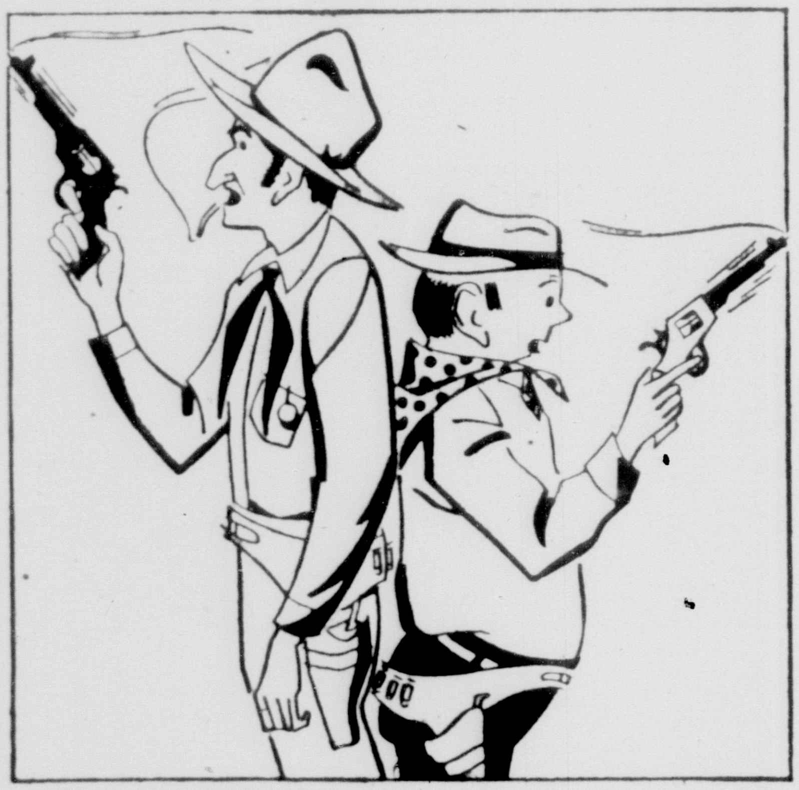
Puzzles Pastimes

Have Your Wits About You?



IN THE old American west, the way you went about gunning a man made all the difference in the world in the public reaction to the shooting. If you faced up to him and gave him a chance to shoot you down, it was not deemed so wrong to kill, regardless of whether you were to blame for starting the fight.

If, even after a notorious, vicious gunslinger had threatened to kill you on sight without giving you a chance, you shot him in the back, you were liable to be hanged as a murderer.

The deadly duel fought according to the code, was deemed a gentlemanly way to settle differences of opinion. One time in Boise, one hardboot swore he was going to kill a certain galoot the next time he saw him. "Let him come and get me," said the galoot when the threat was relayed to him. An enterprising gambling house proprietor persuaded the two antagonists to stage their setto in a gully back of town. His persuader was a stake of $1,000, winner take all. Then he roped off the area and charged admission to the fray. He also took bets on the outcome at appropriate odds.

The winner, who happened to have been the challenger, was promptly exonerated by a jury chosen on the spot. A few weeks later, he was one of the suspects arrested when Ben Bolton was found shot to death on a trail into Boise.

The marshal decided from circumstantial evidence that the murder was done by one of four men, Al, Jack, Joe and Tom, with a gun that belonged to one of the four.

Each man was questioned and the statements listed below were made. Suppose you, as the marshal, knew that two and only two statements in each case were true.

Al: I didn't do it. Tom did it. Sure I own a gun. Joe and I were playing poker when Bill was shot.

Jack: I didn't do it. Al did it. Joe and I were at the movies when Bill was shot. Bill was shot with Joe's gun.

Joe: I was asleep when Bill was shot. Al lied when he said Tom killed Bill. Jack is the only one of us who owns a gun. Tom and Bill were pals.

Tom: I never fired a gun in my life. I never saw Bill until they showed me the body.

Also, can you spot one error the artist seems to have made in drawing this picture of duelists at Boise?

Answer: Joe was the killer. Error in the picture: though both men have drawn their guns with their right hands, empty holsters are shown on opposite sides. Had the tall man drawn his gun from the left side as a personal preference, the holster in all probability would have been reversed. A second error is the smoking guns. Duellists would hardly be likely to have fired in opposite directions before turning around to face their opponents.

How Many Riders?

"GET IN," said the wagon driver who was operating an impromptu ride service between the town and the rodeo, "and I'll take you out for twenty-five cents each."

Just then two more persons came up and the driver let them get in also. Because this made the wagon rather crowded, he accommodatingly reduced the toll for each passenger to twenty cents each. However, he collected ten cents more than he would have done without the two extra passengers.

How many passengers were there altogether?

Answer: There were eight.

CANINE CAPERS

MR. NIMROD, who bought a dog of a hunting breed to train, has made an annoying discovery. The dog is gun-shy.

Back of Mr. Nimrod's house is a woods 100 feet deep. Every time Mr. Nimrod fires his gun at the back-door of his house the dog runs half way into the woods. If the distance to the edge of the woods is one-fourth of the depth of the woods, how far is the dog from the house after Mr. Nimrod fires one shot and the dog stops running?

Solution: Fifty feet. If the dog runs "half way into the woods," he runs one-quarter of its depth or 25 feet in the woods after having run 25 feet from the house. Of course, you may have interpreted "half way into the woods" differently.

Fastest Track

A LOOK DOWN STRAIGHTAWAY DURING CONSTRUCTION
. . . five grandstands and bleachers located along north side

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. — A year ago, a battery of bulldozers tackled a 445-acre tangle of palmetto, swamp, and scrub pine on Route 92, two miles west of here.

Today, workmen are winding up construction of the world's fastest auto racing track, on the same site.

The 300-odd days between the 1958 Speed Week and the big racing show this Feb. 20, 21 and 22 were crammed with activity, sometimes at a frenzied pace.

Known as the Daytona International Speedway, the track is 2½ miles long, has the highest banks (31 degrees) of any track in the world, and cost $3 million to construct.

It was a dream come true for one man—Bill France, president of NASCAR (National Association for Stock Car Racing) and president of the Daytona International Speedway.

He'd been trying to get the track built for six years, but was never able to get the right combination of land, financial backing, and other factors.

* * *

ONE DAY France, 49-year-old native of Washington, D.C., and one-time operator of a filling station in Daytona Beach, had a chance to do a favor for Clint Murchison, Jr., the fabulously wealthy Texan. It wasn't a big thing. Murchison wanted to get back to Texas and was having trouble making the right plane connections. France said," Jump in my plane. I'll run you down there. No trouble at all." On the way, he told Murchison about the track.

A few weeks later, one of the insurance companies in which Murchison is interested sent a man up to talk to France. The result: work began on the new Daytona International Speedway.

A few track facts — There are five grandstands with seating capacity of about 20,000. They are named for men who made racing history on the famous Beach — Sir Malcolm Campbell, Barney Oldfield, Ralph DePalma Sir Henry Segrave, and Ray Keech.

There will be parking space of 35,000 cars at the Speedway and virtually unlimited possibilities for expansion of grandstand and seating facilities.

The Campbell grandstand is concrete, using movable chairs and seats 6,000 in the reserved seats and boxes. The other grandstands are steel and wood and seat 3,100 each.

There are only three 2½-mile enclosed race courses in the world. Indianapolis Speedways, Monza in Italy and the new Daytona International Speedway.

Others who are experts in the sport echoed Cagle's praise.

Bill McCrary, race director for Firestone, and Dave Evans, who holds the same position for Goodyear, both said they felt the Daytona International would be the fastest track in the world, because of its unusually high-banked turns and the long (4,000-foot) straightaway on the south side of the tri-oval course.

Chapman Root, millionaire sportsman and owner of Indianapolis cars, predicted "they'll get safe speeds of 160 miles an hour. I'm not knocking Indianapolis, but at Daytona every spectator will be able to have an unobstructed view of the cars at every spot on the track."

* * *

SAFETY FEATURES include a concrete safety wall in front of the five grandstands; 10-foot safety fence on top of the wall; guard rail of heavy duty steel, and safety fences around the infield and around the entire track (14,000 feet in length).

Speeds of 200 miles per hour on the straightaways have been predicted for Indianapolis type cars and 140 to 160 for stock cars.

France says he expects a minimum crowd of 75,000 spectators for the February NASCAR races.

Approximately $100,000 in prize money and trophies will be posted with the winner of the first annual 500-mile International Sweepstakes next Sunday assured of a $20,000 purse provided he is driving a 1959 model car.

Two 100-mile races, the first for Grand National entries and the second for convertibles, are scheduled for Friday with the first starting at 2 p.m. and 20 leaders from each race will qualify for the Sunday event. Saturday's card calls for a 200-mile modified sportsman race at 2 p.m. followed by a 25-mile late model consolation to determine additional 20 starters for the Sunday race.

Calm Your Nerves! Give Horse Sense a Chance

By John Bohannan

ONE BRIGHT, sparkling day last summer I saw an old-time fishing party boat captain and a spanking new outboard skipper preparing to get under way. The old man started his engine, cast off a few lines and was out of the harbor before the outboarder had finished loading the last of the picnic supplies.

The new skipper did a lot of yelling, sending his wife and children back to the car for forgotten items until the little craft appeared loaded to the gunwales with everything from soft drinks to water skis.

After several attempts, the outboard started, and through a cloud of blue smoke I could see the family fumbling with a maze of lines. All were cast off except one when the skipper put the lever in forward gear and opened up for a flying start.

Slack went out of the remaining stern line in a hurry, loosening the cleat. More yelling through the smoke and the line was retrieved.

When the boat finally left I could still hear the skipper nervously bawling out his crew.

* * *

JUST WHAT was the difference between the fisherman and the new outboarder?

The answer is know-how. The old-timer knew exactly what to do, and had gone through the motions of getting under way for so many years that it had become second nature to him. Everything from checking his supplies to starting the engine and casting off the lines had become as natural as walking.

For this reason, the older boatman was relaxed.

In contrast the newcomer had let his lack of knowledge get on his nerves. This in turn put a hex on his good judgment and caused him to goof more than if he had remained calm.

Take it slower. Think out your next move before you make it. Do everything with plenty of deliberation. This gives the good old horse-sense a chance.

It keeps both the skipper and crew cool and level-headed should a real emergency arise.

After all, boating is for relaxation. The habit of taking it easy, yet remaining alert can make your days afloat much happier.

In racing under sail, where competition is keen and every move of each member of the crew can contribute toward victory or defeat, I have watched both the nervous and the relaxed types of skippers in action, and I must say that I prefer the latter even though there have been plenty of winners in both categories.

HAROLD NEWTON FINISHES NEW LANDSCAPE

... South Florida scenes are his specialty

NEWTON AND NEWEST BABY

... attended by admiring neighbor kids

Finance Company Accepted Painting Instead of Cash for Car Payment; The Doctor Was Paid in Moonlight When He Delivered Twin Babies!

FORT PIERCE — "I paints when I'm hungry—but then, I'm always going TOWARDS hungry—so I got enough to do."

This simple formula for living belongs to 25-year-old Fort Pierce Negro artist named Harold Newton, who believes in the direct approach.

If he wants something, like three meals, or a house, or a baby or car paid for, he simply goes to the nearest scenery, transfers it to canvas, frames it and peddles it door to door, until it's sold.

He has knocked successfully on some pretty impressive doors in the course of this career. His works are hanging in the Florida Bank at Fort Pierce, in the salesroom of the Port St. Lucie Mackle Development, at the Sea Horse Inn in neighboring Vero Beach, and are a regularly selling features at the Art Mart in fashionable Palm Beach, and in many fine homes and offices in the area.

He's solvent, happy, ulcer-free, independent. And, if success is any criterion, a good artist.

Born in Gifford, the Negro community in Vero Beach, Harold's family moved to Tifton, Ga. where his art career began in the 7th grade. He found drawing "came natural." Every scrap of paper that came his way turned into a composition reflecting the world around him. His discovery of water color paints opened up a new world of satisfaction but when he tried to sell the results he found very little market for them in Tifton.

He did discover a market in oils, which was the next step. He found he could sell religious pictures painted on velvet to the churches for as much as $2.50, but there weren't enough churches to support him and the wife he married at 17.

He also had to work on a car lot for grocery money, which was very distasteful.

"Things were tough—it's really hard living in Georgia" says Harold, "so I told my mamma I was going back to Gifford where I was born."

★ ★ ★

HE GOT a job there with a clean-up crew and continued trying to sell religion on velvet, but also experimented with interpreting what he likes best — the tropical scene of graceful palms, towering clouds and shimmering water.

If one of these pictures came out real well, he'd take it around to offices in the area and peddle it . . . sometimes for as much as $10.

"I stomped on more than I sold though, back there in 1953 it were—before I met Mr. Beanie Backus."

That meeting was a turning point in Harold's life, as similar meetings have been for many young artists. Backus was working on one of his distinctive sunlit, windswept pictures when Harold came timidly to the studio door at 103 Avenue C in Fort Pierce. He was warmly welcomed and invited to sit around and watch.

★ ★ ★

HAROLD, who had been using house paint and dime store brushes, was fascinated by the instrument Backus was wielding so expertly. Backus explained it was a palette knife.

Ashamed to admit he didn't know what that was, Harold rushed out to the nearest hardware store and picked up a fruit knife which seemed a reasonable facsimile. It didn't work out. So he got up his courage and went to an artists' supply store and poked around till he saw a palette knife and asked for "one of them."

He found himself when he learned to use it. "My brush works didn't sell so good," he explains "but my knife works go fine."

Now, father of four, including a pair of twins, Harold Newton has retired from the labor field and has the "Open Sesame" to successful living.

It's as much a system of barter as of sale. When he wants art supplies, he takes a painting to the nearest art store, which has no rouble, apparently, in selling it.

★ ★ ★

WHEN HIS twins were born, the attending doctor was happy to accept a view of the Indian River by moonlight in payment. A Newton painting hangs in the Indian River County hospital, a souvenir of his daughter's advent.

When he wanted a car, Don Reed, a Fort Pierce car dealer, acquired a Newton for a down payment. And Harold is probably the only living person who has conned the General Finance Corporation into accepting a work of art in lieu of a car payment.

That car, incidentally, is Newton's traveling office and is notable. He's painted it to look as if it's in flames. This creates quite a lot of attention from prospective customers.

BUT THE top job of barter, was when a deputy sheriff pinched Harold for speeding on the Indian River Drive near Fort Pierce. In Harold's own words, "I didn't have any money to pay out for bond and they were going to lock me up. But lucky, I had two paintings in the car, and that deputy sheriff, he bought them. Right there in the jailhouse. Give me enough to buy my bond and a little bit left over. Lucky too, the judge got sorry for me and let me go, and even then that deputy sheriff didn't want his money back. He just liked the pictures, I reckon."

He's got a "studio" in an empty jewelry store in Fort Pierce's Lincoln Park (rent bartered) and lives in a trailer (rent bartered) among congenial neighbors. His work is play. He does it when he feels like it, or when he wants something. His talent is appreciated. He's a happy man.

Hop Aboard Your 'Dream' at Dinner Key

Ahoy, All Would-Be Skippers

MORE THAN 227 exhibitors and 800 boats will go on display at Dinner Key Friday, Feb. 20 at 7:30 p.m. The Miami International Boat Show will then be open to the public from 1 p.m. to 11 p.m. daily through Feb. 25.

For the boat-minded Floridian, this is the event of the year. Here the land-locked, would-be skipper can look, feel, board and dream of his boat-to-be. New items in safety, electronics and plain gadgets can be seen and inspected. Fresh ideas in design and construction will be introduced.

Hulls of wood, fiberglass, steel and aluminum will be displayed. Outboard and inboard motors of all types, sizes and horsepower will be exhibited.

In step with the general boating trend, the bulk of the show fleet will consist of the moderately priced outboard boats of up to 22 feet in length. These will include every size and type of design. The most popular will be the family craft designed to fit the pocketbook and car-port with equal ease. Trailers also will be shown with improvements for loading and launching.

* * *

FOR THE LUXURY lover there also will be vessels big enough to satisfy the most demanding. The seagoing housewife will note that more attention has been paid to making her work easier and pleasant. Galleys are increasing in efficiency as more work-saving items are being installed as standard equipment.

The sailboat squadron will be represented with both local and foreign hulls on display.

Included within the 125,000 square feet of display space will be gadgets, fittings, boat trailers, service clubs, boat magazines and a vast array of electronic equipment.

A boat-a-cade, with prizes for the "best dressed" craft, will leave from the southwest corner of Watson Island Sunday, Feb. 22 at 1 p.m. The boats will head south, past Biscayne Park and on to the Dinner Key channel where the awards will be presented.

There will be three treasure chests which can be won by being the lucky skipper with the proper key. Keys will be presented to all skippers at the start of the parade.

CONTRALTO MAUREEN FORRESTER

. . . a warm and lovely voice

Voices From Around The World Featured

By Doris Reno

SEVERAL NEW RCA Victor 12-inch LPs present fine singers of various nationalities in disc-recitals.

Leonard Warren, American baritone turns up on a disc titled "On Tour in Russia," which gives us excerpts from the actual recitals presented on his fairly recent tour, with samples of the applause included.

Warren, one of our splendid singers, apparently was received in Russia with overboard enthusiasm. The numbers from his various recitals which we hear him singing to the Russians are a little too diversified to constitute an acceptable American recital, but evidently the choice was made on the basis of what was most pupular during the tour.

The range goes from Beethoven's "Questa Tomba Oscura" through the "Esogno?" from "Falstaff," on to Caccini's "Amarilli" and "Colorado Trail."

Everything is vibrantly sung, and the voice is in fine fettle.

* * *

Included are Schumann's cycle "Frauenliebe und Leben," Op. 42, and Brahms' Zigeunerlieder, "Geistliches Wiegenlied" and "Sehnsucht."

Miss Forrester's voice has a lovely quality, and it is warm and smooth-textured. She doesn't sing, however, with quite enough conviction to make her lieder-singing tops in the field. She is restrained, perhaps even a bit cool — or at least, she doesn't seem to be sufficiently involved personally.

Since she is a young singer, however, and her vocal quality and texture are really superior. She will probably work out the conceptual and interpretive difficulties as she matures her art. She has a fine start.

* * *

OUR FAVORITE lieder-singer, Dietrich Fischer-Dieskau, has a new Angel 12-inch LP, "Richard Strauss Songs," which fits magnificently into the series of lieder-recordings he now has on this company's disc. He has never yet released any disc which were not, to our notion, models for all other lieder-singers. Gerald Moore is again, fortunately, at the piano.

The Strauss album contains, among other songs, "Morgen," "Wozu noch, Madchen," "Freundliche Vision," "Befreit," "Nachtgang," "Ruhe, Meine Seele" and "Zuneigung."

Zinka Milanov is the feminine star on Victor's recent two-disc set of "La Gioconda," which was done by Fernando Previtali and the Orchestra and Chorus of the Accademia di Santa Cecilia in Rome.

Milanov is supported by Giuseppe di Stefano, Leonard Warren, Rosalind Elias and others. Miss Elias is the young singer who had her first major role at the Met last season in Barber's "Vanessa."

It's a superior cast, by all counts, and the singing is fine all through.

Flower Drum Song Gets the Treatment

Now Chinatown Is Jazzed Up

By Fred Sherman

IT WAS MORE than a year after opening night on Broadway when Contemporary Records struck a pure gold vein with its Shelly Manne and Andre Previn jazz version of the My Fair Lady score. And it took almost another year before the recording companies realized it wasn't a fluke.

Successes were quickly racked up by jazz treatments of Broadway's Pal Joey, Li'l Abner, King and I and the Hollywood music for Gigi. Nobody waited very long with the opening of the Flower Drum Song, the Rodgers and Hammerstein adaptation of the C. Y. Lee novel about San Francisco's Chinatown.

Two jazz albums are already out and Contemporary hasn't been heard from yet. On World Pacific records are the Mastersounds (WP-1252). The quartet, centered on the vibes of Buddy Montgomery, turns out its best recording effort to date. The gentleness of the themes is retained, something which didn't happen too often with the group's efforts on the King and I score.

Maybe it is the Rodgers' score which inspires. Johnny Smith's guitar sounds warm and wonderful in quartet work on the Flower Drum Song music for Roost (LP-2231). Mousie Alexander is on drums and George Roumanis on bass. Lending drama to the heavier parts is the cello of Charles McCracken.

If you need to taste the original before you can appreciate the added jazz spice, Columbia has the cast album with Pat Suzuki and Miyoshi Umeki (OL-5350). And if you like your music shimmering with violins and velvet tones, Columbia has an Andre Kostelanetz version (CL-1280).

* * *

A LIVE NOTE: Herb Wolff is a National Airlines pilot who has made extra spending money by taping Latin American orchestras, turning out long-play albums in this country for export to the south. Wolff is now aiming at the Yankee market. First session is a jazz group recorded locally.

Featured will be Buddi Satan with backing from Cozy Cole who was in town at the time for a date at the Rocking MB Lounge on Miami Beach. Latin touch was added by Bill Alvarez who hits the bongos for the cha-cha-cha at the Carillon Hotel and by Walfredo Reyes who plays timbales at the Nacionale Hotel in Havana. It will come out on the Panama label. Distributor is Henry Stone of Tru-Tone in Miami.

CHET BAKER ON TRUMPET

. . . Pretty Groovy album

ADDING UP TO jazz is the combination of Harry Arnold's Swedish big band plus the arrangements of America's Quincy Jones (EmArcy MG-36139). If you doubt that Jones can make a difference, listen to the Swedes on Cherokee which was recorded before Quincy arrived from the States. But with the American composer on deck, the Swedes achieve a Basie glisten.

High recommendation goes to a World Pacific album called Pretty Groovy (WP-1249). It's the control trumpet of Chet Baker with the original quartet: Russ Freeman at the piano, Larry Bunker on drums and Carson Smith on bass. Title is accurate. There is help from guest stars like Jimmy Giuffre, Bill Perkins and a guitarist named David Wheat. A fine session.

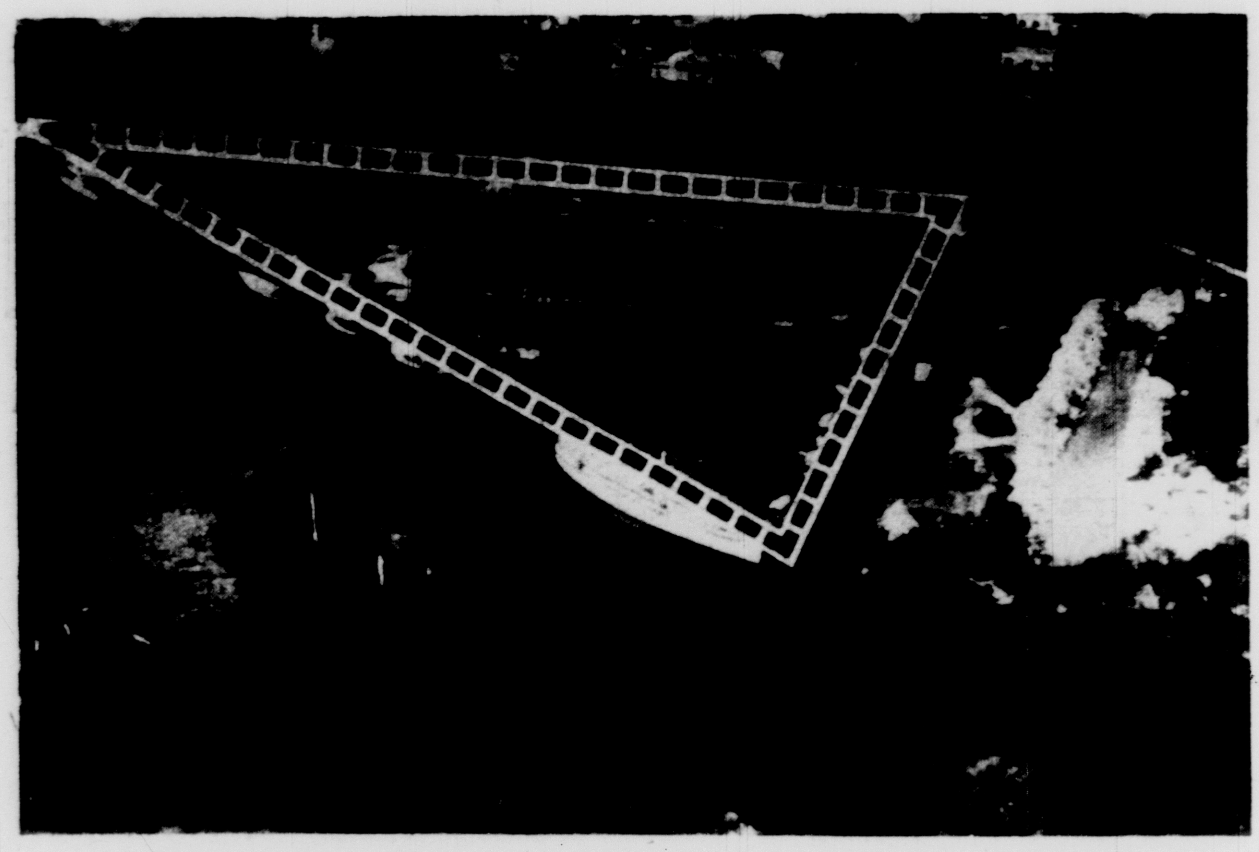
Tight Little Island In Miami River



JUST ISLAND IS SIX-ACRE TRIANGLE IN THE MIAMI RIVER

. . . the island is calmer now than during rum-running days

WILLIAM G. JUST

. . . spry at 90 years

. . . photos by Bill Sanders

By James Buchanan

GREAT BRITAIN isn't the only ruler of a "tight little island."

William Just has one too — a six acre tract in the Miami River which he naturally calls "Just Island."

It's the land-and-water home for a floating population of 45 to 100 people, depending upon the season.

And ruling it since 1921 is spry William G. Just himself, whose clear eyes and sure-voice belies his 90 years. He has yet to need eyeglasses for scanning the fine print of a map or a contract.

His domain, which he has shared with the city since the area was annexed in 1934, lies just west of Curtiss Park.

It's separated by a tiny bridge which residents call—naturally—Just Causeway.

* * *

MORE THAN 3,000 feet of parallel docks edge the property, and some 65 boats usually edge the docks.

"Most of our people are year-'rounders," Just says. "But oddly enough, those who are 'seasonal' come for the summer season rather than the winter. They sail in around July or August and usually sail out again in October."

Just Island is quiet these nights, but it wasn't always so.

"During prohibition I had to watch the shoreline all the time," Just recalled. "Those rum and scotch runners from Bimini thought they had a perfect layout here to land and switch their cargo either to another boat or an auto."

* * *

JUST ISLAND wasn't always an island. The canals or dockage space were partially "man made," and the fill which resulted went to make up the adjoining streets along NW 24th Ct. and 18th Ter.

Just, a former builder whose "credits" include the El Comodoro Hotel, a multitude of bridges and many business buildings here, moved into Miami lock-stock-barrel and family between Christmas of 1920 and the following New Year's Day.

"We came down from Pennsylvania," he said, "liked what we saw and decided to stay."

Since then, the tight little island on which he and his family settled in Miami's "wilderness" has grown as a business and as a homesite with a "family house," two cottages, and a gatehouse.

Other than the rum-runners, Just's reign in the little empire has been peaceful and quiet.

"No kids," he says, "because they'd always be falling in the water.

"And no hurricanes, because we're too far inland. We've had only $60 or $75 damage in 35 years."

What's the future for Just Island?

"It looks," he says, "as calm as the water in the river."

The Orchid Kingdom Is a Man's World

ORCHIDS . . . and men. Strange Combination? Not at all! The orchid world is primarily a man's world.

The first orchid was collected for a queen — but named for a man. That is, the particular orchid that means "orchid" to most people, the Cattleya. The first one, a Cattleya labiata, was found in Brazil in 1818 and shipped to England, there to be named for William Cattley, a well known English horticulturist.

Since that time men have been exploring the wilds of every country on the globe for new species of orchids. Other men have been experimenting in laboratories . . . spent years hybridizing and crossing these species to produce more modern, more beautiful orchids to adorn regal ladies' shoulders with magnificent corsages.

* * *

IF YOU still wonder about the orchid world being a man's world primarily, you might take a peek at the South Florida Orchid Society roster. You'll find more men than women on its rolls. You'll also find only two women out of 14 officers and directors.

Or take a look at the American Orchid Society. All of its officers are men. There are only 17 women among its approximately 135 trustees, honorary vice-presidents and committee chairmen.

Miami's 15th Annual International Orchid Show, the world's largest all-orchid show, will be held at Bayfront Park Auditorium Feb. 20-23, sponsored by the South Florida Orchid Society.

Landscape floor design of the Orchid Show was planned by Jonathan Seymour under the direction of Show Chairman John S. Gessner, Jr. and Society President Hayden Sparks.

The towering Feathersone Boulder Rock waterfall — so mysteriously and colorfully back-lighted — you'll see splashing into a lake and flowing into a river winding through both halls of the auditorium was envisioned by men (and of course will be erected by men). Two rustic bridges 8 ft. wide, 22 ft. long and 3 ft. above floor level will arch over the river. Men planned this for better viewing or photographing the show as well as to show off their orchid creations and the clothes of Don Mullen in a Sunday afternoon fashion show.

Around this waterfall will be the larger artistically designed exhibits — each interpreting this year's theme "Orchids — Nature's Masterpiece"— then smaller exhibits and flower arrangements will line the banks of the river.

* * *

HOME DECORATION will not be overlooked. Spotlighting this will be new and novel ways of using more orchid plants or arrangements in and around rooms, patios and gardens.

Foreign and out-of-state exhibitors (the great majority men, by the way) will have special classes limited to their orchids. Special new awards will await winners in the International classes — limited to exhibitors and societies outside the continental United States.

The show committee plans to give away free orchid corsages every hour on the hour during the four - day show.

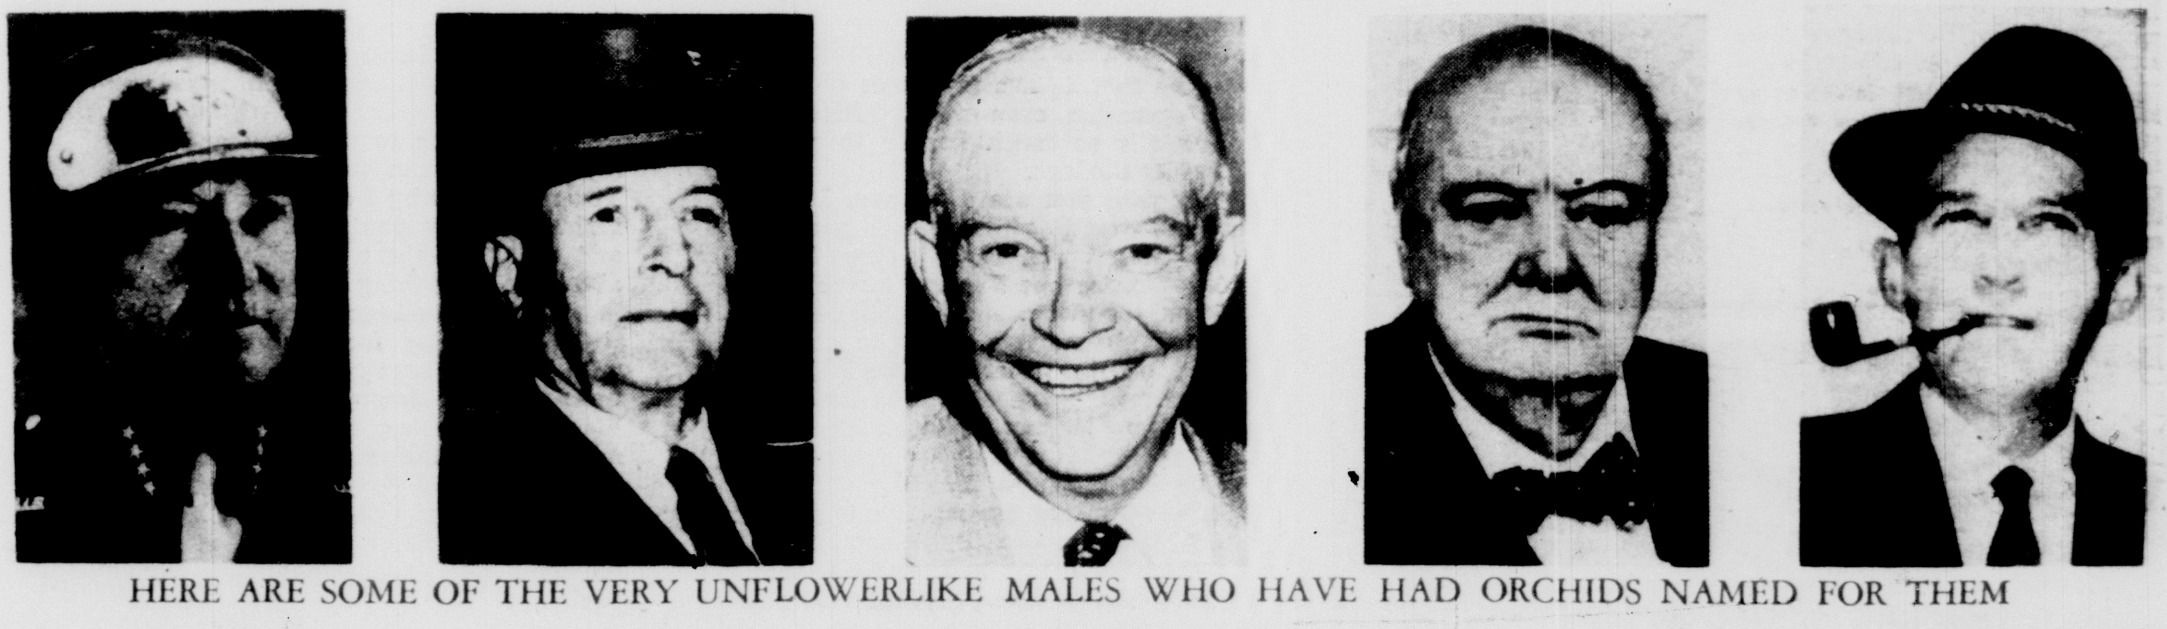
Other men taking a large part in the orchid show will be men of the Miami City and Dade County Parks departments who will transplant trees, palms and shrubs inside the auditorium to carry out the garden theme. Superintendent of City of Miami Parks Department Ray Plumer has also announced his men will plant an outdoor exhibit of orchids just west of the auditorium to honor this show and the South Florida Orchid Society. This is believed to be the first outdoor exhibit ever designed in a public park.

ORCHID SOCIETY OFFICIALS PLANNING ANNUAL SHOW

. . . chairman of judges, Dan Reed, and show chairman, John S. Gessner, Jr.

Still on the masculine kick, some very unflowerlike personalities have had orchids named after them. For instance, there are the C. General Patton, the BC. General MacArthur, to say nothing of LC Walter Winchell, LC Ernie Pyle, C. Bing Crosby, LC President Wilson and C. General Pultney. There is a V. Dwight Eisenhower as well as a Cyp. Winston Churchill.

When the names are being dealt out, women are not altogether neglected, however. Princess Margaret, Shirley Temple, Ethel duPont, and Marian Davies are among those so honored. Other orchids bear descriptive names such as BLC. Morning Sun, Rosy Dawn, Snow Princess, Sunset Glow.



HERE ARE SOME OF THE VERY UNFLOWERLIKE MALES WHO HAVE HAD ORCHIDS NAMED FOR THEM

ARISE, MEN! ENOUGH OF CONFORMITY!

Be Reckless, Change the Way You Get Shod and Trousered

By Lawrence Thompson

SOME MORNING I am going to become downright revolutionary and dress in a different way. All my life I have been a slave to senseless custom or habit about putting on my clothes, and I'm getting tired of the rut.

For instance, right after my shorts, I put on my socks and then my shoes. I do this even on a cold morning when I am shivering and yearning for some warm covering over my nakedness.

But I always put on my socks and shoes first, regardless of weather or other circumstances. I have no idea why I do this, except that I always have.

After that, I put on my shirt. This doesn't make any particular sense. A man in shirt, shorts and shoes is neither dressed nor undressed. He's just a ridiculous sight. If I put on my pants first and there was a fire, I at least could make a hurried exit with some slight dignity. But a man who went dashing out in public wearing only his shoes or his shoes and shirt would feel so silly he'd dash back into the burning building and go up in smoke.

★ ★ ★

AFTER THE SHIRT, I put on my pants. This is the most awkward operation known to man. I'm not sure how it could be done, but there should be some way to make pants that you can put on without hopping all over the bedroom like a chicken with its head off.

The fact I have my shoes on makes the operation even more difficult, because it's so much harder to get the feet into the legs.

In case you are a woman, I should explain that to put on men's pants you must stand up, holding the pants in front of you, raise one leg and insert it into a leg of the pants.

This forces you to try to stay balanced on the other leg, while holding the pants in front of you in such a position your leg can get into the pants leg and to the floor without dragging the pants too much on the floor.

Possibly that sounds simple, but actually it is complicated gymnastics.

To achieve it, you are forced to hop around like a bunny rabbit and more often than not, hit your shin against the door or a bed post.

When you finally get one leg in the pants, you must put on the other leg. This is even harder than the first leg, because now you must balance yourself on the leg which already is in the pants while you hold the pants steady so you can insert the other leg.

In other words, you have practically no freedom of movement, and although you still will manage to hop around, it is a difficult job, something like hopping in a gunny sack race.

★ ★ ★

FOLLOWING THIS, I zip and button my pants and put on a tie. I have to stand in front of a mirror to tie my tie, although I have been tying ties for generations, and I always tie them exactly the same way. It's a simple knot, and you'd think that even a simple person could learn how to do that without a mirror after a few years, but here I am, in my mid-40s, and I am helpless without a looking glass. I've heard of Boy Scouts who learned how to tie 100 knots in a week, but I'll bet when they are adult men, they'll need a mirror when they execute a four-in-hand.

After I have my tie on, I unbutton the shirt collar because it's too tight. I don't know why I button it in the first place, except that's how I learned to put on a shirt. If my neck ever shrinks back to normal, I'll leave the collar buttoned and save at least one step in my dressing process.

Now, I have to unbutton and unzip my pants so I can put my shirt tails in. You may ask why I didn't do that when I first put my pants on, but I didn't, and that's all there is to it. I wonder about the same thing every morning.

As I say I've been going through this ritual every day for many years, and until now I've been too conservative, too comforming to do anything about it. But I'm feeling daring in my old age and one of these mornings, I'm going to be revolutionary.

I'll put on my pants before I put on my socks and shoes. I know that sounds reckless, but the time has come for action.

Work on New Show Never Really Ends, Says Duke Ellington

REHEARSALS KEEP 'EM JUMPING, NOT ALWAYS FOR JOY
... big three of the show, Nick Castle, Sid Kuller, Duke Ellington

IF YOU THINK that after opening night all there is to putting on a show is to keep on doing what you've been doing, you've got another think coming.

This from Duke Ellington who is currently in the throes of starring in Jump for Joy, song and dance extravaganza or spectacular or whatever they're calling them this season, at Miami Beach night spot, Copa City.

Behind the scenes, it's always jumping — but not always for joy, he says. Either writer-director-producer Sid Kuller or Choreographer Nick Castle — or both — has spotted something he'd like changed, cut out, added or re-tailored.

Or sometimes, he admits ruefully, he himself gets the urge to tear something up and put it back together again.

In any case, the result is a rehearsal call almost every day as they test run the show before taking it to Broadway.

Felons Good Pupils, Says Teacher

CONVICTED criminals are easier and more rewarding to teach than college students, in the opinion of a veteran teacher in San Quentin Prison.

He is William Gorsline, of Mill Valley, Calif., who was recently instrumental in adding the NBC-TV Network's "Continental Classroom" (6:30 a.m., Wednesday, Ch. 7) to the prison's educational program.

In a recent interview in the Mill Valley Record, Gorsline called prison teaching an "intriguing experience."

"Teaching prisoners has been most interesting, he said. "It's a great deal different from college, where the students are forced to be in class. My prisoners sit right down, go to work and are invariably courteous. Most work quite hard, and I have had some brilliant students."

Seeing a telecast of the NBC-TV course in Atomic Age Physics Gorsline wrote to Dr. Harvey E. White, who regularly conducts it, suggesting use of kinescopes of the course in the prison's education program. Further correspondence has resulted in regular showings of the kinescopes to prisoners.

LESSON FROM POP is in progress here as John Russell, star of ABC's Lawman, teaches son, John, 7, how to handle a western firearm. The younger Russell wants to be a horse opera hero like pop when he grows up.

Has Horse To Thank

John Epper, who is cast as the bartender in the Laramie saloon which is seen on John Russell's "Lawman" series would be infinitely more at home with horses.

John is really a horse trainer by profession and among his accomplishments was the training of the original and famous movie horse, Flicka.

Epper was also the owner and trainer of a race horse, "Neddie Boy" which he bought for $100 from Harry Warner, president of Warner Brothers.

By the time the horse quit racing, Epper had made enough to buy a twenty-five thousand dollar ranch house in California's San Fernando Valley.

Opera "The Medium" on Omnibus

Gian Carlo-Menotti's celebrated opera, "The Medium," will be staged in full color at 5 this evening by NBC's Omnibus over WCKT (Ch. 7).

Menotti himself will direct the hour-long television treatment of his work. As this section went to press, NBC had not yet selected the singers for the opera's six roles.

"The Medium" was first presented on Broadway in the spring of 1947 and won critical and popular acclaim. The original version was done at Columbia University the year before. After certain revisions it was sent to Broadway, coupled with another short Menotti opera, "The Telephone."

The opera tells the story of a spiritualist medium caught between a world of reality which she cannot understand and a supernatural world in which she cannot believe.

Haunted House Anyone?

Ghosts, Spooks Drama Planned By Circle Theater

By Jack E. Anderson

SENIOR WRITER Irving Tunick of the Circle Theater series which presents semi-documentary dramas on CBS (Ch. 4) every other Wednesday night, was here at the Diplomat Hotel recently for a brief rest.

ANDERSON

He told me he and his associates who research, as well as write, the hour-long dramas are trying to work out a true-life documentary on ghosts and spooks.

The idea was inspired by the Circle Theater re-telling several months ago of the story of the Long Island family which had furniture and other household objects flying mysteriously about for no apparent cause unless — as the more occult-minded opined—the house had been invaded by poltergeists.

You Gotta' Ghost in the House?

NOW CIRCLE THEATER is searching for an authenticated ghost story. If you see any wraiths regularly inside or outside your FHA, you might get in touch with Tunick at CBS. Maybe yours is just the experience he's looking for.

Tunick said his staff of writers varies in number, according to the amount of research necessary for a given drama, but as a rule each program requires the services of four or five.

"We're currently working on a two-part presentation," he said. "It will be a dramatic look at Israel 10 years after sort of thing. The first drama is called 'Land of the Book,' and the second, 'People of the Book.' "

Circle Theater hopes to time their release, he said, for the Jewish Passover in April.

Would Appreciate Movie Revival

IF ANY OF THE local television stations have the reels of the movie, "Four Feathers," in their film archives, they'd please an elderly Miamian mightily if they'd program it some evening.

The writer, Joseph Auslander, asked me the other day to pass on this request. His elderly friend whom he doesn't want to identify (for fear of offending him) was a member of the British expeditionary force which under Lord Kitchener fought the Egyptian campaign on which "Four Feathers" is based.

No Dinner Setting This Time

THEY'RE PUTTING together the annual television Emmy awards show on which TV's stars receive their equivalent to the movie Oscars. The big event is scheduled for 10 p.m., May 6, this year on NBC (Ch. 7).

The 90-minute special will originate from TV studios in New York and Hollywood. Producers for the show, Jess Oppenheimer and Robert Henry, are getting rid of the show's award dinner setting this year.

The idea is give the ceremony more entertainment value. In past telecasts, the entertainment was pretty mediocre. The only action involved the excited award-winner's footwork in getting untangled from the table cloth and reaching the podium.

The selections and categories of the Emmy awards are so preposterous that any little addition—such as entertainment—to the telecast will be welcome.

Ricky To Play Matador

Rick Nelson, national teenage singing idol and co-star in his family's ABC-TV comedy series, "The Adventures of Ozzie and Harriet" is learning a new "sport" — bull fighting.

NELSON

Eighteen-year-old Rick, who expects to play the role of a matador in a movie next summer, is becoming expert in the use of the "capote de brega" (red cape) and the "estoque" (sword) on a "carretillo" (practice bull).

The latter is a wheeled wooden frame on which are attached a set of bull's horns. A pal (often David) charges the "bull" past Rick as he practices the various cape and sword techniques.

"Rick's learning fast," says Dave. "He's been 'gored' only twice."

The young singer-actor also is taking lessons on the Flamenco guitar from one of the world's greatest players, Vicente Gomez.

Rick "discovered" bull fighting on weekend trips across the border while on location in Arizona for his up-coming picture "Rio Bravo."

She Learned Easy Way

Ann Sothern says that a good deal of her fan mail since she began her starring role as assistant manager of a hotel in the new Ann Sothern Show has been from folks who want to know how thoroughly she researched the hotel business before embarking on the new comedy series.

"Not too thoroughly, I'm afraid," is her answer. "Fact is, I think I'm pretty well qualified in the role — after all, I did dance a tango once with Conrad Hilton."

M.T. Graves Speaking . . .

The following communication was received from WCKT (Ch. 7) We don't vouch for its authenticity. Indeed, there is a strong suspicion that since our boy spends his time chained to a wall, one of the station's executive spooks handles his correspondence.

M. T. GRAVES AT CLASS REUNION

I'M SPEAKING to you from The Dungeon underneath WCKT-TV 7 where I live (if you can call it that) and from where I bring you my little stories of terror each Sunday afternoon at 4:00 p.m. on TV7.

I do want to thank each of you who has written to me, and may I take this opportunity to answer some of your questions.

In answer to all of you who have written in to ask the question: "Do you eat to live; or live to eat?" - may I say I do neither. Frankly, I find both a bore.

Another question I have been asked many times before is: "Which of Shakespeare's plays is your favorite?" and my answer to that is, obviously, the "Comedy of Terrors."

Of course any of the tragedies make quite good reading, and I particularly like "Hamlet." He's a boy after my own heart. Now that's a thought, isn't it?

I have also been asked the question: "Do you think Elvis Presley is his real name?" I can only answer: Do I think Elvis Presley is who's real name?

In reference to my musical tastes - "Mr. Graves, do you think Rock 'n' Roll is here to stay?" My answer to that question is, I don't care what you do, just don't do it in front of my dungeon.

"What do you think," other friends of mine have asked, "of television on the whole?" All I can say is, my friends, it's a very strange way to watch The Dungeon or any other program, but you sit any place you like.

If any of you would like to write to me, I will be very happy to answer your letters. Just address them to Mr. M. T. Graves, The Dungeon, Underneath WCKT, P.O. Box 38M, Miami, Florida.

Organist Trained on Gay 90's Tunes

Tom Owners, the tall, lean young organist and accordionist in Lawrence Welk's Little Band, is only 20 years old, but he's had considerable experience pounding out mood music for Gay Nineties melodramas.

Fact is, he had been making a part-time living at it for two and a half years when Maestro Welk beckoned.

There's an elaborate "period piece" type park in Orange County, Calif., called Knott's Berry Farm. One of its features is an old-time "gaslight" theater and this is where Tom worked.

Tom, the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Owens of Redondo Beach, Calif., is admittedly shy and self-conscious when making public appearances 'though he performed at his first recital nine years ago and has played at dozens since. It was during one such appearance that Tom met Myron Floren, Welk's famous accordionist and right-hand music man. Myron and Tom's parents became friendly and soon young Tom was receiving the invaluable guidance of one of the nation's finest musicians.

It was Myron who recommended Tom to Welk for his present ABC-TV billet on the popular Wednesday night show.

Although Tom has been practicing accordion for over nine years and the organ for five, he is considering carving a future career more closely allied with his favorite scholastic subject at El Camino College — mathematics.

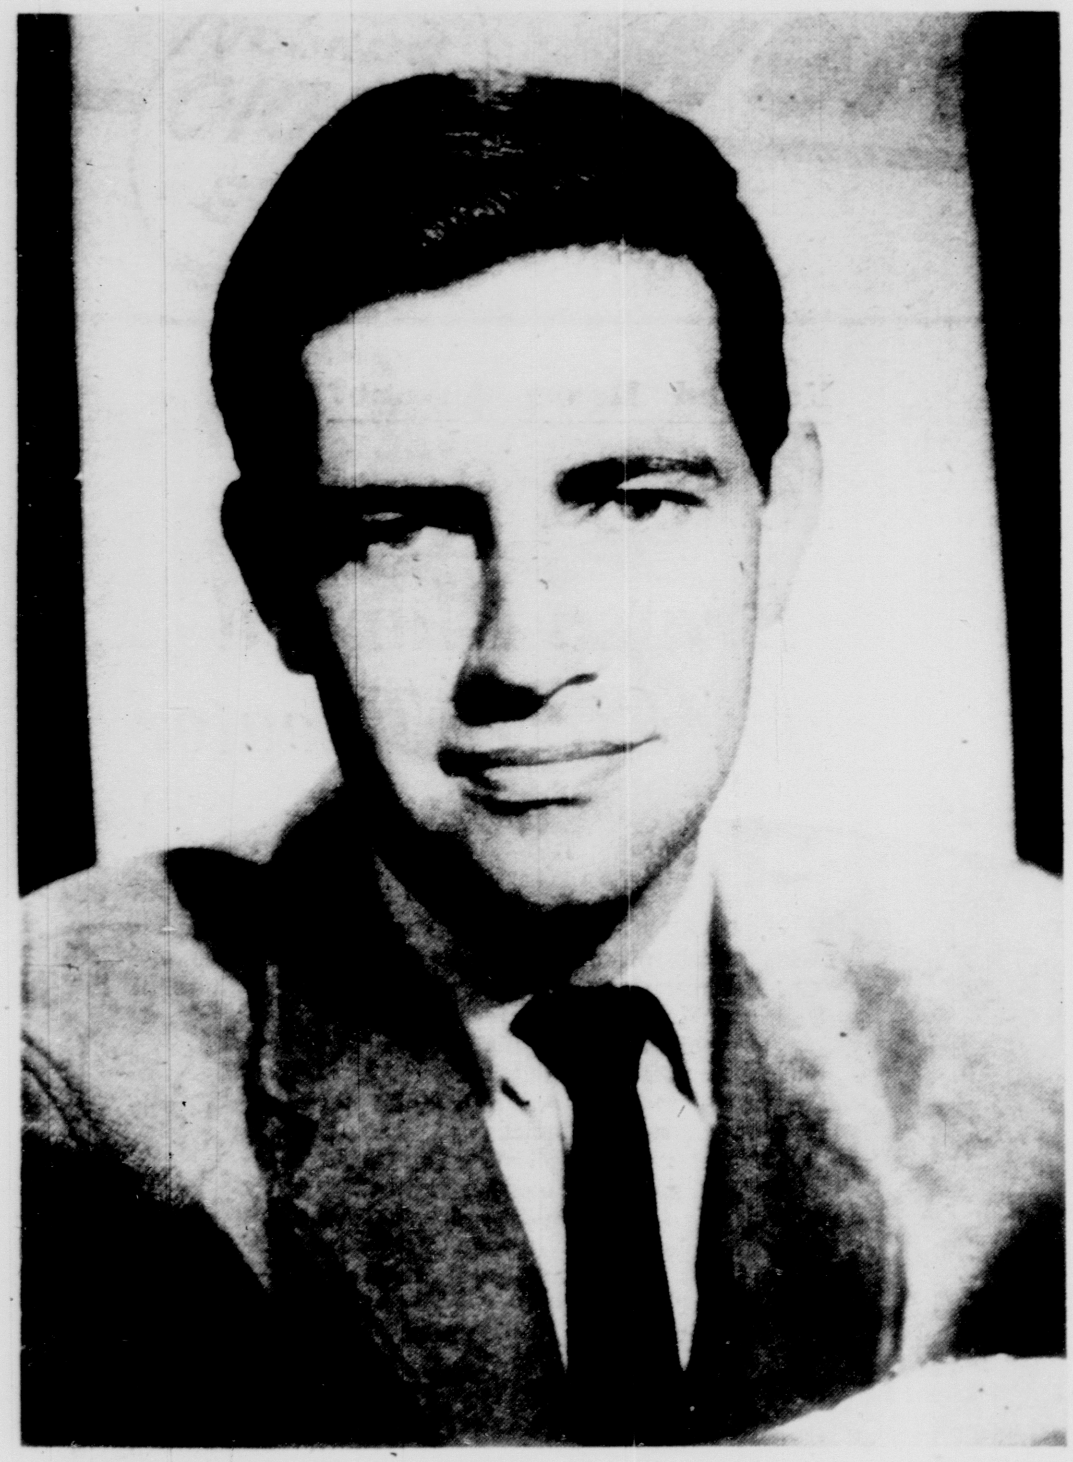
Video's Cinderella Man

TV's Jack Mullaney, Who Started at Top, Gives Some of the Reasons He Thinks Programs Bound to Show Improvement



JACK MULLANEY'S SUCCESS ON TV WAS QUICK ONE

By Ed Misurell

When you meet Jack Mullaney he has the air of a man who is continually surprised by all that is going on about him. Tall and lean and wearing a semi-crewcut he looks like a callow sophomore who has nothing on his mind but cutting a class to keep a date with the doll who sits next to him in Physics 11. This effect is further heightened by the fact that he carries his 26 years as lightly as the wind does a feather.

Moments after you start to talk to him the illusion is quickly dispelled. Mr. M., who plays the humorously-philosophical bellboy on CBS-TV's The Ann Southern Show, is very definitely a thinking man's actor and has pondered considerably on television and himself and where both stand today.

"Television is in a terrible state right now," he said earnestly during a brief visit to New York the other day. "The recession, which hit the medium rather late, is probably responsible for the condition. The sponsors are afraid to stick out their necks, they won't experiment. That's why we run into so many glutting cycles — westerns this year, comedians another year, the scores of singing shows last season.

"There are some people in the business," continued Mullaney, "who say that tight schedules, prompted by economy, are the basis for the poor quality of a good number of the shows you see on TV. But most of the directors, producers and writers with whom I've had contact say that that is not at the bottom of the problem. It is the demand for imitation of shows that have made a hit. And while imitiation has frequently been said to be the sincerest form of flattery, it doesn't always assure success.

"Since I'm optimistic by nature," Jack smiled, "I'm sure that television will ride out this crucial period and improve steadily in the not too distant future. If I'm to judge by what happened to our show, I think the trend is already on the upswing."

Mullaney was referring to the criticism that followed the debut of The Ann Sothern Show and the subsequent efforts on the part of the producers, staff and cast to improve later episodes. "Now if it is felt that a scene isn't just right" he explained, "more time is taken than is usual to shoot it over until everybody is satisfied. If need be, more money is spent to re-shoot it the following week until it is right. Of course, after a company has been working together for a good while you have something else going for you. It's a mutual thing — the actors, writers, directors and others come to know one another better. They complement one another's talents and the end product shows this quite clearly."

Mullaney's present video role is but one of more than 200 he has played since he began his Cinderella-like career a scant three years ago. Born in Pittsburgh in September, 1932, Jack moved to Cincinnati with his family as a youngster. While in Norwood High School, he became a movie buff and decided that he wanted to be an actor although none of the Mullaneys had ever had any show business aspirations.

Intent upon achieving his ambition, Jack decided not to go to college but went to work in a factory and, among other things, delivered telephone books to earn enough money to attend The American Theatre Wing dramatic school in New York City.

Less than a week after his arrival in New York he dropped in cold to the office of TV producer Fred Coe and read for a part in a Philco Playhouse show that had originally been intended for Jimmy Dean. He was hired on the spot to star with E. G. Marshall in "Old Tasslefoot."

Since he made his first $300 on Philco Playhouse, Jack's earnings have been quite comfortable. Like most people, he doesn't like to talk about the subject, except to say that he is not unhappy about it. He lives in a swank bachelor apartment in Hollywood but is looking for a house.

Up to the present, Jack hasn't registered at a drama school and doesn't believe he will in the foreseeable future. "I'm an observer type," he says with a grin. "For three years I've been working with-in touching distance of some of the finest actors and actresses in the world. I've watched them closely, studied their techniques and tried to learn all I can from them.

"For example, Ann Sothern is one of the best teachers anyone can have. Five days every week I'm a 'pupil' — and I'm being paid for it."

RECOGNIZE 'EM?

Babes in Videoland

Arrayed below are childhood photos of four local Miami television favorites. It took the subjects weeks of hunting through closets and old trunks to find these mementos. We have more which will be used in subsequent issues of this section. If you can recognize these kids, then you're more perceptive than Herald staffers who were tested. They couldn't identify any of them. All of these tots appear daily on your TV screen. Take a close look then check your guesswork against pictures of them as they are now and their identities on Page 21. To help you, we've listed a clue under each photo. The clues are scanty but maybe they'll give you just a hint.

BEATTY'S BEAT

NBC radio newscaster trusts nobody when it comes to checking facts and figures on news stories for his nightly broadcasts. He likes to be absolutely certain.

NBC NEWSMAN Morgan Beatty looked up from the typewriter on which he was tapping out his 7:30 p.m., "News of the World" broadcast on WCKR, Monday through Friday.

"There's no magic here," he said, indicating the script. "I simply put together facts which are available to anyone and call on my 40 years of experience as a political reporter to help me analyze them."

No gazer into the crystal ball of fanciful forecasts, Beatty used facts supplemented by first-hand information from authoritative sources when he prepares his NBC Radio broadcasts. He keeps his own index of important news stories, filed according to such entries as "Automobile industry," "FBI" and "Thermo-nuclear reaction" and can dig out the background on any of these subjects within minutes.

"I look for detail in stories," he remarked, "because the detail that's missed today is the headline tomorrow."

Some months ago, when Charles De Gaulle was on the verge of becoming the French premier, dispatches from Paris indicated that the decision would depend on the votes of the Socialist members of the National Assembly.

Beatty checked the biographies of the party leaders and learned that many had been heroes during World War II.

Prediction Correct

THEREFORE, he predicted, they would be prepared to accept a military man as head of the government. A few days later De Gaulle became premier.

Beatty's working day begins at 11 a.m. in his small office on the fifth floor of the NBC studios in the RCA Building, New York.

After careful study of the morning newspapers, he reads the long yellow sheets of teletype reports from press association correspondents in Washington and world capitals abroad.

These — plus the dispatches of NBC Newsmen stationed in all parts of the globe — provide him with the basis for the material he will use in his broadcasts of "News of the World" and "Life and the World."

The 56-year-old commentator considers himself "a political reporter who has been consistently diverted to disaster work."

A native of Little Rock, Ark., he was telegraph editor of the Arkansas Gazette in that city when the disastrous Mississippi floods occurred in 1927. With notebook and camera he made several flights daily over the stricken areas and gained national recognition for his word-and-picture coverage.

Covered Hurricane

HE LATER covered the 1928 Florida hurricane and the floods in New York State in 1934, when he was bureau chief for the Associated Press in Albany.

After joining NBC Radio as a military analyst in 1941 he served in London as war correspondent and, in 1946, started "News of the World."

Typical of Beatty's approach to newsgathering was his reporting of the blizzard which swept the country in December, 1948.

For three days, he flew in an Air Force plane from the Canadian border to as far south as Texas to gather first-hand information about the storm.

"I don't want listeners to feel that they're getting a rehash of the news that's in the afternoon papers," Beatty said. "What I try to report is tomorrow's headlines."

How well he is succeeding in this aim may be judged by a remark by labor leader John L. Lewis, head of the United Mine Workers, who made this comment after one of Beatty's broadcasts:

"Your 15 minutes will tide me over until I can get back to my own sources of information."

MILTON SMITH
. . . he's the 'Butterball'

MILTON SMITH, or "Butterball," as his fervent fans know him, comes as close as it's possible to come to having a television show without television. His daily radio sessions (from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. and 4 to 6 p.m.) are done in WMBM's display window at NW Third Ave. and 12th St. There is a virtual stampede at those hours by Butterball people to see and exchange banter with the 360-pound radio star. Smith has been a top favorite on WMBM for four years. Before that he was Fat Daddy on WFEC. He's a graduate of Tennessee State College where he was a first rank football player. He got into radio after two years of service in the Marine Corps, including combat duty in Korea with the corps' First Division. Smith is married and has two sons.

Phil's Now Homebody

Phil Silvers, star of the CBS Television Network show, "You'll Never Get Rich," was talking at rehearsal the other day about the difference marriage and a daughter have made in his life.

"I used to consider myself a man's man," he said. "You could always find me running over to Toots Shor's or the Friars Club to see the boys and get the score of a ball game. Now, when I get a rehearsal break, I call up to find out when the baby is going to have her bath. Wall-to-wall carpeting has replaced the Yankees as a subject around the house—and I love it."

SOPRANO Laurel Hurley sings Zerlina in Mozart's "Don Giovanni" on the Metropolitan Opera at 8:15 tonight on WGBS.

Half and Half

MRS. J. CAUCH, of Fort Dix, N. J., has been arguing about the birthplace of Tennessee Ernie Ford—Virginia or Tennessee?

Ernie was born in the town of Bristol which is half in Virginia, half in Tennessee. He was born in the Tennessee half, for which he has given great thanks with the statement, "Can you see a man going all through his life with the name "Virginia Virgil?"

About Emmy

CHARLES SULLIVAN, of Houston, asks how the Emmy Award Winners are nominated and selected.

Producers offer their own shows, or performers, that they think are particularly worthy. Other people in the TV industry who happen to be members of the Television Academy of Arts and Sciences nominate the rest. These nominations are screened, the most likely candidates are put on a ballot and the entire Academy membership votes to select the winners.

MODEL Ellie Evers of CBS' The Big Payoff intended to make a career of school teaching but won a beauty contest. This side-tracked her right into her present job.

Out of Past

CLARA MAISTER, of Philadelphia, thinks she remembers Hermione Gingold as an actress on Manhattan's lower East Side many years ago, asks if it's possible.

Not unless Hermione has been fibbing about her past. Otherwise, her first visit from her native England didn't occur until after World War II.

Lost Candidate

MRS. J. G. FLINN, of Houston, asks what happened to Jackie Cooper's "The People's Choice."

After a three year run, the series was dropped by its sponsor for low ratings Cooper, who wasn't very proud of the series sold the three years' supply of films for something over a million dollars, and now, he says, will be able to do the kind of show he likes.

COOPER

Detective Story

JOHN McGEEHAN, of Santa Ana, Calif., asks if Warren William ever played Charlie Chan in the movies.

No. The part was played mostly by Warner Oland and then Sidney Toler. William did play another omniscient detective, Philo Vance.

No Comment

MRS. HELEN MAYS, of Paducah, Ky., asks if Harpo Marx can talk and if he is really Groucho's brother.

Yes, he can talk, though he never does on a professional basis—that's his act. Groucho, Chico and Harpo plus several others are all in the same family.

Wynn's Loser

MRS. EMIL BORGSTROM, of Houston, asks what happened to the Ed Wynn Show which she deeply admired.

Mrs. Borgstrom was apparently in a minority. The Wynn show started out with a low rating which got even lower. The sponsor finally dropped the show, which Ed himself has admitted was a badly conceived project. He is now back free-lancing as both comic and actor.

Boy at Work

Video's No More Fun to Jerry Mathers Than Selling Papers or Mowing Lawns

IT MAY sound very glamorous to be a star in a regular television series, but for 10-year-old Jerry Mathers—a young man who takes a practical approach to acting and is known throughout the country as "Beaver" on ABC-TV's "Leave It to Beaver" comedy series — "It's no more fun than selling newspapers or mowing lawns."

Jerry who would spurn the Fauntleroy suits and chauffeur-driven limousines once associated with child stars, is on an average allowance which usually goes quickly for such day-to-day expenses as Kite string and comic books.

"Jerry is a normal boy," says his mother, Mrs. Muriel Mathers. "He's just about as spoiled as any 10-year-old with a younger brother and sister. As the first born in any family, Jerry has problems, but they're the usual ones found in any similar family. His career doesn't have anything to do with them."

Life Unexciting

JERRY'S typical day is comparatively unexciting.

He and his mother report to the set in the morning and his schedule calls for an hour or two in front of the television cameras.

The rest of the time is devoted to school, with the most enjoyable part of the day being the same as with any school boy — recess.

Jerry goes home in the afternoon to his parents' modest house in suburban Canoga Park (Calif.) and putters away the rest of the day with the neighborhood kids, playing baseball, football of just "messing around."

He's Cub Scout

"ABOUT the only exception is Cub Scout night," says Mrs. Mathers. "Jerry has the usual youngster's enthusiasm for scouting and he really looks forward to the meetings of his pack."

His mother is a former schoolteacher and his dad, Mr. Norman Mathers, is a counselor in the Van Nuys public school system.

"We've both resisted the temptation to take over Jerry's teaching," continued Mrs. Mathers. "It just makes it harder on his regular teachers. But, I'll admit we may help him once in a while when his home-work has him temporarily stumped."

But then normal parents of a normal 10-year-old would.

It's Gale Who Keeps Zasu Laughing

ZASU PITTS has spent a certain number of years — it would be ungallant to specify exactly how many— working at her art, which is cheering people Miss Pittls"Koo up, making So who cheers them laugh. Miss Pitts when she's low?

ZASU

"Gale Storm is who" she says.

ZaSu, who plays Nugey, partner in malfeasance to Gale Storm's Susanna on the CBS Television Network's "The Gale Storm Show," gives Gale the credit for making the show a happy place to work.

"She's so mature, and yet so young at hearts," says ZaSu. "She's made 'Nugey' the most enjoyable role I've ever played."

This might sound like apostasy to many actors, who look upon a star's taking a second comedy role much as leopards might regard one of their number developing a taste for yams.

But Zasu, who began her career at the age of 16 as a serious actress in motion pictures and who enjoyed star billing in more comedies than you could shake a spear at, doesn't see it that way.

"I couldn't be happier," she says. "I've had a long and wonderful career, and this is the frosting on the cake.

"I didn't intend to be a comedienne, but when talkies came along they thought I was best suited for comedy roles."

"They" were producers—and the public, to be sure. Few have been known to complain about her work as a comedienne especially Gale Storm.

"When I first started working with Gale I thought she was a sweet young thing and I thought maybe I ought to mother her," ZaSu says. "But I want to tell you I leared a lot from her. I don't exactly mother her. Things are crazy enough around her as it is.

"Visitors to the set are always amazed to find us having so much fun working," she adds. "Gale's zest for life and her ability to make us see the goofy side of life has rubbed off on all of us. If any of us comes to work feeling low, it can't last long. Not around her.

"It sounds kind of corny to say so, but she's an inspiration to all of us, and the way I mean it, it ISN'T corny.

"I'd like to go on being Nugey until the U.S. Ocean Queen sinks."

Could Have Been Worse

Gary Moore, moderator on "I've Got A Secret" took a header on the street and bruised his nose badly when he fell.

One of the panelists commiserated with him.

"Well," said Garry philosophically, "I'm glad I'm not Jimmy Durante or I would have a lot more nose to worry about."

Polly Polishing

If Polly Bergen sounds "teddibly British" on the CBS television network program, "To Tell The Truth," don't get the mistaken impression that she has gone high hat.

The actress-panelist is in rehearsal for the new Broadway musical, "Pride and Prejudice," adapted by Abe Burrows from the Jane Austen novel, and as a consequence must cultivate a British accent. To insure authenticity, actor-director Christopher Hewitt has been hired to coach Miss Bergen.

DODY GOODMAN will pay a visit to CBS' Ed Sullivan Show at 8 tonight on WTVJ (Ch. 4). Comics Wayne and Shuster will also be on hand.

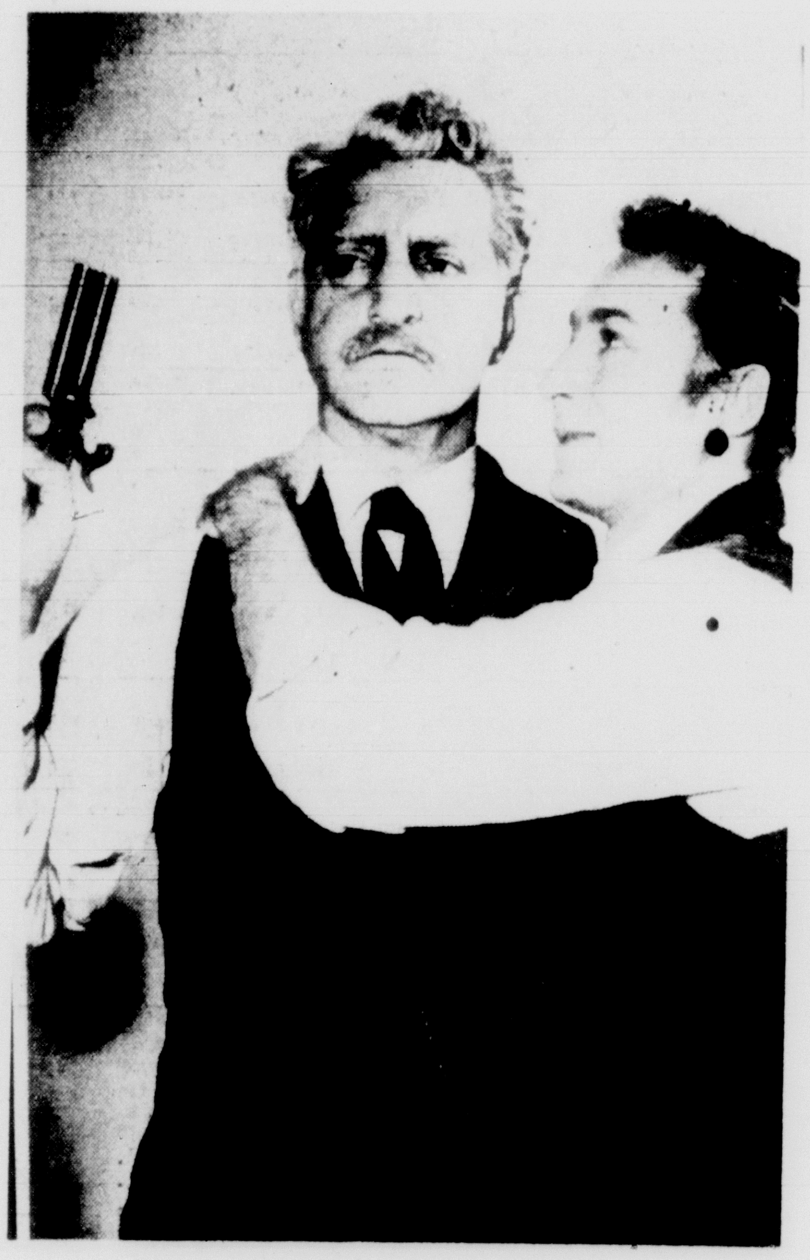
CLOSE HARMONY of the beauteous McGuire Sisters will grace NBC's Milton Berle Show at 9 Wednesday night on WCKT (Ch. 7). The sisters are (top to bottom) Phyllis, Dotty and Chris.

Chicago Symphony on Ch. 10

For the second of this season's five remote TV originations presenting this country's foremost symphony orchestras, ABC's Voice of Music will present the Chicago Symphony at 9 Monday night.

Mezzo-soprano Rise Stevens will be guest soloist with the orchestra which will be conducted by Walter Hendl. John Daly will be on hand, as usual, as narrator.

The Chicago Symphony is the nation's third oldest orchestra. It was founded in 1891 by Theodore Thomas. It now has 105 musicians.



THE GRIM GENT with the derringer is Danny Thomas trying his hand at his first serious TV role in Zane Grey Theater's "A Thread of Respect" at 9 Thursday night on WTVJ (Ch. 4). Nick Adams plays his son.

Paul Douglas on Playhouse 90

An original drama by Loring Mandel of a big business war, "The Raider," will be staged by CBS' Playhouse 90 at 9:30 Thursday night on WTVJ (Ch. 4).

The play will star Paul Douglas, Rod Taylor, Leif Erickson, Donald Crisp and Leon Ames.

Douglas portrays the central role of Dave Ringler, a man who is fighting with every weapon in his arsenal to wrest control of a giant corporation from its present directors.

Fidel to Build A Fire Under Cuba Cleanup

HAVANA, Cuba —(AP)— A speedup in Cuba's social and economic housecleaning appears certain, now that Fidel Castro is taking over as prime minister.

The 32-year-old leader of the revolution that unseated Dictator Fulgencio Batista formally assumes the post of chief of government Monday. He then is expected to:

PUSH the recovery of stolen money and property illegally acquired by the past regime.

SPEED agrarian reform by distributing government land to peasants; inaugurate a program of ease unemployment.

HASTEN a reorganization of the government and the Army.

Castro has served as commander in chief under President Manuel Urruita, has handpicked choice as chief of state. Now Castro's military job will pass to his 27-year-old brother Raul, the deputy commander.

Informed Cubans said the cabinet's resignation Friday night and Castro's decision to take the prime ministry are due ot these factors:

The young revolutionarieis who swept into power with a broad reform program thought the cabinet was moving too slowly.

Castro had been forced to take more and more responsibilities outside his army job because everyone with a grievance sought him out.

In resigning as prime minister, Jose Miro Cardona wished Castro well. Castro is expected to retain some of the ministers.

(Castro said it was personally "distressing" for him to have to accept the premiership but that it was "necessary for the revolution.")

(Miro Cardona said, "At last, for the good of Cuba, the vexatious duality of powers has ended.")

The newspaper Excelsior said the split over the pace of the revolutionary program became evident in mid-January when Miro Cardona offered his resignation.

The change in the prime ministry had a generally popular reaction. Messages of support streamed into Castro's headquarters.

Castro faces a sea of problems, including labor demands accumulated during seven years of Batista dictatorship. Under Batista, workers were not allowed to strike.

Castro has dealt personally with the labor questions, solving each issue as it arose. He solved oil union demands by getting salary adjustments. He kept sugar workers happy by suggesting they work hard for Cuba's welfare and bring up their demands after the crop was harvested.

Haiti Raps Cuban Aid To Exiles

Calls on U.S. To Curb Invasion

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti —(AP)— President Francois Duvalier charged that Haitian exiles are getting military training in Cuba, "probably" in preparation for an armed invasion of Haiti.

He called on the U.S. to stop any such invasion. Duvalier said he got his information from his "personal police" — presumably Haitian intelligence agents.

The president said he had just received a cable from one of his representatives reporting that a faction of the Cuban revolutionary movement is cooperating with "so-called Haitian political exiles" in arranging the military training.

He said the invasion would probably take place between Feb. 15 and Feb. 20.

Duvalier revealed he is sending a protest to the Cuban government over the use of Cuban territory by Haitian political exiles for such purposes.

He said the U.S. as the leader of the Western Hemisphere has an obligation to stop any such invasion.

Duvalier disclosed that his government sent another protest last week against the use of Cuban radio facilities by Louis Dejoie, a Haitian political exile and unsuccessful presidential candidate, to make broadcasts to Haiti.

CUTTEN, Calif. —(AP)— A three-year-old boy, whom his father thought he had tossed to safety, burned to death in his home here early Saturday.

The father, Frank Mello, told firemen an explosion sent flames racing through the five-room home. He said he ran into Glenn's bedroom and tossed what he tought was his son out a window. Then he and his wife and another son, Frank Jr., jumped out another window.

Firemen, searching for Glenn outside the home, found only a pile of bedclothes.

But Doctors Say Constant Treatment Is Needed

Dulles' Cancer Can Be Controlled

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Secretary of State John Foster Dulles has a type of cancer which is highly malignant, doctors said Saturday, but one which can be controlled for several years.

In many such cases the patient can return to full or limited occupations.

Private physicians gave this appraisal in interpreting for a reporter the medical bulletin issued by the surgeons who operated on Dulles for hernia Friday. They reported Saturday he will undergo radiation therapy for cancer.

The physicians said the medical bulletin indicates that the cancerous tissue found Saturday represents a spread from the original colon cancer for which Dulles underwent an operation in 1956.

The present diagnosis in Dulles' case is that he has an "adenocarcinoma."

This is a glandular cancer, adeno being from the Greek word meaning gland.

It most commonly arises in the glandular portion of the intestinal tract, which has millions of glandular cells. Their function is to secrete mucus and gastric juices.

An adenocarcinoma is different from other types of cancer such as "sarcoma," which is a cancer of connective tissue — such as bone tissue or brain tissue. It is also different from cancer of the blood such as leukemia.

The doctors said they interpreted the medical bulletin to mean the following:

That the small nodule or lump found on the part of the intestine involved in Dulles' hernia represented a spread from focus of his original colon cancer operated on in 1956.

The doctors said that at the time the colon cancer was removed in 1956, some small portions of it may still have remained, involving lymphatic glands neighboring on the original cancer site.

And ultimately, they said, the cells apparently spread to the new site.

The doctors said that while the outlook in cases of adenocarcinoma is ultimately grave, the further spread of the cancer can be kept under control for several years in many instances.

They said control involves such measures as X-ray and chemotherapy. This includes the use of certain drugs derived from nitrogen mustard, a war gas developed during World War I. One of the most effective of these nitrogen mustards is one called "Thiotepa."

Another medical treatment for andenocarcinoma involves injection of radioactive gold into the abdominal cavity.

One person was asked whether the presence of adenocarcinoma would be compatible with a return to duty in such a job as secretary of state. The doctor said it would be all right, provided activity were limited largely to desk work, with no "long periods of strenuous activity."

And he offered the view that there should be "no prolonged worldwide travel." Dulles has been making numerous long trips in his job.

The doctor said that in some cases of the disease, daily treatment with X-rays is required. In such cases, he said, it is well to stay close to a source of such treatment.

Dike Hole On River Is Plugged

River Pounds Toward Crest

WEST TERRE HAUTE, Ind. —(UPI)— The Wabash River pounded toward its crest at this Indiana city Saturday while flood fighters kept anxious watch over a sandbagged gap in a levee.

The raging stream, which climbed to 24.6 feet, tore through the levee early Saturday, loosening tons of floodwaters over the area before National Guardsmen and volunteers plugged the hole.

Sandbagging crews worked about 30 minutes in driving rain to fill the gap and contain the Wabash. The rains, which posed further danger, later stopped, and authorities said the situation was alleviated slightly.

Sub-freezing weather also was expected to give West Terre Haute, a city of 3,000 near the Illinois border, an assist in checking the meandering stream.

The fate of West Terre Haute hung on the strength of a five-block stretch of sandbagged levee. Nearby residents already had fled their homes and were prepared to evacuate on a moment's notice.

The weak point in the levee was a section which collapsed under the weight of floodwaters last June and had not been repaired. The June floods inundated about 40 per cent of the town, forcing a third of the residents to flee to dry ground.

In its week-long rampage across Indiana, the Wabash has chased about 2,000 persons from their homes, killed at least three, and caused damage estimated at $45,000,000.

A new disaster threatened upstream, beyond Lafayette. A huge ice jam—about 12 miles long and 35 feet high at points —showed signs of breaking up under temperatures of around 60 degrees.

Ike Summons Herter To Fill In for Dulles

The Man and Two Presidents He Has Served

President Silent on His Plans

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — Secretary of State John Foster Dulles has again been stricken by cancer, raising grave doubts that he can continue as chief architect of President Eisenhower's foreign policy.

The grim news was announced Saturday by the President after he personally talked to the venerable cabinet officer at his bedside.

Dulles was operated on for a similar malignancy in November, 1956 and was believed cured.

The President said Dulles is fully aware that he has cancer again.

He said "further treatment" will be required and that Dulles will continue on a leave of absence.

The President's statement, read to reporters at Walter Reed Army Medical Center, did not touch on Dulles' future tenure in office.

According to a White House spokesman, the President has no plans now to appoint a new secretary. He will still fly to Acapulco, Mexico, next week, to visit the president of Mexico.

Eisenhower received word about 9 a.m. that Dulles had reincurred cancer.

Undersecretary of State Christian A. Herter flew back from a South Carolina vacation to take over as acting secretary. He will fill, at least temporarily, one of the most difficult posts in the world.

State Department Press Officer Lincoln White said "no further surgery on Dulles is contemplated. He said radiation therapy will be used in the immediate future.

The finding of free cancer cells was made on the basis of microscopic examination of tissue and fluid taken from Dulles's abdominal region during a hernia operation Friday.

Doctors said the radiation

Europeans Express Sympathy

LONDON — (UPI) — The announcement that John Foster Dulles has cancer drew expressions of sorrow and sympathy from European officials Saturday, even those who have bitterly opposed him.

A 37-word dispatch from the Soviet Tass News Agency brought news of Dulles' illness to Moscow. Speculation that Dulles would not return to work was bound to cause reaction in the Kremlin, which has denounced Dulles for years as a symbol of "imperialist aggression."

However, despite the flood of sympathetic statements from Western officials, it was considered unlikely there would be any immediate Russian reaction.

British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan, who had conferred with Dulles only last week during the secretary of state's hasty European tour to deal with the Berlin crisis, expressed his "great regret." He wished Dulles "a speedy recovery." Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd, Dulles' British counterpart, also expressed sympathy.

In Bonn, Dulles' good friend, Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, expressed the hope and belief that the American diplomat would recover.

"I believe Mr. Dulles will be able to take up his foreign political work very soon again," Adenauer said.

Congressmen Fear Foreign Policy Blow

By Herald Wire Services

WASHINGTON — Congressional leaders voiced grave concern Saturday that Secretary of State John Foster Dulles' second cancer attack may hamper U.S. foreing policy at a time of crisis.

The announcement comes at a time when the U.S. and its allies are preparing for delicate negotiations with the Soviet Union on the Berlin crisis, German reunification, and European security.

But Senate Democratic Whip Mike Mansfield of Montana, a member of the Foreign Relations Committee, said Dulles' illness "is a devastating blow to the nation, to the world and to the hope for peace" at a "time of desperate need."

Sen. Frank Carlson (R., Kan.), also a foreing relations member, said he hopes that even though Dulles is on leave of absence, "our nation will get the benefit of his background experience which is so important now."

Spotlight On Dillon For Post?

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — Speculation arose quickly Saturday as to a possible successor to Secretary of State John Foster Dulles if, as it appeared likely, he is unable to resume full-time duties as a result of his second cancer attck.

The speculation came as the White House said in answer to questions that President Eisenhower has no plans now to appoint a new secretary of state.

The man most frequently mentioned as a possible successor was C. Douglas Dillon, undersecretary of state for economic affairs.

Other speculation centered on Undersecretary Christian A. Herter; Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, a close friend of the President; former Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York; Henry Cabot Lodge, U. S. ambassador to the U. N., and Banker John J. McCloy, former U. S. high commissioner in Germany.

Dillon ranks slightly behind Herter. But political and diplomatic experts believe there are factors which might lead Dulles to recommend and the Pesident to select the former investment broker over the former governor of Massachusetts.

Age is one consideration. At 49, Dillon has an obvious advantage over Herter, who is 63. Herter also has an arthritic condition which forces him to use crutches and a wheelchair.

Dillon also has served as U.S. ambassador to France and representative to NATO. He also is known as a firm supporter of Dulles' "rigid" policy in U.S.-Soviet dealings on German reunification and other European problesm.

Herter is considered to be more "flexible" in his approach and willing to attempt new methods which Dulles at times has frowned upon.

Herter is acknowledged to have a more well-rounded experience in international affairs. But experts believed that after consideration of all factors Dulles would recommend Dillon.

A Tragic Illness

Due to the mechanical intricacies of publishing Sunday's Miami Herald, the Editor's Notebook by John S. Knight was written and printed before the news of the tragic illness of Secretary of State John Foster Dulles.

All the nation admires the courage and fortitude of Mr. Dulles and joins in hopes for his early recovery though his condition may require him to resign.

It is with these thoughts in mind that the reader may turn to the Editor's Notebook on Page 2G where the office of Secretary of State and our foreign policy are discussed in detail.

Flames Devour Firetrap Apartments; 11 Are Dead

5 in Family Perish in Kentucky

ASHLAND, Ky. — (UPI) — Eleven persons, including five members of one family, were burned to death early Saturday when flames swept through several small second-story apartments in a converted theater building.

Nine other persons suffered burns and injuries jumping from the upstairs windows of the two-story building. Police who arrived shortly after the blaze started helped rescue some of the victims.

Boyd County Coroner Russell Compton identifed the victims as Jack McKenzie, 30, his wife, Polly, 28, whose son was stillborn after she jumped from the building, and their three other sons, Johnny William, one, Mickey Joe, two, and Jackie, four. Firemen said their room had a door but no windows.

Other dead were James E. Powell, 22, of nearby Flatwoods, Ky., Mrs. Grace Blanton, 45, a cook in a restaurant on the first floor; Frank Artis, about 45; Frank Kirk, and Clyde May, all of Ashland.

Still hospitalized late Saturday were: John Lucas, 42, Denton, Ky; Fay Fannon, 17, Alice Fannon, 19, and John Posey, about 85. They all suffered burns and other injuries. Five other persons were dismissed after treatment.

The building, the old Columbia Vaudeville Theater built in 1891, had only one exit, an inside stairway which was cut off by the flames. Ironically, materiels for a fire escape which was to have been installed next week were stored in the rear.

The cause of the blaze was not immediately determined, although witnesses reported hearing an explosion, or series of explosions.

38th Body Out Of East River

NEW YORK — (AP) — The East River Saturday yielded the 38th body from an American Airlines plane crash. The victim was identified tentatively as Gregory MacDonnell, 18-year-old sailor of Pearl River, N.Y.

The crash occurred Feb. 3 as the Electra turbo-prop liner approached LaGuardia field for a landing. Sixty-five persons died. Eight survived.

Sweeney Misses, It's $700 Now

Another week, another $100. That's today's story of the Sunny Fortune Puzzle, now worth $700.

SUNNY

On account of J. M. Sweeney of Homestead, it almost wasn't so. Sweeney wrote "owe" for "own" on last week's game, and as a result, he doesn't own the jackpot.

So Sweeney gets a sunny smile and another chance at the big money, as do the rest of you puzzle fans.

That includes Mrs. E. L. Loftes, also of Homestead, who wants us to put something straight. Remember last week when we mentioned the woman who worked the puzzles secretly so her husbnad wouldn't fuss at her?

Well, it wasn't Mrs. Loftes.

I know she'll be glad we're mentioning this, because she writes, "I am in the dog house. My husband says I wrote you . . . and he is guilty of fussing at me."

Take heart, fussed-at women of South Florida. Someone's got to win sometime, and maybe it'll be you. So grab your pencils, cross your fingers, and turn to Page 12B.

therapy — employing radium, X-ray or use of new radioisotopes developed in the atomic age — will be designed to attack the new outbreak of cancer in the hope of cutting down its spread to other parts of the body.

Nothing was said by either the President or White about the possibility of a resignation by Dulles, who will be 71 Feb. 25.

In the 1956 occurrence, a cancerous portion of Dulles' intestine was removed by Walter Reed surgeons. The malignancy was reported effectively checked.

"While I was with him," the President said, "his doctors discussed with us their finding of the existence of malignancy not fully determined at this time as to its extent, but certain to require further treatment."

He added that he "expressed the thoughts and prayers of all of us that the results of this operation and the further course of treatment will be successful."

The chief executive's statement was read to newsmen by Assistant White House Press Secretary Anne Wheaton.

White reported Dulles was "in good spirits" after the hernia operation. He said "a small nodular implant on the hernia sac" was removed.

"This nodule proved to be an adenocarcinoma on microscopical examination," White continued. "The fluid evacuated at surgery contained free cells on cytological examination.

"No further surgery is contemplated. In the immediate future radiation therapy will be used."

White said Dulles' doctors expect he will have to remain at the hospital "for several weeks." He declined to speculate on the outlook for the ailing secretary beyond that or the course of treatment.

Narcotics Racket Aid Suspected

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The Senate Rackets Committee said Saturday it has evidence that loans from a New York money lending firm have been used to finance some of the leading figures in the narcotics and gambling rackets.

Chief Counsel Robert F. Kennedy announced the committee will explore the allegations in hearings this week.

He declined to name in advance either the leading company, the big coin machine operator he pictured as its dominant figure, or the underworld characters who got the loans.

Kennedy termed this an important new phase of the committee's investigation of an alleged conspiracy by gangsters to control the multi-billion-dollar jukebox-coin machine industry from coast to coast.

The evidence indicates that loans of considerable size were made to some underworld figures, Kennedy told newsmen. He said the committee will attempt to learn why the money was loaned, for what purpose it was used, and whether high interest rates were charged.

Kennedy said it is reasonably common procedure for groups in the coin machine business to set up what are known as factoring companies. These provide loans to help finance the purchase of jukeboxes, pinball and vending machines.

He said the committee is particularly interested in one group which, he said, has formed several such factoring operations listing top underworld figures among their borrowers.

The counsel said he thought the story would center mainly on one company, and would show "a considerable amount of money is involved."

Kennedy said it may be Wednesday before the committee calls first witnesses in this field of inquiry. The committee's hearings are in recess until Tuesday.

Japanese Plan Hit By Korea

SEOUL — (AP) — The South Korean government declared Saturday it is resolved to smash the Japanese plan to repatriate Koreans to the Communist-ruled northern part of the country.

The Korean Red Cross also strongly denounced the plan and called on Red Cross workers everywhere to oppose what it called deportation into Communist slavery.

The Japanese government has announced its intention of shipping to North Korea thousands of Koreans resident in Japan who ask to go, and has asked the International Red Cross to supervise and carry out the transfer.

President Syngman Rhee's government has announced it will not guarantee safe passage to repatriation ships — a hint that it might intercept the ships with naval force.

It charges that Koreans applying for repatriation to North Korea are being lured by Communist promises of good jobs. South Korean officials say they cannot make such promises in a free economy, but that about a million Koreans returned here since World War II live as well as other Koreans.

The controversy has disrupted negotiations to establish normal relations with Japan.

Crowds chanting anti-Japanese slogans Saturday demonstrated against the repatriation.

Four Men Arrested

Ex-Jockey Shot In Bungled Holdup

AROUND MIAMI

Police arrested four men in a Hialeah foodstore robbery Saturday, including a former Miami jockey wounded in the gunfight between officers and bandits.

Police said the ex-jockey, Thomas Price Lyons, 26, was shot in the left hip when a half-dozen Hialeah officers stormed Bill's Fine Food Market, 2602 Palm Ave.

The bandits bungled the holdup, police said, and apparently had plotted while jammed inside a phone booth.

Picked up with Lyons on charges of armed robbery were Louis Kripplebauer, 25; Jacob Wright, 35, and John J. Friel Jr., 26, all of Philadelphia.

Police held a disorderly conduct warrant Saturday for a 45-year-old Miami woman recovering in Jackson Memorial Hospital from what they called her third unsuccessful suicide attempt.

The woman, Mrs. Olyce Moorefield, of 630 NE 22nd Ter., was taken to the hospital Jan. 26 after severely scalding her right side in her bathroom shower.

Police said the woman told them she was trying to hang herself with a length of venetian blind cord attached to the shower nozzle when she accidentally kicked on the hot water.

James H. Gray, 62, former McKeesport, Pa., police lieutenant and city councilman, died of a heart attack Saturday while sitting in an Eastern airliner at International Airport.

The airliner was preparing to take off on a flight to Pittsburgh when Gray was stricken. His body will be sent to McKeesport Sunday.

Gray came to Florida by automobile to visit two sisters in St. Petersburg, Mrs. Tillie Blanchard and Mrs. Fred C. Allebach.

The Dade County medical examiner said Gray's death was natural and due to "heart disease."

There was a real steal in used foreign cars Saturday at the Carl Kish Foreign Car Exchange, 2395 NW 36th St.

Miami Policeman W. J. Fairbanks said thieves broke into the lot office shortly after midnight, stole two 1953 Jaguars and a 1955 Triumph.

Then, just to make sure they could make an exchange at the Exchange, they took along 50 sets of car keys, Fairbanks said.

3-Car Crash Injures 8 In S. Dade

Eight persons were injured, at least one critically, in a three-car crash six miles south of Homestead on U.S. 1 Saturday.

The accident happened at almost the same spot where seven died in a two-car collision six months ago.

Trooper James J. Johns of the Florida Highway Patrol said Mrs. Dodson's husband, 76, became impatient in a long line of southbound traffic, pulled out to pass and met a new Cadillac, driven by Joseph P. Sullivan, 63, of Littleton, Mass.

When the two cars hit, a third car behind the Cadillac, driven by Mrs. Carl O. Little, 52, of Saginaw, Mich., plowed into the other two.

Other persons injured, in addition to the three drivers and Mrs. Dodson, were: Matthew Clancy, 68, and his wife, Julia, 61, of Pittsburgh, passengers in the Dodson car; Miss Anita Bellanger, Montreal, a passenger in Sullivan's car; and Mrs. Little's Husband, 59.

Statistics

MIAMI READINGS AT 4:30 P.M. SATURDAY: Sky, partly cloudy; air, 79 degrees; wind, from the southeast at 13 mph; barometer, 30.16 inches and relative humidity, 66 per cent.

National Summary

Cloudy skies and showers will persist across the Gulf region through the weekend except for fair and warm weather over the Florida peninsula. Rain in the Atlantic states and southern Appalachians is likely to end following the invasion of colder air.

Freezing rain mixed with snow over portions of New York and New England should change to flurries today. Scattered snow showers are expected over the northern Rockies and plateau and snow is scheduled from the Dakotas into Minnesota today, while a mixture of snow and rain continues in the Pacific northwest.

Heavy wind driven rain is indicated for northern and central California today with substantial snow fall anticipated in the mountains and some rain may move into southern parts of the state today.

A disturbance moving across the Great Lakes region Saturday was followed by cooler air which scattered snow flurries from the Dakotas and Nebraska into the upper Mississippi Valley and cleared most of the wet weather out of the lower plains.

The cold front was marked by showers from east Texas into Indiana at mid-day while mild air over the southeast yielded occasional rain and temperatures in the 60's as far north as Kentucky and the Carolinas.

Six-Year Terms Proposed

Appointive Utilities Board Plan Pushed by Chairman

Members Named Would Be Ratified Without Election

TALLAHASSEE — (AP) — A novel proposal that members of the Florida Railroad and Public Utilities Commission be appointed by the governor and ratified by the people will be placed before the 1959 legislature.

Sponsor of the plan is Alan Boyd, an agressive Miami attorney who has been on the commission about four years.

Under Boyd's proposal, the governor would appoint a new commissioner whenever a vacancy occurred, just as he does under the present law. In the next general election, the voters would say in a simple "yes" or "no" proposition whether they wanted the commissioner whom the governor nominated.

Alan Boyd

. . . sponsors change

There would be no other candidate on the ballot and hence no election campaign as the commissioners now wage.

If the people refused to ratify the nominee, the governor would name another who would be up for ratification in the following election.

If the voters accepted the nominee, he would serve a term which Boyd proposes to set at six years, two years longer than at present. When the six-year term ran out, the commissioner would announce whether he wanted to try for another. If so, the ratification process would be repeated.

The plan is a modification of a Missouri system for choosing judges.

Boyd emphasized that there would be no provision under which the governor could name new commissioners whenever the terms of old ones expired. The governor would choose the nominee only when a vacancy occurred, Boyd said.

He said he didn't expect the other two commissioners, Jerry W. Carter and Wilbur King, to oppose the plan. Carter, who is commission chairman, and King went through tough campaigns in the Democratic primary and general elections last fall.

It was at the height of the campaign that Boyd first announced he would propose changes in the method of selecting the commissioners.

Carter said he didnt' expect either to oppose or support Boyd's plan. He said that he favored keeping power in the hands of the voters, but added that he didn't know enough about the details' of the proposal to take a stand for or against it.

Boyd said he was convinced there is widespread public misconception about the qualifications, functions and even identities of the commissioners.

The work of the commission touches the everyday lives of perhaps more people than the function of any other state agency. It sets rates which may be charged for electricity, telephone service and shipping by truck lines and trains but it regulates operations of utilities and common carriers.

Boyd said a constitutional amendment would be necessary to change the terms of the commissioners from four to six years. Other parts of the plan could be made effectve by law. Making the proposal as a constitutional amendment would mean that he must sell not only the legislature but also the voters of Florida on its merits.

He does not propose to change the present $12,500 annual salaries of the commissioners.

Boyd said the present election system has several drawbacks.

"Because of a misinformed public, the people regulated by the commission in fact name the commissioners," he said.

"They have never attempted to dictate to us — at least while I've been here — but they have the power to dump us from office," he said.

"The vast majority of people we regulate desire only fair, intelligent commissioners. But regardless, I think it is wrong as a matter of principle for the people we regulate to have the power — even if they don't use it — to select members of this agency."

'I Came To Study'

Grades 'Satisfy' UF's First Negro

GAINESVILLE — (UPI) — With his first semester behind him, George Starke Jr. is looking to the day when he may become the first Negro to graduate from the University of Florida.

And the 27-year-old law school freshman, first Negro ever to enroll in an all-white state-supported institution in Florida, is more concerned with his grades than with student relations.

"There have been no unpleasant experiences since coming here," the mild-mannered Air Force veteran said. "And there has been no friction because of me to my knowledge."

In his first interview since enrolling last September, Starke told United Press International how relieved he was that he satisfactorily completed the first semester.

He didn't say what his grades were, but added they were "satisfactory."

Stark was admitted following a U.S. District Court order last June which said the school could not bar students from enrolling at the graduate level because of color.

"Everybody has treated me just like another student," he said.

Starke, well-dressed and exceptionally polite, is careful not to say or do anything that might stir members of either race.

He has never tried to eat in the school cafeteria; attend public functions in the auditorium, gymnasium or stadium or sought campus housing. These facilities are available to all students, but Starke prefers not to put himself, his classmates or the school in an awkward position.

"I'm not carrying anything on my shoulders because of this," he said. "I came here on my own to study law and I still plan to go ahead and try to get my degree in 1961."

His mother, who lives in Orlando, and his father, a Sanford, physician, both were pleased that he completed his first semester work all right.

"My mother was terribly elated," the Florida native said. He explained his father was more reserved since he knew the difficulties in completing studies in a specialized field.

Starke, who has "close" relatives living in Gainesville, said he was distantly related to Mrs. Daphne Duval, who became the second Negro admitted to the University this past week.

The 53-year-old local high school teacher is taking a graduate course in the College of Education one night a week. Starke said he had talkd with Mrs. Duval since coming here, but that he had not tried in any way to persuade her to enroll this semester.

Negroes Eye Voting Drive

TAMPA — (UPI) — Delegates to the Southeastern Conference of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People were told Saturday they must set up house-to-house campaigns to increase the number of eligible Negro voters.

The discussion on ways of "attaining freedom through registration and voting" was part of a nationwide NAACP drive to get three million more Negroes registered as eligible voters by 1960 in order to give the race a louder voice in political affairs.

The discussion was led by John M. Brooks of Richmond, Va., who is national director of the NAACP's voter-registration program.

W. C. Patton of Atlanta, field secretary at large in the voter-registration program, outlined to the delegates from six southern states how to set up a "grassroots" organization to get Negroes' names on the registration books.

He said local NAACP branches must have a worker on every block in Negro residential areas to constantly encourage Negroes to register.

More Television Listings Coming

More complete television listings will be available to readers of The Miami Herald, starting March 1. The weekly schedules of five more Florida television stations will be added to the popular and convenient pull-out section of Fun in Florida magazine.

The additions will include Channels 6 and 9 at Orlando; Channel 2 at Daytona Beach, and Channels 5 and 12 at West Palm Beach, in addition to Channels 4, 7, and 10 at Miami.

These five television station schedules are being added as another service to readers of Florida's Most Complete Newspaper.

Natural Resources Unit Urged

By JEANNE BELLAMY
Herald Staff Writer

GAINESVILLE — A department of natural resources as a unit of state government was proposed here.

It was among dozens of suggestions offered by workshop groups at the first statewide conference on water resources.

A workshop on administration offered the idea of a single department for the work now done by 10 separate state agencies. Until it can be set up, the report called for a resources advisory council made up of the heads of the 10 present branches, plus local, county and federal officials when involved.

The council would try to unify state action on projects affecting natural resources, as individual agency heads have been doing informally for the past year.

F. D. R. Park, Dade County water engineer, cited an example of need for such a council. He mentioned pending plans to extend Krome Ave. north from the Tamjami Trail to U.S. 27—a 12-mile road with a canal alongside.

Park noted that five branches of government are concerned with this job: Dade County, which must provide the right-of-way; the Central and Southern Florida Flood Control District, which owns the land; the State Road Department, which will build the road; the County Parks division and the State Park Board, if the canal is to be developed properly for fishing.

"Nobody is doing anything about the recreation part of it," Park said, "although it would be a good substitute for the inadequate fishing facilities along the Tamiami Trail."

Several other workshop groups mentioned recreational use of Florida's waters, which some said has been neglected.

Dr. H. R. Wilber of Deland tackled this problem in his report for the workshop on water quality control.

"Consideration of brackish and salt water problems seems to have been forgotten in the resource management program," he said, "although commercial and sports fishing in these waters are the basis for a considerable amount of Florida's income.

"This great source of Florida livelihood lies submerged under the estuarial and sovreignty waters, and vast areas have been rendered less effective and even useless as they are silted and in many cases filled over by pumping and bulkheading."

The workshop on water rights and laws recommended extension of flood plain zoning in the headwaters of the St. Johns River to prevent construction there before the land is acquired for water storage.

This group also called for some means of protecting municipal water sources against "potentially harmful activities." There is none now, according to Frank E. Maloney, acting dean of the University of Florida Law School.

The 250 persons attending the parley agreed not to vote on the various recommendations. No action was taken, either, on two proposed bills which would confer taxing power on water conservation districts.

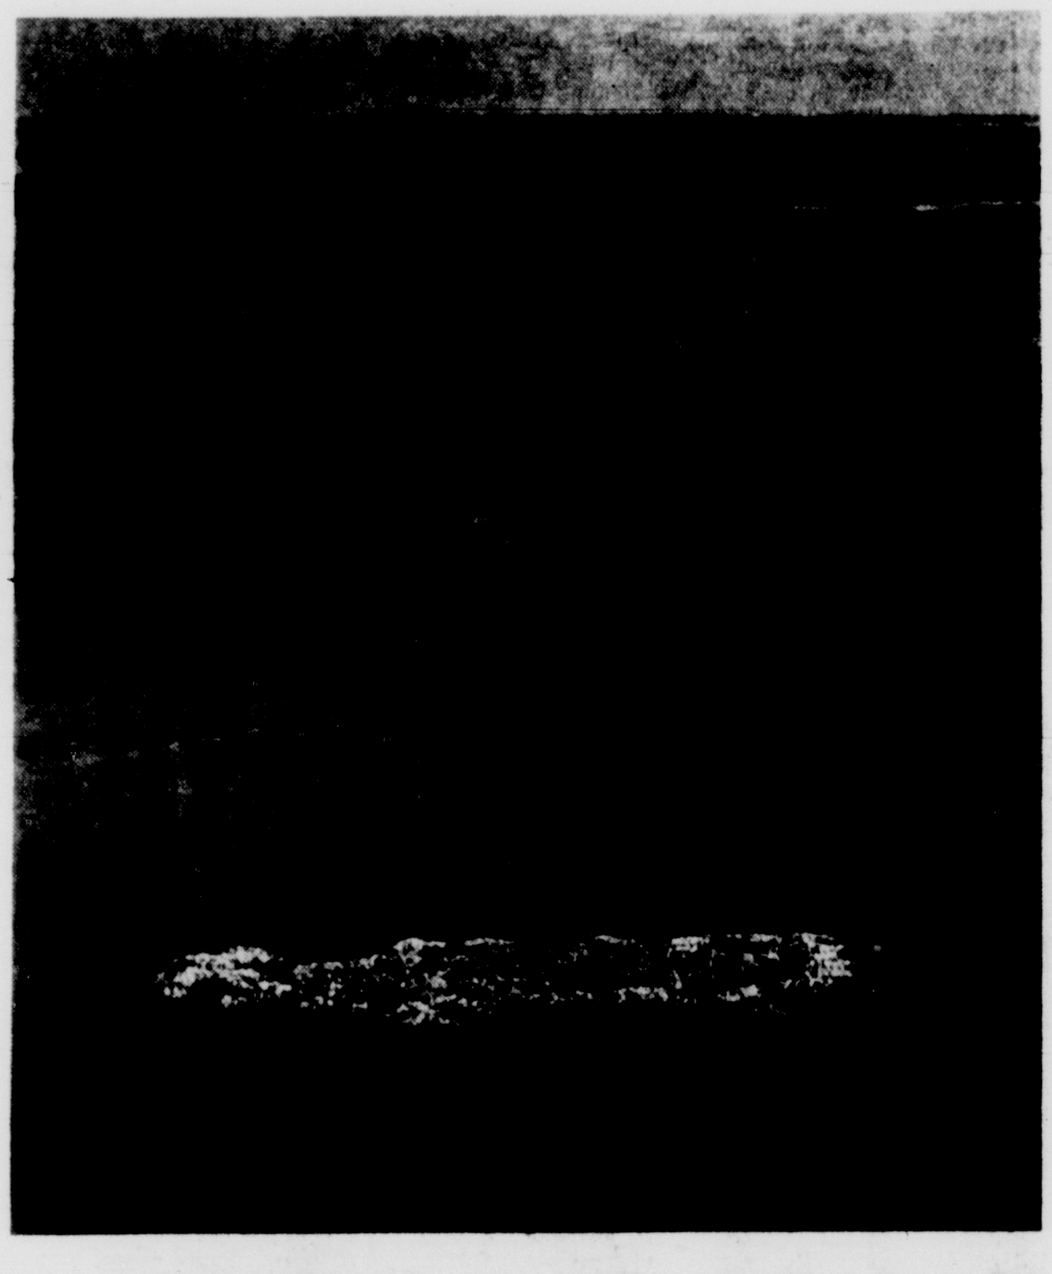
JP Convicted

JACKSONVILLE — Steve J. Targonski, Justice of the Peace at Bayard, was convicted in Duval Criminal Court Saturday on charges of drunken and reckless driving.

Judge A. Lloyd Layton set Feb. 24 for sentencing.

Targonski whose district comprises an area in Southern Duval County, was arrested April 12 after his automobile was involved in a three-car wreck on U. S. 1 south of Jacksonville.

Three state witnesses testified Friday the defendant was intoxicated.



For the Humans

Cuthbert Lake rookery in Everglades National Park is back on the boat tour schedule after being closed to the public for three years. It had been closed because the wood ibis, which used to predominate in the rookery, had failed to nest there and naturalists feared continued human intrusion would "spook" the dwindling flock. But the wood ibis came back this year, the naturalists fears were allayed and the public can board boats at the West Lake Landing at 11 a.m., 1 p.m. or 3 p.m. to see the birds.

Glades Plane Crash Kills Pilot, Friend

By ED PFISTER
Herald Bureau Chief

LAKE WORTH — Two Lake Worth businessmen were found dead Saturday in the wreckage of an airplane they rented 24 hours earlier at Lantana Airport "to do some sightseeing and take pictures."

The victims were identified as:

Charles T. Robinson, 39, of 1221 Reo Lane, owner of Robinson's Drugstore there, a veteran flier and World War II veteran who piloted the ship.

Thomas K. Evans, 29, Carlton Rd., a contractor and former constable who figured in a long drawn out suit over election expenditures.

A Coast Guard helicopter was used in lifting the bodies out of the wreckage in a swampy and wooded area of the Everglades 14 miles northwest of Boynton Beach.

Sheriff's deputies Bob Day and Sam Quincey, said only a helicopter or a swamp buggy could gain access to the swampy morass where the airplane crashed.

The deputies said it appeared as if a wing of the ship had struck a tree about 30 feet off the ground, flipping the plane over on its back and plunging it into two feet of water and muck.

The wing tip was torn off, and the engine was ripped off the front of the plane.

Day said both bodies were in the airplane when the helicopter and swamp buggies reached the tangled area of the crash.

The bodies were flown to International Airport in West Palm Beach and were removed to the E. Earl Smith and Son Funeral Home in Lake Worth.

International Air Service at Lantana Airport said Robinson and Evans appeared there about 1 plm. Friday and rented the ship. Robinson was quoted as saying they wanted to do some sightseeing and take pictures with a movie camera they had along.

They took off in the rented four-place Cessna about 1:30 p.m., the air service said, with fuel for five hours flying time. The ship was radio equipped but the tower here had no record of contact with the plane.

Families of the fliers became alarmed when they failed to return at dusk Friday. Both the Civil Air Patrol and Coast Guard in Miami were alerted and started a search at dawn Saturday.

Capt. Glenn Snyder, of the CAP, spotted the wrecked plane before noon Saturday in the isolated area of the Everglades west of State Rd. 7 and directed rescue squads to the scene.

Seven-Man Board to Spur Florida Technical Training

FLORIDA
ROUNDUP

TALLAHASSEE — School Superintendent Thomas Bailey set up a state advisory committee Saturday to assist in development of expanded technical training education in Florida schools to meet the growing need for scientists and engineers.

The committee will hold its first meeting here Feb. 26.

Technical education is now provided in Florida high schools and junior colleges for both students and adults.

Bailey said the relatively new program is critically needed as a result of expansion of industry in the state and location of the nation's missile test center at Cape Canaveral in Brevard County.

The program is geared at interesting and encouraging students and adults to enter technical fields.

Members of the seven-man advisory committee are:

E. L. Burkhart, Martin Co., Orlando; Walter H. Clausen, Minneapolis - Honeywell Regulator Corp., Largo; Konklin J. Martin, Patrick Air Force Base; Milton Richardson, Gulf Power Co., Pensacola; Frank F. Schirm, Pratt &` Whitney, West Palm Beach; Grover Loening, Key Biscayne aeronautical engineer, and T. L. Bransford, State Road Department engineer.

Laura Lou Shifts Flag

CLEARWATER, Fla. —(AP)— Laura Lou Kunnen won't remove the Confederate flags sewn to her white tennis shorts. But she has shifted them around slightly to pacify the United Daughters of the Confederacy.

"I moved the flags to the hips today," she said, "so I won't be sitting on them any more."

AFL-CIO Now Shies From Expulsion of 'Bad Boys'

AFL-CIO officials are trying to use compromise technique rather than expelling unions which fail to oust corrupt leaders. Federation's leaders fear expulsion is weakening labor movement, might create a rival labor movement.

Best deterrent to future labor corruption may be fact that many union leaders are shocked at extent of McClellan Committee's exposures. However, McClellan believes unions can't do clean-up job themselves, that effective legislation is required.

Meany
. . . tries persuasion

By NORMAN WALKER

NEW YORK—Organized labor seems to be dealing more gingerly nowadays with union bad boys caught raiding the cookie jar.

Leaders of America's big union federation, the AFL-CIO, are steering clear of the drastic type of punishment meted out when Dave Beck and the Teamsters Union were exiled from the rest of labor.

In San Juan, Puerto Rico, AFL-CIO chiefs of the federation's policy-making Executive Council open their winter sessions Monday. On the agenda is a batch of new union scandals dished up by the McClellan Labor Rackets Committee.

Two of the unions involved in new disclosures are the carpenters and Sheet Metal Workers, both key organizations in the AFL-CIO's internal structure.

George Meany, AFL-CIO president, has been experimenting with a sort of woodshed technique in dealing with corruption. It amounts to trying to get unions to correct malpractices and oust corrupt leaders without expelling them from the AFL-CIO.

Federation leaders are fed up with ouster as a remedy. They feel it hasn't solved anything particularly in the three unions already expelled — the Teamsters, Laundry Workers and Bakery Workers. They say it has merely reduced AFL-CIO membership and effectiveness.

"What are we supposed to do—dismantle the labor movement?" one AFL-CIO vice president asked irritably.

"After all, the employers haven't ostracized the Teamsters. They are still doing business with Jimmy Hoffa, and the old CIO kicked out Harry Bridges' West Coast Longshoremen back in 1950 as Commie-dominated, but employers have kept right on dealing with Bridges."

Reminded that trucking and shipping employers are compelled by law to deal with these unions as the legal bargaining agents for their employes, this union leader said, "Well, they don't have to be so enthusiastic about it, do they?"

The trouble with Meany's woodshed method—bringing in a scandal-tainted union's leaders and telling them what they have to do to clean up—is that success depends upon just how much the recalcitrant union is willing to be punished. This leads to compromise.

In fact, the sole AFL-CIO power to police is affiliated unions is the same as in most any other organization. Expulsion is the only weapon if persuasion won't work. Unions realize this, and the bigger ones won't yield an inch.

This seems to be the case in the Carpenters Union. Its president, Maurice (Little Hutch) Hutcheson, is under indictment in an Indiana highway land scandal. He has refused to answer Senate Rackets Committee questions about union spending.

Moreover, one of Hutcheson's fellow Carpenters officials, Charles Johnson of New York, has, according to McClellan Committee testimony, received along with three relatives nearly $450,000 in union salaries and expenses in the three-year 1955-57 period.

Meany has tried the woodshed technique on Hutcheson in a series of secret conferences. But Hutcheson reportedly just isn't buying Meany's reform suggestions, including a proposal that Hutcheson take a leave of absence pending the outcome of his Indiana trial.

Hutcheson, an AFL-CIO vice president and Executive Council member, has been invited for a second time to appear before the council to explain what he wouldn't tell the McClellan Committee.

In response to the first invitation last fall, Hutcheson merely sent a written reply saying he'd done nothing wrong.

A second snub would present the AFL-CIO with a delicate problem. It plainly would call for ousting the 850,000-member Carpenters organization, which has also refused to adopt the AFL-CIO ethical practices codes. Hutcheson's union has authorized him to pull the Carpenters out of the AFL-CIO.

If the Carpenters quit the federation, other building trades unions may follow suit. The building trades, core of the old AFL, are boiling anyway in a renewal of their ancient feud over job jurisdiction rights with the industrial unions of the old CIO.

AFL-CIO leaders fear that ousting the Carpenters could throw them into an alliance with the Teamsters, the expelled Bakery Workers and other ousted unions and set up a potent rival labor center, or union federation. Such a dual federation would start out with about 2½ million members compared with the AFL-CIO's estimated 14 million.

Hutcheson
. . . snubs reform call

All this doesn't mean that many positive accomplishments haven't been made in ridding unions of gangster and hoodlum influences and plain and fancy stealing of members' dues money. Much has been done.

For one thing, "the heat is on," meaning that for the present, anyway, the fast buck out of a union treasury is no only unpopular but unhealthy. The AFL-CIO has accepted a complex set of ethical practice codes—spelling out stealing, graft, shakedown, conflicts of interest, etc. that can't be tolerated.

Probably the greatest deterrent to future labor corruption, however, is the fact that many union leaders report themselves shocked at the extent of the disclosures. Meany—sometimes called the "honest plumber"—says he knew there was some funny business all along, but never dreamed of its extent.

Actually, many students of labor unions feel the movement is just reaching a state of maturity. Unions didn't amount to much even so short a time as a quarter century ago. Now they have a lot more members, a lot more power and influence, and a lot more funds at their disposal.

Responsible union leaders look upon clean unionism as a public concern; they know they are more than just fraternal clubs now.

Sen. McClellan says he doesn't think anyone is satisfied with progress unions are making in handling corruption problems.

He believes effective legislation is required. The senator adds, "and until the Congress meets its responsibility by the enactment of laws that are necessary, these (corrupt) conditions will continue to prevail in many areas of labor-management relations."

Russians Stamp Claims Victory

LONDON — (UPI) — The Soviet Union has issued a postage stamp in honor of a basketball championship it never won.

Radio Moscow said a new one-ruble stamp was dedicated to the Soviet victory at Santiago, Chile. The announcer said the Soviet team took the championship by defeating the U. S. team on Jan. 28.

What really happened at Santiago was that, after defeating the U.S., Russia was disqualified for refusing to play against the Chinese Nationalist team. The Russians argued that the team from Formosa represented no nation.

Golden 'Bullet' Aims at Gland

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia — (P) — A Czechoslovak doctor claims to have developed a less dangerous method of removing the pituitary gland by using radioactive gold.

The official CTK news agency explained that the gland attached to the brain has been found to have an important effect on some types of cancer, and that its removal in such cases relieves pain and prolongs life.

The agency said the Prof. Josef Pavrovsky, of Prague's First Surgical Institute, injects a grain of radioactive gold into the gland with a special surgical pistol, stopping the functioning of the gland

Fidel to Build A Fire Under Cuba Cleanup

HAVANA, Cuba —(AP)— A speedup in Cuba's social and economic housecleaning appears certain, now that Fidel Castro is taking over as prime minister.

The 32-year-old leader of the revolution that unseated Dictator Fulgencio Batista formally assumes the post of chief of government Monday. He then is expected to:

PUSH the recovery of stolen money and property illegally acquired by the past regime.

SPEED agrarian reform by distributing government land to peasants; inaugurate a program to ease unemployment.

HASTEN a reorganization of the government and the Army.

Castro has served as commander in chief under President Manuel Urritia, his handpicked choice as chief of state. Now Castro's military job will pass to his 27-year-old brother Raul, the deputy commander.

Informed Cubans said the cabinet's resignation Friday night and Castro's decision to take the prime ministry are due to these factors:

The young revolutionaries who swept into power with a broad reform program thought the cabinet was moving too slowly.

Castro had been forced to take more and more responsibilities outside his army job because everyone with a grievance sought him out.

In resigning as prime minister, Jose Miro Cardona wished Castro well. Castro is expected to retain some of the ministers.

(Castro said it was personally "distressing" for him to have to accept the premiership but that it was "necessary for the revolution.")

(Miro Cardona said, "At last, for the good of Cuba, the vexatious duality of powers has ended.")

The newspaper Excelsior said the split over the pace of the revolutionary program became evident in mid-January when Miro Cardona offered his resignation.

The change in the prime ministry had a generally popular reaction. Messages of support streamed into Castro's headquarters.

Castro faces a sea of problems, including labor demands accumulated during seven years of Batista dictatorship. Under Batista, workers were not allowed to strike.

Castro has dealt personally with the labor questions, solving each issue as it arose. He solved oil union demands by getting salary adjustments. He kept sugar workers happy by suggesting they work hard for Cuba's welfare and bring up their demands after the crop was harvested.

Haiti Raps Cuban Aid To Exiles

Calls on U.S. To Curb Invasion

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti —(AP)— President Francois Duvalier charged that Haitian exiles are getting military training in Cuba, "probably" in preparation for an armed invasion of Haiti.

He called on the U.S. to stop any such invasion. Duvalier said he got his information from his "personal police" — presumably Haitian intelligence agents.

The president said he had just received a cable from one of his representatives reporting that a faction of the Cuban revolutionary movement is cooperating with "so-called Haitian political exiles" in arranging the military training.

He said the invasion would probably take place between Feb. 15 and Feb. 20.

Duvalier revealed he is sending a protest to the Cuban government over the use of Cuban territory by Haitian political exiles for such purposes.

He said the U.S., as the leader of the Western Hemisphere, has an obligation to stop any such invasion.

Duvalier disclosed that his government sent another protest last week against the use of Cuban radio facilities by Louis Dejoie, a Haitian political exile and unsuccessful presidential candidate, to make broadcasts to Haiti.

Speeches by Haitian exiles, including Dejoie, calling for the overthrow of Duvalier are heard almost nightly from Radio Progresso in Cuba.

He Thought He Rescued His Son . . .

CUTTEN, Calif. —(AP)— A three-year-old boy, whom his father thought he had tossed to safety, burned to death in his home here early Saturday.

Firemen found the charred remains of little Glenn Mello in his bedroom.

The father, Frank Mello, told firemen an explosion sent flames racing through the five-room home. He said he ran into Glenn's bedroom and tossed what he tought was his son out a window. Then he and his wife and another son, Frank Jr., jumped out another window.

Firemen, searching for Glenn outside the home, found only a pile of bedclothes.

But Doctors Say Constant Treatment Is Needed

Dulles' Cancer Can Be Controlled

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Secretary of State John Foster Dulles has a type of cancer which is highly malignant, doctors said Saturday, but one which can be controlled for several years.

In many such cases the patient can return to full or limited occupations.

Private physicians gave this appraisal in interpreting for a reporter the medical bulletin issued by the surgeons who operated on Dulles for hernia Friday. They reported Saturday he will undergo radiation therapy for cancer.

The physicians said the medical bulletin indicates that the cancerous tissue found Saturday represents a spread from the original colon cancer for which Dulles underwent an operation in 1956.

The present diagnosis in Dulles' case is that he has an "adenocarcinoma."

This is a glandular cancer, adeno being from the Greek word meaning gland.

It most commonly arises in the glandular portion of the intestinal tract, which has millions of glandular cells. Their function is to secrete mucus and gastric juices.

An adenocarcinoma is different from other types of cancer such as "sarcoma," which is a cancer of connective tissue — such as bone tissue or brain tissue. It is also different from cancer of the blood such as leukemia.

The doctors said they interpreted the medical bulletin to mean the following:

That the small nodule or lump found on the part of the intestine involved in Dulles' hernia represented a spread from focus of his original colon cancer operated on in 1956.

The doctors said that at the time the colon cancer was removed in 1956, some small portions of it may still have remained, involving lymphatic glands neighboring on the original cancer site.

And ultimately, they said, the cells apparently spread to the new site.

The doctors said that while the outlook in cases of adenocarcinoma is ultimately grave, the further spread of the cancer can be kept under control for several years in many instances.

They said control involves such measures as X-ray and chemotherapy. This includes the use of certain drugs derived from nitrogen mustard, a war gas developed during World War I. One of the most effective of these nitrogen mustards is one called "thio-tepa."

Another medical treatment for adenocarcinoma involves injection of radioactive gold into the abdominal cavity.

One person was asked whether the presence of adenocarcinoma would be compatible with a return to duty in such a job as secretary of state. The doctor said it would be all right, provided activity were limited largely to desk work, with no "long periods of strenuous activity."

And he offered the view that there should be "no prolonged worldwide travel." Dulles has been making numerous long trips in his job.

The doctor said that in some cases of the disease, daily treatment with X rays is required. In such cases, he said, it is well to stay close to a source of such treatment.

Wabash Dangers Are Eased

Sandbags Hold; Ice Breaking Up

WEST TERRE HAUTE, Ind. —(AP)— This flood-threatened city came through a crucial test Saturday when the crest of the flooding Wabash River flowed past the town without destroying the sandbag dike holding off its backwaters.

A huge ice jam began breaking up under mild temperatures upstream at Delphi, easing another peril on the storied Wabash. The lower end of the jam began moving downstream in small sections.

The sandbag dike on Sugar Creek was punctured but quickly patched as the flood crest built up early Saturday. But in the hour of greatest crisis, it proved equal to the test.

The Wabash had been expected to reach a depth of 24.3 feet at West Terre Haute early Saturday. Light rain helped raise it to 24.6—10.6 feet above flood stage. It remained stationary for awhile, then by afternoon fell to 24.3, in spite of light rain.

The Indianapolis weather bureau said flood stages were falling from West Terre Haute virtually all the way upstream.

Although the worst crisis appeared to be over for West Terre Haute, a fresh contingent of 125 National Guardsmen and 50 penal farm prisoners was sent in to keep a close watch. When the dike broke, the workers succeeded in plugging up the break before much water poured onto the suburb.

Meanwhile, officials predicted a monumental ice jam upstream from Lafayette, which threatened bridges and homes, might break up "momentarily" or at least with the arrival of a two-foot rise on the Wabash.

Attorney general John W. McConnell and two engineers inspected the 12-mile long ice pack and decided it would not be necessary to dynamite the ice loose.

Ike Summons Herter To Fill In for Dulles

The Man and Two Presidents He Has Served

President Silent on His Plans

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — Secretary of State John Foster Dulles has again been stricken by cancer, raising grave doubts that he can continue as chief architect of President Eisenhower's foreign policy.

The grim news was announced Saturday by the President after he personally talked to the venerable cabinet officer at his bedside.

Dulles was operated on for a similar malignancy in November, 1956, and was believed cured.

The President said Dulles is fully aware that he has cancer again.

He said "further treatment" will be required and that Dulles will continue on a leave of absence.

The President's statement, read to reporters at Walter Reed Army Medical Center, did not touch on Dulles' future tenure in office.

According to a White House spokesman, the President has no plans now to appoint a new secretary. He will still fly to Acapulco, Mexico, next week, to visit the president of Mexico.

Eisenhower received word about 9 a.m. that Dulles had reincurred cancer.

Undersecretary of State Christian A. Herter flew back from a South Carolina vacation to take over as acting secretary. He will fill, at least temporarily, one of the most difficult posts in the world.

State Department Press Officer Lincoln White said "no further surgery on Dulles is contemplated. He said radiation therapy will be used in the immediate future.

The finding of free cancer cells was made on the basis of microscopic examination of tissue and fluid taken from Dulles' abdominal region during a hernia operation Friday.

Doctors said the radiation

Europeans Express Sympathy

LONDON — (UPI) — The announcement that John Foster Dulles has cancer drew expressions of sorrow and sympathy from European officials Saturday, even those who have bitterly opposed him.

A 37-word dispatch from the Soviet Tass News Agency brought news of Dulles' illness to Moscow. Speculation that Dulles would not return to work was bound to cause reaction in the Kremlin, which has denounced Dulles for years as a symbol of "imperialist aggression."

However, despite the flood of sympathetic statements from Western officials, it was considered unlikely there would be any immediate Russian reaction.

British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan, who had conferred with Dulles only last week during the secretary of state's hasty European tour to deal with the Berlin crisis, expressed his "great regret." He wished Dulles "a speedy recovery." Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd, Dulles' British counterpart, also expressed sympathy.

In Bonn, Dulles' good friend, Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, expressed the hope and belief that the American diplomat would recover.

"I believe Mr. Dulles will be able to take up his foreign political work very soon again," Adenauer said.

I Would Take Post -Herter

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — Undersecretary of State Christian A. Herter, mentioned as a possible successor to ailing Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, said Saturday he would accept the post if President Eisenhower offered it to him.

Herter made the statement in answer to questions on arriving here to take over as acting secretary of state pending the outcome of Dulles' second cancer attack.

The illness raised serious doubts that Dulles would ever again be able to resume full-time duties. But Herter emphasized he had "not been sounded out" as a possible successor.

The man most frequently mentioned as a possible successor was C. Douglas Dillon, undersecretary for economic affairs.

Other speculation centered on Herter; Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, a close friend of the president; former Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York; Henry Cabot Lodge, U. S. Ambassador to the U.N., and banker John J. McCloy, former U. S. high commissioner to Germany.

Dillon ranks slightly behind Herter. But political and diplomatic experts believe there are factors which might lead Dulles to recommend and the President to select the former investment broker over the former governor of Massachusetts.

Age is one consideration. At 49, Dillon has an obvious advantage over Herter, who is 63. Herter also has an arthritic condition which forces him to use crutches and a wheelchair.

Dillon also has served as U.S. ambassador to France and representative to NATO. He also is known as a firm supporter of Dulles' "rigid" policy in U.S.-Soviet dealings on German reunification and other European problems.

Herter is considered to be more "flexible" in his approach and willing to attempt new methods which Dulles at times has frowned upon.

Congressmen Fear Foreign Policy Blow

By Herald Wire Services

WASHINGTON — Congressional leaders voiced grave concern Saturday that Secretary of State John Foster Dulles' second cancer attack may hamper U.S. foreign policy at a time of crisis.

The announcement comes at a time when the U.S. and its allies are preparing for delicate negotiations with the Soviet Union on the Berlin crisis, German reunification, and European security.

Most congressional foreign affairs spokesmen foresaw no immediate change in administration foreign policy.

But Senate Democratic Whip Mike Mansfield of Montana, a member of the Foreign Relations Committee, said Dulles' illness "is a devastating blow to the nation, to the world and to the hope for peace" at a "time of desperate need."

Sen. Frank Carlson (R., Kan.), also a foreign relations member, said he hopes that even though Dulles is on leave of absence, "our nation will get the benefit of his background experience which is so important now."

Fire Destroys Actor's Home

The actor, now star of television's "Have Gun, Will Travel," was in New York with his wife, Claire, and their five-year-old son, Peter. The $50,000 home was unoccupied.

A Tragic Illness

Due to the mechanical intricacies of publishing Sunday's Miami Herald, the Editor's Notebook by John S. Knight was written and printed before the news of the tragic illness of Secretary of State John Foster Dulles.

All the nation admires the courage and fortitude of Mr. Dulles and joins in hopes for his early recovery though his condition may require him to resign.

It is with these thoughts in mind that the reader may turn to the Editor's Notebook on Page 2G where the office of Secretary of State and our foreign policy are discussed in detail.

Flames Devour Firetrap Apartments; 11 Are Dead

5 in Family Perish in Kentucky

ASHLAND, Ky. — (UPI) — Eleven persons, including five members of one family, were burned to death early Saturday when flames swept through several small second-story apartments in a converted theater building.

Nine other persons suffered burns and injuries jumping from the upstairs windows of the two-story building. Police, who arrived shortly after the blaze started, helped rescue some of the victims.

Boyd County Coroner Russell Compton identifed the victims as Jack McKenzie, 30, his wife, Polly, 28, whose son was stillborn after she jumped from the building, and their three other sons, Johnny William, one; Mickey Joe, two, and Jackie, four. Firemen said their room had a door but no windows.

Fire department officials said that one of the bodies was incorrectly identified as that of Frank Kirk, Ashland, who lived at the building but was out of town at the time of the fire. The body of the fire victim remained unidentified late Saturday.

Other dead were listed as James E. Powell, 22, of nearby Flatwoods, Ky.; Mrs. Grace Blanton, 45, a cook in a restaurant on the first floor of the building; Frank Artis, about 45; and Clyde May, all of Ashland.

Still hospitalized late Saturday were: John Lucas, 42, Denton, Ky.; Fay Fannon, 17,; Alice Fannon, 19, and John Posey, about 85. They all suffered burns and other injuries. Five other persons were dismissed after treatment.

The building, the old Columbia Vaudeville Theater built in 1891, had only one exit, an inside stairway which was cut off by the flames. Ironically, materials for a fire escape which was to have been installed next week were stored in the rear.

Her Best Valentine: Dad, Brother Alive

ASHLAND, Ky —(AP)— Saturday was the best Valentine's Day ever for Frank Kirk's family.

Identified by relatives as among the 11 dead in Saturday morning's apartment house fire, Kirk, 47, turned up alive in Wayne, W. Va., a few hours later.

So did his 14-year-old son, Jack, who had been listed as missing and feared dead in the fire.

A daughter, Mrs. Jim Barker of Ashland, said, "I can't explain how I felt when I learned that my father was alive and well."

Her husband and Russell Kirk of Ashland, an uncle, had identified a body as that of her father at a temporary morgue.

She said she wanted to make sure of the identification before she could believe it, and had called a cousin, Harold Lee Pelfrey, at Wayne. It was then that she learned her father and brother were safe. They had been visiting Pelfrey since Thursday.

Sweeney Misses, It's $700 Now

By SUNNY FORTUNE
Herald Puzzle Editor

Another week, another $100. That's today's story of the Sunny Fortune Puzzle, now worth $700.

SUNNY

On account of J. M. Sweeney of Homestead, it almost wasn't so. Sweeney wrote "owe" for "own" on last week's game, and as a result, he doesn't own the jackpot.

So Sweeney gets a sunny smile and another chance at the big money, as do the rest of you puzzle fans.

That includes Mrs. E. L. Loftes, also of Homestead, who wants us to put something straight. Remember last week when we mentioned the woman who worked the puzzles secretly so her husbnad wouldn't fuss at her?

Well, it wasn't Mrs. Loftes.

I know she'll be glad we're mentioning this, because she writes, "I am in the dog house. My husband says I wrote you . . . and he is guilty of fussing at me."

Take heart, fussed-at women of South Florida. Someone's got to win sometime, and maybe it'll be you. So grab your pencils, cross your fingers, and turn to Page 12B.

therapy — employing radium, X-ray or use of new radioisotopes developed in the atomic age — will be designed to attack the new outbreak of cancer in the hope of cutting down its spread to other parts of the body.

Nothing was said by either the President or White about the possibility of a resignation by Dulles, who will be 71 Feb. 25.

In the 1956 occurrence, a cancerous portion of Dulles' intestine was removed by Walter Reed surgeons. The malignancy was reported effectively checked.

"While I was with him," the President said, "his doctors discussed with us their finding of the existence of malignancy not fully determined at this time as to its extent, but certain to require further treatment."

He added that he "expressed the thoughts and prayers of all of us that the results of this operation and the further course of treatment will be successful."

The chief executive's statement was read to newsmen by Assistant White House Press Secretary Anne Wheaton.

White reported Dulles was "in good spirits" after the hernia operation. He said "a small nodular implant on the hernia sac" was removed.

"This nodule proved to be an adenocarcinoma on microscopical examination," White continued. "The fluid evacuated at surgery contained free cells on cytological examination.

"No further surgery is contemplated. In the immediate future radiation therapy will be used."

White said Dulles' doctors expect he will have to remain at the hospital "for several weeks." He declined to speculate on the outlook for the ailing secretary beyond that or the course of treatment.

Workers Get Nikita Pep Talk

MOSCOW — (UPI) — Nikita S. Khrushchev took his seven-year plan for outstripping the U. S. to the workers Friday to urge them to the "human and earthly task" of building communism, Radio Moscow reported Saturday.

The radio broadcast details of the premier's speech to party members at the agricultural and industrial center of Ryazin, 120 miles southeast of Moscow. He used a meat-and-potatoes approach to the subject of building the Soviet farm and industrial programs to a point where they will outproduce the U. S.

"The building of communism is a human and earthly business," he said, "the business of millions of working people."

"Communism means the abundance of the best products for the population. Communism means that a man should have good clothing, a place to live, so that people can learn and work with self-denial for the good of society and make use of the achievements of science, culture and art."

He referred to the Chinese Communist "communes" of organized labor communities — once tried and rejected in Russia — as a plan advocated by "utopian socialists," who hoped to achieve true socialism by means of them.

He also made apparent reference to the disgraced "antiparty group."

"Sometimes there are woebegone theoreticians in our country who divorce theory from practice," he said.

Such persons "forget the simple truth that everyday world at the factory, pit and in the fields also constitutes the struggle for communism."

He said the monumental task before the Soviet Union must be presented in simple terms to "make them understandable to a simple man."

Urging farmers to grow more corn he offered this graphic comparison:

"Corn in the hands of collective farmers is like a tank in the hands of warriors which enables us to crush all barriers and insure abundance of products for our people."

Now Listen To This, You Unwed Gals

LOS ANGELES — (AP) — If you're a gal who hasn't yet caught a man, hear this advice from a professional marriage counselor:

1—Make your target feel important, stimulating and understood.

2—Be physically attractive, but don't count on that quality to take you all the way to the altar.

3—Have motivation — really want a husband.

Dr. Richard H. Klemer, associate general director of the American Institute of Family Relations, offered the advice in an interview.

After you've caught the prospect's eye, Dr. Klemer suggests, "use your addicting power' — the ability to respond to the real needs of the other person.

Four Men Arrested

Ex-Jockey Shot In Bungled Holdup

AROUND MIAMI

Police arrested four men in a Hialeah foodstore robbery Saturday, including a former Miami jockey wounded in the gunfight between officers and bandits.

Police said the ex-jockey, Thomas Price Lyons, 26, was shot in the left hip when a half-dozen Hialeah officers stormed Bill's Fine Food Market, 2602 Palm Ave.

The bandits bungled the holdup, police said, and apparently had plotted while jammed inside a phone booth.

Picked up with Lyons on charges of armed robbery were Louis Kripplebauer, 25; Jacob Wright, 35, and John J. Friel Jr., 26, all of Philadelphia.

Police held a disorderly conduct warrant Saturday for a 45-year-old Miami woman recovering in Jackson Memorial Hospital from what they called her third unsuccessful suicide attempt.

The woman, Mrs. Olyce Moorefield, of 630 NE 22nd Ter., was taken to the hospital Jan. 26 after severely scalding her right side in her bathroom shower.

Police said the woman told them she was trying to hang herself with a length of venetian blind cord attached to the shower nozzle when she accidentally kicked on the hot water.

James H. Gray, 62, former McKeesport, Pa., police lieutenant and city councilman, died of a heart attack Saturday while sitting in an Eastern airliner at International Airport.

The airliner was preparing to take off on a flight to Pittsburgh when Gray was stricken. His body will be sent to McKeesport Sunday.

Gray came to Florida by automobile to visit two sisters in St. Petersburg, Mrs. Tillie Blanchard and Mrs. Fred C. Allebach.

The Dade County medical examiner said Gray's death was natural and due to "heart disease."

3-Car Crash Injures 8 In S. Dade

Eight persons were injured, at least one critically, in a three-car crash six miles south of Homestead on U.S. 1 Saturday.

The accident happened at almost the same spot where seven died in a two-car collision six months ago.

Trooper James J. Johns of the Florida Highway Patrol said Mrs. Dodson's husband, 76, became impatient in a long line of southbound traffic, pulled out to pass and met a new Cadillac, driven by Joseph P. Sullivan, 63, of Littleton, Mass.

When the two cars hit, a third car behind the Cadillac, driven by Mrs. Carl O. Little, 52, of Saginaw, Mich., plowed into the other two.

Other persons injured, in addition to the three drivers and Mrs. Dodson, were: Matthew Clancy, 68, and his wife, Julia, 61, of Pittsburgh, passengers in the Dodson car; Miss Anita Bellanger, Montreal, a passenger in Sullivan's car; and Mrs. Little's Husband, 59.

National Summary

Cloudy skies and showers will persist across the Gulf region through the weekend except for fair and warm weather over the Florida peninsula. Rain in the Atlantic states and southern Appalachians is likely to end following the invasion of colder air.

Freezing rain mixed with snow over portions of New York and New England should change to flurries today. Scattered snow showers are expected over the northern Rockies and plateau and snow is scheduled from the Dakotas into Minnesota today, while a mixture of snow and rain continues in the Pacific northwest.

Heavy wind driven rain is indicated for northern and central California today with substantial snow fall anticipated in the mountains and some rain may move into southern parts of the state today.

A disturbance moving across the Great Lakes region Saturday was followed by cooler air which scattered snow flurries from the Dakotas and Nebraska into the upper Mississippi Valley and cleared most of the wet weather out of the lower plains.

The cold front was marked by showers from east Texas into Indiana at mid-day while mild air over the southeast yielded occasional rain and temperatures in the 60's as far north as Kentucky and the Carolinas.

Shortage Of Water Hits Keys

By HARRY CAICEDO
Key West Bureau Chief

KEY WEST — That warm Florida sun may feel good when you think of your cousins back North—but it plays havoc with the meager water supply along the Keys.

Rear Admiral Francis McCorkle, base commander, Saturday directed that all Naval activities institute water conservation measures.

And the Florida Keys Aqueduct Commission has been begging its civilian customers to handle water with the discretion reserved for precious liquids.

Among its suggestions:

—Don't leave the water running when you brush your teeth.

—Take a shower instead of a tub bath, and turn the water off while lathering.

—Think before you turn on the tap.

The water shortage hasn't reached the critical point yet, but the civilian aqueduct is only pumping water out at 20 pounds pressure instead of the normal 50 pounds.

McCorkle advised that his directive is "a routine procedure adopted at all times when there appears to be danger of water shortage."

The increased demand due to that summer weather has resulted in consumption which "could exceed the capacity of the Navy aqueduct if conservation measures are not taken," the admiral added.

Glades Plane Crash Kills Pilot, Friend

By ED PFISTER
Herald Bureau Chief

LAKE WORTH — Two Lake Worth businessmen were found dead Saturday in the wreckage of an airplane they rented 24 hours earlier at Lantana Airport "to do some sightseeing and take pictures."

The victims were identified as:

Charles T. Robinson, 39, of 1221 Reo Lane, owner of Robinson's Drugstore there, a veteran flier and World War II veteran who piloted the ship.

Thomas K. Evans, 29, Carlton Rd., a contractor and former constable who figured in a long drawn out suit over election expenditures.

A Coast Guard helicopter was used in lifting the bodies out of the wreckage in a swampy and wooded area of the Everglades 14 miles northwest of Boynton Beach.

Sheriff's deputies Bob Day and Sam Quincey, said only a helicopter or a swamp buggy could gain access to the swampy morass where the airplane crashed.

The deputies said it appeared as if a wing of the ship had struck a tree about 30 feet off the ground, flipping the plane over on its back and plunging it into two feet of water and muck.

The wing tip was torn off, and the engine was ripped off the front of the plane.

Day said both bodies were in the airplane when the helicopter and swamp buggies reached the tangled area of the crash.

The bodies were flown to International Airport in West Palm Beach and were removed to the E. Earl Smith and Son Funeral Home in Lake Worth.

International Air Service at Lantana Airport said Robinson and Evans appeared there about 1 p.m. Friday and rented the ship. Robinson was quoted as saying they wanted to do some sightseeing and take pictures with a movie camera they had along.

They took off in the rented four-place Cessna about 1:30 p.m., the air service said, with fuel for five hours flying time. The ship was radio equipped but the tower here had no record of contact with the plane.

Families of the fliers became alarmed when they failed to return at dusk Friday. Both the Civil Air Patrol and Coast Guard in Miami were alerted and started a search at dawn Saturday.

Capt. Glenn Snyder, of the CAP, spotted the wrecked plane before noon Saturday in the isolated area of the Everglades west of State Rd. 7 and directed rescue squads to the scene.

7,500 Square Feet Needed

Martin Sets Limit on Land Required for New Homes

By ZOLA SWARTHOUT
Herald Correspondent

STUART —The county commission in a special meeting Saturday morning set 7,500 square feet as the required amount of land for construction of homes in the Jensen Beach Zoning District.

The new regulation applies to all lands not recorded in plats at the present time and to any individual houses for which permits are applied in the future.

The action came at the request of the Jensen Beach Zoning Board and was openly aimed at a development by Lou Davidson of Elda Corporation.

Several prominent realtors from the Jensen Beach area appeared before the county commission Friday morning to ask for the new ruling.

Davidson's development called "Jensen Hill's Village" came under fire from Warner B. Tilton and William Weiss.

Tilton told the group that the project would become a "definite health hazard and a slum for the giant Mackle development north of Jensen Beach."

"They are selling lots that average 8,000 square feet for $10 down and $10 a month, which is what Davidson is selling for" said Tilton. "The size of the Davidson lots is dangerous and can become unhealthy."

William Weiss another prominent developer in the Jensen Beach area criticized Davidson's lack of road development. "Everyone else has to build a road before he can sell land, why doesn't Davidson."

Davidson has maintained that the lots he is selling are for retired persons who can not care for large lots. He says that his sales are perfectly legal and that he will stick by them. He also says that water and septic tank facilities can be provided for with out disobeying the law.

Private sources indicate however that Davidson will abandon the Jensen Hill Village development because of the furore his small lot sizes have stirred up.

Whether he abandons the lots or not the intent of the law as passed by the commission Friday will prevent any persons who purchase the lots, which are at present unplatted, from building on them.

Power Failure Hits Keys Area

UPPER KEYS — Friday the 13th was blamed for a widespread power failure over a large portion of the Florida Keys.

Most serious effect was at Coral Shores School auditorium where 500 people who were enjoying the second act of the annual Sketch Book were plunged into darkness.

The cast of 100 sang, and so did the audience, while flashlights cast shadows. After waiting for 30 minutes the audience filed out of the building and received tickets for the Saturday night performance.

Commission OKs Road Standards

STUART — Martin County's road specifications in its plat act will be tied closely to regulations established by the Florida State Road Department as a result of action taken Friday night by the county commission.

The commission, which was in almost continuous session last week, threw out all references to marl based roads and established as specificatons for its type 1 roads "hot sand plant asphalt mix which shall be laid according to specifications established by the SRD in section 108 of its road specifications."

St. Lucie canal rock bases and shell rock got the same prefunctory treatment in the type 2 road specifications. Marl or asphaltic concrete mix were substituted with the SRD specification clause.

Type 4 roads were limited to limerock for a base and all mention of shell excluded from the act.

Three types of roads were finally approved by the commission; limerock, plant mix and mix in place but each was tied to the SRD specifications with modifications for local materials.

Other activities studied at the Friday night meeting of the commission were;

DRAINAGE — Land owners who desire a public ditch will be able to petition for such a ditch if they will bear the expense of digging it according to an enabling act given to Representative Bill Scott by the commission for submission to the legislature.

COUNTY-WIDE DOG ACT—The commission took no action on a proposed countywide dog act suggested to Scott by several Palm City land owners.

School 'Package' Deal Supported

St. Lucie Told It's A 'Must'

By ANNE WILDER
Herald Correspondent

FORT PIERCE — St. Lucie County School Superintendent Ben L. Bryan has urged that the "package bill," providing state funds for buildings and salaries, (in addition to the minimum foundation program be continued.

Without such tax assistance from the state, he warned, St. Lucie school authorities could not build classrooms to keep up with the growth rate, could not grant salary raises—and would very likely have to cut salaries.

Bryan, in a discussion of proposed legislation, written for the county teachers' news bulletin, pointed out that this county received $458,361 during the present biennium from the "package deal," which enabled the school board to grant salary raises and expand its school plant considerably.

"Had the money not been available, double sessions would have been necessary in our schools, and the pay raise given to the teachers and other school personnel would not have been possible," he wrote.

Superintendent Bryan said that the report reflected his own recommendations as school superintendent.

He included a number of other recommendations, including an adequate appropriation for the junior college program.

(One of the four proposed new junior colleges is to be established in this county to serve a four-county area).

Some other recommendations included continuation and expansion of the adult education porgram, expansion of the summer school program, making adequate funds available to counties for textbooks, and increasing teachers salaries so that schools can compete with business in attracting and holding well-qualified persons in the field of education.

Possession Of Ibis Costly

ISLAMORADA — Justice of the Peace George J. Rawlins disposed of 23 wildlife violations in his court on Friday.

These included discharge of firearms from the highways, which account for about 90 per cent of the violations, according to Florida Wildlife officer D. C. Balman who was arresting officer.

Other cases were for fishing or hunting without a license, shooting protected birds and having fish in excess of bag limits.

Bonds were forfeited in several cases, some were dismissed and warrants issued for other offenders. A few complaints were voided because of inability to locate law breakers.

James Crain was assessed costs of $14.50 for illegal possession of a white ibis. Bruce L. Borne and Howard F. Glidden, also assessed costs, were found guilty of discharge of firearms near a state highway. All were from Miami.

Balman made a plea for citizens of the state to cooperate with wildlife officers in their constant effort to preserve hunting and fishing for all citizens and their visitors. "The two sports, so popular in Florida, are being endangered by non-observance of our wildlife laws by the very citizens they protect," Balman said.

Annual Sugar Cane Harvest Nearing End at Fellsmere

By THELMA FROSCHER
Herald Correspondent

FELLSMERE — The annual sugar cane harvest is being completed here this weekend.

This year a total of 5,300 acres of cane fields were cut, a slight increase in production over last year.

The Fellsmere Sugar Producers Association reports that although some of the cane was affected by freezing weather last month it did not cut back production as much as the severe cold of last winter.

The association owns the only complete sugar refinery in Florida. There are two other mills, but Fellsmere is the only place in the state where the cane enters one end of the factory and emerges at the other end as granulated sugar sewn in bags ready for the food stores.

The facilities of the association are owned by its nine members who belong to three families in Puerto Rico by the names of Roig, Arrieta and Lopez. J. A. Roig of Humacao, Puerto Rico is president. Walter Siewert of Fellsmere is secretary-treasurer.

It's no secret around Fellsmere, however, that the factory and surrounding fields may be sold to the Okeelanta Sear Co. near South Bay which has been negotiating to buy them.

The Fellsmere association employs about 600 persons, some 200 of them year round and 400 more during the season, M. L. Medlin, personnel director, reports.

Mayor Thomas Snell of Fellsmere, office manager for the association, recalled that the factory began operating about the middle of November this season. As long as the weather is dry enough for cutting cane it runs around the clock.

According to W. J. Baptiste, chief chemist who showed us around the fields and factory, sugar cane on 5,300 acres has been cut this season. Next season 5,800 acres should be ready to harvest.

On occasion a man with a gasoline torch will deliberately set fire to a sugar-cane field. Baptiste explained that the searing flames that roar through the field burn off the leaves and make the cane easier to cut.

Men with machetes cut the cane and lay it in meticulously straight rows for an hydraulic-powered loader to scoop up and dump into wagons.

A total of 25 miles of standard-guage track connects the field loading stations with the factory and the little trains run in all directions.

Two mammoth cranes at the sugar mill unload the bundles of cane, each bundle weighing about five tons. They go directly onto the conveyor into the mill or are stockpiled to keep the factory running all night.

The cane is washed with water and shredded as it's conveyed inside the building where three steam engines run five mills and a crusher which express the juice.

Pumped from one device to another, the liquid is heated to remove impurities, evaporated and boiled to form crystals. Raw sugar is decolorized and remaining impurities filtered out. Molasses is spun off and the pure sugar is dried, cooled and packaged.

The sugar-factory laboratory is open whenever the factory is running, chemists testing each stage of the process and keeping the product uniform.

The company doesn't encourage sightseers in the factory. There's an "Enter at Your Own Risk" sign at the door. It's no place for children even though it may be educational and smell like candy cooking.

They'll Go To School

EAU GALLIE — Mom and Pop will be given an opportunity to share a few of their children's school experiences by turning students for one night.

In observance of Parent-Teachers Association Founder's Day, the Eau Gallie Junior High School PTA is having parents trade places with their children Monday night. Class will start at 8 p.m.

Mrs. Lorraine Galloway, PTA president, said parents will go through the same routine as their children. On arrival, they will be given their children's schedule of classes. The children will be asked to give their parents the room numbers.

After classes, mother and dad will go to the cafetorium for refreshments served by the hospitality committee, Mrs. W. D. Lowery, chairman.

AFL-CIO Now Shies From Expulsion of 'Bad Boys'

AFL-CIO officials are trying to use compromise technique rather than expelling unions which fail to oust corrupt leaders. Federation's leaders fear expulsion is weakening labor movement, might create a rival labor movement.

Best deterrent to future labor corruption may be fact that many union leaders are shocked at extent of McClellan Committee's exposures. However, McClellan believes unions can't do clean-up job themselves, that effective legislation is required.

Meany
. . . tries persuasion

By NORMAN WALKER
AP Labor Writer

NEW YORK—Organized labor seems to be dealing more gingerly nowadays with union bad boys caught raiding the cookie jar.

Leaders of America's big union federation, the AFL-CIO, are steering clear of the drastic type of punishment meted out when Dave Beck and the Teamsters Union were exiled from the rest of labor.

In San Juan, Puerto Rico, AFL-CIO chiefs of the federation's policy-making Executive Council open their winter sessions Monday. On the agenda is a batch of new union scandals dished up by the McClellan Labor Rackets Committee.

Two of the unions involved in new disclosures are the carpenters and Sheet Metal Workers, both key organizations in the AFL-CIO's internal structure.

George Meany, AFL-CIO president, has been experimenting with a sort of woodshed technique in dealing with corruption. It amounts to trying to get unions to correct malpractices and oust corrupt leaders without expelling them from the AFL-CIO.

Federation leaders are fed up with ouster as a remedy. They feel it hasn't solved anything particularly in the three unions already expelled — the Teamsters, Laundry Workers and Bakery Workers. They say it has merely reduced AFL-CIO membership and effectiveness.

"What are we supposed to do—dismantle the labor movement?" one AFL-CIO vice president asked irritably.

"After all, the employers haven't ostracized the Teamsters. They are still doing business with Jimmy Hoffa, and the old CIO kicked out Harry Bridges' West Coast Longshoremen back in 1950 as Commie-dominated, but employers have kept right on dealing with Bridges."

Reminded that trucking and shipping employers are compelled by law to deal with these unions as the legal bargaining agents for their employes, this union leader said, "Well, they don't have to be so enthusiastic about it, do they?"

The trouble with Meany's woodshed method—bringing in a scandal-tainted union's leaders and telling them what they have to do to clean up—is that success depends upon just how much the recalcitrant union is willing to be punished. This leads to compromise.

In fact, the sole AFL-CIO power to police is affiliated unions is the same as in most any other organization. Expulsion is the only weapon if persuasion won't work. Unions realize this, and the bigger ones won't yield an inch.

This seems to be the case in the Carpenters Union. Its president, Maurice (Little Hutch) Hutcheson, is under indictment in an Indiana highway land scandal. He has refused to answer Senate Rackets Committee questions about union spending.

Moreover, one of Hutcheson's fellow Carpenters officials, Charles Johnson of New York, has, according to McClellan Committee testimony, received along with three relatives nearly $450,000 in union salaries and expenses in the three-year 1955-57 period.

Meany has tried the woodshed technique on Hutcheson in a series of secret conferences. But Hutcheson reportedly just isn't buying Meany's reform suggestions, including a proposal that Hutcheson take a leave of absence pending the outcome of his Indiana trial.

Hutcheson, an AFL-CIO vice president and Executive Council member, has been invited for a second time to appear before the council to explain what he wouldn't tell the McClellan Committee.

In response to the first invitation last fall, Hutcheson merely sent a written reply saying he'd done nothing wrong.

A second snub would present the AFL-CIO with a delicate problem. It plainly would call for ousting the 850,000-member Carpenters organization, which has also refused to adopt the AFL-CIO ethical practices codes. Hutcheson's union has authorized him to pull the Carpenters out of the AFL-CIO.

If the Carpenters quit the federation, other building trades unions may follow suit. The building trades, core of the old AFL, are boiling anyway in a renewal of their ancient feud over job jurisdiction rights with the industrial unions of the old CIO.

AFL-CIO leaders fear that ousting the Carpenters could throw them into an alliance with the Teamsters, the expelled Bakery Workers and other ousted unions and set up a potent rival labor center, or union federation. Such a dual federation would start out with about 2½ million members compared with the AFL-CIO's estimated 14 million.

Hutcheson
. . . snubs reform call

All this doesn't mean that many positive accomplishments haven't been made in ridding unions of gangster and hoodlum influences and plain and fancy stealing of members' dues money. Much has been done.

For one thing, "the heat is on," meaning that for the present, anyway, the fast buck out of a union treasury is no only unpopular but unhealthy. The AFL-CIO has accepted a complex set of ethical practice codes—spelling out stealing, graft, shakedown, conflicts of interest, etc. that can't be tolerated.

Probably the greatest deterrent to future labor corruption, however, is the fact that many union leaders report themselves shocked at the extent of the disclosures. Meany—sometimes called the "honest plumber"—says he knew there was some funny business all along, but never dreamed of its extent.

Actually, many students of labor unions feel the movement is just reaching a state of maturity. Unions didn't amount to much even so short a time as a quarter century ago. Now they have a lot more members, a lot more power and influence, and a lot more funds at their disposal.

Responsible union leaders look upon clean unionism as a public concern; they know they are more than just fraternal clubs now.

Sen. McClellan says he doesn't think anyone is satisfied with progress unions are making in handling corruption problems.

He believes effective legislation is required. The senator adds, "and until the Congress meets its responsibility by the enactment of laws that are necessary, these (corrupt) conditions will continue to prevail in many areas of labor-management relations."

Russians Stamp Claims Victory

LONDON — (UPI) — The Soviet Union has issued a postage stamp in honor of a basketball championship it never won.

Radio Moscow said a new one-ruble stamp was dedicated to the Soviet victory at Santiago, Chile. The announcer said the Soviet team took the championship by defeating the U. S. team on Jan. 28.

What really happened at Santiago was that, after defeating the U.S., Russia was disqualified for refusing to play against the Chinese Nationalist team. The Russians argued that the team from Formosa represented no nation.

Golden 'Bullet' Aims at Gland

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia — (AP) — A Czechoslovak doctor claims to have developed a less dangerous method of removing the pituitary gland by using radioactive gold.

The official CTK news agency explained that the gland attached to the brain has been found to have an important effect on some types of cancer, and that its removal in such cases relieves pain and prolongs life.

The agency said the Prof. Josef Pavrovsky, of Prague's First Surgical Institute, injects a grain of radioactive gold into the gland with a special surgical pistol, stopping the functioning of the gland

Pity Poor Dentist If You Have Cold

By ARTHUR J. SNIDER
Miami Herald-Chicago News Wire

CHICAGO — If you're plagued with a cold and feeling sorry for yourself, think of the poor dentist.

SNIDER

He is exposed to all kinds of respiratory germs as he works at close quarters with the dental patient.

As might be expected, an upper respiratory infection is one of his most common ailments.

Dr. Paul S. Rhoads, professor of medicine at Northwestern University, said in a panel discussion that colds and other respiratory infections are the most important health problems of the practicing dentist.

Other problems are duodenal ulcer, heart disease and obesity.

"In a sense," said Dr. Rhoads, "these are all occupational hazards resulting from meticulous, exacting work in which there is inevitably prolonged, exchange of emotional problmes and respiratory microbes between patient and dentist and in which the dentist is more or less immobilized within a very narrow sphere of physical activity."

Appointive Utilities Board Plan Pushed by Member

'Yes, No' On Ballot Proposed

TALLAHASSEE — (P) — A novel proposal that members of the Florida Railroad and Public Utilities Commission be appointed by the governor and ratified by the people will be placed before the 1959 legislature.

Sponsor of the plan is Alan Boyd, an aggressive Miami attorney who has been on the commission about four years.

Under Boyd's proposal, the governor would appoint a new commissioner whenever a vacancy occurred, just as he does under the present law. In the next general election, the voters would say in a simple "yes" or "no" proposition whether they wanted the commissioner whom the governor nominated.

There would be no other candidate on the ballot and hence no election campaign as the commissioners now wage.

If the people refused to ratify the nominee, the governor would name another who would be up for ratification in the following election.

If the voters accepted the nominee, he would serve a term which Boyd proposes to set at six years, two years longer than at present. When the six-year term ran out, the commissioner would announce whether he wanted to try for another. If so, the ratification process would be repeated.

The plan is a modification of a Missouri system for choosing judges.

Boyd emphasized that there would be no provision under which the governor could name new commissioners whenever the terms of old ones expired. The governor would choose the nominee only when a vacancy occurred, Boyd said.

He said he didn't expect the other two commissioners, Jerry W. Carter and Wilbur King, to oppose the plan. Carter, who is commission chairman, and King went through tough campaigns in the Democratic primary and general elections last fall.

It was at the height of the campaign that Boyd first announced he would propose changes in the method of selecting the commissioners.

Carter said he didnt' expect either to oppose or support Boyd's plan. He said that he favored keeping power in the hands of the voters, but added that he didn't know enough about the details of the proposal to take a stand for or against it.

Boyd said he was convinced there is widespread public misconception about the qualifications, functions and even identities of the commissioners.

The work of the commission touches the everyday lives of perhaps more people than the function of any other state agency. It sets rates which may be charged for electricity, telephone service and shipping by truck lines and trains but it regulates operations of utilities and common carriers.

Boyd said a constitutional amendment would be necessary to change the terms of the commissioners from four to six years. Other parts of the plan could be made effectve by law. Making the proposal as a constitutional amendment would mean that he must sell not only the legislature but also the voters of Florida on its merits.

He does not propose to change the present $12,500 annual salaries of the commissioners.

Boyd said the present election system has several drawbacks.

"Because of a misinformed public, the people regulated by the commission in fact name the commissioners," he said.

"They have never attempted to dictate to us — at least while I've been here — but they have the power to dump us from office," he said.

"The vast majority of people we regulate desire only fair, intelligent commissioners. But regardless, I think it is wrong as a matter of principle for the people we regulate to have the power — even if they don't use it — to select members of this agency."

'I Came To Study'

Grades 'Satisfy' UF's First Negro

GAINESVILLE — (UPI) — With his first semester behind him, George Starke Jr. is looking to the day when he may become the first Negro to graduate from the University of Florida.

And the 27-year-old law school freshman, first Negro ever to enroll in an all-white state-supported institution in Florida, is more concerned with his grades than with student relations.

"There have been no unpleasant experiences since coming here," the mild-mannered Air Force veteran said. "And there has been no friction because of me to my knowledge."

In his first interview since enrolling last September, Starke told United Press International how relieved he was that he satisfactorily completed the first semester.

He didn't say what his grades were, but added they were "satisfactory."

Stark was admitted following a U.S. District Court order last June which said the school could not bar students from enrolling at the graduate level because of color.

"Everybody has treated me just like another student," he said.

Starke, well-dressed and exceptionally polite, is careful not to say or do anything that might stir members of either race.

He has never tried to eat in the school cafeteria; attend public functions in the auditorium, gymnasium or stadium or sought campus housing. These facilities are available to all students, but Starke prefers not to put himself, his classmates or the school in an awkward position.

"I'm not carrying anything on my shoulders because of this," he said. "I came here on my own to study law and I still plan to go ahead and try to get my degree in 1961."

His mother, who lives in Orlando, and his father, a Sanford physician, both were pleased that he completed his first semester work all right.

"My mother was terribly elated," the Florida native said. He explained his father was more reserved since he knew the difficulties in completing studies in a specialized field.

Starke, who has "close" relatives living in Gainesville, said he was distantly related to Mrs. Daphne Duval, who became the second Negro admitted to the University this past week.

The 53-year-old local high school teacher is taking a graduate course in the College of Education one night a week. Starke said he had talked with Mrs. Duval since coming here, but that he had not tried in any way to persuade her to enroll this semester.

Murder Trial of 4 Set Monday

BUNNELL — (UPI) — Details of the mysterious killing of a union organizer and another man last December are expected to unfold at the murder trial of four truck drivers which begins here Monday.

The accused, two of whom were wounded during the Dec. 5 shooting, were indicted on second degree murder charges Jan. 14.

They are charged in the death of George K. Jones, 30-year-old union man who lived with his wife in a local trailer. Two of the defendants, Alex Faircloth Jr., 24, and Robert Drake, 28, were wounded in the gunfire.

The other men charged are Sidney McCraney, 31, and Jack Johnson, 33, all of Bunnell.

Also killed at Jones' trailer, but not listed in the indictment, was Howard Glisson of Bunnel, also a truck driver.

No official report on the shooting was ever made. But an officer who asked not to be identified had said it stemmed from a dispute between Tropical Transport Co. here and Teamsters Local 512 which sought union recognition.

The disagreement was settled Dec. 19 when the company agreed to recognize the union as bargaining agent.

Negroes Eye Voting Drive

TAMPA — (UPI) — Delegates to the Southeastern Conference of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People were told Saturday they must set up house-to-house campaigns to increase the number of eligible Negro voters.

The discussion on ways of "attaining freedom through registration and voting" was part of a nationwide NAACP drive to get three million more Negroes registered as eligible voters by 1960 in order to give the race a louder voice in political affairs.

The discussion was led by John M. Brooks of Richmond, Va., who is national director of the NAACP's voter-registration program.

W. C. Patton of Atlanta, field secretary at large in the voter-registration program, outlined to the delegates from six southern states how to set up a "grassroots" organization to get Negroes' names on the registration books.

He said local NAACP branches must have a worker on every block in Negro residential areas to constantly encourage Negroes to register.

Dutch Sub Arrives In Keys

KEY WEST — A former American submarine, now flying the Dutch flag, put into this important submarine base Saturday for a week's visit.

The Zeeleeuw of the Royal Netherlands Navy was engaged in exercises off the Florida coast with other Dutch naval forces and U. S. Naval aviation units before arriving here.

Formerly the USS Hawkbill, the submarine was turned over to the Dutch in 1953 on a 10-year-loan basis under the Mutual Defense Assistance Program.

Built in 1943, she saw wartime action in the Pacific. Later she was converted to a guppy-type submarine for greater underwater speed. The Dutch rechristened her Zeeleeuw, which means Sea Lion. Her skipper now is Lt. Cmdr. Max Deege.

While in Key West, the Zeeleeuw will be hosted by the men and officers of the USS Corporal, Key West-based unit of Submarine Squadron 12.

The week of entertainment planned for the Dutch submariners includes fishing trips, a picnic, dinners, dances and an evening at the dog races.

From here the Zeeleeuw will participate in Naval exercises in the South Atlantic and Caribbean areas. She is scheduled to call at several South American ports and the U. S. Naval Base, Guatanamo, Cuba.

World Day Of Prayer Is Friday

DELRAY BEACH — World Day of Prayer, the day when Christians in 144 countries unite to pray for all the peoples of the world, will be observed locally at 11 a.m. Friday at the First Presbyterian Church.

The program, to which all men and women are invited, is sponsored by the Delray Council of United Church Women and is in the charge of the Women's Association of the First Presbyterian Church.

Mrs. Norman Blood Jr. will conduct the worship service. Mrs. Robert Morey has charge of the music. A mixed double quartet from Seacrest High School will sing the anthem. Rev. Robert Morey will lead in prayer.

Siamese Curtsy

Introductions are in order between Pamela Gayle Simeone, 350 Macy St., West Palm Beach, and Irene Manning, singing star of "The King and I," which runs through Feb. 22 at the Palm Beach Musicarnival. They're rehearsing the scene in which Pamela, as one of the king of Siman's big, beauteous brood, is presented to Schoolteacher Anna during the "March of the Siamese Children."

Hospital Guild's Follies Is Annual Hit at Melbourne

By BILL BUNGE
Cocoa Bureau Chief

MELBOURNE — When South Brevard gets a new hospital, the Brevard Hospital Service Guild of Melbourne can come in for a lot of credit. That organization already has raised nearly $20,000 toward the building fund—and it's still going strong.

The Guild starting in 1956, raises money through the presentation of an annual Follies show. This idea has been so successful here that the Cocoa Junior Women's Club has launched a similar program, and now a Titusville civic organization also plans to use it.

Brevard Hospital at Melbourne, serving nearly one-third of this county, is so packed that patients are put in the halls, babies are scheduled weeks in advance. It's a victim of the missile boom.

The Follies, built around local talent, netted $4,618 the first year. "And by net, we mean every penny above actual expenses is given to the building fund," declared Mrs. Karl Showalter, publicity chairman.

"The Guild's operating fund is maintained by dues from members, which, incidentally, go for other hospital activities," she explained.

Each year the Follies grow in both financial return and area interest. In 1957, the show netted $6,948, and in 1958 the return was $7,074. A 1959 edition now is being prepared.

And the acting is so good that one woman last year sent the Guild a $100 check, remarking, "The show deserved a contribution on its own merits, not to mention its good cause."

When this program was launched in 1956, there was some skepticism about finding talent on the part of the producers, Cargill Producing, which also provides the stage sets, costumes and format.

During the first year organization period "we did have to beat the bushes for actors," said Mrs. Showalter. Now there "is more talent than can be squeezed into the show," she said.

The Guild sells program advertising to area merchants, and Mrs. Showalter reports that ad takers often make 15 calls and turn in 14 advertisements.

Therefore, new gains are racked up each year because of hard work and interest on the part of hundreds of persons in this sprawling South Brevard area. "It really has developed into a big community affair," the publicity chairman declared.

But Doctors Say Constant Treatment Is Needed

Dulles' Cancer Can Be Controlled

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Secretary of State John Foster Dulles has a type of cancer which is highly malignant, doctors said Saturday, but one which can be controlled for several years.

In many such cases the patient can return to full or limited occupations.

Private physicians gave this appraisal in interpreting for a reporter the medical bulletin issued by the surgeons who operated on Dulles for hernia Friday. They reported Saturday he will undergo radiation therapy for cancer.

The physicians said the medical bulletin indicates that the cancerous tissue found Saturday represents a spread from the original colon cancer for which Dulles underwent an operation in 1956.

The present diagnosis in Dulles' case is that he has an "adenocarcinoma."

This is a glandular cancer, adeno being from the Greek word meaning gland.

It most commonly arises in the glandular portion of the intestinal tract, which has millions of glandular cells. Their function is to secrete mucus and gastric juices.

An adenocarcinoma is different from other types of cancer such as "sarcoma," which is a cancer of connective tissue — such as bone tissue or brain tissue. It is also different from cancer of the blood such as leukemia.

The doctors said they interpreted the medical bulletin to mean the following:

That the small nodule or lump found on the part of the intestine involved in Dulles' hernia represented a spread from focus of his original colon cancer operated on in 1956.

The doctors said that at the time the colon cancer was removed in 1956, some small portions of it may still have remained, involving lymphatic glands neighboring on the original cancer site.

And ultimately, they said, the cells apparently spread to the new site.

The doctors said that while the outlook in cases of adenocarcinoma is ultimately grave, the further spread of the cancer can be kept under control for several years in many instances.

They said control involves such measures as X-ray and chemotherapy. This includes the use of certain drugs derived from nitrogen mustard, a war gas developed during World War I. One of the most effective of these nitrogen mustards is one called "thiotepa."

Another medical treatment for adenocarcinoma involves injection of radioactive gold into the abdominal cavity.

One person was asked whether the presence of adenocarcinoma would be compatible with a return to duty in such a job as secretary of state. The doctor said it would be all right, provided activity were limited largely to desk work, with no "long periods of strenuous activity."

And he offered the view that there should be "no prolonged worldwide travel." Dulles has been making numerous long trips in his job.

The doctor said that in some cases of the disease, daily treatment with X rays is required. In such cases, he said, it is well to stay close to a source of such treatment.

Experts Predict

Fidel to Build A Fire Under Cuba Cleanup

HAVANA, Cuba — (AP) — A speedup in Cuba's social and economic housecleaning appears certain, now that Fidel Castro is taking over as prime minister.

The 32-year-old leader of the revolution that unseated Dictator Fulgencio Batista formally assumes the post of chief of government Monday. He then is expected to:

PUSH the recovery of stolen money and property illegally acquired by the past regime.

SPEED agrarian reform by distributing government land to peasants; inaugurate a program to ease unemployment.

HASTEN a reorganization of the government and the Army.

Castro has served as commander in chief under President Manuel Urritia, his handpicked choice as chief of state. Now Castro's military job will pass to his 27-year-old brother Raul, the deputy commander.

Informed Cubans said the cabinet's resignation Friday night and Castro's decision to take the prime ministry are due to these factors:

The young revolutionaries, who swept into power with a broad reform program thought the cabinet was moving too slowly.

Castro had been forced to take more and more responsibilities outside his army job because everyone with a grievance sought him out.

In resigning as prime minister, Jose Miro Cardona wished Castro well. Castro is expected to retain some of the ministers.

(Castro said it was personally "distressing" for him to have to accept the premiership but that it was "necessary for the revolution."

(Miro Cardona said, "At last, for the good of Cuba, the vexatious duality of powers has ended.")

The newspaper Excelsior said the split over the pace of the revolutionary program became evident in mid-January when Miro Cardona offered his resignation.

The change in the prime ministry had a generally popular reaction. Messages of support streamed into Castro's headquarters.

Castro faces a sea of problems, including labor demands accumulated during seven years of Batista dictatorship. Under Batista, workers were not allowed to strike.

Castro has dealt personally with the labor questions, solving each issue as it arose. He solved oil union demands by getting salary adjustments. He kept sugar workers happy by suggesting they work hard for Cuba's welfare and bring up their demands after the crop was harvested.

Haiti Raps Cuban Aid To Exiles

Calls on U.S. To Curb Invasion

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti — (AP) — President Francois Duvalier charged that Haitian exiles are getting military training in Cuba, "probably" in preparation for an armed invasion of Haiti.

He called on the U.S. to stop any such invasion. Duvalier said he got his information from his "personal police" — presumably Haitian intelligence agents.

The president said he had just received a cable from one of his representatives reporting that a faction of the Cuban revolutionary movement is cooperating with "so-called Haitian political exiles" in arranging the military training.

He said the invasion would probably take place between Feb. 15 and Feb. 20.

Duvalier revealed he is sending a protest to the Cuban government over the use of Cuban territory by Haitian political exiles for such purposes.

He said the U.S., as the leader of the Western Hemisphere, has an obligation to stop any such invasion.

Duvalier disclosed that his government sent another protest last week against the use of Cuban radio facilities by Louis Dejoie, a Haitian political exile and unsuccessful presidential candidate, to make broadcasts to Haiti.

Speeches by Haitian exiles, including Dejoie, calling for the overthrow of Duvalier are heard almost nightly from Radio Progresso in Cuba.

He Thought He Rescued His Son . . .

CUTTEN, Calif. — (AP) — A three-year-old boy, whom his father thought he had tossed to safety, burned to death in his home here early Saturday.

Firemen found the charred remains of little Glenn Mello in his bedroom.

The father, Frank Mello, told firemen an explosion sent flames racing through the five-room home. He said he ran into Glenn's bedroom and tossed what he tought was his son out a window. Then he and his wife and another son, Frank Jr., jumped out another window.

Firemen, searching for Glenn outside the home, found only a pile of bedclothes.

Wabash Dangers Are Eased

Sandbags Hold; Ice Breaking Up

WEST TERRE HAUTE, Ind. — (AP) — This flood-threatened city came through a crucial test Saturday when the crest of the flooding Wabash River flowed past the town without destroying the sandbag dike holding off its backwaters.

A huge ice jam began breaking up under mild temperatures upstream at Delphi, easing another peril on the storied Wabash. The lower end of the jam began moving downstream in small sections.

The sandbag dike on Sugar Creek was punctured but quickly patched as the flood crest built up early Saturday. But in the hour of greatest crisis, it proved equal to the test.

The Wabash had been expected to reach a depth of 24.3 feet at West Terre Haute early Saturday. Light rain helped raise it to 24.6—10.6 feet above flood stage. It remained stationary for awhile, then by afternoon fell to 24.3, in spite of light rain.

The Indianapolis weather bureau said flood stages were falling from West Terre Haute virtually all the way upstream.

Although the worst crisis appeared to be over for West Terre Haute, a fresh contingent of 125 National Guardsmen and 50 penal farm prisoners was sent in to keep a close watch. When the dike broke, the workers succeeded in plugging up the break before much water poured onto the suburb.

Meanwhile, officials predicted a monumental ice jam upstream from Lafayette, which threatened bridges and homes, might break up "momentarily" or at least with the arrival of a two-foot rise on the Wabash.

Attorney general John W. McConnell and two engineers inspected the 12-mile long ice pack and decided it would not be necessary to dynamite the ice loose.

Ike Summons Herter To Fill In for Dulles

The Man and Two Presidents He Has Served

President Silent on His Plans

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — Secretary of State John Foster Dulles has again been stricken by cancer, raising grave doubts that he can continue as chief architect of President Eisenhower's foreign policy.

The grim news was announced Saturday by the President after he personally talked to the venerable cabinet officer at his bedside.

Dulles was operated on for a similar malignancy in November, 1956, and was believed cured.

The President said Dulles is fully aware that he has cancer again.

He said "further treatment" will be required and that Dulles will continue on a leave of absence.

The President's statement, read to reporters at Walter Reed Army Medical Center, did not touch on Dulles' future tenure in office.

According to a White House spokesman, the President has no plans now to appoint a new secretary. He will still fly to Acapulco, Mexico, next week, to visit the president of Mexico.

Eisenhower received word about 9 a.m. that Dulles had reincurred cancer.

Undersecretary of State Christian A. Herter flew back from a South Carolina vacation to take over as acting secretary. He will fill, at least temporarily, one of the most difficult posts in the world.

State Department Press Officer Lincoln White said "no further surgery on Dulles is contemplated. He said radiation therapy will be used in the immediate future.

The finding of free cancer cells was made on the basis of microscopic examination of tissue and fluid taken from Dulles' abdominal region during a hernia operation Friday.

Doctors said the radiation

Europeans Express Sympathy

LONDON — (UPI) — The announcement that John Foster Dulles has cancer drew expressions of sorrow and sympathy from European officials Saturday, even those who have bitterly opposed him.

A 37-word dispatch from the Soviet Tass News Agency brought news of Dulles' illness to Moscow. Speculation that Dulles would not return to work was bound to cause reaction in the Kremlin, which has denounced Dulles for years as a symbol of "imperialist aggression."

However, despite the flood of sympathetic statements from Western officials, it was considered unlikely there would be any immediate Russian reaction.

British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan, who had conferred with Dulles only last week during the secretary of state's hasty European tour to deal with the Berlin crisis, expressed his "great regret." He wished Dulles "a speedy recovery." Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd, Dulles' British counterpart, also expressed sympathy.

In Bonn, Dulles' good friend, Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, expressed the hope and belief that the American diplomat would recover.

"I believe Mr. Dulles will be able to take up his foreign political work very soon again," Adenauer said.

Fire Destroys Actor's Home

The actor, now star of television's "Have Gun, Will Travel," was in New York with his wife, Claire, and their five-year-old son, Peter. The $50,000 home was unoccupied.

I Would Take Post —Herter

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — Undersecretary of State Christian A. Herter, mentioned as a possible successor to ailing Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, said Saturday he would accept the post if President Eisenhower offered it to him.

Herter made the statement in answer to questions on arriving here to take over as acting secretary of state pending the outcome of Dulles' second cancer attack.

The illness raised serious doubts that Dulles would ever again be able to resume full-time duties. But Herter emphasized he had "not been sounded out" as a possible successor.

The man most frequently mentioned as a possible successor was C. Douglas Dillon, undersecretary for economic affairs.

Other speculation centered on Herter; Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, a close friend of the president; former Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York; Henry Cabot Lodge, U. S. Ambassador to the U.N., and banker John J. McCloy, former U. S. high commissioner to Germany.

Dillon ranks slightly behind Herter. But political and diplomatic experts believe there are factors which might lead Dulles to recommend and the President to select the former investment broker over the former governor of Massachusetts.

Age is one consideration. At 49, Dillon has an obvious advantage over Herter, who is 63. Herter also has an arthritic condition which forces him to use crutches and a wheelchair.

Dillon also has served as U.S. ambassador to France and representative to NATO. He also is known as a firm supporter of Dulles' "rigid" policy in U.S.-Soviet dealings on German reunification and other European problems.

Herter is considered to be more "flexible" in his approach and willing to attempt new methods which Dulles at times has frowned upon.

Congressmen Fear Foreign Policy Blow

By Herald Wire Services

WASHINGTON — Congressional leaders voiced grave concern Saturday that Secretary of State John Foster Dulles' second cancer attack may hamper U.S. foreign policy at a time of crisis.

The announcement comes at a time when the U.S. and its allies are preparing for delicate negotiations with the Soviet Union on the Berlin crisis, German reunification, and European security.

Most congressional foreign affairs spokesmen foresaw no immediate change in administration foreign policy.

But Senate Democratic Whip Mike Mansfield of Montana, a member of the Foreign Relations Committee, said Dulles' illness "is a devastating blow to the nation, to the world and to the hope for peace" at a "time of desperate need."

Sen. Frank Carlson (R., Kan.), also a foreign relations member, said he hopes that even though Dulles is on leave of absence, "our nation will get the benefit of his background experience which is so important now."

A Tragic Illness

Due to the mechanical intricacies of publishing Sunday's Miami Herald, the Editor's Notebook by John S. Knight was written and printed before the news of the tragic illness of Secretary of State John Foster Dulles.

All the nation admires the courage and fortitude of Mr. Dulles and joins in hopes for his early recovery though his condition may require him to resign.

It is with these thoughts in mind that the reader may turn to the Editor's Notebook on Page 2G where the office of Secretary of State and our foreign policy are discussed in detail.

Flames Devour Firetrap Apartments; 11 Are Dead

5 in Family Perish in Kentucky

ASHLAND, Ky. — (UPI) — Eleven persons, including five members of one family, were burned to death early Saturday when flames swept through several small second-story apartments in a converted theater building.

Nine other persons suffered burns and injuries jumping from the upstairs windows of the two-story building. Police, who arrived shortly after the blaze started, helped rescue some of the victims.

Boyd County Coroner Russell Compton identifed the victims as Jack McKenzie, 30, his wife, Polly, 28, whose son was stillborn after she jumped from the building, and their three other sons, Johnny William, one; Mickey Joe, two, and Jackie, four. Firemen said their room had a door but no windows.

Fire department officials said that one of the bodies was incorrectly identified as that of Frank Kirk, Ashland, who lived at the building but was out of town at the time of the fire. The body of the fire victim remained unidentified late Saturday.

Other dead were listed as James E. Powell, 22, of nearby Flatwoods, Ky.; Mrs. Grace Blanton, 45, a cook in a restaurant on the first floor of the building; Frank Artis, about 45; and Clyde May, all of Ashland.

Still hospitalized late Saturday were: John Lucas, 42, Denton, Ky.; Fay Fannon, 17,; Alice Fannon, 19, and John Posey, about 85. They all suffered burns and other injuries. Five other persons were dismissed after treatment.

The building, the old Columbia Vaudeville Theater built in 1891, had only one exit, an inside stairway which was cut off by the flames. Ironically, materials for a fire escape which was to have been installed next week were stored in the rear.

Her Best Valentine: Dad, Brother Alive

ASHLAND, Ky —(AP)— Saturday was the best Valentine's Day ever for Frank Kirk's family.

Identified by relatives as among the 11 dead in Saturday morning's apartment house fire, Kirk, 47, turned up alive in Wayne, W. Va., a few hours later.

So did his 14-year-old son, Jack, who had been listed as missing and feared dead in the fire.

A daughter, Mrs. Jim Barker of Ashland, said, "I can't explain how I felt when I learned that my father was alive and well."

Her husband and Russell Kirk of Ashland, an uncle, had identified a body as that of her father at a temporary morgue.

She said she wanted to make sure of the identification before she could believe it, and had called a cousin, Harold Lee Pelfrey, at Wayne. It was then that she learned her father and brother were safe. They had been visiting Pelfrey since Thursday.

Sweeney Misses, It's $700 Now

By SUNNY FORTUNE
Herald Puzzle Editor

Another week, another $100. That's today's story of the Sunny Fortune Puzzle, now worth $700.

On account of J. M. Sweeney of Homestead, it almost wasn't so. Sweeney wrote "owe" for "own" on last week's game, and as a result, he doesn't own the jackpot.

So Sweeney gets a sunny smile and another chance at the big money, as do the rest of you puzzle fans.

That includes Mrs. E. L. Loftes, also of Homestead, who wants us to put something straight. Remember last week when we mentioned the woman who worked the puzzles secretly so her husbnad wouldn't fuss at her?

Well, it wasn't Mrs. Loftes.

I know she'll be glad we're mentioning this, because she writes, "I am in the dog house. My husband says I wrote you . . . and he is guilty of fussing at me."

Take heart, fussed-at women of South Florida. Someone's got to win sometime, and maybe it'll be you. So grab your pencils, cross your fingers, and turn to Page 12B.

therapy — employing radium, X-ray or use of new radioisotopes developed in the atomic age — will be designed to attack the new outbreak of cancer in the hope of cutting down its spread to other parts of the body.

Nothing was said by either the President or White about the possibility of a resignation by Dulles, who will be 71 Feb. 25.

In the 1956 occurrence, a cancerous portion of Dulles' intestine was removed by Walter Reed surgeons. The malignancy was reported effectively checked.

HERTER

DILLON

"While I was with him," the President said, "his doctors discussed with us their finding of the existence of malignancy not fully determined at this time as to its extent, but certain to require further treatment."

He added that he "expressed the thoughts and prayers of all of us that the results of this operation and the further course of treatment will be successful."

The chief executive's statement was read to newsmen by Assistant White House Press Secretary Anne Wheaton.

White reported Dulles was "in good spirits" after the hernia operation. He said "a small nodular implant on the hernia sac" was removed.

"This nodule proved to be an adenocarcinoma on microscopical examination," White continued. "The fluid evacuated at surgery contained free cells on cytological examination.

"No further surgery is contemplated. In the immediate future radiation therapy will be used."

White said Dulles' doctors expect he will have to remain at the hospital "for several weeks." He declined to speculate on the outlook for the ailing secretary beyond that or the course of treatment.

Workers Get Nikita Pep Talk

MOSCOW — (UPI) — Nikita S. Khrushchev took his seven-year plan for outstripping the U. S. to the workers Friday to urge them to the "human and earthly task" of building communism, Radio Moscow reported Saturday.

The radio broadcast details of the premier's speech to party members at the agricultural and industrial center of Ryazin, 120 miles southeast of Moscow. He used a meat-and-potatoes approach to the subject of building the Soviet farm and industrial programs to a point where they will outproduce the U. S.

"The building of communism is a human and earthly business," he said, "the business of millions of working people."

"Communism means the abundance of the best products for the population. Communism means that a man should have good clothing, a place to live, so that people can learn and work with self-denial for the good of society and make use of the achievements of science, culture and art."

He referred to the Chinese Communist "communes" of organized labor communities — once tried and rejected in Russia — as a plan advocated by "utopian socialists," who hoped to achieve true socialism by means of them.

He also made apparent reference to the disgraced "anti-party group."

"Sometimes there are woebegone theoreticians in our country who divorce theory from practice," he said.

Such persons "forget the simple truth that everyday world at the factory, pit and in the fields also constitutes the struggle for communism."

He said the monumental task before the Soviet Union must be presented in simple terms to "make them understandable to a simple man."

Urging farmers to grow more corn he offered this graphic comparison:

"Corn in the hands of collective farmers is like a tank in the hands of warriors which enables us to crush all barriers and insure abundance of products for our people."

Now Listen To This, You Unwed Gals

LOS ANGELES — (AP) — If you're a gal who hasn't yet caught a man, hear this advice from a professional marriage counselor:

1—Make your target feel important, stimulating and understood.

2—Be physically attractive, but don't count on that quality to take you all the way to the altar.

3—Have motivation — really want a husband.

Dr. Richard H. Klemer, associate general director of the American Institute of Family Relations, offered the advice in an interview.

After you've caught the prospect's eye, Dr. Klemer suggests, "use your addicting power" — the ability to respond to the real needs of the other person.

Four Men Arrested

Ex-Jockey Shot In Bungled Holdup

Police arrested four men in a Hialeah foodstore robbery Saturday, including a former Miami jockey wounded in the gunfight between officers and bandits.

Police said the ex-jockey, Thomas Price Lyons, 26, was shot in the left hip when a half-dozen Hialeah officers stormed Bill's Fine Food Market, 2602 Palm Ave.

The bandits bungled the holdup, police said, and apparently had plotted while jammed inside a phone booth.

Picked up with Lyons on charges of armed robbery were Louis Kripplebauer, 25; Jacob Wright, 35, and John J. Friel Jr., 26, all of Philadelphia.

Police held a disorderly conduct warrant Saturday for a 45-year-old Miami woman recovering in Jackson Memorial Hospital from what they called her third unsuccessful suicide attempt.

The woman, Mrs. Olyce Moorefield, of 630 NE 22nd Ter., was taken to the hospital Jan. 26 after severely scalding her right side in her bathroom shower.

Police said the woman told them she was trying to hang herself with a length of venetian blind cord attached to the shower nozzle when she accidentally kicked on the hot water.

James H. Gray, 62, former McKeesport, Pa., police lieutenant and city councilman, died of a heart attack Saturday while sitting in an Eastern airliner at International Airport.

The airliner was preparing to take off on a flight to Pittsburgh when Gray was stricken. His body will be sent to McKeesport Sunday.

Gray came to Florida by automobile to visit two sisters in St. Petersburg, Mrs. Tillie Blanchard and Mrs. Fred C. Allebach.

The Dade County medical examiner said Gray's death was natural and due to "heart disease."

3-Car Crash Injures 8 In S. Dade

Eight persons were injured, at least one critically, in a three-car crash six miles south of Homestead on U.S. 1 Saturday.

The accident happened at almost the same spot where seven died in a two-car collision six months ago.

Trooper James J. Johns of the Florida Highway Patrol said Mrs. Dodson's husband, 76, became impatient in a long line of southbound traffic, pulled out to pass and met a new Cadillac, driven by Joseph P. Sullivan, 63, of Littleton, Mass.

When the two cars hit, a third car behind the Cadillac, driven by Mrs. Carl O. Little, 52, of Saginaw, Mich., plowed into the other two.

Other persons injured, in addition to the three drivers and Mrs. Dodson, were: Matthew Clancy, 68, and his wife, Julia, 61, of Pittsburgh, passengers in the Dodson car; Miss Anita Bellanger, Montreal, a passenger in Sullivan's car; and Mrs. Little's Husband, 59.

National Summary

Cloudy skies and showers will persist across the Gulf region through the weekend except for fair and warm weather over the Florida peninsula. Rain in the Atlantic states and southern Appalachians is likely to end following the invasion of colder air.

Freezing rain mixed with snow over portions of New York and New England should change to flurries today. Scattered snow showers are expected over the northern Rockies and plateau and snow is scheduled from the Dakotas into Minnesota today, while a mixture of snow and rain continues in the Pacific northwest.

Heavy wind driven rain is indicated for northern and central California today with substantial snow fall anticipated in the mountains and some rain may move into southern parts of the state today.

A disturbance moving across the Great Lakes region Saturday was followed by cooler air which scattered snow flurries from the Dakotas and Nebraska into the upper Mississippi Valley and cleared most of the wet weather out of the lower plains.

The cold front was marked by showers from east Texas into Indiana at mid-day while mild air over the southeast yielded occasional rain and temperatures in the 60's as far north as Kentucky and the Carolinas.

Shortage Of Water Hits Keys

By HARRY CAICEDO
Key West Bureau Chief

KEY WEST — That warm Florida sun may feel good when you think of your cousins back North—but it plays havoc with the meager water supply along the Keys.

Rear Admiral Francis McCorkle, base commander, Saturday directed that all Naval activities institute water conservation measures.

And the Florida Keys Aqueduct Commission has been begging its civilian customers to handle water with the discretion reserved for precious liquids.

Among its suggestions:

—Don't leave the water running when you brush your teeth.

—Take a shower instead of a tub bath, and turn the water off while lathering.

—Think before you turn on the tap.

The water shortage hasn't reached the critical point yet, but the civilian aqueduct is only pumping water out at 20 pounds pressure instead of the normal 50 pounds.

McCorkle advised that his directive is "a routine procedure adopted at all times when there appears to be danger of water shortage."

The increased demand due to that summer weather has resulted in consumption which "could exceed the capacity of the Navy aqueduct if conservation measures are not taken," the admiral added.

Glades Plane Crash Kills Pilot, Friend

By ED PFISTER
Herald Bureau Chief

LAKE WORTH — Two Lake Worth businessmen were found dead Saturday in the wreckage of an airplane they rented 24 hours earlier at Lantana Airport "to do some sightseeing and take pictures."

The victims were identified as:

Charles T. Robinson, 39, of 1221 Reo Lane, owner of Robinson's Drugstore there, a veteran flier and World War II veteran who piloted the ship.

Thomas K. Evans, 29, Carlton Rd., a contractor and former constable who figured in a long drawn out suit over election expenditures.

A Coast Guard helicopter was used in lifting the bodies out of the wreckage in a swampy and wooded area of the Everglades 14 miles northwest of Boynton Beach.

Sheriff's deputies Bob Day and Sam Quincey, said only a helicopter or a swamp buggy could gain access to the swampy morass where the airplane crashed.

The deputies said it appeared as if a wing of the ship had struck a tree about 30 feet off the ground, flipping the plane over on its back and plunging it into two feet of water and muck.

The wing tip was torn off, and the engine was ripped off the front of the plane.

Day said both bodies were in the airplane when the helicopter and swamp buggies reached the tangled area of the crash.

The bodies were flown to International Airport in West Palm Beach and were removed to the E. Earl Smith and Son Funeral Home in Lake Worth.

International Air Service at Lantana Airport said Robinson and Evans appeared there about 1 p.m. Friday and rented the ship. Robinson was quoted as saying they wanted to do some sightseeing and take pictures with a movie camera they had along.

They took off in the rented four-place Cessna about 1:30 p.m., the air service said, with fuel for five hours flying time. The ship was radio equipped but the tower here had no record of contact with the plane.

Families of the fliers became alarmed when they failed to return at dusk Friday. Both the Civil Air Patrol and Coast Guard in Miami were alerted and started a search at dawn Saturday.

Capt. Glenn Snyder, of the CAP, spotted the wrecked plane before noon Saturday in the isolated area of the Everglades west of State Rd. 7 and directed rescue squads to the scene.

7,500 Square Feet Needed

Martin Sets Limit on Land Required for New Homes

By ZOLA SWARTHOUT
Herald Correspondent

STUART —The county commission in a special meeting Saturday morning set 7,500 square feet as the required amount of land for construction of homes in the Jensen Beach Zoning District.

The new regulation applies to all lands not recorded in plats at the present time and to any individual houses for which permits are applied in the future.

The action came at the request of the Jensen Beach Zoning Board and was openly aimed at a development by Lou Davidson of Elda Corporation.

Several prominent realtors from the Jensen Beach area appeared before the county commission Friday morning to ask for the new ruling.

Davidson's development called "Jensen Hill's Village" came under fire from Warner B. Tilton and William Weiss.

Tilton told the group that the project would become a "definite health hazard and a slum for the giant Mackle development north of Jensen Beach."

"They are selling lots that average 8,000 square feet for $10 down and $10 a month, which is what Davidson is selling for" said Tilton. "The size of the Davidson lots is dangerous and can become unhealthy."

William Weiss another prominent developer in the Jensen Beach area criticized Davidson's lack of road development. "Everyone else has to build a road before he can sell land, why doesn't Davidson."

Davidson has maintained that the lots he is selling are for retired persons who can not care for large lots. He says that his sales are perfectly legal and that he will stick by them. He also says that water and septic tank facilities can be provided for with out disobeying the law.

Private sources indicate however that Davidson will abandon the Jensen Hill Village development, because of the furore his small lot sizes have stirred up.

Whether he abandons the lots or not the intent of the law as passed by the commission Friday will prevent any persons who purchase the lots, which are at present unplatted, from building on them.

Power Failure Hits Keys Area

UPPER KEYS — Friday the 13th was blamed for a widespread power failure over a large portion of the Florida Keys.

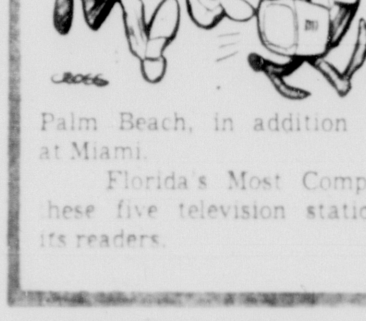
Most serious effect was at Coral Shores School auditorium where 500 people who were enjoying the second act of the annual Sketch Book were plunged into darkness.

The cast of 100 sang, and so did the audience, while flashlights cast shadows. After waiting for 30 minutes the audience filed out of the building and received tickets for the Saturday night performance.

5 Channels Added

More Television Listings Coming

Something new will be added to The Miami Herald's television listings on March 1.



On that date The Herald will add the weekly schedule of five more Florida television stations to the pull-out section of Fun in Florida magazine.

The additions will include Channels 6 and 9 at Orlando; Channel 2 at Daytona Beach and Channels 5 and 12 at West Palm Beach, in addition to Channels 4, 7 and 10 at Miami.

Florida's Most Complete Newspaper is adding these five television stations as another service to its readers.

Commission OKs Road Standards

STUART — Martin County's road specifications in its plat act will be tied closely to regulations established by the Florida State Road Department as a result of action taken Friday night by the county commission.

The commission, which was in almost continuous session last week, threw out all references to marl based roads and established as specificatons for its type 1 roads "hot sand plant asphalt mix which shall be laid according to specifications established by the SRD in section 108 of its road specifications."

St. Lucie canal rock bases and shell rock got the same prefunctory treatment in the type 2 road specifications. Marl or asphaltic concrete mix were substituted with the SRD specification clause.

Type 4 roads were limited to limerock for a base and all mention of shell excluded from the act.

Three types of roads were finally approved by the commission: limerock, plant mix and mix in place but each was tied to the SRD specifications with modifications for local materials.

Other activities studied at the Friday night meeting of the commission were:

DRAINAGE — Land owners who desire a public ditch will be able to petition for such a ditch if they will bear the expense of digging it according to an enabling act given to Representative Bill Scott by the commission for submission to the legislature.

COUNTY-WIDE DOG ACT— The commission took no action on a proposed countywide dog act suggested to Scott by several Palm City land owners.

Bishop Guest At Services

KEY WEST — The Right Rev. Allan J. Miller, Episcopal Bishop of the Diocese of Easton, Md., will be guest celebrant of the 9:30 a.m. Holy Communion service Sunday morning at Holy Innocents Episcopal Mission.

A frequent visitor to Key West and property owner here, Bishop Miller was the first clergyman to hold services in the Mission when it opened two years ago.

School 'Package' Deal Supported

St. Lucie Told It's A 'Must'

By ANNE WILDER
Herald Correspondent

FORT PIERCE — St. Lucie County School Superintendent Ben L. Bryan has urged that the "package bill," providing state funds for buildings and salaries, (in addition to the minimum foundation program be continued.

Without such tax assistance from the state, he warned, St. Lucie school authorities could not build classrooms to keep up with the growth rate, could not grant salary raises —and would very likely have to cut salaries.

Bryan, in a discussion of proposed legislation, written for the county teachers' news bulletin, pointed out that this county received $458,361 during the present biennium from the "package deal," which enabled the school board to grant salary raises and expand its school plant considerably.

"Had the money not been available, double sessions would have been necessary in our schools, and the pay raise given to the teachers and other school personnel would not have been possible," he wrote.

Superintendent Bryan said that the report reflected his own recommendations as school superintendent.

He included a number of other recommendations, including an adequate appropriation for the junior college program.

(One of the four proposed new junior colleges is to be established in this county to serve a four-county area).

Some other recommendations included continuation and expansion of the adult education porgram, expansion of the summer school program, making adequate funds available to counties for textbooks, and increasing teachers salaries so that schools can compete with business in attracting and holding well-qualified persons in the field of education.

Possession Of Ibis Costly

ISLAMORADA — Justice of the Peace George J. Rawlins disposed of 23 wildlife violations in his court on Friday.

These included discharge of firearms from the highways, which account for about 90 per cent of the violations, according to Florida Wildlife officer D. C. Balman who was arresting officer.

Other cases were for fishing or hunting without a license, shooting protected birds and having fish in excess of bag limits.

Bonds were forfeited in several cases, some were dismissed and warrants issued for other offenders. A few complaints were voided because of inability to locate law breakers.

James Crain was assessed costs of $14.50 for illegal possession of a white ibis. Bruce L. Borne and Howard F. Glidden, also assessed costs, were found guilty of discharge of firearms near a state highway. All were from Miami.

Balman made a plea for citizens of the state to cooperate with wildlife officers in their constant effort to preserve hunting and fishing for all citizens and their visitors. "The two sports, so popular in Florida, are being endangered by non-observance of our wildlife laws by the very citizens they protect," Balman said.

Sergeant Choice Is Announced

Annual Sugar Cane Harvest Nearing End at Fellsmere

By THELMA FROSCHER
Herald Correspondent

FELLSMERE — The annual sugar cane harvest is being completed here this weekend.

This year a total of 5,300 acres of cane fields were cut, a slight increase in production over last year.

The Fellsmere Sugar Producers Association reports that although some of the cane was affected by freezing weather last month it did not cut back production as much as the severe cold of last winter.

The association owns the only complete sugar refinery in Florida. There are two other mills, but Fellsmere is the only place in the state where the cane enters one end of the factory and emerges at the other end as granulated sugar sewn in bags ready for the food stores.

The facilities of the association are owned by its nine members who belong to three families in Puerto Rico by the names of Roig, Arrieta and Lopez. J. A. Roig of Humacao, Puerto Rico is president. Walter Siewert of Fellsmere is secretary-treasurer.

It's no secret around Fellsmere, however, that the factory and surrounding fields may be sold to the Okeelanta Sear Co. near South Bay which has been negotiating to buy them.

The Fellsmere association employs about 600 persons, some 200 of them year round and 400 more during the season, M. L. Medlin, personnel director, reports.

Mayor Thomas Snell of Fellsmere, office manager for the association, recalled that the factory began operating about the middle of November this season. As long as the weather is dry enough for cutting cane it runs around the clock.

According to W. J. Baptiste, chief chemist who showed us around the fields and factory, sugar cane on 5,300 acres has been cut this season. Next season 5,800 acres should be ready to harvest.

On occasion a man with a gasoline torch will deliberately set fire to a sugar-cane field. Baptiste explained that the searing flames that roar through the field burn off the leaves and make the cane easier to cut.

Men with machetes cut the cane and lay it in meticulously straight rows for an hydraulic-powered loader to scoop up and dump into wagons.

A total of 25 miles of standard-guage track connects the field loading stations with the factory and the little trains run in all directions.

Two mammoth cranes at the sugar mill unload the bundles of cane, each bundle weighing about five tons. They go directly onto the conveyor into the mill or are stockpiled to keep the factory running all night.

The cane is washed with water and shredded as it's conveyed inside the building where three steam engines run five mills and a crusher which express the juice.

Pumped from one device to another, the liquid is heated to remove impurities, evaporated and boiled to form crystals. Raw sugar is decolorized and remaining impurities filtered out. Molasses is spun off and the pure sugar is dried, cooled and packaged.

The sugar-factory laboratory is open whenever the factory is running, chemists testing each stage of the process and keeping the product uniform.

The company doesn't encourage sightseers in the factory. There's an "Enter at Your Own Risk" sign at the door. It's no place for children even though it may be educational and smell like candy cooking.

They'll Go To School

EAU GALLIE — Mom and Pop will be given an opportunity to share a few of their children's school experiences by turning students for one night.

In observance of Parent-Teachers Association Founder's Day, the Eau Gallie Junior High School PTA is having parents trade places with their children Monday night. Class will start at 8 p.m.

Mrs. Lorraine Galloway, PTA president, said parents will go through the same routine as their children. On arrival, they will be given their children's schedule of classes. The children will be asked to give their parents the room numbers.

After classes, mother and dad will go to the cafetorium for refreshments served by the hospitality committee, Mrs. W. D. Lowery, chairman.

AFL-CIO Now Shies From Expulsion of 'Bad Boys'

AFL-CIO officials are trying to use compromise technique rather than expelling unions which fail to oust corrupt leaders. Federation's leaders fear expulsion is weakening labor movement, might create a rival labor movement.

Best deterrent to future labor corruption may be fact that many union leaders are shocked at extent of McClellan Committee's exposures. However, McClellan believes unions can't do clean-up job themselves, that effective legislation is required.

Meany

. . . tries persuasion

By NORMAN WALKER
AP Labor Writer

NEW YORK—Organized labor seems to be dealing more gingerly nowadays with union bad boys caught raiding the cookie jar.

Leaders of America's big union federation, the AFL-CIO, are steering clear of the drastic type of punishment meted out when Dave Beck and the Teamsters Union were exiled from the rest of labor.

In San Juan, Puerto Rico, AFL-CIO chiefs of the federation's policy-making Executive Council open their winter sessions Monday. On the agenda is a batch of new union scandals dished up by the McClellan Labor Rackets Committee.

Two of the unions involved in new disclosures are the carpenters and Sheet Metal Workers, both key organizations in the AFL-CIO's internal structure.

George Meany, AFL-CIO president, has been experimenting with a sort of woodshed technique in dealing with corruption. It amounts to trying to get unions to correct malpractices and oust corrupt leaders without expelling them from the AFL-CIO.

Federation leaders are fed up with ouster as a remedy. They feel it hasn't solved anything particularly in the three unions already expelled — the Teamsters, Laundry Workers and Bakery Workers. They say it has merely reduced AFL-CIO membership and effectiveness.

"What are we supposed to do—dismantle the labor movement?" one AFL-CIO vice president asked irritably.

"After all, the employers haven't ostracized the Teamsters. They are still doing business with Jimmy Hoffa, and the old CIO kicked out Harry Bridges' West Coast Longshoremen back in 1950 as Commie-dominated, but employers have kept right on dealing with Bridges."

Reminded that trucking and shipping employers are compelled by law to deal with these unions as the legal bargaining agents for their employes, this union leader said, "Well, they don't have to be so enthusiastic about it, do they?"

The trouble with Meany's woodshed method—bringing in a scandal-tainted union's leaders and telling them what they have to do to clean up—is that success depends upon just how much the recalcitrant union is willing to be punished. This leads to compromise.

In fact, the sole AFL-CIO power to police is affiliated unions is the same as in most any other organization. Expulsion is the only weapon if persuasion won't work. Unions realize this, and the bigger ones won't yield an inch.

This seems to be the case in the Carpenters Union. Its president, Maurice (Little Hutch) Hutcheson, is under indictment in an Indiana highway land scandal. He has refused to answer Senate Rackets Committee questions about union spending.

Moreover, one of Hutcheson's fellow Carpenters officials, Charles Johnson of New York, has, according to McClellan Committee testimony, received along with three relatives nearly $450,000 in union salaries and expenses in the three-year 1955-57 period.

Meany has tried the woodshed technique on Hutcheson in a series of secret conferences. But Hutcheson reportedly just isn't buying Meany's reform suggestions, including a proposal that Hutcheson take a leave of absence pending the outcome of his Indiana trial.

Hutcheson, an AFL-CIO vice president and Executive Council member, has been invited for a second time to appear before the council to explain what he wouldn't tell the McClellan Committee.

In response to the first invitation last fall, Hutcheson merely sent a written reply saying he'd done nothing wrong.

A second snub would present the AFL-CIO with a delicate problem. It plainly would call for ousting the 850,000-member Carpenters organization, which has also refused to adopt the AFL-CIO ethical practices codes. Hutcheson's union has authorized him to pull the Carpenters out of the AFL-CIO.

If the Carpenters quit the federation, other building trades unions may follow suit. The building trades, core of the old AFL, are boiling anyway in a renewal of their ancient feud over job jurisdiction rights with the industrial unions of the old CIO.

AFL-CIO leaders fear that ousting the Carpenters could throw them into an alliance with the Teamsters, the expelled Bakery Workers and other ousted unions and set up a potent rival labor center, or union federation. Such a dual federation would start out with about 2½ million members compared with the AFL-CIO's estimated 14 million.

Hutcheson

. . . snubs reform call

All this doesn't mean that many positive accomplishments haven't been made in ridding unions of gangster and hoodlum influences and plain and fancy stealing of members' dues money. Much has been done.

For one thing, "the heat is on," meaning that for the present, anyway, the fast buck out of a union treasury is no only unpopular but unhealthy. The AFL-CIO has accepted a complex set of ethical practice codes—spelling out stealing, graft, shakedown, conflicts of interest, etc. that can't be tolerated.

Probably the greatest deterrent to future labor corruption, however, is the fact that many union leaders report themselves shocked at the extent of the disclosures. Meany—sometimes called the "honest plumber"—says he knew there was some funny business all along, but never dreamed of its extent.

Actually, many students of labor unions feel the movement is just reaching a state of maturity. Unions didn't amount to much even so short a time as a quarter century ago. Now they have a lot more members, a lot more power and influence, and a lot more funds at their disposal.

Responsible union leaders look upon clean unionism as a public concern; they know they are more than just fraternal clubs now.

Sen. McClellan says he doesn't think anyone is satisfied with progress unions are making in handling corruption problems.

He believes effective legislation is required. The senator adds, "and until the Congress meets its responsibility by the enactment of laws that are necessary, these (corrupt) conditions will continue to prevail in many areas of labor-management relations."

Russians Stamp Claims Victory

LONDON — (UPI) — The Soviet Union has issued a postage stamp in honor of a basketball championship it never won.

Radio Moscow said a new one-ruble stamp was dedicated to the Soviet victory at Santiago, Chile. The announcer said the Soviet team took the championship by defeating the U. S. team on Jan. 28.

What really happened at Santiago was that, after defeating the U.S., Russia was disqualified for refusing to play against the Chinese Nationalist team. The Russians argued that the team from Formosa represented no nation.

Golden 'Bullet' Aims at Gland

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia — (P) — A Czechoslovak doctor claims to have developed a less dangerous method of removing the pituitary gland by using radioactive gold.

The official CTK news agency explained that the gland attached to the brain has been found to have an important effect on some types of cancer, and that its removal in such cases relieves pain and prolongs life.

The agency said the Prof. Josef Pavrovsky, of Prague's First Surgical Institute, injects a grain of radioactive gold into the gland with a special surgical pistol, stopping the functioning of the gland

History Repeats—Bookie Lid's Off

Herald Reporter Finds It's Easy To Place a Bet

By DOM BONAFEDE
Herald Staff Writer

The lid is off and the town's wide open.

It's bookies, bookies everywhere.

Not since Sen. Estes Kefauver and his crime-busting committee slapped down Greater Miami's syndicate gamblers nine years ago have the bookmakers dared to work so openly under the sun.

Anyone—but anyone—can lay down a bet on a horse, or a fight, or a ball game. All he has to show is money.

A Herald reporter working a couple of afternoons with the Greater Miami Crime Commission didn't have a bit of trouble even though in most cases he was a stranger to the bookmakers.

He put down 12 different bets on races and fights on both sides of Biscayne bay—Miami and Miami Beach.

And wherever he went, particularly on the Beach, the bookies were cautious but confident. Two even remarked the "fix" is in as they held out their hands for the cash.

A few, however, refused to take bets. They said they'd heard the state's attorneys men were around.

One said that at 7 a.m. that morning the word had gone out: "Beware of strangers today."

Locations of the transactions ran from a plush country club to down town hotels to cubbyhole newsstands. And the bettakers were everything from suave men-about-town to Damon Runyon characters with colorful nicknames.

In most instances, the bets were made with the ease and unconcern you would have in buying a quart of milk at the corner grocery store.

The fact that the deals were made without the bookie knowing the bettor was the best indication that the town is open, a crime commission investigator said. It's a rule among bookies never to do business with strangers — unless you have protection.

In addition to the dozen person-to-person bets, two others were made over the telephone by a Herald reporter posing as a bettor.

Multiply this by the scores of other betting spots throughout the length and breadth of Dade County and you get an idea of how the gamblers have moved in, the crime commissioner said.

A reflection of this shows up in the five per cent decrease in attendance and three per cent drop in betting at Hialeah Race Course this season even though there are more tourists here.

"There's no doubt bookmaking hurts the tracks," an executive of Hialeah noted.

Despite the apparent upswing in bookie operations here, most law enforcement officials have been sticking by the theme: "Most booking is on a sneak basis."

Shortly before noon Satur-

A Smooth Bookie Is 'Phantom'

Dade's bookmakers operate on the "phantom principle."

You don't see them.

You see their agents. The agents have runners. And the runners have pickup boys.

The "phantom principle" is the bookies' own term. It's the sign of smooth organization — no fly-by-night operation.

You place a bet with a bellboy, a porter, a cabby, a lifeguard, a newsie, a grocer, a butcher, or — yes, it's true—sometimes even a candlestickmaker.

He may take your money, or he may give you credit—a wave of the hand or a simple, "OK, you're in."

To get your bet "down"—placed on the particular race—your betting source in Dade County immediately telephones the bookie's agent.

"We don't call The Man, himself often," a runner told a Herald reporter Saturday. "Somebody might be looking over my shoulder when I'm dialing."

The agent phones in the bet.

The payoff is worked in the same ladder fashion. The bookmaker has a collector. He makes his rounds daily, usually in the mornings, before the races begin, or in the evening, after they are over.

He pays off or collects with the agent. The agent goes through the same procedure with his runner. The runner then either pays you or collects.

"Slips," or notations of bets, are no longer fashionable — or wise, The Herald was told—for the runner or agent to make.

"If they (the police) ever do make a hit (arrest), they got evidence if they find the slips.

"We let the bigger boys worry about the slips. We just pick 'em up (the bets) and deliver (the winnings)."

The bookmaker pays his

Cancer Hits Dulles; Herter Will Fill In

I Would Take Post -- Herter

No Offer Made, Says Dulles Aide

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — Undersecretary of State Christian A. Herter, mentioned as a possible successor to ailing Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, said Saturday he would accept the post if President Eisenhower offered it to him.

Herter made the statement in answer to questions on arriving here to take over as acting secretary of state pending the outcome of Dulles' second cancer attack.

The illness raised serious doubts that Dulles would ever again be able to resume full-time duties. But Herter emphasized he had "not been sounded out" as a possible successor.

The man most frequently mentioned as a possible successor was C. Douglas Dillon, undersecretary for economic affairs.

Other speculation centered on Herter; Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, a close friend of the president; former Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York; Henry Cabot Lodge, U. S. Ambassador to the U.N., and banker John J. McCloy, former U. S. high commissioner to Germany.

Dillon ranks slightly behind Herter. But political and diplomatic experts believe there are factors which might lead Dulles to recommend and the President to select the former investment broker over the former governor of Massachusetts.

Age is one consideration. At 49, Dillon has an obvious advantage over Herter, who is 63. Herter also has an arthritic condition which forces him to use crutches and a wheelchair.

Dillon also has served as U.S. ambassador to France and representative to NATO. He also is known as a firm supporter of Dulles' "rigid" policy in U.S.-Soviet dealings on German reunification and other European problems.

Herter is considered to "be more "flexible" in his approach and willing to attempt new methods which Dulles at times has frowned upon.

Europeans Express Sympathy

LONDON — (UPI) — The announcement that John Foster Dulles has cancer drew expressions of sorrow and sympathy from European officials Saturday, even those who have bitterly opposed him.

A 37-word dispatch from the Soviet Tass News Agency brought news of Dulles' illness to Moscow. Speculation that Dulles would not return to work was bound to cause reaction in the Kremlin, which has denounced Dulles for years as a symbol of "imperialist aggression."

However, despite the flood of sympathetic statements from Western officials, it was considered unlikely there would be any immediate Russian reaction.

British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan, who had conferred with Dulles only last week during the secretary of state's hasty European tour to deal with the Berlin crisis, expressed his "great regret." He wished Dulles "a speedy recovery." Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd, Dulles' British counterpart, also expressed sympathy.

In Bonn, Dulles' good friend, Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, expressed the hope and belief that the American diplomat would recover.

"I believe Mr. Dulles will be able to take up his foreign political work very soon again," Adenauer said.

Dulles' Cancer Can Be Controlled

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Secretary of State John Foster Dulles has a type of cancer which is highly malignant, doctors said Saturday, but one which can be controlled for several years.

In many such cases the patient can return to full or limited occupations.

Private physicians gave this appraisal in interpreting for a reporter the medical bulletin issued by the surgeons who operated on Dulles for hernia Friday. They reported Saturday he will undergo radiation therapy for cancer.

The physicians said the medical bulletin indicates that the cancerous tissue found Saturday represents a spread from the original colon cancer for which Dulles underwent an operation in 1956.

The present diagnosis in Dulles' case is that he has an "adenocarcinoma."

This is a glandular cancer, adeno being from the Greek word meaning gland.

It most commonly arises in the glandular portion of the intestinal tract, which has millions of glandular cells. Their function is to secrete mucus and gastric juices.

An adenocarcinoma is different from other types of cancer such as "sarcoma," which is a cancer of connective tissue — such as bone tissue or brain tissue. It is also different from cancer of the blood such as leukemia.

The doctors said they interpreted the medical bulletin to mean the following:

That the small nodule or lump found on the part of the intestine involved in Dulles' hernia represented a spread from focus of his original colon cancer operated on in 1956.

The doctors said that at the

Blow to U.S. Policy Is Feared

By Herald Wire Services

WASHINGTON — Congressional leaders voiced grave concern Saturday that Secretary of State John Foster Dulles' second cancer attack may hamper U.S. foreign policy at a time of crisis.

The announcement comes at a time when the U.S. and its allies are preparing for delicate negotiations with the Soviet Union on the Berlin crisis, German reunification, and European security.

Most congressional foreign affairs spokesmen foresaw no immediate change in administration foreign policy.

But Senate Democratic Whip Mike Mansfield of Montana, a member of the Foreign Relations Committee, said Dulles' illness "is a devastating blow to the nation, to the world and to the hope for peace" at a "time of desperate need."

Sen. Frank Carlson (R., Kan.), also a foreign relations member, said he hopes that even though Dulles is on leave of absence, "our nation will get the benefit of his background experience which is so important now."

President Silent on His Plans

Further Surgery Is Not Planned

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — Secretary of State John Foster Dulles has again been stricken by cancer, raising grave doubts that he can continue as chief architect of President Eisenhower's foreign policy.

The grim news was announced Saturday by the President after he personally talked to the venerable cabinet officer at his bedside.

Dulles was operated on for a similar malignancy in November, 1956, and was believed cured.

The President said Dulles is fully aware that he has cancer again.

He said "further treatment" will be required and that Dulles will continue on a leave of absence.

The President's statement, read to reporters at Walter Reed Army Medical Center, did not touch on Dulles' future tenure in office.

According to a White House spokesman, the President has no plans now to appoint a new secretary. He will still fly to Acapulco, Mexico, next week, to visit the president of Mexico.

Eisenhower received word about 9 a.m. that Dulles had reincurred cancer.

Undersecretary of State Christian A. Herter flew back from a South Carolina vacation to take over as acting secretary. He will fill, at least temporarily, one of the most difficult posts in the world.

State Department Press Officer Lincoln White said "no further surgery on Dulles is contemplated. He said radiation therapy will be used in the immediate future.

The finding of free cancer cells was made on the basis of microscopic examination of tissue and fluid taken from Dulles' abdominal region during a hernia operation Friday.

Doctors said the radiation therapy — employing radium, X-ray or use of new radioisotopes developed in the atomic age — will be designed to attack the new outbreak of cancer in the hope of cutting down its spread to other parts of the body.

Nothing was said by either the President or White about the possibility of a resignation by Dulles, who will be 71 Feb. 25.

In the 1956 occurrence, a cancerous portion of Dulles' intestine was removed by Walter Reed surgeons. The malignan-

He Thought He Rescued His Son . . .

CUTTEN, Calif. — (AP) — A three-year-old boy, whom his father thought he had tossed to safety, burned to death in his home here early Saturday.

Firemen found the charred remains of little Glenn Mello in his bedroom.

The father, Frank Mello, told firemen an explosion sent flames racing through the five-room home. He said he ran into Glenn's bedroom and tossed what he tought was his son out a window. Then he and his wife and another son, Frank Jr., jumped out another window.

Firemen, searching for Glenn outside the home, found only a pile of bedclothes.

Fire Destroys Actor's Home

The actor, now star of television's "Have Gun, Will Travel," was in New York with his wife, Claire, and their five-year-old son, Peter. The $50,000 home was unoccupied.

A Tragic Illness

Due to the mechanical intricacies of publishing Sunday's Miami Herald, the Editor's Notebook by John S. Knight was written and printed before the news of the tragic illness of Secretary of State John Foster Dulles.

All the nation admires the courage and fortitude of Mr. Dulles and joins in hopes for his early recovery though his condition may require him to resign.

It is with these thoughts in mind that the reader may turn to the Editor's Notebook on Page 2G where the office of Secretary of State and our foreign policy are discussed in detail.

11 Perish in Flames In Firetrap Building

Nine Hurt Jumping For Life

ASHLAND, Ky. — (UPI) — Eleven persons, including five members of one family, were burned to death early Saturday when flames swept through several small second-story apartments in a converted theater building.

Nine other persons suffered burns and injuries jumping from the upstairs windows of the two-story building. Police, who arrived shortly after the blaze started, helped rescue some of the victims.

Boyd County Coroner Russell Compton identifed the victims as Jack McKenzie, 30, his wife, Polly, 28, whose son was stillborn after she jumped from the building, and their three other sons, Johnny William, one; Mickey Joe, two, and Jackie, four. Firemen said their room had a door but no windows.

Fire department officials said that one of the bodies was incorrectly identified as that of Frank Kirk, Ashland, who lived at the building but was out of town at the time of the fire. The body of the fire victim remained unidentified late Saturday.

Other dead were listed as James E. Powell, 22, of nearby Flatwoods, Ky.; Mrs. Grace Blanton, 45, a cook in a restaurant on the first floor of the building; Frank Artis, about 45; and Clyde May, all of Ashland.

Still hospitalized late Saturday were: John Lucas, 42, Denton, Ky.; Fay Fannon, 17,; Alice Fannon, 19, and John Posey, about 85. They all suffered burns and other injuries. Five other persons were dismissed after treatment.

The building, the old Columbia Vaudeville Theater built in 1891, had only one exit, an inside stairway which was cut off by the flames. Ironically, materials for a fire escape which was to have been installed next week were stored in the rear.

Her Best Valentine: Dad, Brother Alive

ASHLAND, Ky —(AP)— Saturday was the best Valentine's Day ever for Frank Kirk's family.

Identified by relatives as among the 11 dead in Saturday morning's apartment house fire, Kirk, 47, turned up alive in Wayne, W. Va., a few hours later.

So did his 14-year-old son, Jack, who had been listed as missing and feared dead in the fire.

A daughter, Mrs. Jim Barker of Ashland, said, "I can't explain how I felt when I learned that my father was alive and well."

Her husband and Russell Kirk of Ashland, an uncle, had identified a body as that of her father at a temporary morgue.

She said she wanted to make sure of the identification before she could believe it, and had called a cousin, Harold Lee Pelfrey, at Wayne. It was then that she learned her father and brother were safe. They had been visiting Pelfrey since Thursday.

Sweeney Misses; It's $700 Now

By SUNNY FORTUNE
Herald Puzzle Editor

Another week, another $100. That's today's story of the Sunny Fortune Puzzle, now worth $700.

On account of J. M. Sweeney of Homestead, it almost wasn't so. Sweeney wrote "owe" for "own" on last week's game, and as a result, he doesn't own the jackpot.

SUNNY

So Sweeney gets a sunny smile and another chance at the big money, as do the rest of you puzzle fans.

That includes Mrs. E. L. Loftes, also of Homestead, who wants us to put something straight. Remember last week when we mentioned the woman who worked the puzzles secretly so her husbnad wouldn't fuss at her?

Well, it wasn't Mrs. Loftes.

I know she'll be glad we're mentioning this, because she writes, "I am in the dog house. My husband says I wrote you . . . and he is guilty of fussing at me."

Take heart, fussed-at women of South Florida. Someone's got to win sometime, and maybe it'll be you. So grab your pencils, cross your fingers, and turn to Page 12B.

History Repeats-- Bookie Lid's Off

day a reporter sauntered into the lobby of the Dolphin Hotel, in downtown Miami at 937 NE 1st Ave. In the stuffed chairs sat several men, almost all of whom were studying racing forms or odds sheets.

After striking up a conversation with one of the lobby-loungers, the reporter inquired as to where a bet could be made.

"The fellow will be around pretty soon," was the reply.

Within a few minutes "the fellow" — who turned out to be an elevator operator called Harry — came over and offered a racing sheet to the reporter.

Harry then gave a signal: "Follow me."

At a recess of the lobby he candidly acknowledged he took bets — "for friends."

After accepting a $10 bet on the first race at Hialeah he informed the bettor to come back at three o'clock if the horse won.

The horse, a favorite called Skate, obliged by coming in first, paying $3.90 for each $2 wagered.

If your taste runs to fighters as well as horses you can still get action. But let's cross the bay to Miami Beach to do it.

He, in turn, passed it on to short, stubby "Myer the Flyer," who sits at the rear of 540 Washington Ave.

Upstairs in this building is the Washington Literary Society.

The office of the society has been raided twice in the past 13 years for bookmaking, although not in the past two years.

It is the only place in Dade which leases a special sports results teletype from Western Union.

According to the Southern Bell Telephone Co., the telephones in the place were installed on application from Benny Husick, alias Benny Harris, who is currently out on $5,000 bond in an armed robbery case. Husick, alias Harris, has a record of 17 previous arrests.

Early last week a newsman asked Miami Beach Police Lt. C. W. Huddleston, day chief of detectives, about the activities at the club.

"So far as I know, all they run up there are quiet card games," he answered.

These were only a couple a the 12 but we'll come to the rest.

Also, within the last few weeks there have been rumblings of increasing bookmaking and gambling at the elite hotels of Miami Beach.

It was learned that State Attorney Richard Gerstein and Assistant Attorney General George Owen last week paid a call on the owner of one of the Beach's swankiest hotels to advise him to clamp down on horse betting.

How do our top-drawer law enforcement officials view the mounting bookie operations here?

Varying viewpoints were expressed by Gerstein and Dan Sullivan, director of the Greater Miami Crime Commission.

"A concerted effort by this office," declared Gerstein, "in combination with the office of Attorney General Richard Ervin and Metro Public Safety Director Tom Kelly has reduced bookmaking to a minimum in comparison to other years.

"However, I'm convinced we've had our usual influx of winter season bookmakers."

He estimated his office has made 40 gambling arrests since the start of the tourist season.

Said Sullivan:

"In recent days the Crime Commission has received a number of reports the Beach has opened up and that gambling has also opened up in some of the plush oceanfront hotels.

"Investigations to date give credence to at least some of these reports," Sullivan declared.

agent a regular commission fee just as any salesman might receive. The agent does the same with his runner.

At the end of a day's work, an agent cannot welch on his "take" to the bookmaker because he is paid only on what he gets down (bets actually recorded).

Every bet, every "relay" (of heavy wagers), every "tip" (on odds) is passed along from bookie to agent, or from agent to bookie, from a pay telephone booth — either on a business premises or on the street.

"That way," a runner boasted, "the businessman can always plead (to prosecuting law authorities) that the pay phone is essential to his business and would prove a definite hardship if taken out.

"And the funny part about it," the runner said, "since I been down here eight years, the courts always fall for that one."

"You can see," the runner said, "they (bookmakers) could only use their phantom principle if they were all organized.

"It's no hit or miss operation."

Reds Reduce Political Prisoners

NEW YORK — (UPI) — A Harvard law professor said the number of labor camps in the Soviet Union had been cut drastically and that Russia now had about one million prisoners, less than one-third the number prior to Stalin's death.

Prof. Harold J. Berman said on the NBC radio network program, "Image Russia," that less than two per cent of the Russian prisoners were confined for political reasons.

"Hundreds of thousands — and perhaps millions — of people have been released from the camps since Stalin's death," Berman said.

"You can see them in Moscow and talk to them about it. Whole camps have been emptied, and it's probably true that 70 per cent of the labor camps that existed before are no longer in use."

Berman said his information was based on talks with the deputy procurator general of the Soviet Union and other Russian officials. He said he believed he was the only non-Russian who had received this information.

38th Body Out Of East River

NEW YORK — (AP) — The East River Saturday yielded the 38th body from an American Airlines plane crash. The victim was identified tentatively as Gregory MacDonnell, 18-year-old sailor of Pearl River, N.Y.

The crash occurred Feb. 3 as the Electra turbo-prop liner approached LaGuardia field for a landing. Sixty-five persons died. Eight survived.

Wabash Dangers Are Eased

Sandbags Hold; Ice Breaking Up

WEST TERRE HAUTE, Ind. —(AP)— This flood-threatened city came through a crucial test Saturday when the crest of the flooding Wabash River flowed past the town without destroying the sandbag dike holding off its backwaters.

A huge ice jam began breaking up under mild temperatures upstream at Delphi, easing another peril on the storied Wabash. The lower end of the jam began moving downstream in small sections.

The sandbag dike on Sugar Creek was punctured but quickly patched as the flood crest built up early Saturday. But in the hour of greatest crisis, it proved equal to the test.

The Wabash had been expected to reach a depth of 24.3 feet at West Terre Haute early Saturday. Light rain helped raise it to 24.6—10.6 feet above flood stage. It remained stationary for awhile, then by afternoon fell to 24.3, in spite of light rain.

The Indianapolis weather bureau said flood stages were falling from West Terre Haute virtually all the way upstream.

Although the worst crisis appeared to be over for West Terre Haute, a fresh contingent of 125 National Guardsmen and 50 penal farm prisoners was sent in to keep a close watch. When the dike broke, the workers succeeded in plugging up the break before much water poured onto the suburb.

Meanwhile, officials predicted a monumental ice jam upstream from Lafayette, which threatened bridges and homes, might break up "momentarily" or at least with the arrival of a two-foot rise on the Wabash.

Attorney general John W. McConnell and two engineers inspected the 12-mile long ice pack and decided it would not be necessary to dynamite the ice loose.

Latin Lands On March

WASHINGTON — (AP) — If present trends continue, the world's population will swell to nearly 6,300,000,000 persons by the year 2,000 — with the biggest gains coming in Latin America, Asia and Africa.

This was the view reported by Dr. Harold L. Geisert, a George Washington University sociologist, who forecast a world population rise of almost 152 per cent above the 1950 level.

Geisert said his study shows that Latin America is growing more rapidly in population than any other major area.

Maggie Truman Is Expecting

NEW YORK —(UPI)— Clifton Daniel said Saturday he and his wife, the former Margaret Truman, are expecting their second child in June.

Daniel, 46, assistant to the managing editor of The New York Times, said his wife, who will be 35 next Tuesday, was in "fine" condition.

Daniel and the daughter of former President Harry S. Truman were married April 21, 1956. They are the parents of a son, Clifton Truman Daniel, 18 months.

cy was reported effectively checked.

"While I was with him," the President said, "his doctors discussed with us their finding of the existence of malignancy not fully determined at this time as to its extent, but certain to require further treatment."

He added that he "expressed the thoughts and prayers of all of us that the results of this operation and the further course of treatment will be successful."

The chief executive's statement was read to newsmen by Assistant White House Press Secretary Anne Wheaton.

White reported Dulles was "in good spirits" after the hernia operation. He said "a small nodular implant on the hernia sac" was removed.

"This nodule proved to be an adenocarcinoma on microscopical examination," White continued. "The fluid evacuated at surgery contained free cells on cytological examination.

"No further surgery is contemplated. In the immediate future radiation therapy will be used."

White said Dulles' doctors expect he will have to remain at the hospital "for several weeks." He declined to speculate on the outlook for the ailing secretary beyond that or the course of treatment.

Sosa Blanco Gets Break

HAVANA, Cuba — (AP) — The death sentence against ex-Maj. Jesus Sosa Blanco was set aside Saturday and he was granted a new trial.

Sosa Blanco had been condemned Jan. 23 on war crimes charges.

He was tried in Havana's sports palace in the first major showcase trial in the capital.

The new trial was granted by the same military tribunal that tried him in the sports palace. His new trial was set for 10 a.m. Monday before a superior war crimes tribunal.

At his first trial the 51-year-old career army officer was convicted on charges of murdering at least 25 persons, robbery, looting and burning homes of rebel sympathizers in Oriente Province.

Dulles' Cancer Can Be Controlled for Years

time the colon cancer was removed in 1956, some small portions of it may still have remained, involving lymphatic glands neighboring on the original cancer site.

And ultimately, they said, the cells apparently spread to the new site.

The doctors said that while the outlook in cases of adenocarcinoma is ultimately grave, the further spread of the cancer can be kept under control for several years in many instances.

They said control involves such measures as X-ray and chemotherapy. This includes the use of certain drugs derived from nitrogen mustard, a war gas developed during World War I. One of the most effective of these nitrogen mustards is one called "thiotepa."

Another medical treatment for adenocarcinoma involves injection of radioactive gold into the abdominal cavity.

One person was asked whether the presence of adenocarcinoma would be compatible with a return to duty in such a job as secretary of state. The doctor said it would be all right, provided activity were limited largely to desk work, with no "long periods of strenuous activity."

And he offered the view that there should be "no prolonged worldwide travel." Dulles has been making numerous long trips in his job.

The doctor said that in some cases of the disease, daily treatment with X rays is required. In such cases, he said, it is well to stay close to a source of such treatment.

Now Listen To This, You Unwed Gals

LOS ANGELES — (AP) — If you're a gal who hasn't yet caught a man, hear this advice from a professional marriage counselor:

1—Make your target feel important, stimulating and understood.

2—Be physically attractive, but don't count on that quality to take you all the way to the altar.

3—Have motivation — really want a husband.

Dr. Richard H. Klemer, associate general director of the American Institute of Family Relations, offered the advice in an interview.

After you've caught the prospect's eye, Dr. Klemer suggests, "use your addicting power' — the ability to respond to the real needs of the other person.

Warm Weather Dominates Florida; Snow Blankets New England

National Summary

Cloudy skies and showers will persist across the Gulf region through the weekend except for fair and warm weather over the Florida peninsula. Rain in the Atlantic states and southern Appalachians is likely to end following the invasion of colder air.

Freezing rain mixed with snow over portions of New York and New England should change to flurries today. Scattered snow showers are expected over the northern Rockies and plateau and snow is scheduled from the Dakotas into Minnesota today, while a mixture of snow and rain continues in the Pacific northwest.

Heavy wind driven rain is indicated for northern and central California today, with substantial snow fall anticipated in the mountains and some rain may move into southern parts of the state today.

A disturbance moving across the Great Lakes region Saturday was followed by cooler air which scattered snow flurries from the Dakotas and Nebraska into the upper Mississippi Valley and cleared most of the wet weather out of the lower plains.

The cold front was marked by showers from east Texas into Indiana at mid-day while mild air over the southeast yielded occasional rain and temperatures in the 60's as far north as Kentucky and the Carolinas.

Terminal To Open March 1

By ART ROBINSON
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — Airline operations from the new terminal building at Broward County International Airport will start about March 1, Lee Wagener, county aviation director, announced Saturday.

Mackey and Northeast Airlines will move into their spaces in the terminal in advance of the opening, he said. Space also is being held for National Airlines and Aerovias Q, a Cuban airline which has been authorized to fly between here and Havana.

When National and Q move in, all of the space will be gone—there will be none left for Eastern Air Lines which has failed to apply for any although it was granted permission to operate from the field, along with Northeast and National.

Mackey has taken three ticket spaces. The building was designed to add more airline spaces as they are needed. A patio was left for this purpose between the main building and a wing housing Immigration, Customs and the Health Service.

National has applied to the Civil Aeronautics Board to include West Palm Beach on flights which stop at Broward International. National announced Saturday that it will not inaugurate service here until the CAB rules on the application.

At present, all three major airlines are barred from serving cities south of Washington under the exemption order which authorized them to serve Broward International.

Wagener said the airport building is nearly completed. The divided parkway leading into the field from Federal Hwy. should be finished this week, he said. Work on it was delayed by rain.

The Union News Co. which holds the concession for the restaurant and lounge, is completing that part of the building, which will not be ready when the rest of it is.

Wagener said a dedication ceremony will be held after the entire building is completed and landscaped. No date has been set.

'Didn't Mean to Shoot'

Manslaughter Charges Filed

FORT LAUDERDALE—Cornell Worthy, 21, quoted as saying "I didn't know the gun was loaded," was arrested Saturday for a fatal shooting on Friday the 13th.

Detective Lt. Russ Franza said Worthy, 620 NW Ninth Ave., will be charged with manslaughter in the death of Cleo Roosevelt Henry, 21. Henry lived at 435 NW Fifth Ave. He was shot in the stomach at the Windsor Club on NW Fifth Ave. about 7:30 p.m. Friday.

Police said a witness quoted the man firing the shot as saying: "I didn't know the gun was loaded; I didn't mean to shoot you."

The witness told police there was no quarrel involved in the shooting. Worthy was picked up in Pompano Beach.

Petition Filed

HALLANDALE — A mandamus petition to force city approval of a plat for a proposed housing site the city wants for a sewer plant, has been filed in Circuit Court.

Circuit Judge Richard M. Sauls set a Feb. 27 deadline for a city reply to the action, brought by Gulfstream Realty Corp., owner of the tract.

The City Commission refused to accept the plat last week and ordered the city attorney to institute condemnation proceedings against the realty firm.

It was reported erroneously Saturday that Judge Sauls "rapped" the commission for not accepting the plat.

11 Qualified In Margate Council Race

Herald Bureau

MARGATE — The qualifying deadline for candidates in the March 17 municipal elections passed Saturday, with a total of 11 persons seeking six elective offices.

The entire five-seat council, and mayor's position, are up for election. Only two incumbents, Mayor Victor Semet and Councilman William Roll are seeking reelection.

Three men and one woman are vying for the two two-year terms; five men are seeking three four-year terms, and two are trying for the two-year mayor's term.

Mayor Semet, a real estate broker, is being challenged for his position by Col. John C. Lentz, a retired paratrooper.

Former City Clerk Mrs. Ray Giroux, Max Markel, a retired insurance executive; Charles Bauer, a tile setter, and James McLean, a plumber, are trying for the two short-term positions.

Roll, a publicity and advertising executive, is seeking a four-year term. He is being contested for the three seats by Herbert Jacques, a painter; Howard A. Davis, a plasterer; Gilbert C. Wyland, lawn maintenance; and Louis B. Scheller, retired.

Voters who have not yet registered, have until March 2, when the registration books will close.

Vote Error Explained

Herald Bureau

POMPANO BEACH — City Clerk Mrs. Winifred Sharp asserted Saturday that Mrs. Easter Gates, Broward supervisor of registration, was in no way responsible for the Tuesday primary election error.

"Some persons have the impression I was trying to place the blame on her," Mrs. Sharp explained. "Mrs. Gates set up the machines exactly as they had been in the last municipal election."

Earlier in the week the city commission voted to void the election because there was no write-in space provided on the voting machines, as called for in the charter. The action was later rescinded, however.

2 Fliers Killed in Glades

By ED PFISTER
Herald Bureau Chief

LAKE WORTH — Two Lake Worth businessmen were found dead Saturday in the wreckage of an airplane they rented 24 hours earlier at Lantana Airport "to do some sightseeing and take pictures."

The victims were identified as:

Charles T. Robinson, 39, of 1221 Reo Lane, owner of Robinson's Drugstore there, a veteran flier and World War II veteran who piloted the ship.

Thomas K. Evans, 29, Carlton Rd., a contractor and former constable who figured in a long drawn out suit over election expenditures.

A Coast Guard helicopter was used in lifting the bodies out of the wreckage in a swampy and wooded area of the Everglades 14 miles northwest of Boynton Beach.

Sheriff's deputies Bob Day and Sam Quincey, said only a helicopter or a swamp buggy could gain access to the swampy morass where the airplane crashed.

The deputies said it appeared as if a wing of the ship had struck a tree about 30 feet off the ground, flipping the plane over on its back and plunging it into two feet of water and muck.

The wing tip was torn off, and the engine was ripped off the front of the plane.

Day said both bodies were in the airplane when the helicopter and swamp buggies reached the tangled area of the crash.

The bodies were flown to International Airport in West Palm Beach and were removed to the E. Earl Smith and Son Funeral Home in Lake Worth.

International Air Service at Lantana Airport said Robinson and Evans appeared there about 1 p.m. Friday and rented the ship. Robinson was quoted as saying they wanted to do some sightseeing and take pictures with a movie camera they had along.

They took off in the rented four-place Cessna about 1:30 p.m., the air service said, with fuel for five hours flying time. The ship was radio equipped but the tower here had no record of contact with the plane.

Capt. Glenn Snyder, of the CAP, spotted the wrecked plane before noon Saturday in the isolated area of the Everglades west of State Rd. 7 and directed rescue squads to the scene.

Judge Didn't Seek Post

Herald Bureau

POMPANO BEACH — The Herald has learned that William D. Sanders, appointed Municipal Judge by the city commission Thursday, was not one of the 12 applicants for the job.

His selection came, presumably, because the commission was not "satisfied" with any of the dozen applicants who were interviewed last Monday.

When queried on the appointment, Vice Mayor Alice Lindner, who cast the lone dissenting vote for Sanders' appointment, admitted that was the basic reason.

"I don't believe it fair to those who had taken the trouble to apply for the job, and be interviewed," Mrs. Lindner said.

Board Shrugs Off 'Integrate' Advice

Pressure Not 'Felt' --Parrish

By PETER LAINE
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — School Board members had deaf ears Saturday for Gov. LeRoy Collins' warning that the National Association for Advancement of Colored People will dictate integration terms unless plans for token classroom mixing are made now.

The NAACP will determine through court action "where, when and how" integration will be accomplished, Collins predicted last week, unless local authorities act.

Chairman Wesley Parrish said: "I've never felt any indication that anyone here wants to integrate. I think all the parties concerned will talk the situation over before anything happens."

The board's target of equal facilities througout the county should certainly be attained by 1960, he said.

John Calvin commented: "That's a bridge we must cross when we come to it."

"I've heard no dissatisfied comments on the school system," he added. "Schools and equipment are the same all over the county."

"Four years ago the school system was sick, Calvin declared. "We've done miracles, though we must do a lot more."

H. Don Moore warned against overlooking the possibility of future integration.

"But doing anything immediately might create a situation more detrimental to education than a forceful court order," he said.

Mrs. Virginia Young said she had nothing to add to Parrish's comment.

Dean Dessenberger noted that "Our local situation is much better than some other counties because of the understanding of the people here."

Explaining that he was appointed by the governor, he added: "I don't want to take any reaction to his statement."

Broward's school construction program, designed to serve population centers, has warded off integration arguments that have arisen elsewhere.

This Is Rustic Cap's Place
. . . 'people are jealous,' owner claims

'It's a Lot of Foolishness,' But Cap Knight to Sanitize

By DUANE JONES
Herald Staff Writer

POMPANO BEACH — The old sea captain leaned back in his rocking chair, wiggled his toes, and drawled:

"Just a lot of damned foolishness. That's all it is."

The utterance came from 85-year-old E. T. Knight, owner of Cap's Place, a rustic seafood restaurant situated on an island in the Intracoastal Waterway here.

Cap had just been told by the Florida Hotel and Restaurant Commission that his place would be closed if he didn't install some modern plumbing, replace a few pilings and repair a wooden walkway.

The Spanish-American War veteran blamed his troubles on "people who are jealous of me and my place.

"They want me to run my soapsuds through a septic tank," Cap said. "That's a lot of nonsense."

He didn't mention complaints of nearby residents who have accused him of dumping garbage into the waterway, and he didn't want to dwell on his run-in with the hotel and restaurant board.

"Everything is all right now," Cap said. "They told me what to do and I'm going to do it."

Then he changed the subject and started talking about his new haircut.

"How do you like it?" he asked. "Got it yesterday. First time I was off the island in a year. Hardly recognized the old town."

Then he asked about a Miami banker with whom he had attended school in Cocoa.

"Never see the fellow anymore. I went to sea and he went into the banking business. That was 72 years ago. A nice chap."

Barefooted and clad in bib overalls, Cap rocked contentedly in his restaurant kitchen, nearly oblivious to busy cooks and waitresses rushing about the place.

Business is good, he said, but not what it was 20 years ago.

"The food's the same —the best in the world — but we don't get the big spenders we did in the old days," Cap lamented.

Asked if he still had his gambling casino, Cap blushed and replied:

"No, those days are gone too. Good food, good whisky and good service. That's all we have anymore."

Raiders Book Man

Herald Bureau

POMPANO BEACH — James Sharkey, 62, was arrested Saturday night on charges of bookmaking and attempted bribery.

Sharkey of 36 NE 19th Ave. was booked on the two charges after three Pompano officers raided a sundry store he operates at 3432 Atlantic Blvd.

"Two Fort Lauderdale detectives, working with us on the case, placed bets at the store Saturday afternoon," said Detective Sgt. George Decker, who led the raid.

Decker said he has been investigating Sharkey for about a month. "Several days ago Sharkey tried to bribe me in connection with the case," the detective said.

Decker said he, Detective John Hovey and Officer Mike Marinelli entered the establishment about 7 p.m. with a search warrant.

AFL-CIO Now Shies From Expulsion of 'Bad Boys'

AFL-CIO officials are trying to use compromise technique rather than expelling unions which fail to oust corrupt leaders. Federation's leaders fear expulsion is weakening labor movement, might create a rival labor movement.

Best deterrent to future labor corruption may be fact that many union leaders are shocked at extent of McClellan Committee's exposures. However, McClellan believes unions can't do clean-up job themselves, that effective legislation is required.

Meany
. . . tries persuasion

By NORMAN WALKER
AP Labor Writer

NEW YORK—Organized labor seems to be dealing more gingerly nowadays with union bad boys caught raiding the cookie jar.

Leaders of America's big union federation, the AFL-CIO, are steering clear of the drastic type of punishment meted out when Dave Beck and the Teamsters Union were exiled from the rest of labor.

In San Juan, Puerto Rico, AFL-CIO chiefs of the federation's policy-making Executive Council open their winter sessions Monday. On the agenda is a batch of new union scandals dished up by the McClellan Labor Rackets Committee.

Two of the unions involved in new disclosures are the carpenters and Sheet Metal Workers, both key organizations in the AFL-CIO's internal structure.

George Meany, AFL-CIO president, has been experimenting with a sort of woodshed technique in dealing with corruption. It amounts to trying to get unions to correct malpractices and oust corrupt leaders without expelling them from the AFL-CIO.

Federation leaders are fed up with ouster as a remedy. They feel it hasn't solved anything particularly in the three unions already expelled — the Teamsters, Laundry Workers and Bakery Workers. They say it has merely reduced AFL-CIO membership and effectiveness.

"What are we supposed to do—dismantle the labor movement?" one AFL-CIO vice president asked irritably.

"After all, the employers haven't ostracized the Teamsters. They are still doing business with Jimmy Hoffa, and the old CIO kicked out Harry Bridges' West Coast Longshoremen back in 1950 as Commie-dominated, but employers have kept right on dealing with Bridges."

Reminded that trucking and shipping employers are compelled by law to deal with these unions as the legal bargaining agents for their employes, this union leader said, "Well, they don't have to be so enthusiastic about it, do they?"

The trouble with Meany's woodshed method—bringing in a scandal-tainted union's leaders and telling them what they have to do to clean up—is that success depends upon just how much the recalcitrant union is willing to be punished. This leads to compromise.

In fact, the sole AFL-CIO power to police is affiliated unions is the same as in most any other organization. Expulsion is the only weapon if persuasion won't work. Unions realize this, and the bigger ones won't yield an inch.

This seems to be the case in the Carpenters Union. Its president, Maurice (Little Hutch) Hutcheson, is under indictment in an Indiana highway land scandal. He has refused to answer Senate Rackets Committee questions about union spending.

Moreover, one of Hutcheson's fellow Carpenters officials, Charles Johnson of New York, has, according to McClellan Committee testimony, received along with three relatives nearly $450,000 in union salaries and expenses in the three-year 1955-57 period.

Meany has tried the woodshed technique on Hutcheson in a series of secret conferences. But Hutcheson reportedly just isn't buying Meany's reform suggestions, including a proposal that Hutcheson take a leave of absence pending the outcome of his Indiana trial.

Hutcheson, an AFL-CIO vice president and Executive Council member, has been invited for a second time to appear before the council to explain what he wouldn't tell the McClellan Committee.

In response to the first invitation last fall, Hutcheson merely sent a written reply saying he'd done nothing wrong.

A second snub would present the AFL-CIO with a delicate problem. It plainly would call for ousting the 850,000-member Carpenters organization, which has also refused to adopt the AFL-CIO ethical practices codes. Hutcheson's union has authorized him to pull the Carpenters out of the AFL-CIO.

If the Carpenters quit the federation, other building trades unions may follow suit. The building trades, core of the old AFL, are boiling anyway in a renewal of their ancient feud over job jurisdiction rights with the industrial unions of the old CIO.

AFL-CIO leaders fear that ousting the Carpenters could throw them into an alliance with the Teamsters, the expelled Bakery Workers and other ousted unions and set up a potent rival labor center, or union federation. Such a dual federation would start out with about 2½ million members compared with the AFL-CIO's estimated 14 million.

Hutcheson
. . . snubs reform call

All this doesn't mean that many positive accomplishments haven't been made in ridding unions of gangster and hoodlum influences and plain and fancy stealing of members' dues money. Much has been done.

For one thing, "the heat is on," meaning that for the present, anyway, the fast buck out of a union treasury is no only unpopular but unhealthy. The AFL-CIO has accepted a complex set of ethical practice codes—spelling out stealing, graft, shakedown, conflicts of interest, etc. that can't be tolerated.

Probably the greatest deterrent to future labor corruption, however, is the fact that many union leaders report themselves shocked at the extent of the disclosures. Meany—sometimes called the "honest plumber"—says he knew there was some funny business all along, but never dreamed of its extent.

Actually, many students of labor unions feel the movement is just reaching a state of maturity. Unions didn't amount to much even so short a time as a quarter century ago. Now they have a lot more members, a lot more power and influence, and a lot more funds at their disposal.

Responsible union leaders look upon clean unionism as a public concern; they know they are more than just fraternal clubs now.

Sen. McClellan says he doesn't think anyone is satisfied with progress unions are making in handling corruption problems.

He believes effective legislation is required. The senator adds, "and until the Congress meets its responsibility by the enactment of laws that are necessary, these (corrupt) conditions will continue to prevail in many areas of labor-management relations."

Russians Stamp Claims Victory

LONDON — (UPI) — The Soviet Union has issued a postage stamp in honor of a basketball championship it never won.

Radio Moscow said a new one-ruble stamp was dedicated to the Soviet victory at Santiago, Chile. The announcer said the Soviet team took the championship by defeating the U. S. team on Jan. 28.

What really happened at Santiago was that, after defeating the U.S., Russia was disqualified for refusing to play against the Chinese Nationalist team. The Russians argued that the team from Formosa represented no nation.

Golden 'Bullet' Aims at Gland

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia — (AP) — A Czechoslovak doctor claims to have developed a less dangerous method of removing the pituitary gland by using radioactive gold.

The official CTK news agency explained that the gland attached to the brain has been found to have an important effect on some types of cancer, and that its removal in such cases relieves pain and prolongs life.

The agency said the Prof. Josef Pavrovsky, of Prague's First Surgical Institute, injects a grain of radioactive gold into the gland with a special surgical pistol, stopping the functioning of the gland

Doctors Nod Agreement to Legislative Curb

Officials Wake Up to Dangers of Hypnosis

By GREG TAYLOR
Herald Staff Writer

The use of hypnosis is growing in Broward County. And concern over this fact is growing among Broward doctors and government officials.

This wide-eyed look at the uses of induced sleep might lead to legislation to tighten control over practitioners of hypnosis.

Hypnosis isn't new. The form of mind control was known before the foundations of the pyramids were laid.

About six months ago the American Medical Association approved medical uses of hypnosis. A spokesman for the Broward County Medical Association said:

"We are aware of the problem and started a study of local uses of hypnosis about a week ago."

"Practice of hypnosis is increasing in the county," Mrs. Homer Davis, veteran employe of the County Licensing Department, said. "Just a few days ago a man inquired about a license to teach doctors and dentists how to use hypnosis."

Mrs. Davis said persons who teach hypnosis are given occupational licenses under a section covering private teaching.

"Hypnotists who deal directly with the public come under the section for fortunetellers," she said.

Teachers pay a fee of $15.25. The charge for other hypnotists is $150. "No test for competence is required in either category," she said.

In its requests to the local legislative delegation for law changes, the County Commission asked that the section to grant fortuneteller licenses be abolished.

George Petersen, commission chairman, said, "The commission is asking the whole section be struck down. But we are particularly interested in barring fortunetellers and the like from the county," he said.

"We understand hypnosis is becoming used in medicine and hope the Legislature will write a new law setting up stricter licensing of hypnotists."

The general feeling among physicians and psychologists is that hypnosis is "good in the right hands" but can be abused.

The AMA, which vigorously condemns hypnosis for entertainment purposes, has ruled that it is valuable as a means of therapy for general practitioners, specialists and dentists.

"It should be stressed that all those who use hypnosis need to be aware of the complex nature of the phenomena," the AMA ruling reads.

A clinical psychologist says, "In my opinion those who practice hypnosis should have more than an occupational license. They should at least be certified psychologists working with physicians."

He said, "During the process of hypnosis, emotional disturbances may be experienced by the patient and the person giving the hypnosis must be able to treat those disturbances."

A spokesman for the Broward Psychological Association said that group "has no control over who uses hypnosis."

Russell W. Brendle, a self-educated hypnotist, said he is aware that the practice can be abused.

Brendle, licensed by the county, said, "I'm doing a good thing and I'd like to continue. I'm helping people."

Brendle offered what he called proof that he had cured a real estate saleswoman who couldn't talk freely, and a man who for many years was an alcoholic.

The hypnotist said, "I use hypnosis to induce relaxation of the mind and body and develop a condition so that the subconscious mind will respond to suggestions."

He's 'Dashing' Around World On Ribbon in His Typewriter

By FRAN LASLIE
Herald Staff Writer

WEST HOLLYWOOD — Slowly, painstakingly, one hand guiding the other, Paul Smith creates a world of art out of dots and dashes.

Through the ribbon of a typewriter he travels to foreign lands, fashions protraits of celebrities, and catches the image of animals.

Bending over the machine, his eyes sparkling bright as the Florida sun, Paul uses one finger to tap out a picture.

The fluid lines and shadows suggest the touch of a skilled artist, with a sharp pencil.

By grit and determination he devised his unique art and a new life for himself.

Keen on current events and with a sure knowledge of opera, he converses through his mother in sounds understandable only to her.

The typewriter ribbon, an emblem of toil to many, has become his main link with society.

"He says to tell you, however, that he is no slouch at chess either," said his mother, a tiny white-haired woman whose voice rings with merriment.

Paul nodded, smiling.

"He's won three first prizes this year," she said.

A cheerful air fills their home like a singing tea kettle.

But far more than words, Paul's handicraft reveals the personality of an amazing young man.

There is not a sad face in his art gallery. No tragic scenes. No weird modernistic interpretations. No signs of bitterness.

"Paul originated his technique at 14. Copies of his work have gone to Franklin Roosevelt, Harry Truman, President Eisenhower and many TV stars," his mother said.

Limited himself, Paul's love of activity springs to life with scenes of bullfights, steamships, gondolas and famous buildings of far away lands.

While his work continues to bring comment, Paul recently won what may be his greatest battle against the odds.

Since his birth, his mother had been told he would be a helpless cripple for life.

But 36-year-old Paul refused to accept this, just as he refused to smother his talent.

Shortly after his family moved to West Hollywood from Philadelphia, a longtime effort paid off — he took a few steps, aided by a cane.

"I may run yet," he says with a laugh — through his mother.

FORT LAUDERDALE — A change in the administration of the state's "moving violation" law was proposed Saturday by Municipal Judge John W. Douglass.

DOUGLASS

Present administration of the law "finds defendants guilty and imposes a sentence from which there is no appeal before they have a day in court," the judge said.

The law provides for a three-month revocation of the license of a driver who is convicted of three moving violations within a year.

Driving is nearly a necessity these days," the judge said. "A man who is to be deprived of the right to drive should have a chance to defend himself."

Douglass contends that a driver who has been convicted three times should receive notice to appear before a state-appointed judge to show cause why his license should not be taken away.

The state law says the revocation shall become effective without preliminary hearing after three "hazardous, moving violations."

"That implies a judicial inquiry to determine what is hazardous," the judge said.

"Now all they have is clerks in Tallahassee who can count to three. A man could have his license revoked for being convicted of having loud mufflers, screeching his tires and violating a stop sign."

The judge continued: "Under the present law, the sentence cannot be appealed until after the punishment is inflicted. Theoretically a clerical mistake could deprive an innocent man of his right to drive if his name were the same as a man convicted of three offenses."

Douglass said defendants in moving violation cases also should have an opportunity to convince a court that deprivation of their licenses would cause a hardship.

"The law works a hardship on those who drive for a living," he said. "Anyone who drives all the time is that much more likely to violate ordinances, sometimes unknowingly."

Judge Douglass has stopped sending notification of the third violation to Tallahassee from his court if the driver's previous record shows no accidents, convictions for reckless driving or willful violation of the law.

Dairies Filling Cash Pail

By CLARENCE ZAITZ
North Broward Bureau

Dairy farming continues to be the biggest money contributor to Broward County's agriculture economy, accounting for an estimated $13,468,400 of the total $28,806,400 produced in 1958 by the county's agricultural activity.

Yet there were only 31 dairy farms in the county, compared with the 110 vegetable farms which accounted for $4,800,000 during the year.

Vegetable production had long been the leading moneymaker in the county, until overtaken in total dollar volume by the dairy industry in 1956.

The dollar value of the vegetable crop has steadily decreased from a high of sixteen million dollars in 1952 and 1953, to last year's $4,800,000.

Agriculture's contribution to the county' economy has decreased only slightly from the high point of 1955, when it amounted to $30,721,000.

Farm land has not been rapidly displaced in recent years. In 1958, an estimated 15 per cent of Broward's total area was devoted to farming, which is near the 17.9 per cent peak reached' in 1950.

The number of dairy farms dropped from 111 in 1950, to 85 in 1958, but the number of cattle increased from 13,728 head to 28,079, in the same period.

There are fewer poultry farms (35 compared with 85) than in 1950, but they account for a larger slice of the agricultural economy, with $1,100,000 of volume in 1958, compared with 1950's $489,049.

Here's how Broward's estimated $28,806,400 worth of income from agricultural activities in 1958 is broken down, according to estimates by Broward Agricultural Agent Robert Pryor:

Vegetables, $4,800,000; dairy, $13,468,400; citrus, $2,200,000; beef, $600,000; sod, $3,010,000; nursery, $3,200,000; poultry; $1,100,000; swine, $20,000; tropical fruits, $8,000; miscellaneous, $400,000.

Teacher Selling Shoes So He Can Sell History

By FRAN LASLIE
Herald Staff Writer

HOLLYWOOD — John Clark sells history by day and shoes by night.

The father of five, who instructs South Broward High School students on fine points of world events, also knows when they're on their toes — sartorially.

To supplement his income, the versatile educator began alternating between classroom and shoe store four years ago.

"Currently, teens go for these oxfords with no tongues," said the merry-eyed teacher as he rattled off shoe styles as rapidly as he chronicles history.

Clark is one among hundreds of South Broward teachers who are becoming masters of strikingly unrelated subjects in a battle to boost their wages.

Place a bet at the dog track, have your car parked at jai alai, order a meal in a restaurant and you may find the attendant is a school master or marm.

"If a man wants to teach and to have a family he must hold down two jobs," Clark said.

"I tried to get along without an extra job for six months last year. It couldn't be done," he added.

Other of the moonlighters, shy about their part-time trades, feared a rising hue and cry if their sidelines were aired.

Take the dog track for example.

"You can earn from $12 to $14 a night during the season — as a parimutual operator — but we don't talk about those jobs," said one teacher who preferred not to be quoted.

Another waits tables at a local restaurant but, "I'm afraid some officials might object if I talked about it," she said.

However, Clark stoutly defends a teacher's right to work at two jobs.

"I don't believe there is a man among us who wouldn't be happy to quit his second job and devote more time to school work and his family life — if he could afford it."

As for the Florida senator who recently proposed outlawing outside occupations for teachers, Clark commented:

"He'd lose a lot of teachers unless he raised our salaries. It's nobody's business what we do after school as long as we're honest and above board," he said.

However his shift from head to footwork has not been without its problems.

At first, some parents and students were inclined to detail school problems when he knelt to fit their feet.

Otherwise he has experienced little difficulty in adjusting to the dual role.

"If you can teach, you can sell," he said.

Glass Flew . . . 'I Can't See'

Little League Vision Dims for Roger, 10

By AL BURT
Broward Bureaus Chief

FORT LAUDERDALE — Ten-year-old Roger Scholten is wondering about his chances to make the Little League now.

This season was going to be his big chance.

The trouble is, when a right-handed batter lines up at the plate to hit, he needs a good left eye to see a pitcher's fast ball.

And Roger no longer has a good left eye.

He and a buddy, 11-year-old Randy Bell, got together Monday afternoon and collected some soft drink bottles to sell at a local grocery store.

They decided to throw away the bottles which couldn't be sold. But one bottle slipped, and broke, and pieces of glass flew.

It didn't hurt much, and it didn't bleed, but he couldn't see.

He ran home. "I've got a piece of glass in my eye," he told his mother.

She rushed him to Broward General Hospital, and three hours later an emergency operation was performed.

The pupil was shattered, and the doctor had to suture it together. It will leave Roger with a crescent-shaped pupil, and an upright scar.

"We thought at first he might lose his eye," Bernie Scholten, Roger's father, said. The Scholtens live at 900 SE Sixth Ct.

"The doctor said we can only hope for partial vision, but we're putting our trust in the Lord to help us."

Roger, who goes to Bethany Christian School, will get the doctor's verdict by Monday or Tuesday, when he will be released from the hospital.

"He's a good kid," Mr. Scholten, who has two other children, said. "He's worried about baseball, right now. You know, he's a righthanded batter, and he'll need that eye at the plate.

"He'll miss a scout trip this weekend, too.

"But that's just part of it. His life will be changed in a hundred small ways. We're just lucky he's got that other good eye.

"Kids," he said wearily, shaking his head. "You tell them and tell them, and you think they listen.

"Then, the next thing you know, something like this happens."

Boulevard Woes Branch Out

POMPANO BEACH — You just can't please all the public all the time.

The City Commission is more aware of that than ever.

You see, at long last the four-laning of Atlantic Blvd. has been completed, and the landscaping begun.

And therein lies the controversy.

The landscape architect provided for the planting of cabbage palms in the center strip of the boulevard.

One man is so firm in his convictions, he has offered to pay $500 toward the cost of planting royal palm trees.

Wanted by Solicitor: More Cash, Attorneys

By PETER LAINE
Herald Staff Writer

Tom Coker
. . . 'fee basis antiquated'

FORT LAUDERDALE — Some legislative proposal to change the financial setup of the county solicitor's office is due this year, but incumbent Tom Coker isn't sure yet what it will be.

Hard pressed by an ever-increasing workload for a numerically inadequate staff, Coker said he'll have to take time out to study the problem from all angles.

He told the County Commission recently that he urgently needs at least two more prosecuting attorneys. There are now four in the office.

Coker and his chief assistant, Wallace Allbritton, handle criminal court trials. Two other assistants, Doug Lambeth and Bob Adams, perform Court of Crimes duties.

Last year each prosecutor had to cope with an average of more than 50 cases each week. Many cases require elaborate preparation.

The office now operates mainly on a fee basis which Coker terms "antiquated." Most officials agree with him.

For convictions or guilty pleas, it receives $6.25 and $15 respectively in Court of Crimes and Criminal Court. It gets nothing for acquittals.

In 1957 the State Legislature authorized the County Commission to pay the solicitor's office up to $17,000 annually. It has been getting $13,200.

Coker, who is asking for the top amount, said: "I'm no nearer getting the two new lawyers. I intend to propose some legislation."

The alternatives are raising the fees or putting the office on a budget system.

Coker doesn't like the fee system, but fears that a budget might have strings attached.

"The office must be independent," he declared. "Im a Democrat and the County Commission is Republican. Now we get along fine, but election changes might bring conflicts."

Coker got ideas from other prosecutors at their state meeting in Tampa last weekend. He also discussed the topic of preliminary hearings which recently arose here.

"The prosecutors I talked to handle their cases the same way we do," he said.

The absence of preliminary hearings here was vigorously attacked by Ray Sandstrom, former assistant solicitor. Sandstrom has since said he is against any more money for the solicitor's office until it follows the statute on hearings.

Coker said that his office will continue to issue capiases instead of holding hearings "for the time being."

X-Ray Unit Appeals to Farmers

FORT LAUDERDALE — Broward County farmers were asked Saturday to cooperate with tuberculosis officials conducting a mass X-ray campaign among migrant laborers here.

Mrs. Vera Bozzi, director of the County TB Association, said the response hasn't been as great as she had hoped.

"We're averaging about 100 persons a night," she added. "We've had trouble with our equipment, but it's corrected now and we can step up the program if the people come forth."

The two mobile units will be west of Pompano Beach and Deerfield Beach this week. Hours are 7 to 9 p.m.

Mrs. Bozzi said results from chest X-rays and blood tests taken last week should be available in a few days.

The campaign is to run through Feb. 27.

Students Earn Refund Instead Of 'A' in Class

By GREG TAYLOR
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — Broward County school officials have recently turned down a chance for a handout from the federal treasury.

But for many years they've made sure Broward students know how to make tax payments to Uncle Sam.

"Teaching how to fill out federal income tax returns has been part of our math courses for about five years," said Arthur Wolfe, assistant superintendent for instruction.

Math, incidentally, would have been one of the courses to benefit from the offer of $15,000 in federal aid.

C. S. Van Arsdall, math teacher at Fort Lauderdale High, said the students "put it right to use on their own tax returns.

"It's taught mainly in the business math courses to students who will go right to work after graduation."

Robert Senior, another math teacher at LHS, has taught a number of the classes getting income tax instruction. He is a tax consultant on the side.

"We take up each step on the form, such as deductions and dependents. Then they get a test at the end of the instruction," Sentor explained.

The test is to complete a form with a set of facts and figures given the student.

"They take the test home and come back with questions about their parents' problems. We have long discussions. It's very interesting."

Senior also said the students who work, fill out their own personal forms. "They send 'em right in."

This year, some 600 pupils at LHS received the instruction over a two to three-week period. Most of them finished the tax study Thursday.

The Internal Revenue Service provides the teaching aids. IRS sends the teachers instruction kits which undoubtedly contain a passage on where to send the money.

Park Meter Take Shows Red Flag

During the month, meters provided $1,284; a year ago, $2,075.

William Gunn, assistant city manager, attributes the drop in meter revenue to the displacement of meters along Atlantic Blvd. during construction, and the addition of more off-street parking during the year.

Meter violation receipts jumped from $64 a year ago, to $110 in January. Gunn said that was the result of additional personnel in the Police Department, and closer supervision of meters.

Fines and forfeitures in Municipal Court amounted to $3,218 in January. A year ago the total was $2,295.

Extinguisher Lesson Good

By RICK TUTTLE
Hollywood Bureau Chief

THE FIRE DEPARTMENT'S practice of going into the schools to teach students how to use fire extinguishers is excellent.

I don't recall ever being told while in school—by a fireman or anyone else—how to use a fire extinguisher.

When I was in school, we just had the fire drills and I learned:

How to pull the pigtails of the blonde in front of me—without getting caught (unless I wanted to).

How to conceal a miniature harmonica in my mouth and blow it as we marched outside—without getting caught.

But I was never told how to use a fire extinguisher.

It's a good thing to know.

I've never had any cause to use the tricks I did learn.

Fletch Can Give Babe the Bird

FLETCH, the tippling Miramar parakeet, has a competitor.

Her name is Babe.

The 11-year-old Pawtuckett, R.I., canary is sort of a minor-leaguer compared to Fletch, though.

Babe took a slug or so a couple of years ago when she had a cold. Since then she has taken up imbibing as a tune up to solos.

Fletch, on the other hand, jumped up on a beer can one day and started guzzling. He made the headlines last month with a five-day binge. He'll drink anything and he's just two-years old.

By the time he's as old as Babe, he'll be able to drink 10 canaries under the table—if he doesn't die of acute alcoholism first.

Then he wouldn't have to bum rides for aerial inspections.

On his last jaunt, Watson discovered among other things that a groin was misplaced on Hollywood Beach.

Some board members would turn purple and keel over. The rest would probably consider it a splendid idea.

Mom Wants to Hear Wedding Belles

I HOPE TODAY'S COLUMN doesn't cause Ann Landers to lose her job.

Solving marital problems isn't a specialty of mine, but an emergency has arisen in our neighborhood and it demands immediate attention.

I'm referring to my two neighbor girls who are looking for husbands.

These girls are still single. It's not as though they lost their husbands and were trying to find them. That would be relatively simple.

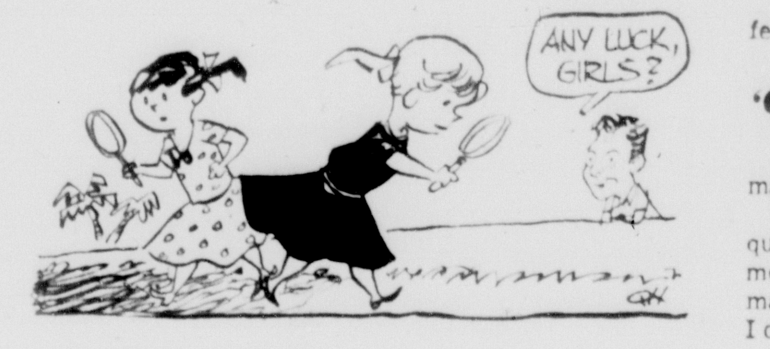
Young, Handsome, Wealthy

THAT'S WHY I'M volunteering my services. Maybe one of my six or seven readers is available and willing to step forth.

I'm not looking for just any man. He must be young, handsome and wealthy.



ANY LUCK, GIRLS?

The latter requirement is mine. These girls don't care about money, but in my many years of marriage I've discovered it can be mighty important.

My wife happened to be a child bride and was, I learned later, in bad financial condition. She'll deny this, but I happen to know she had to sell her bicycle to buy the dress she was married in.

But don't let me stray. Back to the neighbor girls and their poor mother.

I mention the mother because she's really the one I feel sorry for.

'Getting to Be Embarrassing'

SHE WAS AT OUR HOUSE Friday morning and I made the mistake of inquiring about her daughters.

"They're still single," she sighed. "It's getting to be quite embarrassing. Whenever I go shopping, people stop me on the street and ask when the girls are getting married. I don't know what to say. I cover up the best I can, but it's very embarrassing."

This poor mother needs more than sympathy, and that's why I'm applealing to you today. If you know of a young eligible bachelor, please let me know.

Both girls are beautiful and I'm sure they'd make good wives.

In fact, if I weren't married and the law permitted a man to have two masters, I'd marry both of them myself.

That's what I think of them.

HENRY KINNEY

It's Time to Resort To Tourist Promotion

IT MAY BE TIME to face a few facts regarding the current state of the tourist business.

The first is that the Fort Lauderdale area doesn't just automatically draw enough people to fill its hotels, motels and apartments any more.

KINNEY

There was a day when that was true. The day has gone. We get a fair share of the visitors, but we won't be turning them away this season, and perhaps not ever again, unless we go after them with more vigor.

This condition has been building up for several years, as we built more hotels and apartments and as other resorts began making their presence felt in the winter vacation picture. Last year's chill probably hastened its coming.

All of South Florida lost many regular visitors by that unhappy switch in the weather. Hotel men agree that uncounted numbers of winter vacationers are trying out other areas this year—the Southwest, for example, and the Caribbean islands. If they like those places, they'll be hard for us to win back.

* * *

Travel Tax Hurts

THERE ARE OTHER FACTORS which are not immediately apparent to people not in the tourist industry.

For example, a travel agent collects a commission of five per cent on a train or plane ticket for a trip within the U.S. On a trip outside the U.S., he collects seven per cent. If a customer is wavering between coming to Florida or going to an island, the agent, in giving advice, may be swayed by that extra two per cent commission and the larger sale.

Moreover, while the 10 per cent federal tax remains on transportation within the U.S., it has been taken off trips outside. That also weighs in favor of such places as the Bahamas, Cuba and Jamaica.

Another hard, cold fact that we'd better face is that Fort Lauderdale is being out-promoted all over the place. Other resort cities of comparable or even smaller size are working harder to attract the tourist. West Palm Beach, which has not nearly the allure that we have, is spending $65,000 more than we are this year and thinking seriously of boosting its budget for next year. St. Petersburg is spending half a million, with the city putting up $385,000 and the Chamber of Commerce the rest. Fort Lauderdale, with a current promotion budget of $110,000, ranks about 10th in the state in this respect.

The islands, of course, are spending enormous amounts of money, and so are the resorts of the Southwest.

* * *

Money Comes Back

THESE AREAS ARE NOT POURING millions into tourist advertising and publicity just for the fun of it. They have learned that it's good business, that the money comes back a hundredfold, that if you want the tourist you have to go out and woo him. Fort Lauderdale's municipal administrations have not yet recognized that fact.

Too many of us have felt that the city has such natural charm and so many attractions that people will come here without being asked. It was true once, but things don't work that way any more; the competition is too rugged.

City Hall's position has been that it is not obligated to spend tax money to bring in business for the hotel and apartment owners. If these owners were the only ones that benefited, that position would be understandable, but they're not. They get only about a quarter of the tourist dollar; the rest circulates through the stores, the service stations, the restaurants, the barber shops, the laundries of the community.

Tourists directly boost our municipal revenue. Every time a visitor makes a telephone call he puts money in the city's pocket. Every time he buys a package of cigarets, or takes a shower, or turns on a light, tax collections go up.

The county collects a tax every time he buys a gallon of gas. He feeds our real estate and construction industries. He creates jobs—more jobs than anyone else creates.

The amounts of money that visitors spend soon become astronomical when one begins to calculate them. It has been determined that the average convention visitor to Fort Lauderdale spends slightly more than $32 a day, and it's believed that the figure for the winter visitor would be notably higher, perhaps $40.

There is no way to estimate the number of visitors who were here during January, but for purposes of illustration let's use the round and very conservative figure of 10,000. If each one only stayed a week, at $40 a day he spent $280, and the total expenditure of all 10,000 was $2,800,000.

If we had spent enough money on tourist promotion to attract another 10,000, the take would have been doubled and quite a number of people would have had to be hired to serve them. We could well have invested several thousand dollars more than we did, to get a return like that.

GOP Getting a Kick Out of Building Fuss

REPUBLICAN LEADERS are getting a big kick these days out of the state's discomfiture in prosecuting charges against former County building Department inspectors.

GOP county commissioners, who were on the griddle during and after the Grand Jury probe, can hardly conceal their delight at watching the other side wriggle on the hot plate.

They've maintained all along that the investigation was turned into a political side show right around election time.

If all three are acquitted, the spectacualr criminal side of the investigation will burst like a balloon — leaving some red faces around the courthouse.

Wearing the most scarlet shade of all will be Assistant State Attorney Quentin Long, who handled the Vermorel case personally and directed the jury session that indicted Power and Mount.

No love is being lost between Long, a Democrat, and Republican Commissioners George Petersen, Herb Burke and Jack Bell.

The GOP trio is just waiting to rub the rumors about thousands of dollars a week in building payoffs into Long's face.

Vermorel and his attorney-sister Dorothea say they're just itching to get into court and face the accusers. There are some bloodcurdling tales about the results of their own investigation.

It's an interesting situation to observe.

Justice Needs Helping Hand

THE STATE'S SIDE of the story is that it was forced to pin its case on an unreliable witness — Glynn Mercer, now departed for places unknown — because no other complainants would stand up and be counted.

The previous history of corruption in the county is full of lamentable examples to indicate this theory is all too true.

Broward will never get the clean-up job it sorely needs until its citizens will not only cease to condone abuses of their laws, but will report them and back the reports up with testimony under oath.

It's not an easy thing to do. It involves publicity and petty personal reprisals. But it could become much easier if more people did it.

It's a sad comment on our times that the citizen who takes a fighting stand for justice is the exception rather than the rule.

Just consider the percentage — usually about half — that isn't interested at all . . . that can't find time to go to the polls on election days.

Witnesses Skip Without Fear

THE BOGEY of the missing witness faces the state in many of its trials, even in cast-iron cases.

Witnesses can only be bonded or detained in offenses of murder, rape, kidnaping, arson or robbery.

They can be subpenaed for other trials, but only a possible contempt charge faces them if they skip town anyway.

Where the urge to go is strong enough, this isn't a great dissuader.

Mercer promised the state right along he would appear in court. The trial was on a Tuesday. On the previous Thursday, he calmly packed up his truck and his family in public view, and blew.

Let All Vote In Primaries

By CLARENCE ZAITZ
North Broward Bureau

POMPANO BEACH — The Pompano Commission found itself in quite a perplexing situation last week, in a dispute over legality of the Feb. 10 primary election.

BETTS

And it seemed the more they read the city charter, the more confused they became. They also discovered many inconsistencies and contradictions in the charter.

But the basis for the entire problem was ably summed up by City Attorney Eugene Betts who said "the trouble all emanates from this district system.

Pompano is divided into three commission districts. Primary elections are only for voters in a specific district where there is a contest.

Of course, in the general election, the entire voting public can vote for any commissioner, in any district.

The system is certainly not the best for so small a community.

One can readily see how individual districts would be practical in a large metropolitan city, where districts or wards give the voters a closer contact with their elected representatives.

But in Pompano, it seems the only thing the district system does is to perpetuate the "old Pompano versus the beach area" rivalry.

The fallacy of the system is that once a candidate emerges from the primary race, he is running citywide; and once elected, he serves the entire city, supposedly equally.

So why shouldn't the entire city be responsible for the candidate's nomination in the primary, in the first place?

Why Delay Municipal Court Cases?

I AM A FIRM believer in speedy justice.

It has long been my contention that any person arrested for any violation should be brought to trial as quickly as possible.

It seems to make little sense to see Municipal Court cases continued from one session to another, and often postponed for as many as six or seven court dates. And often on a flimsy excuse, too.

It would appear that anyone who was arrested would seek legal advice as quickly as possible, if at all.

So there seems little reason for court continuances merely because a defendant says "Your honor, I haven't had time to see an attorney yet." Especially after two or three weeks have elapsed.

I can see where it would be to the advantage of the defendant to delay the case as long as possible.

Because time dulls the memory.

Oftentimes an arresting officer, or a corroborating witness, will not be as specific on his observations three weeks after an incident, as he would within seven days.

Candidates Bested by Women's Club

Their able president, Mrs. Andre Lis, succeeded in getting all candidates to admit the need for a community center (a three-year project of the club).

But that's as far as any of the candidates would go. They all admitted the biggest problem was finding the money.

Anyhow, the women were quite pleased to know they have some moral support.

Which Shall Govern?

Editor: Much has been said and printed in the public press during the past weeks relative to the political situation in the city of Miramar.

An election was held on Jan. 13 to determine what candidates would be elected to the posts of mayor and five councilmen. A majority of the voters chose Charles F. Knapp for mayor and various candidates as councilmen elect.

On Jan. 19 these officers were duly installed at a meeting in the Miramar Recreation Center, at which time Mr. Kanpp announced his appointments for various appointive posts in the city administration.

One of the appointments involved the position of building inspector, currently held by B. E. Arbuckle who was not reappointed to that post. This announcement had the effect of setting off a disturbance of near-riot proportions which was quelled with considerable difficulty.

Disregarding the fact that such appointment, with concurrence by the newly elected councilmen, constituted a valid action, some of the defeated candidates and their supporters set in motion the promise of recall of the new mayor even before he had an opportunity to attend a regularly scheduled meeting of the council. This smacked of the proponents acting as prosecutor, judge and jury before charges of misfeasance, malfeasance or nonfeasance in office could be charged against Mr. Knapp and before the qualifications of Mr. Arbuckle had been fully proved.

In this writer's opinion, Mr. Knapp, who had served as an elected councilman in the previous council, was the best qualified of the candidates for mayor and should have had an opportunity to prove himself before his detractors set in motion procedures to unseat him.

For personal, as well as policy reasons, Mr. Knapp chose to resign his post, which remains vacant until a special election will be held April 7 to elect his successor. It would be well for the citizens to consider well who his successor shall be; whether Miramar shall be governed by passion and prejudice or by due process of law.

Surely in this enlightened age, the majority rule must be upheld and the electorate's will respected. Any other procedure will result in a situation closely akin to anarchy. Which shall it be?

Dinner Check Goes to Boys

FORT LAUDERDALE — Sheriff J. A. Lloyd reported Wednesday that Boys Ranch in Live Oak has received $1,100 from ticket sales for the testimonial dinner held recently on his behalf.

The dinner committee sent the ranch a check for the amount, Lloyd said.

Problem: How to Float Cash

Conservation Official Wants 2 School Boats

By DUANE JONES
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — School officials shouldn't encounter any legal hitches in transferring their two Navy training boats to the State Conservation Department, a school attorney said.

"I'd think government approval of the transaction is all that's needed," commented Donald Hulmes, assistant school attorney.

A conservation official reiterated last week that his department is interested in the 78-foot boats.

"I'm sure we could use at least one at this time," said Earnest Mitts, conservation director.

"A vessel equipped with rader would be helpful in our patrol work in the Key West area where we have to keep a constant check on shrimp fishing in restricted waters."

Mitts said he couldn't discuss financial arrangements until he conferred with the state auditor.

School officials here have said Mitts' office could have the boats if it reimburses the School Board for the cost of bringing the vessels here from Annapolis. The Navy leased the boats to the board for four years.

"Since the vessels weren't ours at the time they were brought down here, I don't know whether we could legally reimburse the School Board," Mitts explained.

He said he planned to confer with the auditor Monday and would pass along his findings in time for Wednesday's School Board meeting.

The boats, Mitts added, "would be a wonderful deal for us."

Exemption Change Proposed

FORT LAUDERDALE — State Rep. Emerson Allsworth favors changing homestead exemption so "every home owner will pay some tax."

In a talk Thursday to the Southside Lions Club, he said he's for a constitutional amendment to make the first $1,000 of value taxable, with the $5,000 exemption applying after that.

"I advocate lowering the tax on intangible property to the pre-1957 level," he said.

Allsworth said, "I'll work to get a law with teeth in it to keep all businesses closed on Sunday except those that deal with emergencies."

He also discussed alternatives in fighting beach erosion, said he was against over-all home rule for the county but favors a county manager.

Dillard Seniors To Work

FORT LAUDERDALE — Dillard High School's diversified cooperative program is sponsoring a senior workday Feb. 26.

Funds collected through the workday will go toward a scholarship for one of the seniors.

The workday program is one in which seniors devote a school day to work in county business houses, with their payment for the work going to the school.

Curtain To Go Up

DEERFIELD BEACH—The first new stage curtain since the school was built in 1925 has been purchased for the Deerfield Beach Elementary School by the Parent-Teachers Association.

Mrs. George Snyder, corresponding secretary, said the curtain was purchased with funds raised at the group's Halloween carnival.

The PTA hopes to have the curtain before the next meeting, Thursday.

Students to Join Trade Fair

FORT LAUDERDALE—An industrial arts exhibit by the senior and junior high schools of the county is to be held in conjuction with the Broward County Trade Fair scheduled March 7-8 at War Memorial Auditorium.

One of the projects which may be displayed is a seven-foot rocket being made by a group of Fort Lauderdale High School boys.

Arthur Decker, chairman of the industrial arts section, said 16 schools probably will enter five to 10 exhibits each.

If the enterprise is successful it will be repeated yearly.

Woodwork and metalwork projects will be displayed and perhaps some science projects if they're being carried on in industrial arts classes, Decker said.

The USI Technical Center, Airpax, Broward County Port Authority and Broward Air Transport have been added to the list of Trade Fair exhibitors, said Mrs. John Godfrey, chairman for the Quota Club.

The event is a joint project of Quota and the Beach Kiwanis Club.

Lifesaving Class

FORT LAUDERDALE — A Red Cross senior lifesaving class will begin at 7:30 p.m. Monday at the Casino pool. Candidates for the course must be strong swimmers 16 years or older. A small fee will be charged.

Former Chaplain To Give Talk

FORT LAUDERDALE — James Watt, Washington, a member of the Christian Science Board of Lectorship, will speak at 8:15 p.m. Monday at War Memorial Auditorium. His topic will be the present availability of divine healing. He served as an Army chaplain in World War II and has devoted full time to Christian Science healing since 1942.

Tall Tornadoes Score With Ward—a Coach They Can Look Up To

By DICK MEYER
Herald Staff Writer

Broward Sports

POMPANO BEACH — A stringbean coach whose own playing days were shortened by a Japanese mortar shell shares a love for basketball with all 13 members of the talented Pompano Beach High basketball squad.

Ex-Marine Charlie Ward says he's only 6 foot 6, but he seems to stand several inches taller when he pridefully discusses his Golden Tornado cagers, winners of their first 16 games.

"This team has better morale than any team I've ever seen," Ward said. "I knew that early in the season when the boys won their first three games after trailing at halftime in each game."

Pompano's 69 point per game average and fine defense (Clewiston had scored only one point at halftime in a game last week) has the usually taciturn Ward in a more talkative mood these days.

"I'm not talking like a man with a hole in his head when I say these boys have the best spirit of any team I've played with or coached," Charlie added.

It was intended as a sort of half-joke.

Ward has a hole in his head, having been hit in the head and back on Iwo Jima by an enemy shell.

A prep star before World War II, Charlie played for two seasons at West Virginia University, wearing a boxer's headgear to protect a plate in his skull, and an aluminum piece over a grafted ear.

After Ward had several nasty spills, the doctors made him give up the sport as a player. The plate was removed because he suffered from severe headaches, which since have disappeared.

"But I turned to coaching after graduation," the 33-year-old mentor recalled, "and I'm gald I stayed with basketball. In five years as head coach at Kentucky high schools and five years in Pompano as either jayvee or head coach, my teams have won 206 and lost only 46."

Six-foot-five Don Hughes and six-footer Frank Budka gun Pompano's go-go attack.

Budka to Hughes, a great passing combination during the football season, still is in business. Frank helps "feed" Don, who is averaging about 20 points a game. Budka himself is close to that mark.

Ward concentrates on defense as much as on offense, and so cautions to "remember Gary Steelman." Gary, 6-foot-3 forward, is an apt ball stealer and rebounder.

Six-footer Tom Dennis and 5-foot-9 Robert Moore, a playmaker type of guard, round out the blue and gold quintet. John Gallaugher and Stan Seay often break into the lineup.

But all 13 squadmen will letter. Ward uses his reserves after the regulars open a big lead, which often happens.

The Tornadoes have roared to as many as 97 points, and Ward figures they could have gone over the century mark on at least three occasions if he had chosen to keep his first-line boys firing.

"Our Suncoast Conference is the weakest it's been in the five years I've been at Pompano," Charlie explained.

Pompano should dispose of Fort Pierce upstate Tuesday night by way of wrapping up another Suncoast title. The "big" games Pompano is frankly looking ahead to are against Miami High, which shaded the Tornadoes last season, and Stranahan, which almost did it this year.

Ward credits his assistant, Tucker Morris, with much of the team's success. Morris keeps game charts detailing 15 offensive and defensive categories, and these are studied at halftime for possible strategy changes.

"We're trying to get basketball down to a science," Ward said.

Along this line, Charlie has invented a gadget which helps keep his players in what he calls "a fundamental position."

Patented as the "Stancemaster," the invention has adjustable elastic straps from a belt down to the ankles. It exerts sufficient pressure to "remind" a player to keep hips low and knees flexed, and is of particular benefit in teaching defensive tactics.

"We try anything that's apt to win us a ball game," Charlie Ward concluded.

No Change in Standings

Kingfish Running . . . Kingsize Catches Too

FORT LAUDERDALE — Kingfish are running, and the news is resulting in a flurry of activity by anglers.

Capt. Dean Conrad reports a one-day of 61 kings from his Ocasco III, and Capt. Fred Voss recorded 59 taken during a single outing aboard his Lucky Lady.

Other charter boats also had big hauls.

Despite the kingfish run and near-perfect weather, there was no change last week in the Winter Festival Standings.

Lewis Lempears' 48½-pound kingfish stood up as the tourney leader.

Sixty nine citations for outstanding catches were earned during the week. Several large hammerhead sharks were taken, and grouper were running to a good size.

Leaders, home cities and boats fished from:

Sailfish (men), 69½, Joseph Bayer, Chicago, Peggy Anne.

Sailfish (women) 65, Mrs. Herbert Anderson, Fort Lauderdale, Dream Girl.

Oldest Polo Trophy

Boca, Oak Brook To Play for Cup

BOCA RATON — The Spectator cup, oldest polo trophy offered in the South, is up for grabs today as Boca Raton and Oak Brook play at Boca Raton Polo Club.

The 3 p.m. match finds Oak Brook, defending Spectator Cup champion, staring with a two-goal handicap. Oak Brook rode past Boca, 9-7, last year.

Nine-goalers George Oliver and Harold Barry are in Boca's lineup, which aggregates 25 goals, while Oak Brook, despite Cecil Smith's 10-goal rating, has a 23-goal team listing.

Lineups:

Boca Raton	Pos.	Oak Brook
D. Beveridge	1	Butler
Oliver	2	Harrington
Barry	3	Smith
Uihlein	4	Dalmar

2 to Tangle With Haystack

FORT LAUDERDALE — Haystack Calhoun, 601-pound grappler, will take on two foes simultaneously Thursday night at War Memorial Auditorium.

Jack Vansky and Gypsy Joe will oppose the mountain which walks like a matman.

Jerry and Eddie Graham are to team against Cyclone and Hurricane Anaya, and Kitty Adams will try to outhussy Rita Cortez.

WGA Schedules Best Six Test

HOLLYWOOD — The best six hole scores will count in a Hollywood Women's Golf Association tournament Friday at OrangeBrook CC. One-third handicaps will apply.

Jan Harvey won the monthly low net tourney last Friday with a 71.

New Course To Open

DAVIE — Broward County's newest golf course, Cypress Creek Country Club, will open late this week, Developer Bob Sullivan announced Saturday.

A preview opening of the clubhouse and swimming pool is set today from 1:30 to 5 p.m.

The 18-hole layout, a 3,735-yard short course, plays to a par of 60. It was designed by Pat Pattison, the club pro, who also designed Sullivan's Hidden Valley par 3 course near Delray Beach.

A two-dollar greens fee will be charged. Yearly memberships cost $90 (single) and $125 (family).

Water ballet exhibitions will be held today in the new club pool.

Hollywood Midget Cars Roar Again

HOLLYWOOD — Midget car driving comes back to the Hollywood Speedway today with a seven-race card beginning at 2:30 p.m.

Heading a 35-driver field is Johnny Coy, Nascar's midget division champion for the past two years. The Freeport, N.Y., veteran will be at the wheel of a Vittuce Offenhauser in the 25-lap feature.

Time trials will begin at 1:30.

Three 10-lap heats, two 12-lap semifinals and a 15-lap consolation run will round out the program.

By GEORGE H. CROWLEY
Herald Columnist

SEVERAL DAYS AGO, while visiting one of our tackle shops seeking information for this column, we happened to listen in on a conversation between a former resident of Texas (now local) and the tackle dealer. The Texan (now Floridian) was telling about a new fishing license bill passed in his home state last year.

He related that the fee was increased from $1.65 to $2.15, but the feature of the bill was the elimination of the non-resident short-period license. Visitors from other states may now fish in Texas without paying a larger fee than the residents.

If a simple fishing license was issued in Florida instead of the resident and non-resident licenses, the chances are that everyone concerned would be happier—the visitor with the idea that he really is welcome, the commission would gain more license money, and the party issuing the license would appreciate the streamlined method.

Honestly now, who catches most of our fish? Surely not our visitors. Local fishermen usually know the waters and even then are skunked on many trips. The visitor being a stranger has to hire a guide and go to considerable expense to enjoy his favorite pastime away from home.

The tourist business and our fresh and salt water fishing are two of the greatest assets on which our economy thrives. Let's do away with the non-resident nonsense and make our visitors feel they are welcome.

'Fishermen's Night' Friday

MEMBERS OF THE HOLLYWOOD Sportsman's Club have completed plans for a gigantic "fisherman's night for tourists" program Friday, starting at 7:30 p.m. The special affair will be held under the stars at the Young Circle bandshell.

A panel of fishing experts will be on deck to speak and answer questions on all phases of Florida fishing. Headed by Dr. Luis Rene Rivas of the University of Miami, the group will include Circuit Judge Dick Sauls, noted all-around sportsman, Ed Louys, representative of the Salt Water Sportsman magazine, and Verne King, authority on Everglades fishing. Representatives of the Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission and the State Board of Conservation will aid with the program.

As an added attraction, a 10-man team of "Kardo" experts will present an exhibition in the art of self-defense, and 230-pound Warren Sicilano will demonstrate feats of strength.

The program will conclude with a color and sound movie depicting all phases of South Florida fishing.

In the event of rain, the program will be at South Broward High School Auditorium.

The program, jointly sponsored by the Sportsman's Club and the Hollywood Recreation Department, is free to all fishermen.

The Day It Rained Fish

DID YOU KNOW: That on the morning of Friday, June 28, 1957, it actually rained thousands of fish, frogs and crawfish on the town of Magnolia Junction in Alabama. Townspeople turned out with baskets, pots, and buckets and picked up live bass, bluegills and other species of fish. This strange phenomenon was caused by a tornado that twisted through the community.

Snook Biting at Dania Bridge

BILL HOFMAN at the Angler's Tackle Shop called to report that snook are being caught nights at the Dania bridge over the Intracoastal. Recent catches were reported by Bill Snyder, West Hollywood, four snook, 12, 26, 22 and 24½ pounds, on live mullet; Jim Harkens, Dania, nailed an 18-pounder on a Zara spook; live shrimp paid off with three snook averaging 12 pounds for Augie Widmer, Fort Lauderdale.

4 Kentuckians Haul 'Em In

FOUR KENTUCKIANS, Mr. and Mrs. Buzz McClary and Mr. and Mrs. Big Boy McClary (he's 6-6), form Louisville, had excellent luck on a trip of the Push Wave III with Capt. Bill Brower. They decked 11 grouper, ranging from 12 to 28 pounds, a 135-pound hammerhead shark (being mounted), and a 27-pound amberjack. The jack was taken by Big Boy on spinning tackle.

Sue Pritchard, youthful Pompano Beach anglerette, copped the honors in the annual tournament last week when she landed a 48½-pound bull dolphin fishing from the Lucky Lady with Capt. Joe Mott.

Action in the Pompano tourney also found anglers entering amberjacks to 39½ pounds, barracuda to 25, snapper to 20, and bonito to 18. Sailfish releases were registered by R. E. Pritchard, Pompano Beach, Boat Lucky Lady; Francis Rogers, Kalamazoo, boat Apache; Roy W. Duncan, Royal Oak, Mich., boat Narcissus, and Dr. Alphonzo Goff, Keene, N.Y., boat Helen S.

Gary Bennett, mayor of Cocoa, postcards that trout fishing is very good, especially in the barge canal and the Banana River.

Fishermen continue to call us about the excellent blue and mackerel fishing in Lake Worth, near the Palm Beach Inlet.

On the fresh water side of the news, King's Camp on Route 27 is the best bet close to home for bass and bream fishing. Reports, too numerous to mention here, credit limit catches on both species.

Ed Hodges, boss man at Hodges Camp on Taylor Creek, Lake Okeechobee, called to let us know that Al Fryer, West Hollywood, caught his daily limit on a new lure called "Optic." Three of his catch were whoppers, 6½, 8 and 10¼ pounds. This kinda makes us drool.

Bill Goodman, Chicago White Sox baseball star, caught a 7½-pound bass at Calusa Lodge, on Lake Okeechobee.

Boca Raton Inlet fishermen Ed Durkin and Leo Browne connected with three big jack crevalle, 15, 17½ and 24 pounds, also 19 blues and 12 pompano, using spinning tackle, sand fleas, cut bait and feather jibs.

Club Lists Weighing Stations

ERNIE HERGENROETHER, vice president and chairman of the club's fishing contest, announced that members may weigh in their entry on bass and specks at a fishing camp.

Sailfish, kingfish, snapper and blues are to be registered at the Basin Tackle Stop, Fish'N Stuff Tackle Shop, Lighthouse Yacht Basin and the Hillsboro Inlet docks at Pompano Beach, and the Sunrise Bait and Tackle in Lauderdale.

The club is sponsoring a dance for members and guests at the Elks lodge in Pompano March 14.

Purchase of Broadview Estates Home Better Than Renting, Builder Claims

"It truly is my honest opinion," said I. Michael, president of Broadview Country Club Estates, "that six, perhaps seven families out of every ten, having modest incomes and who rent their homes, are on the borderline of living beyond their means. This is a broad statement I know, but the facts and figures tend to confirm my thinking.

"Capable economists suggest that never more than 25 percent of the total family income should be spent for housing in order to maintain a well-balanced annual budget. If the income is subject to curtailment or reduction due to working conditions, then no more than 20 per cent should be spent for a place to live.

"Based on these figures it is sound planning and economy for a family consisting, let us say, of man and wife and one or two children, to buy a home in Broadview Country Club Estates rather then to rent or lease a house, even for as short a period as one year.

"Take our 'Pinehurst' model for example; for only $190 cash, plus a very small financing charge, a family of four can move into a lovely, brand new and modern two-bedroom, one-bath home. Monthly payments are only $69 and this includes interest and mortgage amortization. The total price of this model is $9,640.

"There isn't a piece of rental property anywhere in this general area that can compare to what we offer in the 'Pinehurst,' or in any of the four larger and slightly higher priced models in Broadview.

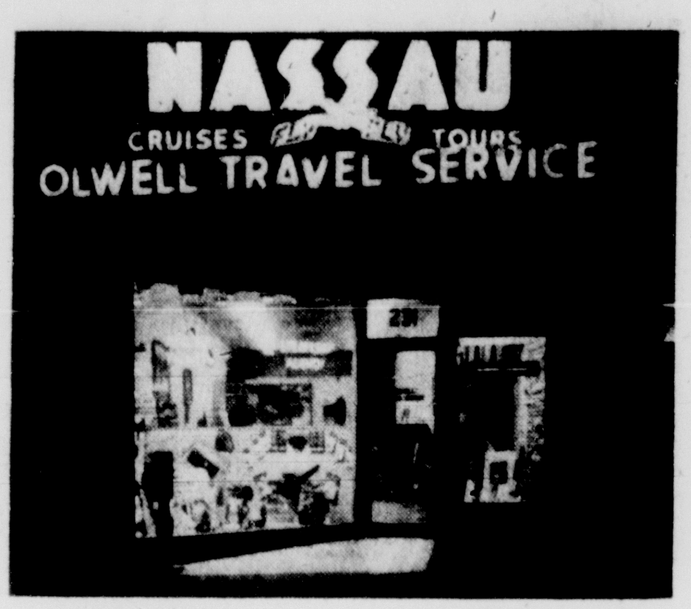
"Let's look at rental property. In the first place, homes for rent or lease are difficult to find at this time of the year. But assuming that one might be found, the very first requirement probably would be payment in advance of three or four months' rent. This would involve a cash outlay of $500 to $600 because anything as good as the 'Pinehurst' will rent for not less than $125 a month, and that means $1,500 a year.

"Think of it. At the end of the year you have $1,500 worth of rent receipts and that's all. What about location and accessibility to shopping? What about modern home conveniences, newness and pride of ownership? What about actually having put into the bank a part of every dollar of the 69 it costs to live in the 'Pinehurst'? Why not have the best?

"Broadview offers a splendid opportunity for young couples to have their own home at the outset of their careers. Instead of having to face long years of waiting to make their dreams come true they can become real today. It is sound economy and a good investment in the future."

Location of Broadview Estates is approximately five miles north of the intersection of West Broward Blvd. and State Rd. 7 (U. S. Hwy. 441). Entrance to the community is on State RD. 7. The sales office telephone number is WEbster 3-7175.

Carefree Touring for Its Clients Provided by Olwell Travel Service



DOWNTOWN QUARTERS of Olwell Agency, pictured above, is one of three offices operated by this company in Fort Lauderdale. World-wide travel information is available without charge from staff personnel.

Commenting upon the diverse activities of Olwell Travel Service, Charles Olwell, owner of the business bearing his name said: "Those who are thinking about making their first trip abroad and come to us for information, invariably ask "What do you charge for your services?' They are always surprised when we tell them there is no service fee whatsoever.

"What is more interesting to them is the fact that while we are paid a commission by the steamship companies, railroads, air lines and hotels throughout the world, the cost is exactly the same to the client as if he were to deal directly with those providing thhe services.

"How we arrange for a smooth trip abroad fascinates many of our clients. There are a great many minor details, but the four basic points are when, where, how long and the cost. Timing is of the utmost importance. We urge everyone to make their plans as far ahead as possible, a full year is not too long.

"Our clients choose the steamship lines and the air lines they prefer. They also specify the class by which they wish to travel. On ocean liners there is first, cabin and tourist class. These differ principally in the location of the quarters and the elegance of the dining room service.

"Passports must be secured in person by the traveler. The procedure here is to file an application in the U.S. Passport Department in Miami. This is forwarded to the State Department in Washington, D.C., for final approal. An unretouched, unsmiling photograph of the individual must accompany the application together with a fee of $10.

"Upon approval, the passport which is in booklet form and bearing all the official seals and signatures, is returned directly to the applicant. Passports are good for a period of four years, but must be renewed in Washington at the end of two years. The renewal fee is $5.

"Whether we are commissioned to handle an around the world tour covering a period of months, or a few days' vacation by ship or plane to nearby Havana or Nassau, every effort will be made by our office personnel to make every trip a happy one, free of petty and annoying details."

Olwell Travel Service is a member of the American Society of Travel Agents.

Olwell Travel Service operates out of three locations in Fort Lauderdale; 231 SE First Ave., Richard Inserra, manager; 1804 East Sunrise Blvd., Dan O'Connor, manager; and 3217 North Ocean Blvd., where Olwell's wife, Rita Olwell, is in charge. Travel information and informative booklets and brochures may be had for the asking, and visitors always are welcome.

High Blood Pressure A Warning Signal

By Dr. S. Perolman

Dr. S. Perolman

If you become dizzy while stooping over or while straining, have headaches, find it difficult to breathe upon exertion, you may have high blood pressure.

Nerve irritation causes constriction of arteries and failure of kidneys or heart.

The basic cause is located and corrected by your doctor of chiropractic.

BROWARD NIGHTBEAT

'Miss Lace' (Kay Martin) Back

By PATRICIA BROWN
Herald Columnist

LOCAL NIGHTBEAT, which seems to be crawling with sexy dolls this season, has just added another impressive set of measurements to the score Sheet — Miss Kay Martin, on display at the Marie Antoinette.

Miss Martin's cleava[illegible] tomatically labels hers as a sure-enough suspense act. One real deep breath and the show's over.

This outstanding performer is back in town with her bodyguards after a year's absence. Group's repertoire is substantially the same but there's been a switch in sidemen — Joss Hotchkiss remains on bass, but Accordionist Bill Elliott has returned to the fold and Tony Bellson (brother of the famous Louis) is now behind the drums.

The gents choose formal clothes for their stint but the bosslady makes quite a fetching picture in her new lace leotard with a bustle, yet. The former platinum blonde is now a dashing redhead.

It's a jumpy group projecting solo and three-way vocals, jive instrumentals and some comedy bits. Jess handles most of the yaks with one of the best numbers set to "I Don't Know Why I Love You."

THREE ACTS defied superstition by opening on Friday the 13th: Bonnie Baker launched her new room at the Boca Kay, Tony Sacco bowed in for his usual season's stint at Bahia Cabana, and Fred Lowery opened a week's stand at Tale O'the Tiger.

Fred, a whistler, is backed by Marge Hilton at the piano. And incidentally, isn't Marge

GALT OCEAN MILE HOTEL provides a new excuse to while away the afternoon hours from 3 to 6 — an informal "cocktail-dance" session on the patio with Johnny Leighton's band anchored for musical chores.

Johnny can provide one of the best Latin tempos in the county, indoors or out.

Members of the Charcoal Pit's New Executive Men's Luncheon Club, which gets under way Feb. 23, can "drink" their lunch out of their own monogrammed water glasses. Also we hear that the exclusive men's club may not be so exclusive after all — lady guests may be invited to crash once a week.

BIGGEST NEWS for the area's theater set concerns the possibility that Fred Coe may release his current Broadway hit, "Two for the Seesaw," for a limited number of performances benefiting the local mental health association.

Deal for the smash play hinges on proper casting and suitable viewing facilities with the airport's Flight Deck Theater and Galt Ocean Mile Hotel mentioned as possibilities. Latter would require a theater-in-the-round presentation.

Play, which has a cast of two, opened in New York with Anne Bancroft and Henry Fonda; Fonda has since been replaced by Dana Andrews.

If plans jell, staging would take place around the first of April, probably with name talent.

'King and I' Opens Playhouse at Nassau

By PATRICIA BROWN
Herald Writer

NASSAU, Bahamas — The British Colonial Playhouse got the first production of its eight-week season off the ground last week with the presentation of "The King and I," Rodgers and Hammerstein musical, starring Broadway talent.

The playhouse, new 500-seat auditorium on the first floor of the British Colonial Hotel, was officially opened by the governor, Sir Raynor Arthur, and Lady Arthur, before a posh audience which included Spence Burton, lord bishop of Nassau, members of Bahamian society and guests from Florida and New York. Mr. and Mrs. George W. Gill Jr. hosted cast and guests at a large cocktail party after the performance.

Musical, with its lilting score and colorful story line, was admirably handled by a company of 30, despite a fairly shallow stage and the absence of full orchestra.

Lead parts were carried by Virginia Oswald as Anna, Ed Powell as the king, Shirley Winston as Lady Thiang, Tricia Foley as Tuptim and Ted Lawrie as Lun Tha.

All are veteran Broadway performers.

Miss Oswald starred in the New York production of "Oklahoma!" and "Brigadoon." Powell appeared recently in the "Ziegfeld Follies" with Beatrice Lillie. He also sang top roles in "Oklahoma" and "Annie Get Your Gun" at the New York City Center.

Shirley Winston has been a member of major opera companies in the U.S. including the Metropolitan. She also was in the Broadway company of "Oklahoma." Lawrie has appeared in "Finian's Rainbow" and "South Pacific." The 20-year-old Tricia Foley already has a number of meaty roles to her credit, having been featured in "Student Prince," "Song of Norway" and "Thirteen Clocks."

Opening production has been extremely well mounted, with sets designed and executed by Helen Pond and Herbert Senn, the costumes by Joseph Davies.

Entire production was staged and directed by Glenn Jordan, former NBC-TV musical director who has recently been signed by Wilding Pictures Production. For his Siamese princes and princesses, allotted one of the strongest and most delightful numbers in the musical, Mr. Jordan has corralled seven talented local youngsters including eight-year-old Lisa Anderson, daughter of the British Colonial Hotel's manager, Scotty Anderson.

The playhouse, a new addition adjacent to the hotel's lobby, has red, blue and white decor by Jim Frew, architectural designer of Fort Lauderdale. Pecky cypress wall panels have been created to suggest the design of the Union Jack.

HOLLYWOOD —(UPI)— Anita Ekberg is a beautiful gal and a sexy one — that's admitted.

But, so far, in the movies I've seen, she hasn't set the world on fire with much emotion. If any director can inspire the spark it is Federico Fellini (an Oscar winner for "La Strada") who has signed Anita for "Sweet Life."

I wonder about her marriage to Tony Steel with whom she's had many fights, and reconciliations. While Anita makes the Fellini movie, Steel remains in Hollywood testing for a TV series at 20th Century-Fox. Anita is due here April 15 when "Sweet Life" is completed. Her European movies have kept her away from Hollywood over a year.

THE EX-HUSBAND of Mrs. Tyrone Power, Niko Minardos, and Jill St. John reported for work on the "Holiday for Lovers" set and to Director David Weisbart. Minardos is six feet tall, very good looking and he's done quite a bit of TV.

Jill dyed her hair black because her boyfriend, Lance Reventlow, wanted to see how she'd look with dark hair. She's keeping it dark for the picture.

This is Clifton Webb's starring vehicle. Gene Tierney was originally set to play opposite Clifton, then Joan Fontaine. But Joan didn't feel well enough to go to work so on the set is Jane Wyman, who took the place vacated by both girls.

High School To Put On 'Madcaps'

FORT LAUDERDALE — The annual Fort Lauderdale High School Follies will be held at 8 p.m. Saturday in the school auditorium.

A highlight of the event will be the crowning of "Miss Fort Lauderdale High" — the highest honor that can be bestowed upon a girl student.

Candidates for the title include three juniors, Sylvia Cross, Noel Doepke and Alice Schmidt; and eight seniors, Judy Colby, Sharon Coons, Barbara Guercia, Sharron Osterhoudt, Nedra Schultz, Dian Scott, Carol Zimmer and Sandy Koch.

While selected among the top 11, Miss Koch will not be eligible because she was named this year's homecoming queen.

Theme of the follies is "Musical Madcaps."

FORT LAUDERDALE — All Broward County Baptist churches will launch a week of revival services today.

The event is part of a religious revival crusade being undertaken simultaneously here and in Dade County. It will serve as a forerunner to a nationwide revival observance which will start March 15.

Some Palm Beach County churches are included in the campaign. A total of 18 churches will participate. Services will start at 7:30 p.m. daily through Feb. 22.

Revival speakers will meet each morning for breakfast at the First Baptist Church in Fort Lauderdale. Dr. W. G. Stracener, Jacksonville, editor of the Florida Baptist Witness, will be crusade director. He will speak at the breakfast meetings and will be revival speaker at the Lauderdale Manors Baptist Church, 1122 NW Ninth Ave.

Other revival speakers and the churches where they will conduct services are:

West Lauderdale Baptist Church, 3601 Davie Blvd., the Rev. Don Houser of Ocala; Wilton Manors Baptist Church, the Rev. J. B. Daley, Mount Sterling, Ky.; Immanuel Baptist, 1036 NE Second Ave., Dr. Raymond T. Dearmond, Knoxville, Tenn.

First Baptist, Dr. Albert Carnett, Winter Haven; North Pompano Beach Baptist, Dr. John W. Moffatt, Pompano Beach; South Side Baptist, Boynton Beach, the Rev. A. D. Dawson, Fort Lauderdale; Southwest Baptist, 835 SW 15th St., the Rev. Glen Ross, Greenacres City First Baptist, Boca Raton, the Rev. Hoke Shirley, Pompano Beach.

Calvary, 5800 Taylor St., West Hollywood, the Rev. W. Hal Hunter, Crestview; First Baptist, Miami Gardens, the Rev. George Johnson; Lake Forest Baptist, the Rev. C. L. Hanshew, North Augusta, S.C.

West Side Baptist, Hollywood, the Rev. Pat Wimberly, Orlando; Dania Heights Baptist, the Rev. Selman L. Freeman, Miami; First Seminole Indian Baptist, the Rev. Billy Osceola, pastor of the chuch.

Dog Mind? Class Open

POMPANO BEACH — Registration is now open for the 18th class in dog obedience training by the Pompano Beach Dog Obedience Club, said Ray Nadeau, trainer.

Classes are held once a week at Kester Park for 12 weeks. All breeds of dogs are eligible. More than 200 have graduated from the class.

Interested persons can notify the City Recreation Department, or contact Nadeau at WE 3-1502.

Retail Federation Woos Merchants

By PAT MANGAN
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — A membership drive to interest independent retail merchants in the Florida Retail Federation is under way, said Z. H. Pilcher, new director of member relations.

The federation is a statewide organization with a program of public relations, national affairs, state legislation, consumer education, service to merchants groups and youth work.

Pilcher, of 532 NE 25th St., who was recently named to his director's post, is a former secretary-manager of the Hollywood Chamber of Commerce. During World War II he was an industrial specialist with the Smaller War Plants Corps and, most recently, has been in the insurance business.

The Retail Federation is an outgrowth of the Florida Chain Store Council, Pilcher said, and now is putting more emphasis on attracting independent merchants as well.

It is a division of the State Chamber of Commerce, but maintains its own officers and directors. It is connected with the National Retail Federation.

Pilcher said services include keeping an eye on national and state legislation that affects merchants, issuing news letters and special bulletins, supporting agricultural programs, the Future Farmers of America and 4-H clubs, and taking part in the distributive education program in high schools.

Electronics . . . the Future Today

Airtronics Corp. Designs, Produces Better Tomorrow

By ART ROBINSON
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE—On the edge of an orange grove north of Davie is a kind of workers' heaven, a plant that turns out a wide assortment of complicated electronics devices for military and industrial use.

Whenever the workers at Airtronics International Corp. look out the windows they see acres of orange grove to the rear and sides or a broad expanse of lawn out front.

The atmosphere is so affecting that many come to work early — to sit on the loading platform in back, drink coffee and enjoy the view.

"We find our engineering department works better in an atmosphere like this," said the president, Robert G. Kramer, the other day.

Possibly inspired by the soft breezes and the view, Airtronics engineers are working far into the future, designing equipment for the telephone and electric power industries. In many cases, the utilities don't know yet that they need the stuff.

Airtronics, which is not yet one-year-old, plans to be in a position to supply them the minute they find out. The whole electronics industry is expanding, Kramer says, at an incredible rate, and nowhere faster than in Florida.

He's determined to keep his plant on State Rd. 84, a mile and a half west of State Rd. 7, at the head of the parade. In its first full year of production, gross sales will reach $1½ million, he says.

Broward County
Home Section
Real Estate—Building

Sunday, Feb. 15, 1959 THE MIAMI HERALD 11-BR

In its second year, sales will be doubled, he predicts.

At the moment Airtronics employs 55 persons and Kramer expects within two years to have about 200 on the payroll.

More than 60 per cent of its production is for commercial or industrial use, a percentage Kramer plans to maintain or increase. The futue of military work is less secure.

Airtronics' most important military product at the moment is a "memory drum," a small high speed recording device of its own design used in tracking missiles. The company is about to start producing them for a missile manufacturer.

As far as engineers at Airtronics know, there has never been any similar device in such a small package capable of storing such a vast quantity of information so quickly.

The recording cylinder whirls at 7,200 revolutions per minute. It has 600 recording and sound reproducing heads, yet the drum is only about two feet long and four inches in diameter.

It stores information picked up from missiles or satellites which can be reproduced later on tape. Then the whole drum can be erased and re-used indefinitely.

The missile maker has ordered 300 at the quantity price of $12,000 each. To anybody who wants Airtronics to make up a single drum, the cost would be about $30,000.

* * *

FOR THE MILITARY. Airtronics also is turning out a pitot tube, which measures air speed, for a still classified aircraft. The plane is so fast that existing pitot tubes are not up to the job. Just how fast the instrument will clock the airplane Airtronics isn't allowed to say.

It also makes components for guided missiles manufactured by Martin and test equipment for a Signal Corps transmitter called Arc 21, a device that can maintain communication with an airplane anywhere in the world.

The company is proudest of its work for industry, especially of the equipment it has designed for the Bell Telephone system. By using its own initiative, it has anticipated some of the phone company's needs.

* * *

"THINGS ARE HAPPENING awfully fast in electronics," Kramer explained, "and it's hard for Bell Laboratories and Western Electric, the phone company's manufacturing subsidiary, to keep up with their needs.

"We made a survey of servicemen working for the Bell system and they gave us some ideas.

"We sat down with our engineers here and kicked around ideas for three or four items and, before you know it, we're into 15."

Kramer spoke too soon—he wasn't quite up to date, according to Charles L. Evans, chief engineer and vice president.

"It's now 22," he said.

* * *

THE VARIOUS PIECES of equipment have names like program equalizer, test hybrid, artificial line and training set, multi-tuner for closed circuit television, switch gain amplifier, equalizer amplifier with wide band width.

Some are still in the design stage. The design of others is completed and they're ready for production. Some are already in production.

Many can be used by a number of different kinds of manufacturers. The program equalizer is the most important of the lot and will have a wide application.

The telephone company needs it to make hookups for high fidelity radio broadcasts (F-M) and the sound portion of remote television broadcasts.

* * *

IF A NETWORK, for instance, wants to broadcast from War Memorial Auditorium, it takes two or three men from one to five days to equalize the loads on cables carrying the sound.

With Airtronics' new equipment, the job can be completed in five to 30 minutes. It took five years to complete the design.

For the electric power industry, the company is making corrosion test sets, water heater control circuits, a "holiday detector," and a rectifier current control circuit.

It also has a plastics division which is turning out far less complicated stuff—pool balls, children's play shoes, lawn sprinkler heads and anchors for cables.

* * *

AIRTRONICS HAS ATTRACTED considerable attention in the business world. In its national full-page advertising, the Florida Development Commission mentions the firm is "capable of supplying electronic and electronic mechanical components, plastics, gears and stampings on a start to finish basis."

Kramer once had his own television set manufacturing company and later headed White Industries, an electronics development and manufacturing firm. It was sold to Mack Trucks, and he headed Mack's electronics division until he came to Florida two years ago.

Some of his engineers, including Evans, were with him in White Industries.

The company is now planning a $3 million expansion program. At resent, it is wholly owned by Kramer and Mrs. Dorothy White of Miami Beach. Kramer's home is in Miami Springs.

Frank Dolph, 'The Mapmaker': 'I Can't Draw a Straight Line'

By DICK MEYER
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — Frank B. Dolph "can't draw a straight line," but millions of his maps are used throughout the country.

People call Dolph "the mapmaker," and he's come to shrug and accept the tag.

But Frank doesn't touch a map until its finished. He's a promoter and a salesman—not a cartographer (the professional word for mapmaker).

The Dolph Map Co. also makes real estate charts showing ownership of every piece of acreage in a county. It turns out lot and block maps of cities for the use of real estate firms, and charts showing what tenant occupies what store or office space in business districts.

* * *

THE COMPANY'S growth indicates the volume of realty transactions. Real estate outfits buy thousands of Fort Lauderdale maps at a clip to hand out to potential property buyers.

Real estate sales and the rapid population growth in Florida keep the Dolph firm busy.

"Cities like Fort Lauderdale, Miami and Tampa grow so fast we have to revise our maps every year—putting in new subdivisions and often extending city limits," Dolph said.

Next month the company will move from a tiny suite of rooms in the Lang Building (370 SE Second St.) to a two-story building at 430 N. Federal Hwy. A sales office in Miami was added last year.

Cartographer Larry Menser is due for a couple of helpers, and a five-member sales force covering the South will be expanded.

* * *

DOLPH REGARDS a street map as just about the most effective form of publicity for a city. He's proud that about a million of his Fort Lauderdale maps are floating around the U.S.

The local company prepares maps for cities throughout the South. Recent publications were for Norfolk, Atlanta, Richmond and Nashville.

Most large Florida cities give Dolph their business. Distribution generally is through real estate or development firms, or chambers of commerce, or through newsstand sales.

Dolph spent many years with the famous Rand-McNally mapmakers and with two other map-making companies in New York before going into the business on his own with a friend.

The map company president first came to Florida in 1923, setting up a field office in St. Petersburg to feed maps to boom-day developers and brokers.

* * *

HE SOLD THE FIRST lot-and-block map of Fort Lauderdale in 1937, and realized that this area would become the fastest growing sector of Florida.

"I realized the business a map company could get here, and started my company here in 1945," Dolph recalled. He found no lack of business, and his son, Frank Jr., 24, has joined the firm.

To the Dolphs, mapmaking is not a matter of engineering or surveys. Their stock in trade is a steel locker filled with the company's original maps, copied from official charts in city halls or county courthouses, or from older street maps.

The cartographer uses these as bases. Legal descriptions of acreage, along with plat recording photostats and aerial photographs also prove valuable.

One of the company's proudest achievements is an atlas-style map of Broward County. About 6,000 copies have been sold in the three months since the book was published.

Cartographer Menser allows that his job can get monotonous at times.

A former newspaper cartoonist, Menser relaxes from more tedious work by drawing cartoons of golfers, swimmers, fishermen or the like to illustrate spots (on less informal maps) where these people would be apt to visit.

BROWARD BUILDER

Ordinance Prohibits 'Look-Alike' Homes

HOME OWNERS probably will applaud the action of the Plantation City Council for its new ordinance against rows of "look-alike" homes.

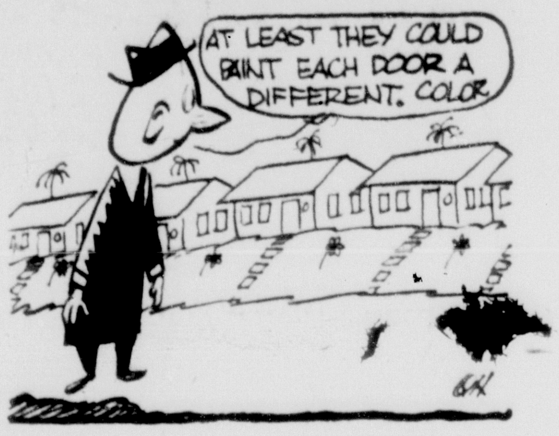
The law provides that duplicate homes cannot be built within 600 feet or six lots of each other on the same side of a street. Plantation officials adopted it, over the protests of some builders, to prevent what they called "project type" construction.

It may create some difficulties for the builders, and perhaps increase prices somewhat, but over the long haul it doubtless will be good for Plantation and may set a pattern for other new communities. Broward County's suburban areas have been literally blanketed, in too many instances, with look-alike houses set in rows.

As time goes on, this look sometimes disappears to a degree, covered up by landscaping, additions and alterations undertaken by the owners themselves. While it remains, however, it can frighten buyers away not only from the subdivision in which it exists but from neighboring areas also. There's a very real resistance to anything smacking of "projects."

Plantation's ordinance provides that houses may be duplicated within the minimum distances if each has two major and two minor building changes, or one major and four minor changes.

In the category of major changes are such things as different roof lines and shifts in the positions of carports. Minor changes involve items such as patios, planters, walks, roof colors and wall patterns.



AT LEAST THEY COULD PAINT EACH DOOR A DIFFERENT COLOR

The protesting builders contended that to make changes would cost the home buyer from $400 to $700 additional. City officials disagreed.

Paul Stoner, a member of the architectural committee which recommended the ordinance, contended the changes could be made for much less. He asserted, moreovre, that any builder erecting homes in Plantation should be able to supply several different plans for the same house.

THE QUESTION of whether a real estate broker should tell a client when his property is overpriced has been plaguing brokers from the beginning of time, probably. A prominent Fort Lauderdale realtor suggested last week that the time has come for the broker to start being frank.

"You don't do your client a favor when you fail to tell him his property is overpriced," Bob Stenson said in a speech at one of the Coral Ridge sales clinics. "It's our job as professional men and women to see that properties are listed properly and at the right prices."

. . . for Polynesian dining room of Imperial House

Imperial House to Open

POMPANO BEACH — The Imperial House, a three-level, 20,000 square foot restaurant patterned architecturally after the U.S. embassy in new Delhi, will open Monday.

Owner Sam Harris said the structure represents an investment of more than a million dollars. it was designed by Sam Harowitz and Associates, Chicago architectural firm.

Theme is carried out in the interior, design. Coral rock, bamboo, mirrors, cypress and native carvings add to the effect.

There are three kitchens, American and Polynesian dining areas and four banquet rooms. A "floating terrace" on the third level is utilized as a cocktail lounge.

The Polynesian dining room combines the use of bamboo and cypress. A 45-foot wall is covered with a handmade bamboo screen, and other walls are of cypress.

Bamboo panels six by eight feet were sent from Japan to be assembled on the job. Panel sections 18 inches square are woven into intricate patterns.

42 Firms Reserve 'Home Show' Space

BROWARD COUNTY's "Home Show," the eighth annual Broward Building Exposition, is beginning to take shape.

Mrs. Lily Goehring, executive secretary of the sponsoring Broward Builders Exchange, reports 42 firms already have reserved space at War Memorial Auditorium for the March 17-21 run.

For the fourth consecutive year, the number of exhibits will result in space outside the auditorium being used as an additional exhibit area.

Attendance has paced the growth of the exhibitor group. Last year more than 50,000 persons filed through the rows of home and office displays.

The free five-day show is the only such annual bazaar of building held within the county.

Frequent meetings are being held by the exposition's coordinating committee: Mrs. Goehring, Gene A. Whiddon, William McGee and Robert McCann.

Pictures of the 13 construction jobs which merited craftsmanship awards given by the builders exchange will be on display this week at the Atlantic federal savings and loan building.

Bart Brooks' photos then will be shown at three downtown locations—the First National, Broward National and Everglades Banks—before being moved to the auditorium during the building exposition.

Lin-Mar Showing Apartment

FORT LAUDERDALE—All eight buildings in the initial section of a projected 136-unit apartment development west of Fort Lauderdale will be completed by the end of February.

Jack Platt, president of the Lin-Mar Corp., said Saturday a model apartment is being shown in the first sector.

Plans call for the Lin-Mar Garden Club Apartments tract to be divided into four sections. The site is a block west of Riverland Rd. and two blocks south of W. Broward Blvd.

The first cluster of buildings, on SW Second St., will offer unfurnished rental units.

All apartments will have two bedrooms, a single bath, and a screened porch.

The first of two swimming pools for tenants is nearing completion.

Platt said that the second section will have 10 buildings. The buildings are to be virtually identical two-story structures, with two upstairs and two downstairs units.

Platt announced a rental plan of $125 monthly on two-year leases and $130 on one-year leases.

Margate Homes Developing Section at 14-Acre Lake

MARGATE — A section facing a 14-acre lake is the latest tract placed under development by Margate Homes Inc., building subsidiary of Marqusee Associates.

All homes to be built in the sector will be within a block of a public beach along the lake. Beach sand has been transported to the lakefront to improve the bathing strip.

A 16-unit apartment building has been opened in the new section, called Lakeview.

Margate Homes is showing seven models here. They feature "space-maker" storage walls, screened porches, tile baths, terrazzo floors and jalousie windows. The price range is from $10,990 to $19,000, and FHA and conventional financing is offered.

One of the newer models, the Lido, includes a Florida room, three bedrooms and two baths and a roofed front terrace. The master bedroom is on the far side of the home from other bedrooms.

The Lido is priced at $16,500.

Margate has paved and lighted streets, sidewalks, curbs and gutters and an underground storm drainage system. The city's developers, Marqusee and International Housing Corp., are striving to retain a park-like setting.

A par three golf course and a drive-in theater are included in a recreation center which is centrally located within the new city. The first elementary school was opened in September, and two and equipped with benches and walks.

Boat's at Home In Living Room

By MARGARET WALKER
Broward Society Editor

FORT LAUDERDALE — Mr. and Mrs. William T. Collins planned their new home with a boat dock in the living room.

The unusual problem of introducing a dock large enough for their 53-foot yacht, still keeping the living area dominant, was one which the noted Miami Architect Alfred Browning Parker solved with ingenuity.

The Collins' stunning all-cypress house on Del Lago Dr. has the "completely different" stipulation of the owners, who knew what they wanted and were willing to wait a year and a half after buying a lot to begin building.

They chose a site on a canal which meets the Intracoastal Waterway nearby. Because their life revolves around their yacht (they cruise and live aboard six months of the year), they wanted their home attuned to their nautical way of living.

Craftsmen built the house in very much the same way a boat would be built, a technique particularly appreciated by yachtsman Collins.

Parker built the tile roof over the boatport lower than the living room roof because the water's level was low in relation to the first floor elevation. Wide overhangs protect the house from sun and glare and from tropical rains.

Oriented to the southeast trade winds, the house faces the water. The leeward side faces the street. Landscaping by Chris March was planned for minimum upkeep, with Chattahoochee gravel replacing grass.

In front of the house is a 28 by 28-foot swimming pool in which two slender columns seem to float on blocks. The cement squares are joined by a plastic dome which is lighted at night to shed a soft blue light on the water. The huge poolside patio is paved in keystone.

Some of the handsome furniture was designed by the architect. In the living room, a built-in couch and a triangular copper-hooded fireplace are cantilevered.

The Collinses chose cool greens and blues keyed to a large seascape which hangs above the couch. A tan rug specially made for the room is bordered in turquoise.

Three walnut coffee tables topped with tan marble are mounted on rollers for mobility.

Lamps on either side of the couch are converted Chinese tea caddies with tan linen shades.

Mahogany stairs lead to the mezzanine wich overlooks the living room. Here are the bedroom, dressing room and bath and a den.

A built-in cypress bench designed by Parker and covered with blue cushions runs the length of the study.

Downstairs, off the entrance hall, and up four steps, is a guest bedroom and bath. Corners of the house are open and glass-enclosed to avoid hard, box-like enclosures.

Tidewater red cypress, resistant to salt water, rot and termites, is used throughout the house, which was expertly constructed by Contractor Warren J. Hower.

3 C's of Entertaining: Comfort, Calories, Color

By MARGARET WALKER
Broward Society Editor

This is the first in a series of stories on how successful Broward hostesses entertain.

FORT LAUDERDALE—A successful hostess has her own recipe for a good party.

Whether she's having a formal dinner or a barbecue in the back yard she usually follows some rules and regulations, consciously or not.

Mrs. R. M. Gardner, a charming and poised hostess, lists three party-giving basics: comfort, calories and color. She considers the comfort of her guests first.

"Try to avoid inviting people who dislike each other," said Mrs. Gardner. "They would try to be polite, but they would obviously not be having a happy, relaxed time."

While there are times when it is fun to have only close friends, Mrs. Gardner finds it more stimulating and more fun to have guests who don't know each other, or those who have met casually.

"Then there's less likelihood of rehashing day-to-day living details. There is little chance in this busy age to learn what's going on in other people's lives—their interests, contacts, thoughts—so a small group of strangers, well chosen, frequently makes a highly successful party."

Helpful reminder for hostesses is a notebook in which to list who, when, what. Mrs. Gardner keeps a list of guests who were together at a certain date and what she served at each party. Thus the same guests are not always together, nor is the menu the same.

She also considers the physical comfort of her guests. In summer she suggests shorts or sun-back dresses if the weather is hot. If air conditioning is on, she mentions it so that women may bring light sweaters or wraps.

She's always sure that the women on her guest list know if the party is quite formal or strictly informal so they will feel comfortably dressed for the occasion.

With the recent emphasis on keeping weight down, Mrs. Gardner wisely considers calories when planning her menus.

"If the main course is very filling, I keep the dessert light—and vice versa," she said. "A thoughtful hostess doesn't insist on seconds, or even firsts, nowadays. Allergies, you know."

At a recent dinner party, the Gardners's six guests helped themselves from the buffet, where the main dish was poulet a l'espagnole, a delectable combination of chicken, lobster and Italian sausage. No bread was served—"I don't think anyone noticed," remarked Mrs. Gardner. Her dessert was small and sweet—biscuit tortoni.

While she rolled out dishes on a tea wagon and attended to small details, Mr. Gardner made espresso at the table and served it individually.

The effect of a pretty color scheme is also important to the pleasure and appetites of guests, says Mrs. Gardner. She chose a handsome white table cloth centered with a cobalt blue epergne, in which white camellias floated. China with cobalt blue design carried out the theme.

Mrs. Gardner thinks out a party step by step in advance, sometimes finding candles to match decor a week ahead. She reminds hostesses that a smart centerpiece need not be expensive.

'Shah Will Never Remarry Soraya'

By MARGARET WALKER
Broward Society Editor

BOCA RATON—The shah of Iran and former Queen Soraya will never remarry, said the shah's son-in-law, Ardeshir Zahedi.

"That is definitely out," the handsome aide-de-camp said of the shah, who divorced his queen last year because of her inability to produce a male heir to the throne.

"His majesty is a very healthy man," said his son-in-law, "and he WILL have a son." His tone of conviction and a disarming smile seemed designed to dispel any doubts anyone might have had on the subject.

"But suppose he should continue to have daughters?" we persisted.

"Oh, he will have a son. He's too healthy a man," he repeated with a broad smile.

Is there someone the shah intends to marry soon? This question brought a polite protest — "Please, I cannot discuss his majesty's personal life."

Zahedi is married to the shah's 19-year-old daughter, Princess Shahnaz, who presented her husband with a daughter in December. The baby is Princess Mahnaz.

"She is 73 days old today," beamed the proud father, a tall, broad-shouldered young man who speaks with only a slight accent. "This is the longest time I have been away from my wife and baby," he said.

"Of course this is my second home," he said as he chatted in the patio of the Boca Raton Hotel and Club, where he spent a few days while touring housing developments in Florida.

Offered a drink, Zahedi hesitated a moment, politely accepted a scotch and water. He left it untouched on the table. (Mohammedan law forbids alcohol.)

The shah and his queen also vacationed at the plush Boca Raton Club when they visited this country a couple years ago.

Zahedi attended the University of Southern California and received his engineering degree from the University of Utah. His wife was educated in schools in Switzerland and also attended schools in California for two years.

If Zahedi's child had been a boy, would not the child have become heir to the throne, thus enabling the shah and Queen Soraya to rewed?

"No," replied Zahedi firmly. He insisted again, "The shah WILL have a son."

AT GUILD MEETING

Hair Stylists to See Sweetheart of Show

FORT LAUDERDALE — Interpretations of the new sweetheart hair style designed by the nation's official hair fashion committee will be shown by Louis Thomas of Miami Beach at a meeting Tuesday of the Broward County Coiffure and Cosmetologist Guild. The program begins at 8 p.m. at the Delle Academy of Dance, 412 N. Andrews Ave.

Demonstrations will follow the trend set in January at a meeting of the National Hairdressers Association in Minneapolis.

Mrs. Ruth Blackmore, president, and Zeone Howard, corresponding secretary, will report on proposed changes in beauty culture laws introduced at a recent legislative committee meeting in Tampa.

Members of the Broward County unit of the guild donated their services last week to the Easter Seal Clinic in observance of National Beauty Salon Week.

FORT LAUDERDALE — Rabbi Marius Ranson will conduct an institute on Judaism for the Christian clergy at Temple Emanu-El Monday afternoon from 3 to 5.

Guest lecturer will be Rabbi Eugene Borowitz of New York, director of the Commission on Jewish Education, Central Conference of American Rabbis.

SK Alumnae To Hear Talk

DANIA — Sigma Kappa Alumnae in Broward County will meet at 7:45 p.m. Monday in the home of Mrs. Betty Holmberg, 701 NW 12th Ave.

The history and traditions of the sorority, founded at Colby College in 1874, will be discussed by the chapter president, Dr. Ella Enlows. Social and philanthropic activities of the newly organized local group will be outlined.

She's Dancing Her Way Through a Busy Life

By BEVERLY PAULSON
Broward Women's Editor

HOLLYWOOD — The most boring time of Eileen Wall's life was her retirement.

The retirement lasted two days.

"I love to work," the auburn-haired choreographer explains.

Miss Wall, in private life Mrs. Gerard W. Freer, is what the Hollywood Recreation Commission calls "choreographer and director of all special events in the Hollywood Band Shell."

Which means she produces a show about every three weeks.

It also means that Friday's Valentine variety was hardly beyond the planning stage when she began work on March's big Irish Fair.

This year's show — March 15-18—is going to be even bigger and better than the last one, she enthuses. "It's even going to have an Irish cha-cha." (A Wall original.)

But she admits that for her it'll be a repeat performance of the show last year for which she:

—Wrote the script.

—Did the choreography.

—Taught 168 children, only seven of whom had had earlier lessons, to dance.

—Designed the costumes.

—Directed the whole shebang.

And how did she do it? "I work 25 hours a day, eight days a week," she says. "I hate to sleep."

Miss Wall was hardly knee high to a practice rod when she began her professional career as a teacher in her family's New York home.

"When I was 11, I started giving dancing lessons to neighborhood children for a penny a lesson," she explains.

But she was a little girl with big ideas. "In a few weeks I went up to a nickle a lesson and pretty soon to a quarter."

Eileen Wall
. . . loves to dance

By the time she was a junior in high school, her business had flourished and she rented a studio of her own.

From there, she went on to owning one of New York's largest dance studios with 600 pupils.

As a choreographer, she did the precision work for the June Taylor Dancers and she directed such TV favorites as the Red Skelton Hour, Ted Mack's Amateur Hour and the Jackie Gleason Show.

She worked with her daughters, who were the dancing cigaret packages in the Old Gold commercial a few years back.

And she gave a day a week to charity — staging benefits and teaching handicapped children how to dance. The walls of her new studio at Dania are lined with citations she received for that work.

Three years ago she "quit" and headed for Florida with her parents, her husband and their daughters, Babs, now 20 and a Hollywood telephone operator, and Danie, a 16-year-old Broward High School student.

They stopped first at Palm Beach.

"I thought I had retired," the dancer says, "but when I took the girls to Rosarian Academy to register, the nun asked me to direct their shows.

"I arrived there on Friday, and Monday I went to work."

When the Freer family moved to Broward, Mom again went to work.

First came the almost full-time job with the Recreation Commission. Then a job with a Miami TV station. Then another almost fulltime job as choreographer and director of her popular young precision dancers, The Channelettes. Now her studio.

Busy? "Yes," she grins. "But I love children. And I love work."

Miss Crooks

Miss Sinclair

Davis - Latour

FORT LAUDERDALE — Judge and Mrs. Dorr S. Davis, 1415 NE Fifth St., announce the engagement of their daughter, Carol Jo, to William Reed Latour, 1111 NE First Ave.

The couple will be married June 6 in First Presbyterian Church at Hollywood.

Miss Davis, who attended Hiram, Ohio, College, is a legal secretary of Broward Juvenile Court. She is a member of the National Secretaries Association.

Her fiance, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Latour Jr., is owner of the Latour Fire Extinguisher Co. He served in the Air Force for four years.

Both are graduates of Fort Lauderdale High School.

Sinclair - Chalker

DEERFIELD BEACH — The engagement of Miss Sarah Amelia Sinclair to Barney Edward Chalker Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Chalker, 411 E. Hillsborough Blvd., is being announced.

Miss Sinclair is the daughter of Mrs. William Waters Sinclair of Winter Haven and the late Mr. Sinclair. She was graduated with honors from Winter Haven High School and received her bachelor of science degree in education from Florida State University, where she was affiliated with Delta Zeta sorority. She is a teacher-librarian at Inwood Elementary School at Winter Haven.

Mr. Chalker was graduated from Pompano High School and received his bachelor of science degree in geology from FSU, where he was a member of Alpha Tau Omega fraternity. He is serving with the Army in Germany.

They will be married June 21.

* * *

Crooks - Siefker

FORT LAUDERDALE — Miss Barbara S. Crooks and August William Siefker are engaged.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Mrs. Clara H. Crooks, 205 SE Seventh St., and the late Clyde F. Crooks. After graduation from Central Catholic High School, she attended the Academy of the Holy Name at Tampa for a year. She is employed in the public relations department of First National Bank.

Mr. Siefker is the son of Mrs. F. A. Siefker, 816 NW 29th St., and the late Mr. Siefker. He was graduated from St. Anthony's High School and attended the University of Cincinnati and University of Florida. He is employed by Engineered Trusses at Pompano.

Both are members of the Fort Lauderdale Catholic Club.

McGlamery-Bodbey

HOLLYWOOD — Mr. and Mrs. P. A. McGlamery, 5820 Garfield St., are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Jeanie B., to David L. Bodbey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn L. Bodbey, 6012 SW 68th Way.

The couple will be married May 30.

Miss McGlamery, a graduate of South Broward High School, is employed by Velda Dairy. Her fiance attended schools in Clendenin, W. Va. He is employed by the Jus' Rite Lumber Co.

Grandmother Adopted by Nike Unit

POULSBO, Wash. —(UPI) —When the 4th Nike Ajax Missile Battalion moved into new headquarters here last summer, the men were "adopted" by the 70-year-old grandmother who lived across the street.

The woman, Mrs. Anne Jensen, became a regular caller, bringing cakes, pastries and fresh fruits and showing deep concern and kindness for the GI's.

As a result, Mrs. Jensen has become an honorary lifetime member of the battalion, which chose her "Lady of the Year."

Wedding Ring: A New Problem

HOLLYWOOD — (UPI) — Beautiful Estonian-born actress Narda Onyx doesn't wear her wedding ring except when at home with her husband.

"If I wear it all the time," she said, "it leaves a white mark when I have to take it off to play a single girl. The makeup men have to work over that one finger. It created such a problem that I just carry it in my purse with me now, wherever I go."

Starch It

Starch the ironing board cover each time you wash it. Starch will give it a smooth slick, finish that makes for quicker, smoother ironing and the cover will stay clean longer.

DIZZY, ANYWAY

BUFFALO, N.Y. —(UPI) — Mrs. Eleanor S. Conners, of Niagara Falls, denied she was drunk at her own wedding reception.

She told a State Liquor Authority hearing the reason she couldn't remember whether she'd hit the bridegroom with a chair was because she was dizzy after being struck by her new husband and aunt.

(Mrs. Conners has been separated from her husband, Raymond, since the reception.)

Sleuths Find Taste Culprit In Research on Applesauce

GENEVA, N.Y. —(UPI) — Food scientists at the New York State agricultural experiment station have pinpointed the blame for "rank" or "tinny" flavors sometimes found in applesauce after storage.

They traced the off-flavor to the presence of a volatile acid which is classified with "goaty" acids responsible for rancid flavor of butterfat. The offender is known as caproic acid.

Freshly-prepared commercial applesauce samples were stored at room temperature for one year. Other samples were prepared in the station pilot plant, simulating average commercial operations.

Scientists found that the concentration of caproic acid increased as storage time lengthened.

The flavor did not deteriorate during the early storage period, but objectionable concentrations of the acid developed in about 40 weeks.

Grapefruit Ambrosia Easy, Good

Cut two grapefruit in half, crosswise, and remove sections. Set aside sections and trim membrane and cores from shells. Notch edges if desired.

Combine grapefruit meat with 2 sliced bananas, 3 tablespoons sugar, 2 tablespoons fresh lemon juice and 2-3 cup grated fresh coconut. Spoon into shells, sprinkle with more coconut and garnish each with whole uncapped strawberry. Chill before serving. Serves 4.

Sharp Note for Bland Flavors

EAST LANSING, Mich. — (UPI)—Cheddar cheese may be mild, medium or sharp flavored. The sharper flavored cheeses are aged for longer periods of time, say foods specialists at Michigan State University. Sharp cheeses combine well with bland flavored food to make tasty main dishes. Shredded cheddar is a pleasing additin to tossed salads.

2 Peggy McEvoys Enjoy Rest in Sun And Birthday Party

Mrs. J. P. McEvoy and daughter, Peggy

By GRIFF PRESTON
Herald Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE—A very exceptional young lady visiting here has just celebrated her 20th birthday.

Miss Peggy McEvoy, the daughter of the late J. P. McEvoy, noted humorist, playwright and magazine editor, was here with her mother, Writer Peggy McEvoy.

In 20-year-old Peggy there's nothing of the current psychosis of celebrities—children-gone-astray. She has the blessing of knowing just what she intends to do with her life, and a deep dedication to her future work. That future will be in the jungles of Yucatan!

Originally intending to be a painter, she was educated in Switzerland, France and Cuba. She turned away from art, convinced that her happiness and work was in helping those unable to help themselves.

Now in her next to last year at Columbia University's nursing school, she plans to go to Yucatan and establish a nursing center in the interior. She went back to her studies Saturday after a week here.

Meanwhile, Mother Peggy is relaxing at the Marie Antoinette while ". . . some projects are in the works in New York." What projects? Says she, "When my husband was asked that question, he used to say, 'Here's a quarter. Buy it when it hits the newstands.'"

They're Sharing the Sunshine

THE HUGO HOFFMANNS, spending their first winter in their new Isle of Palms home, are sharing the wealth of this fine Florida weather with a relay of house guests.

The Raymond Rileys (Mr. Hoffmann's daughter and son-in-law), who left this week, have been succeeded by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Reynolds of Baltimore. Welcome for the Reynolds was the cocktail party given by their hosts Saturday. If small craft warnings come down, the Hoffmanns will board their Burgo with their guests and cruise down to Ocean Reef the first of the week.

Next on the hospitable Hoffmann list are more Baltimoreans, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Slagle Jr., due here the end of the month.

Her Shoulder's Always Ready to Cry On

By BEVERLY PAULSON
Broward Womens Editor

FORT LAUDERDALE — The problems, the worries, the frustrations of life pour out to a calm and capable woman in a breezy, sunlit room.

All day, five days a week, Mrs. Dollie H. Conrad, director of the Family Service Agency, tries to give help to troubled Broward residents from her office at 1300 S. Andrews Ave.

"No one who needs help is turned away," she says.

The first of more than 200 persons who have visited Mrs. Conrad's office came to her the first day she was here in October 1957.

"I was dumfounded," she says. "Since we opened without notice, I thought it would take a month to get going. I had 11 cases in the first month."

Now her services are so much in demand that she talked to 11 persons in a single day last week.

* * *

SO FAR IT HAS NOT been necessary for the conselor to refuse help to anyone who comes with an appeal. But the time is coming when it may be.

Since the agency is entirely supported by the United Fund, the success for the current campaign for funds will decide how much further the agency can go in assisting additional people.

"If the United Fund reaches its goal, we can have another case worker," she explains. "We must have a second person in the office if we are to go any further."

And who comes to Mrs. Conrad?

"In most cases, pretty stable citizens who are having trouble getting along in family relationships," she says. More than a third of the people she interviews are solid citizens who are seeking marriage counseling.

* * *

THEN THERE ARE the older persons who are alone and lonely, the young couples who have been plagued by unemployment and other insecurity, the handicapped who don't know where to turn for help.

All are people who have sought aid in solving their problems. "We can't help those who don't want help," Mrs. Conrad says.

Sometimes individuals need months of counseling before they can stand on their own feet. Just as troubles are often a long time developing, they require time for cure.

Many other times she helps a confused woman by taking her to a direct source of help.

* * *

THE AGENCY DEALS entirely in counseling and servtirely in counseling and service, Mrs. Conrad emphasizes. "We have no budget to give financial help."

Mrs. Conrad has no doubt the agency's services are needed. The number of persons who flow into the office proves that.

It is likely, in fact, the mobility of Broward's population creates problems that are not found in a community of comparable size up North.

"This is a starting over place," she says. "Many people who are having trouble up North think they can solve their problems by coming South and starting a new life.

"It doesn't work. Problems can't be solved by escape."

Humane Society All Wrapped Up In Chinchillas

By PAT MANGAN
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — The Broward County Humane Society has a fair start on a chinchilla farm.

Twelve of the expensive, fur-bearing animals were donated to the society by a couple whose original pair had increased to 12 and become more chinchillas then they wished to care for.

Two already have been "adopted" by a man who paid $100 for them.

The other 10, or at least some of them, look like a good bet to produce a continuing source of income for the society at the rate of four little chinchillas per year per female. Others of the original 12 may be adopted.

Bill Coleman, manager of the society's headquarters on Griffin Rd., is constructing a special shelter for them. The animals have to be kept as cool as possible.

"We feel they would make ideal pets for people who don't have much room for pets," said Mrs. Coleman. The $100 price may or may not be continued, she said.

Some of the animals are friendly and others are timid, Mrs. Coleman said. She said how they're handled doesn't seem to affect their friendliness. Some are just more companionable than others.

JUNIOR WOMAN'S CLUB PROJECT

Hibiscus Dance To Boost Clinic

FORT LAUDERDALE — The annual hibiscus dance of the Fort Lauderdale Junior Club will be Saturday evening at Governors' Club Hotel.

The dance is the club's annual fund-raising event for the Broward Dental Clinic, which it helps support. The clinic is the club's main project since it recently reached its goal of contributing $1,000 to the YMCA building fund.

Floor show acts will include Mrs. Roy Campbell (Mrs. Fort Lauderdale) and the Dial Tones Barbershop Quartet.

Dance chairman is Mrs. G. T. Tucker. Reservations for the public charity event can be made with Mrs. Tucker or Mrs. George Murdock.

'Palace' Review to Aid Fund

FORT LAUDERDALE — Edna Ferber's latest book, "Ice Palace," will be reviewed by Mrs. Val Mikush at 8 p.m. Thursday in the parlor of the Park Temple Methodist Church.

Proceeds from the event, to be sponsored by the Junior Wesleyan Service Guild, will go to mission work in the U.S. and abroad.

Tickets may be obtained from members of the guild or at the church office that evening.

Gardeners Plan Hospital Party

DANIA — A valentine garden party will be given at South Florida State Hospital, Hollywood, Tuesday by the Dania Garden Club.

Mrs. B. C. Aldridge, Mrs. Walter Coleman, Mrs. John Justice and Mrs. Clifton Lober are making arrangements.

TUESDAY AT AUDITORIUM

Symphony to Present Subscription Concert

FORT LAUDERDALE — The Fort Lauderdale Symphony Orchestra will present a subscription concert Tuesday night at War Memorial Auditorium under direction of its third guest conductor of the season, Michael Bowles.

The principal offering will be Brahms Symphony No. 2 in D. The orchestra also will play the overture to "The Wasps" by Ralph Vaughan Williams; "On hearing the First Cuckoo in Spring" by Frederick Delius, and "En Saga" by Jean Sibelius.

Delius, who died in 1934, once managed an orange plantation in Florida.

The orchestra announced that the concert also will serve as the annual subscription renewal night for the 1959-60 season.

A LATE ARRIVAL at Fort Lauderdale this winter was Mrs. Ellsworth Augustus, also of Willoughby, Ohio, and Cobham, Va. Her horses are not racing at Hialeah this season, but are in training at Aiken, S.C. She came down late because of a cold.

Club to Hear Talk on Skin

FORT LAUDERDALE — Proper skin care and application of make-up will be demonstrated by Mrs. Dorothy Droege Tuesday to members of the Kappa Alpha Theta Alumnae Club. A luncheon meeting will be held at 12:30 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Wynn Casteel Jr., 3028 Granada St.

Reservations may be made with Mrs. Casteel.

Clubwomen To Wear Their Talent

FORT LAUDERDALE — Members of the New River Isles Woman's Club will show off their talents at their meeting Wednesday at the Reef.

They will display those skills by wearing anything they have made — with needles, paints or shells — in a show, "Feminine Fads and Fashions." Prizes will be awarded for the various categories.

Mrs. Arthur Vores, chairman, Mrs. W. E. Martin, Mrs. E. Mindrup and Mrs. W. D. Antrim will be in charge of cards. Reservations are to be made by Monday with Mrs. A. N. Clarke.

R.E. Blossers Spent 20 Years in Africa Mining Diamonds

By ALICE FOSTER
Herald Writer

Have you ever thought of living in Africa and mining diamonds?

Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Blosser, now of Bethesda, Md., not only thought of it, they did just that for 20 years.

They will arrive Wednesday for a month's visit with the E. C. Blossers of Hollywood.

Now retired, R. E. Blosser was a mining engineer employed by a Belgian company to search for diamonds. He returned to the Congo two years ago for the company's 50th anniversary.

PEOPLE IN OUR TOWN

"YOU HAVE TO LOVE IT to be a good teacher," said Miss Mary Entsminger of Hollywood, formerly of Carbondale, Ill.

A teacher's teacher, Miss Entsminger taught for 35 years at Southern Illinois University. Most of this time was in laboratory school, where she trained teachers.

Three years prior to retirement, she was an instructor in the education department of the university. There she taught psychology, method courses and also a course in recruiting teachers.

This phase was most interesting, according to Miss Entsminger, since it was a pioneer course offered only by that university.

Freshman students were given aptitude tests; thoroughly indoctrinated in techniques, advantages and opportunities of teaching. From their tests and response they were either encouraged or discouraged in the profession.

Miss Entsminger moved to Hollywood in 1957. She resides with two brothers and a sister. Teaching is her first love. "You never really know how much good you are doing as a teacher, it is so far reaching," she said.

"Teachers should get together with an inspirational leader occasionally to renew their zest in their classroom work."

Miss Entsminger has done volunteer teaching at South Florida State Hospital; is a member of Delta Kappa Gamma, an honorary educational society; a member of the American Association of University Women in Hollywood; treasurer of the Women's Club and president of the Women's Association of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church in Hollywood.

Language, Speaking Courses Still Open

FORT LAUDERDALE — Vacancies still exist in Italian, Russian, French and public speaking courses at the night adult and vocational education school.

Persons interested should contact the school after 1:30 p.m. Monday.

Italian, Russian and public speaking are offered Monday and Wednesday nights. French classes are held Tuesday and Thursday.

James Burnsted, school director, said Spanish classes are filled.

THE UNIVERSITY of Miami Symphonic Band, rated among the best in the country, will present an 8 p.m. concert in War Memorial Auditorium Wednesday. Dr. Paul Yoder of Fort Lauderdale and Chicago will be guest conductor. An estimated 50 million persons have seen the band on national television shows during the last year.

Boom Days for Maids Over ...In Buenos Aires Too

BEUNOS AIRES — (UPI) — A good girl nowadays is not only hard to find in Buenos Aires, it's just about impossible if, by "good girl," you mean a maid.

"The boom days of maids are over here," lamented one housewife, wringing her dishpanhands. "Or at least for the long time being."

The number of people looking for maids is far greater than the number of girls willing to work as same. The classified pages of one morning newspaper had 302 want adds for maids recently, compared for 49 ads in which maids were offering their services.

And most of these had lengthy strings attached. Only five of the 49 were willing to work full-time. Several others offered to "live in" — but only if their employers would accept their husbands and children as well.

Maids here are paid anywhere from 700 to 1,500 pesos a month, the equivalent of $12 to $26. But many girls insist on a "free lance" hourly pay scale, which varies from 15 to 20 pesos an hour — 24 to 32 cents.

Generally, the girls work a six-day week, with Thursday and Sunday afternoons off. Uniforms are being used less and less, and the work-day is limited, in theory anyway, to eight hours. Usually, the maids demand three hours off in the early afternoon.

Why the shortage, then? "Factories are swallowing up the supply of maids," explained one Argentine. "The girls have more freedom and can see their friends when they want — and the working day is shorter."

Food Problem in 2050? Farm Experts Say 'No'

CHICAGO — (UPI) — Agricultural experts see no problem in feeding the nation's population of one billion persons that is expected two average lifetimes from now despite a sharp decrease in per capita farm acreage.

With present birth-and-death curves indicating 500 million Americans in 2050 and a full billion in 2100, the magazine National Livestock Producer says that man will still eat well, although he'll have less than two acres per person on which to produce his daily bread.

Every American Indian once had an average 2,400 acres of land to supply his food and fibre. Today, 175 million people have only 11 acres apiece.

With three million new citizens every year, the allowance will be reduced to six acres per person in just 42 years, and less than one-third of that by the end of the 21st century.

Researchers say these methods will be used to meet the situation:

Better plant breeding, greater soil fertility and plant protection. Greater use of plant and animal food products. New foods from currently wasted plants.

Development of new food-producing sources, including oceans, lakes and farm ponds. Solution of spoilage problem. Synthesis of proteins and fats through a more abundant sugar production.

PLANNING, ATTENTION TO DETAIL PAY OFF

Young Prize-Winners Give Tips on Decorating Home

CHICAGO — (UPI) — Three 17-year-old girls, with $400-jobs of interior decorating to their credit, agree that careful planning and meticulous attention to detail do the trick.

Ingenuity and the ability to compromise when necessary also helped, said the girls, who were among eight 4-H Club national winners in the annual Home Improvement program. Each won a $400 scholarship, awarded by the Sears - Roebuck Foundation, and a trip to the 37th National 4-H Club Congress.

"First you have to plan everything and decide on your color harmony," said Carolyn Robinett, 17, of Douglas, Okla. "Then follow it."

Miss Robinett made over an old kitchen into a bedroom. The pantry became the kind of closet girls dream about, complete with a fold-up ironing board, a desk, typewriter drawer, clothes hamper, cupboard and space galore.

Adjoining the closet is a rose-beige room, painted and curtained by Miss Robinett. Her ingenuity showed in the orange-crate dressing table, and a nail keg transformed into a dressing stool, both slipcovered.

Sharon Rand, 17, of Cheyenne, Wyo., turned a dark basement laundry room into a cheerful, yellow bedroom. She refinished a 50-year-old desk and chair set, hacking the age-blackened varnish off with a knife when remover didn't do the job.

Miss Rand hit a snag when her father learned the cost of the drapery material she had chosen.

"He said it cost too much," she said, "so I made them of pink percale I'd chosen for sheets and pillow cases, and they looked fine."

Carolyn Bradley, 17, of Portales, N.M., had only to go next door to the drapery shop, which she and her mother operate, to choose fabrics for her bedroom — blue chintz and a tiny flowered provincial print to cover the French Provincial bed she had found at a bargain.

She scraped old wallpaper from the walls and applied light pink paint. Miss Bradley also painted a picture to hang on the wall.

She made a rug of rug samples, but it was a disappointment. "You couldn't shake it out," she said, so she discarded it and substituted the old one.

COLOR, HEIGHT IMPORTANT

Planting a Garden? Be Down to Earth

NEW YORK — (UPI) — People who live in pink houses shouldn't plant orange marigolds, says the National Garden Bureau in a mid-winter advisory to home gardeners.

Don't let the glories of the first 1959 seed catalogs lure you into planning too ambitious a project, especially if it's your first garden.

Now's the time to bone up on flower and vegetable lore, paying particular attention to vital plant statistics. Seed catalogs tell how large certain plants become at maturity and what they'll look like. Many also contain planting instructions.

Color and height of flowers are important, the bureau said, not just for the garden's appearance, but as a setting for the home. Colors should harmonize or contrast with the exterior paint job, and plant varieties can be changed from year to year to complement your house.

For the front of a foundation or a fence garden, the bureau suggested dwarf dahlias that grow to a height of 1½ to 2 feet. Older, taller dahlias, that grow to a height of 3 to 5 feet, are suitable for the back against the foundation.

Dwarf marigolds make excellent edgings, the bureau added, and taller marigolds fit in farther back in the garden.

Study Asked On Schools

FORT LAUDERDALE — State school officials are being asked to make another study of future school needs in Broward County.

School Board members requested the study last week, and that it be conducted next fall.

Purpose of the survey is to determine where new school buildings will be needed. A similar study was made here two years ago.

Legislation Talk Slated

FORT LAUDERDALE — Local legislation will be discussed by Mrs. Ruth Raymond at a luncheon meeting Thursday of the Women's Republican Club. The group meets at noon at the Governors' Club Hotel.

Early reservations are suggested by calling Mrs. Betty Chambers Brooks, Mrs. George Heck or Mrs. H. T. Adams.

The club will give the first in a series of monthly card parties March 4 at the home of Mrs. Edward H. Jones, 115 SE 13 St.

Cherry Tree Ball Planned

FORT LAUDERDALE — A cherry tree ball will be given by members of the Venetian Dance Club Saturday at the Coral Ridge Country Club. The semi-formal dance will be from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m.

Mr. and Mrs. William McGarry head a committee composed of Mr. and Mrs. Stan Rosbon and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Saarinen.

The club was formed last year by 50 couples who give four dances each season.

PTA Plans Film Party

FORT LAUDERDALE — The Parkway Junior High School Parent-Teacher Association is sponsoring a theater party at the Gateway the week of Feb. 22.

Proceeds will be used to finish paying for stage curtains at the school.

Tickets can be purchased from students or members of the PTA committee. Mrs. T. J. Chippendale is publicity chairman.

History Repeats—Bookie Lid's Off

Herald Reporter Finds It's Easy To Place a Bet

By DOM BONAFEDE
Herald Staff Writer

The lid is off and the town's wide open.

It's bookies, bookies everywhere.

Not since Sen. Estes Kefauver and his crime-busting committee slapped down Greater Miami's syndicate gamblers nine years ago have the bookmakers dared to work so openly under the sun.

Anyone—but anyone—can lay down a bet on a horse, or a fight, or a ball game. All he has to show is money.

A Herald reporter working a couple of afternoons with the Greater Miami Crime Commission didn't have a bit of trouble even though in most cases he was a stranger to the bookmakers.

He put down 12 different bets on races and fights on both sides of Biscayne bay—Miami and Miami Beach.

And wherever he went, particularly on the Beach, the bookies were cautious but confident. Two even remarked the "fix" is in as they held out their hands for the cash.

A few, however, refused to take bets. They said they'd heard the state's attorneys men were around.

One said that at 7 a.m. that morning the word had gone out: "Beware of strangers today."

Locations of the transactions ran from a plush country club to down town hotels to cubbyhole newsstands. And the bettakers were everything from suave men-about-town to Damon Runyon characters with colorful nicknames.

In most instances, the bets were made with the ease and unconcern you would have in buying a quart of milk at the corner grocery store.

The fact that the deals were made without the bookie knowing the bettor was the best indication that the town is open, a crime commission investigator said. It's a rule among bookies never to do business with strangers — unless you have protection.

In addition to the dozen person-to-person bets, two others were made over the telephone by a Herald reporter posing as a bettor.

Multiply this by the scores of other betting spots throughout the length and breadth of Dade County and you get an idea of how the gamblers have moved in, the crime commissioner said.

A reflection of this shows up in the five per cent decrease in attendance and three per cent drop in betting at Hialeah Race Course this season even though there are more tourists here.

Despite the apparent upswing in bookie operations here, most law enforcement officials have been sticking by the theme: "Most booking is on a sneak basis."

Shortly before noon Satur-

A Smooth Bookie Is 'Phantom'

Dade's bookmakers operate on the "phantom principle."

You don't see them.

You see their agents. The agents have runners. And the runners have pickup boys.

The "phantom principle" is the bookies' own term. It's the sign of smooth organization — no fly-by-night operation.

You place a bet with a bellboy, a porter, a cabby, a lifeguard, a newsie, a grocer, a butcher, or — yes, it's true—sometimes even a candlestick-maker.

He may take your money, or he may give you credit—a wave of the hand or a simple, "OK, you're in."

To get your bet "down"—placed on the particular race—your betting source in Dade County immediately telephones the bookie's agent.

"We don't call The Man, himself often," a runner told a Herald reporter Saturday. "Somebody might be looking over my shoulder when I'm dialing."

The agent phones in the bet.

The payoff is worked in the same ladder fashion. The bookmaker has a collector. He makes his rounds daily, usually in the mornings, before the races begin, or in the evening, after they are over.

He pays off or collects with the agent. The agent goes through the same procedure with his runner. The runner then either pays you or collects.

"Slips," or notations of bets, are no longer fashionable — or wise, The Herald was told—for the runner or agent to make.

"If they (the police) ever do make a hit (arrest), they got evidence if they find the slips.

"We let the bigger boys worry about the slips. We just pick 'em up (the bets) and deliver (the winnings)."

The bookmaker pays his

Cancer Hits Dulles; Herter Will Fill In

I Would Take Post —Herter

No Offer Made, Says Dulles Aide

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — Undersecretary of State Christian A. Herter, mentioned as a possible successor to ailing Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, said Saturday he would accept the post if President Eisenhower offered it to him.

Herter made the statement in answer to questions on arriving here to take over as acting secretary of state pending the outcome of Dulles' second cancer attack.

The illness raised serious doubts that Dulles would ever again be able to resume full-time duties. But Herter emphasized he had "not been sounded out" as a possible successor.

The man most frequently mentioned as a possible successor was C. Douglas Dillon, undersecretary for economic affairs.

Other speculation centered on Herter; Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, a close friend of the president; former Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York; Henry Cabot Lodge, U. S. Ambassador to the U.N., and banker John J. McCloy, former U. S. high commissioner to Germany.

Dillon ranks slightly behind Herter. But political and diplomatic experts believe there are factors which might lead Dulles to recommend and the President to select the former investment broker over the former governor of Massachusetts.

Age is one consideration. At 49, Dillon has an obvious advantage over Herter, who is 63. Herter also has an arthritic condition which forces him to use crutches and a wheelchair.

Dillon also has served as U.S. ambassador to France and representative to NATO. He also is known as a firm supporter of Dulles' "rigid" policy in U.S.-Soviet dealings on German reunification and other European problems.

Herter is considered to be more "flexible" in his approach and willing to attempt new methods which Dulles at times has frowned upon.

Europeans Express Sympathy

LONDON — (UPI) — The announcement that John Foster Dulles has cancer drew expressions of sorrow and sympathy from European officials Saturday, even those who have bitterly opposed him.

A 37-word dispatch from the Soviet Tass News Agency brought news of Dulles' illness to Moscow. Speculation that Dulles would not return to work was bound to cause reaction in the Kremlin, which has denounced Dulles for years as a symbol of "imperialist aggression."

However, despite the flood of sympathetic statements from Western officials, it was considered unlikely there would be any immediate Russian reaction.

British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan, who had conferred with Dulles only last week during the secretary of state's hasty European tour to deal with the Berlin crisis, expressed his "great regret." He wished Dulles "a speedy recovery." Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd, Dulles' British counterpart, also expressed sympathy.

In Bonn, Dulles' good friend, Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, expressed the hope and belief that the American diplomat would recover.

"I believe Mr. Dulles will be able to take up his foreign political work very soon again," Adenauer said.

Dulles' Cancer Can Be Controlled

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Secretary of State John Foster Dulles has a type of cancer which is highly malignant, doctors said Saturday, but one which can be controlled for several years.

In many such cases the patient can return to full or limited occupations.

Private physicians gave this appraisal in interpreting for a reporter the medical bulletin issued by the surgeons who operated on Dulles for hernia Friday. They reported Saturday he will undergo radiation therapy for cancer.

The physicians said the medical bulletin indicates that the cancerous tissue found Saturday represents a spread from the original colon cancer for which Dulles underwent an operation in 1956.

The present diagnosis in Dulles' case is that he has an "adenocarcinoma."

It most commonly arises in the glandular portion of the intestinal tract, which has millions of glandular cells. Their function is to secrete mucus and gastric juices.

An adenocarcinoma is different from other types of cancer such as "sarcoma," which is a cancer of connective tissue — such as bone tissue or brain tissue. It is also different from cancer of the blood such as leukemia.

The doctors said they interpreted the medical bulletin to mean the following:

That the small nodule or lump found on the part of the intestine involved in Dulles' hernia represented a spread from focus of his original colon cancer operated on in 1956.

The doctors said that at the

Blow to U.S. Policy Is Feared

By Herald Wire Services

WASHINGTON — Congressional leaders voiced grave concern Saturday that Secretary of State John Foster Dulles' second cancer attack may hamper U.S. foreign policy at a time of crisis.

The announcement comes at a time when the U.S. and its allies are preparing for delicate negotiations with the Soviet Union on the Berlin crisis, German reunification, and European security.

Most congressional foreign affairs spokesmen foresaw no immediate change in administration foreign policy.

But Senate Democratic Whip Mike Mansfield of Montana, a member of the Foreign Relations Committee, said Dulles' illness "is a devastating blow to the nation, to the world and to the hope for peace" at a "time of desperate need."

Sen. Frank Carlson (R., Kan.), also a foreign relations member, said he hopes that even though Dulles is on leave of absence, "our nation will get the benefit of his background experience which is so important now."

President Silent on His Plans

Further Surgery Is Not Planned

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — Secretary of State John Foster Dulles has again been stricken by cancer, raising grave doubts that he can continue as chief architect of President Eisenhower's foreign policy.

The grim news was announced Saturday by the President after he personally talked to the venerable cabinet officer at his bedside.

Dulles was operated on for a similar malignancy in November, 1956, and was believed cured.

The President said Dulles is fully aware that he has cancer again.

He said "further treatment" will be required and that Dulles will continue on a leave of absence.

The President's statement, read to reporters at Walter Reed Army Medical Center, did not touch on Dulles' future tenure in office.

According to a White House spokesman, the President has no plans now to appoint a new secretary. He will still fly to Acapulco, Mexico, next week, to visit the president of Mexico.

Eisenhower received word about 9 a.m. that Dulles had reincurred cancer.

Undersecretary of State Christian A. Herter flew back from a South Carolina vacation to take over as acting secretary. He will fill, at least temporarily, one of the most difficult posts in the world.

State Department Press Officer Lincoln White said "no further surgery on Dulles is contemplated. He said radiation therapy will be used in the immediate future.

The finding of free cancer cells was made on the basis of microscopic examination of tissue and fluid taken from Dulles' abdominal region during a hernia operation Friday.

Doctors said the radiation therapy — employing radium, X-ray or use of new radioisotopes developed in the atomic age — will be designed to attack the new outbreak of cancer in the hope of cutting down its spread to other parts of the body.

Nothing was said by either the President or White about the possibility of a resignation by Dulles, who will be 71 Feb. 25.

In the 1956 occurrence, a cancerous portion of Dulles' intestine was removed by Walter Reed surgeons. The malignan-

He Thought He Rescued His Son . . .

CUTTEN, Calif. — (AP) — A three-year-old boy, whom his father thought he had tossed to safety, burned to death in his home here early Saturday.

The father, Frank Mello, told firemen an explosion sent flames racing through the five-room home. He said he ran into Glenn's bedroom and tossed what he tought was his son out a window. Then he and his wife and another son, Frank Jr., jumped out another window.

Firemen, searching for Glenn outside the home, found only a pile of bedclothes.

Fire Destroys Actor's Home

The actor, now star of television's "Have Gun, Will Travel," was in New York with his wife, Claire, and their five-year-old son, Peter. The $50,000 home was unoccupied.

Editor's Note

A Tragic Illness

Due to the mechanical intricacies of publishing Sunday's Miami Herald, the Editor's Notebook by John S. Knight was written and printed before the news of the tragic illness of Secretary of State John Foster Dulles.

All the nation admires the courage and fortitude of Mr. Dulles and joins in hopes for his early recovery though his condition may require him to resign.

It is with these thoughts in mind that the reader may turn to the Editor's Notebook on Page 2G where the office of Secretary of State and our foreign policy are discussed in detail.

11 Perish in Flames In Firetrap Building

Nine Hurt Jumping For Life

ASHLAND, Ky. — (UPI) — Eleven persons, including five members of one family, were burned to death early Saturday when flames swept through several small second-story apartments in a converted theater building.

Nine other persons suffered burns and injuries jumping from the upstairs windows of the two-story building. Police, who arrived shortly after the blaze started, helped rescue some of the victims.

Boyd County Coroner Russell Compton identified the victims as Jack McKenzie, 30, his wife, Polly, 28, whose son was stillborn after she jumped from the building, and their three other sons, Johnny William, one; Mickey Joe, two, and Jackie, four. Firemen said their room had a door but no windows.

Fire department officials said that one of the bodies was incorrectly identified as that of Frank Kirk, Ashland, who lived at the building but was out of town at the time of the fire. The body of the fire victim remained unidentified late Saturday.

Other dead were listed as James E. Powell, 22, of nearby Flatwoods, Ky.; Mrs. Grace Blanton, 45, a cook in a restaurant on the first floor of the building; Frank Artis, about 45; and Clyde May, all of Ashland.

Still hospitalized late Saturday were: John Lucas, 42, Denton, Ky.; Fay Fannon, 17,; Alice Fannon, 19, and John Posey, about 85. They all suffered burns and other injuries. Five other persons were dismissed after treatment.

The building, the old Columbia Vaudeville Theater built in 1891, had only one exit, an inside stairway which was cut off by the flames. Ironically, materials for a fire escape which was to have been installed next week were stored in the rear.

Her Best Valentine: Dad, Brother Alive

ASHLAND, Ky —(AP)— Saturday was the best Valentine's Day ever for Frank Kirk's family.

Identified by relatives as among the 11 dead in Saturday morning's apartment house fire, Kirk, 47, turned up alive in Wayne, W. Va., a few hours later.

So did his 14-year-old son, Jack, who had been listed as missing and feared dead in the fire.

A daughter, Mrs. Jim Barker of Ashland, said, "I can't explain how I felt when I learned that my father was alive and well."

Her husband and Russell Kirk of Ashland, an uncle, had identified a body as that of her father at a temporary morgue.

She said she wanted to make sure of the identification before she could believe it, and had called a cousin, Harold Lee Pelfrey, at Wayne. It was then that she learned her father and brother were safe. They had been visiting Pelfrey since Thursday.

Sweeney Misses; It's $700 Now

By SUNNY FORTUNE
Herald Puzzle Editor

Another week, another $100. That's today's story of the Sunny Fortune Puzzle, now worth $700.

SUNNY

On account of J. M. Sweeney of Homestead, it almost wasn't so. Sweeney wrote "owe" for "own" on last week's game, and as a result, he doesn't own the jackpot.

So Sweeney gets a sunny smile and another chance at the big money, as do the rest of you puzzle fans.

That includes Mrs. E. L. Loftes, also of Homestead, who wants us to put something straight. Remember last week when we mentioned the woman who worked the puzzles secretly so her husbnad wouldn't fuss at her?

Well, it wasn't Mrs Loftes.

I know she'll be glad we're mentioning this, because she writes, "I am in the dog house. My husband says I wrote you ! . . and he is guilty of fussing at me."

Take heart, fussed-at women of South Florida. Someone's got to win sometime, and maybe it'll be you. So grab your pencils, cross your fingers, and turn to Page 12B.

History Repeats--Bookie Lid's Off

day a reporter sauntered into the lobby of the Dolphin Hotel, in downtown Miami at 937 NE 1st Ave. In the stuffed chairs sat several men, almost all of whom were studying racing forms or odds sheets.

After striking up a conversation with one of the lobby-loungers, the reporter inquired as to where a bet could be made.

"The fellow will be around pretty soon," was the reply.

Within a few minutes "the fellow" — who turned out to be an elevator operator called Harry — came over and offered a racing sheet to the reporter.

Harry then gave a signal: "Follow me."

At a recess of the lobby he candidly acknowledged he took bets — "for friends."

After accepting a $10 bet on the first race at Hialeah he informed the bettor to come back at three o'clock if the horse won.

The horse, a favorite called Skate, obliged by coming in first, paying $3.90 for each $2 wagered.

If your taste runs to fighters as well as horses you can still get action. But let's cross the bay to Miami Beach to do it.

He, in turn, passed it on to short, stubby "Myer the Flyer," who sits at the rear of 540 Washington Ave.

The office of the society has been raided twice in the past 13 years for bookmaking, although not in the past two years.

It is the only place in Dade which leases a special sports results teletype from Western Union.

According to the Southern Bell Telephone Co., the telephones in the place were installed on application from Benny Husick, alias Benny Harris, who is currently out on $5,000 bond in an armed robbery case. Husick, alias Harris, has a record of 17 previous arrests.

Early last week a newsman asked Miami Beach Police Lt. C. W. Huddleston, day chief of detectives, about the activities at the club.

"So far as I know, all they run up there are quiet card games," he answered.

These were only a couple a the 12 but we'll come to the rest.

Also, within the last few weeks there have been rumblings of increasing bookmaking and gambling at the elite hotels of Miami Beach.

It was learned that State Attorney Richard Gerstein and Assistant Attorney General George Owen last week paid a call on the owner of one of the Beach's swankiest hotels to advise him to clamp down on horse betting.

How do our top-drawer law enforcement officials view the mounting bookie operations here?

Varying viewpoints were expressed by Gerstein and Dan Sullivan, director of the Greater Miami Crime Commission.

"A concerted effort by this office," declared Gerstein, "in combination with the office of Attorney General Richard Ervin and Metro Public Safety Director Tom Kelly has reduced bookmaking to a minimum in comparison to other years.

"However, I'm convinced we've had our usual influx of winter season bookmakers."

He estimated his office has made 40 gambling arrests since the start of the tourist season.

Said Sullivan:

"In recent days the Crime Commission has received a number of reports the Beach has opened up and that gambling has also opened up in some of the plush oceanfront hotels.

"Investigations to date give credence to at least some of these reports," Sullivan declared.

agent a regular commission fee just as any salesman might receive. The agent does the same with his runner.

At the end of a day's work, an agent cannot welch on his "take" to the bookmaker because he is paid only on what he gets down (bets actually recorded).

Every bet, every "relay" (of heavy wagers), every "tip" (on odds) is passed along from bookie to agent, or from agent to bookie, from a pay telephone booth — either on a business premises or on the street.

"That way," a runner boasted, "the businessman can always plead (to prosecuting law authorities) that the pay phone is essential to his business and would prove a definite hardship if taken out.

"And the funny part about it," the runner said, "since I been down here eight years, the courts always fall for that one."

"You can see," the runner said, "they (bookmakers) could only use their phantom principle if they were all organized.

"It's no hit or miss operation."

Reds Reduce Political Prisoners

NEW YORK — (UPI) — A Harvard law professor said the number of labor camps in the Soviet Union had been cut drastically and that Russia now had about one million prisoners, less than one-third the number prior to Stalin's death.

Prof. Harold J. Berman said on the NBC radio network program, "Image Russia," that less than two per cent of the Russian prisoners were confined for political reasons.

"Hundreds of thousands — and perhaps millions — of people have been released from the camps since Stalin's death," Berman said.

"You can see them in Moscow and talk to them about it. Whole camps have been emptied, and it's probably true that 70 per cent of the labor camps that existed before are no longer in use."

Berman said his information was based on talks with the deputy procurator general of the Soviet Union and other Russian officials. He said he believed he was the only non-Russian who had received this information.

38th Body Out Of East River

NEW YORK — (AP) — The East River Saturday yielded the 38th body from an American Airlines plane crash. The victim was identified tentatively as Gregory MacDonnell, 18-year-old sailor of Pearl River, N.Y.

The crash occurred Feb. 3 as the Electra turbo-prop liner approached LaGuardia field for a landing. Sixty-five persons died. Eight survived.

Wabash Dangers Are Eased

Sandbags Hold; Ice Breaking Up

WEST TERRE HAUTE, Ind. —(AP)— This flood-threatened city came through a crucial test Saturday when the crest of the flooding Wabash River flowed past the town without destroying the sandbag dike holding off its backwaters.

A huge ice jam began breaking up under mild temperatures upstream at Delphi, easing another peril on the storied Wabash. The lower end of the jam began moving downstream in small sections.

The sandbag dike on Sugar Creek was punctured but quickly patched as the flood crest built up early Saturday. But in the hour of greatest crisis, it proved equal to the test.

The Wabash had been expected to reach a depth of 24.3 feet at West Terre Haute early Saturday. Light rain helped raise it to 24.6—10.6 feet above flood stage. It remained stationary for awhile, then by afternoon fell to 24.3, in spite of light rain.

The Indianapolis weather bureau said flood stages were falling from West Terre Haute virtually all the way upstream.

Although the worst crisis appeared to be over for West Terre Haute, a fresh contingent of 125 National Guardsmen and 50 penal farm prisoners was sent in to keep a close watch. When the dike broke, the workers succeeded in plugging up the break before much water poured onto the suburb.

Meanwhile, officials predicted a monumental ice jam upstream from Lafayette, which threatened bridges and homes, might break up "momentarily" or at least with the arrival of a two-foot rise on the Wabash.

Attorney general John W. McConnell and two engineers inspected the 12-mile long ice pack and decided it would not be necessary to dynamite the ice loose.

Latin Lands On March

WASHINGTON — (AP) — If present trends continue, the world's population will swell to nearly 6,300,000,000 persons by the year 2,000 — with the biggest gains coming in Latin America, Asia and Africa.

This was the view reported by Dr. Harold L. Geisert, a George Washington University sociologist, who forecast a world population rise of almost 152 per cent above the 1950 level.

Geisert said his study shows that Latin America is growing more rapidly in population than any other major area.

Maggie Truman Is Expecting

NEW YORK —(UPI)— Clifton Daniel said Saturday he and his wife, the former Margaret Truman, are expecting their second child in June.

Daniel, 46, assistant to the managing editor of The New York Times, said his wife, who will be 35 next Tuesday, was in "fine" condition.

Daniel and the daughter of former President Harry S. Truman were married April 21, 1956. They are the parents of a son, Clifton Truman Daniel, 18 months.

cy was reported effectively checked.

"While I was with him," the President said, "his doctors discussed with us their finding of the existence of malignancy not fully determined at this time as to its extent, but certain to require further treatment."

He added that he "expressed the thoughts and prayers of all of us that the results of this operation and the further course of treatment will be successful."

The chief executive's statement was read to newsmen by Assistant White House Press Secretary Anne Wheaton.

White reported Dulles was "in good spirits" after the hernia operation. He said "a small nodular implant on the hernia sac" was removed.

"This nodule proved to be an adenocarcinoma on microscopical examination," White continued. "The fluid evacuated at surgery contained free cells on cytological examination.

"No further surgery is contemplated. In the immediate future radiation therapy will be used."

White said Dulles' doctors expect he will have to remain at the hospital "for several weeks." He declined to speculate on the outlook for the ailing secretary beyond that or the course of treatment.

Sosa Blanco Gets Break

HAVANA, Cuba — (AP) — The death sentence against ex-Maj. Jesus Sosa Blanco was set aside Saturday and he was granted a new trial.

Sosa Blanco had been condemned Jan. 23 on war crimes charges.

He was tried in Havana's sports palace in the first major showcase trial in the capital.

The new trial was granted by the same military tribunal that tried him in the sports palace. His new trial was set for 10 a.m. Monday before a superior war crimes tribunal.

At his first trial the 51-year-old career army officer was convicted on charges of murdering at least 25 persons, robbery, looting and burning homes of rebel sympathizers in Oriente Province.

Dulles' Cancer Can Be Controlled for Years

time the colon cancer was removed in 1956, some small portions of it may still have remained, involving lymphatic glands neighboring on the original cancer site.

And ultimately, they said, the cells apparently spread to the new site.

The doctors said that while the outlook in cases of adenocarcinoma is ultimately grave, the further spread of the cancer can be kept under control for several years in many instances.

They said control involves such measures as X-ray and chemotherapy. This includes the use of certain drugs derived from nitrogen mustard, a war gas developed during World War I. One of the most effective of these nitrogen mustards is one called "thiotepa."

Another medical treatment for adenocarcinoma involves injection of radioactive gold into the abdominal cavity.

One person was asked whether the presence of adenocarcinoma would be compatible with a return to duty in such a job as secretary of state. The doctor said it would be all right, provided activity were limited largely to desk work, with no "long periods of strenuous activity."

And he offered the view that there should be "no prolonged worldwide travel." Dulles has been making numerous long trips in his job.

The doctor said that in some cases of the disease, daily treatment with X rays is required. In such cases, he said, it is well to stay close to a source of such treatment.

Now Listen To This, You Unwed Gals

LOS ANGELES — (AP) — If you're a gal who hasn't yet caught a man, hear this advice from a professional marriage counselor:

1—Make your target feel important, stimulating and understood.

2—Be physically attractive, but don't count on that quality to take you all the way to the altar.

3—Have motivation — really want a husband.

Dr. Richard H. Klemer, associate general director of the American Institute of Family Relations, offered the advice in an interview.

After you've caught the prospect's eye, Dr. Klemer suggests, "use your addicting power' — the ability to respond to the real needs of the other person.

Warm Weather Dominates Florida; Snow Blankets New England

National Summary

Cloudy skies and showers will persist across the Gulf region through the weekend except for fair and warm weather over the Florida peninsula. Rain in the Atlantic states and southern Appalachians is likely to end following the invasion of colder air.

Freezing rain mixed with snow over portions of New York and New England should change to flurries today. Scattered snow showers are expected over the northern Rockies and plateau and snow is scheduled from the Dakotas into Minnesota today, while a mixture of snow and rain continues in the Pacific northwest.

Heavy wind driven rain is indicated for northern and central California today with substantial snow fall anticipated in the mountains and some rain may move into southern parts of the state today.

A disturbance moving across the Great Lakes region Saturday was followed by cooler air which scattered snow flurries from the Dakotas and Nebraska into the upper Mississippi Valley and cleared most of the wet weather out of the lower plains.

The cold front was marked by showers from east Texas into Indiana at mid-day while mild air over the southeast yielded occasional rain and temperatures in the 60's as far north as Kentucky and the Carolinas.

'Visiting Firemen' Told No Dice

Vice Sleuths Find West Palm Quite Virtuous

By ED PFISTER
Herald Bureau Chief

WEST PALM BEACH — A couple of Fort Lauderdale detectives masquerading as free-spending "visiting firemen" failed to unearth any evidence Friday and Saturday of a torrid call-girl racket. In fact, they couldn't even find a cool one.

They tossed around something like $100, tried to enlist the assistance of a bellhop in a downtown hotel and put the buzz on a taxi driver, but the answer still was "no dice."

They didn't however, come away empty handed.

[illegible] they found in the north side Chi Chi Club, where some of the $56 for drinks was apparently invested, that four girls were violating city ordinances by cadging drinks and making overtures in a lewd manner.

They also reported that on at least two occasions they were told if they wanted to find available "ladies of the evening," they would have to go to a couple of plush spots in exclusive Palm Beach.

The experiment of using imported detectives to uncover suspected vice, stemmed from reports at a City Commission meeting a couple of weeks back that "everybody knew call girls were operating." Cabbies were blamed for hauling them around.

Obviously, it wouldn't do for West Palm Beach detectives, whose faces are familiar, to be dropping into "hot spots" for evidence, so police Chief R. Milburn enlisted the aid of the Fort Lauderdale department, obtained a $100 allotment of funds from the city, and the experiment was on.

Actually, city detectives [illegible] by Lt. W. M. Barnes, said there was practically no evidence to support charges that there is a big call girl racket in the city.

They admitted individual girls, working on their own and frequenting clubs, might do some business but claimed that type is hard to catch.

"The city," Barnes said, "is comparatively clean."

The bill turned in by the visiting detectives included $22.10 for the hotel experiment, $9.71 for dinner, $5 in tips, $4 for cab fare, $[illegible] some of which apparently went to the cadging gals — and $4 for another cab trip.

The women who face charges for cadging the drinks were identified as Alice Mary Morgan, 38, and Betty Honeker, 35, both Pompano Beach; Shelia Carter, alias "Sheila Tequila," 27, and Catherine Hezy, alias "Countess Nata[illegible] with [illegible] West Palm Beach.

The police report on the experiment [illegible] would confer with city officials about filing morals charges as an aftermath of evidence found by the visiting detectives.

The city a week ago approved an ordinance making it illegal to aid, abet, transport or in any other way assist in "moral perversion."

Turn Back Clock

By ED PFISTER
Herald Bureau Chief

Inflation, taxes and shrinking take home pay have spurred some fine recollection of the "good old days."

PFISTER

Ah, it was great — oil lamps, wood-fired stoves, the horse and buggy, cast iron derbies, the bustle and a wild night perusing the family album in a chill parlor.

I was too young then to know about inflation, old enough to know that when Halloe'en came, old man German's farm was the place to get a pumpkin — if German and his rock salt gun weren't around.

Perched on a knob near the farm was a scabby, weather beaten frame house. The windows were cracked, the doors warped, the interior dark and forbidding. We knew what that was. It was the Pest house, where they took victims of that dread disease, the smallpox.

Say, whatever happened to smallpox, anyway? And why were all those things so prominent in the old days abandoned?

On the Books

IN CERTAIN QUARTERS of West Palm Beach and other spots up and down the Florida east coast there is agitation for closing up non-essential businesses on Sunday.

The move has made itself felt in Jacksonville and Miami as well as in the Palm Beaches.

There has been talk of drafting legislation for the upcoming session to turn into a law with teeth in it.

But the law is already there. State Sen. Fred O. Dickinson said the bill is on the books for those who want it — it isn't new legislation but enforcement that is the issue.

Court Merger?

PALM BEACH COUNTY, which has recently found itself interested in a fifth circuit judge and a second county judge, may get a surprise when the Legislature goes into action this spring.

At the same time the moves for the additional judges were launched the judicial council came up with some recommendations for consolidating the courts that might eliminate some of the wide variety.

One proposal might incorporate in Circuit Court both the County Court and the Criminal Court.

One of the reasons — you don't have to be a law graduate to be a county judge and in some counties, the judges have had no legal training. The other courts do require a legal education.

4 Rescued From Inlet

BOYNTON BEACH — Four persons, including a nine-year-old boy, were rescued Saturday when their boat capsized in Boynton Inlet.

The nine-year-old, David Scanlan, was trapped under the overturned 16-foot outboard but was pulled to safety by his father, Ed Scanlan.

The foursome, all of Delray Beach, included Louis Lanier and Vernon Yatzex. They were brought to shore by Capt. Herb Schultz of the Southern Comfort.

Only Swamp Buggies, Helicopter, Could Reach Wrecked Plane

Druggist, Contractor Victims

By ED PFISTER
Herald Bureau Chief

LAKE WORTH — Two Lake Worth businessmen were found dead Saturday in the wreckage of an airplane they rented 24 hours earlier at Lantana Airport "to do some sightseeing and take pictures."

The victims were identified as:

Charles T. Robinson, 39, of 1221 Reo Lane, owner of Robinson's Drugstore there, a veteran flier and World War II veteran who piloted the ship.

Thomas K. Evans, 29, Carlton Rd., a contractor and former constable who figured in a long drawn out suit over election expenditures.

A Coast Guard helicopter was used in lifting the bodies out of the wreckage in a swampy and wooded area of the Everglades 14 miles northwest of Boynton Beach.

Sheriff's deputies Bob Day and Sam Quincey, said only a helicopter or a swamp buggy could gain access to the swampy morass where the airplane crashed.

The deputies said it appeared as if a wing of the ship had struck a tree about 30 feet off the ground, flipping the plane over on its back and plunging it into two feet of water and muck.

The wing tip was torn off, and the engine was ripped off the front of the plane.

Day said both bodies were in the airplane when the helicopter and swamp buggies reached the tangled area of the crash.

The bodies were flown to International Airport in West Palm Beach and were removed to the E. Earl Smith and Son Funeral Home in Lake Worth.

International Air Service at Lantana Airport said Robinson and Evans appeared there about 1 p.m. Friday and rented the ship. Robinson was quoted as saying they wanted to do some sightseeing and take pictures with a movie camera they had along.

They took off in the rented four-place Cessna about 1:30 p.m., the air service said, with fuel for five hours flying time. The ship was radio equipped but the tower here had no record of contact with the plane.

Families of the fliers became alarmed when they failed to return at dusk Friday. Both the Civil Air Patrol and Coast Guard in Miami were alerted and started a search at dawn Saturday.

Capt. Glenn Snyder, of the CAP, spotted the wrecked plane before noon Saturday in the isolated area of the Everglades west of State Rd. 7 and directed rescue squads to the scene.

Robinson is survived by his wife, Blanche C.; three daughters, Charlotte, Jane and Eleanor Bea; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Robinson Sr., Fort Lauderdale; one brother and three sisters.

Airports To Stay Open

Herald Bureau

WEST PALM BEACH — None of Palm Beach County's airports — in this city, at Lantana or in the Glades — will cease operations until new airports are built to replace them.

That was the assurance given to the newly chartered Palm Beach County Aviation Association by County Commissioner Kenneth Foster.

Foster told the organization that noise was an element that could not be eliminated in airport operation but he said up to the present, the county's airports have not only been paying their way but they are conveniences to the public.

The county has in the works plans for a "jet age" airport northwest of the city — in an area remote from residential district — but the project is still in the preliminary stage and it will be two years or more before such an airport is built.

Frank Sakser, county airport director, said the precise disposition of a large portion of International Airport could not be determined until Palm Beach Air Force Base turns the property back to the county.

The air base is scheduled for deactivation by June 30. It is adjacent to the county's International Airport.

Former Mayor Robert T. O'Connor, of Lake Worth, is president of the Aviation Association.

Change Is Eyed In Electric Rates

By ROSE ALLEGATO
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE WORTH — City commissioners Monday will consider changing electric rates in Lake Worth—a move aimed at winning support for the city-owned power facility.

A cut in rates would knock down the main argument of a faction seeking to have the city electric system sold or leased to Florida Power and Light Co., a private concern.

This group has argued that the city rates are too high and the power system inadequate.

A new rate schedule will be presented to commissioners at their 7:30 p.m. meeting Monday. If adopted, the schedule would be comparable to Florida Power and Light's scale or even lower.

Indications Saturday were that the commission will act favorably on the new rates. The changes, in general, will bring lower bills to home consumers. The city's industrial rates will remain the same.

In effect, the new schedule means lower power rates "across the board" and will cost $45,000 yearly in lost time for the city power plant.

However, commissioners feel the public wants the lower rates. Also, two commission seats and the mayor's post are at stake in the April municipal election.

Commissioners, despite widespread criticism and a Circuit Court setback, have moved ahead with plans to expand the city's power plant.

They are appealing a Circuit Court decision denying validation of 2.1 million dollars in revenue bonds for plant expansion.

The city has been divided into three factions over the power issue:

First, city commissioners and their supporters, who want to keep the plant, arguing it is cheaper in the long run because it provides revenue for the city.

Second, the group which wants the plant leased or sold. This group lost a July, 1958 vote on leasing only because charter provisions require 60 per cent of the freeholders to vote in a referendum.

Third, a group not concerned with who owns the plant as long as adequate, inexpensive service is available.

Board To Boost Its Pay

Herald Bureau

WEST PALM BEACH — City commissioners Monday are expected to bring up a salary raise for themselves.

Reliable sources reported Saturday that commissioners will propose their salaries be raised from $3,000 annually to $5,000.

The last city commission pay hike came three years ago when the annual stipend was boosted from $1,800 to $3,000. The mayor gets $3,600.

This pay raise had been proposed by City Commissioner L. W. Kelloway but was voted down by the then-majority block on the commission.

Later, after Kelloway was defeated at the polls, the move was revived and the new commission went ahead with the pay boost.

On that date The Herald will add the weekly schedule of five more Florida television stations to the pull-out section of Fun in Florida magazine.

The additions will include Channels 6 and 9 at Orlando; Channel 2 at Daytona Beach and Channels 5 and 12 at West Palm Beach, in addition to Channels 4, 7 and 10 at Miami.

Florida's Most Complete Newspaper is adding these five television stations as another service to its readers.

Negro Attorney:

Pupil Law 'Won't Stand'

WEST PALM BEACH —(UPI)— A Negro attorney, blocked for a second time in his efforts to get his son admitted to a white school, predicted Saturday the U.S. district court of appeals would quickly knock out the Florida pupil assignment law.

William M. Holland said the appellate court "all but declared the pupil assignment law unconstitutional" several months ago when it ordered the federal court in Miami to rehear the case.

Holland is seeking to have his 8-year-old son, William Jr., admitted to an all-white school here. But Federal Judge Emett Choate in Miami Friday refused a second time to order the Negro admitted to the white school.

He told Holland to seek integration through the administrative procedures of the pupil assignment law.

Holland promptly announced he would again appeal the two-year-old case to a higher federal court.

He said he would ask to have the arguments moved up on the calendar.

Holland added he had no doubts of the outcome in the appellate court.

Dillingham Announces Candidacy

Herald Bureau

LAKE WORTH — C. H. Dillingham, president of Dillingham, Inc. an insurance agency, announced Saturday he is a candidate for the city commission in the April 7 election from Precinct 3.

In making his announcement he said "I am not a politician. I am a business man. Management of a city the size of Lake Worth is 'big business' and requires the administrative services of businessmen."

Dillingham, who is 37, and his wife, Frances, have two children both attending North Grade School and are members of the First Baptist Church.

They came here in 1947 from Atlanta, where Dillingham obtained a degree in law.

He is chaplain of Lake Worth Elks Lodge, chairman of various committees, a director of civitans and committeeman and institutional representative of Boy Scout Cub Pack 249.

Candidates Start Filing On Monday

Herald Bureau

WEST PALM BEACH — The curtain will officially lift for the 1959 municipal election Monday when the filing period opens for candiates who will seek two seats on the City Commission.

Up to Saturday nothing resembling a rush for the commission posts appeared to be developing.

Mayor Horace S. Miller has already announced he will seek a fourth term on the board, and Commissioner L. W. Kelloway, who has served three non-consecutive terms, is again expected to be in the running.

No other candidates have been mentioned.

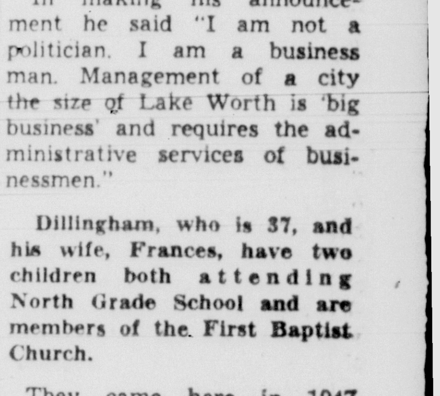
The March 31 election is still more than a month and a half away and opposition to the two commissioners is expected to develop.

Reports are that the Good Government League is grooming two candidates to oppose Miller and Kelloway, and there are rumors of a "dark horse," but no one has announced publicly.

Bond Issue On Agenda

WEST PALM BEACH — City Commissioners Monday will be confronted with the question of whether $150,000 in "future bonds" should be issued from the water and sewer issue to aid neglected areas of the city.

Commissioner Sylvan Burdick has announced he will bring the subject before the board for the purpose of making sewer installations in the north side and for subdivisions north of Belvedere Road.



"SWEETHEART of Jennie Murphree Hall" at Florida State University is Karen Thoureen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. R. Thoureen, Lake Worth. She's a fashion merchandising major in the school of home economics. Coronation was held Saturday at the freshman Valentine Dance.

Meany
. . . tries persuasion

Hutcheson
. . . snubs reform call

AFL-CIO officials are trying to use compromise technique rather than expelling unions which fail to oust corrupt leaders. Federation's leaders fear expulsion is weakening labor movement, might create a rival labor movement.

Best deterrent to future labor corruption may be fact that many union leaders are shocked at extent of McClellan Committee's exposures. However, McC[illegible]an believes unions can't do clean-up job themselves, that effective legislation is required.

NEW YORK—Organized labor seems to be dealing more gingerly nowadays with union bad boys caught raiding the cookie jar.

Leaders of America's big union federation, the AFL-CIO, are steering clear of the drastic type of punishment meted out when Dave Beck and the Teamsters Union were exiled from the rest of labor.

In San Juan, Puerto Rico, AFL-CIO chiefs of the federation's policy-making Executive Council open their winter sessions Monday. On the agenda is a batch of new union scandals dished up by the McClellan Labor Rackets Committee.

Two of the unions involved in new disclosures are the carpenters and Sheet Metal Workers, both key organizations in the AFL-CIO's internal structure.

George Meany, AFL-CIO president, has been experimenting with a sort of woodshed technique in dealing with corruption. It amounts to trying to get unions to correct malpractices and oust corrupt leaders without expelling them from the AFL-CIO.

Federation leaders are fed up with ouster as a remedy. They feel it hasn't solved anything particularly in the three unions already expelled—the Teamsters, Laundry Workers and Bakery Workers. They say it has merely reduced AFL-CIO membership and effectiveness.

"What are we supposed to do—dismantle the labor movement?" one AFL-CIO vice president asked irritably.

"After all, the employers haven't ostracized the Teamsters. They are still doing business with Jimmy Hoffa, and the old CIO kicked out Harry Bridges' West Coast Longshoremen back in 1950 as Commie-dominated, but employers have kept right on dealing with Bridges."

Reminded that trucking and shipping employers are compelled by law to deal with these unions as the legal bargaining agents for their employes, this union leader said, "Well, they don't have to be so enthusiastic about it, do they?"

The trouble with Meany's woodshed method—bringing in a scandal-tainted union's leaders and telling them what they have to do to clean up—is that success depends upon just how much the recalcitrant union is willing to be punished. This leads to compromise.

In fact, the sole AFL-CIO power to police is affiliated unions is the same as in most any other organization. Expulsion is the only weapon if persuasion won't work. Unions realize this, and the bigger ones won't yield an inch.

This seems to be the case in the Carpenters Union. Its president, [illegible] Hutch) Hutcheson, is under indictment in an Indiana highway land scandal. He has refused to answer Senate Rackets Committee questions about union spending.

Moreover, one of Hutcheson's fellow Carpenters officials, Charles Johnson of New York, has, according to McClellan Committee testimony, received along with three relatives nearly $450,000 in union salaries and expenses in the three-year 1955-57 period.

Meany has tried the woodshed technique on Hutcheson in a series of secret conferences. But Hutcheson reportedly just isn't buying Meany's reform suggestions, including a proposal that Hutcheson take a leave of absence pending the outcome of his Indiana trial.

Hutcheson, an AFL-CIO vice president and Executive Council member, has been invited for a second time to appear before the council to explain what he wouldn't tell the McClellan Committee.

[illegible] the AFL-CIO with a delicate problem. It plainly would call for ousting the 850,000-member Carpenters organization, which has also refused to adopt the AFL-CIO ethical practices codes. Hutcheson's union has authorized him to pull the Carpenters out of the AFL-CIO.

If the Carpenters quit the federation, other building trades unions may follow suit. The building trades, core of the old AFL, are boiling anyway in a renewal of their ancient feud over job jurisdiction rights with the industrial unions of the old CIO.

AFL-CIO leaders fear that ousting the Carpenters could throw them into an alliance with the Teamsters, the expelled Bakery Workers and other ousted unions and set up a potent rival labor center, or union federation. Such a dual federation would start out with about 3½ million members compared with the AFL-CIO's estimated 14 million.

All this doesn't mean that many positive accomplishments haven't been made in ridding unions of gangster and hoodlum influences and plain and fancy stealing of members' dues money. Much has been done.

For one thing, "the heat is on," meaning that for the present, anyway, the fast buck out of a union treasury is no only unpopular but unhealthy. The AFL-CIO has accepted a complex set of ethical practice codes—spelling out stealing, graft, shakedown, conflicts of interest, etc. that can't be tolerated.

Probably the greatest [illegible] corruption, however, is the fact that many union leaders report themselves shocked at the extent of the disclosures. Meany—sometimes called the "honest plumber"—says he knew there was some funny business all along, but never dreamed of its extent.

Actually, many students of labor unions feel the movement is just reaching a state of maturity. Unions didn't amount to much even so short a time as a quarter century ago. Now they have a lot more members, a lot more power and influence, and a lot more funds at their disposal.

Responsible union leaders look upon clean unionism as a public concern; they know they are more than just fraternal clubs now.

Sen. McClellan says he doesn't think anyone is satisfied with progress unions are making in handling corruption problems.

He believes effective legislation is required. [illegible] meets its responsibility by the enactment of laws that are necessary, these (corrupt) conditions will continue to prevail in many areas of labor-management relations."

Russians Stamp Claims Victory

LONDON — (UPI) — The Soviet Union has issued a postage stamp in honor of a basketball championship it never won.

Radio Moscow said a new one-ruble stamp was dedicated to the Soviet victory at Santiago, Chile. The announcer said the Soviet team took the championship by defeating the U. S. team on Jan. 28.

What really happened at Santiago was that, after defeating the U.S., Russia was disqualified for refusing to play against the Chinese Nationalist team. The Russians argued that the team from Formosa represented no nation.

Golden 'Bullet' Aims at Gland

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia — (AP) — A Czechoslovak doctor claims to have developed a less dangerous method of removing the pituitary gland by using radioactive gold.

The official CTK news agency explained that the gland attached to the brain has been found to have an important effect on some types of cancer, and that its removal in such cases relieves pain and prolongs life.

The agency said the Prof. Josef Pavrovsky, of Prague's First Surgical Institute, injects a grain of radioactive gold into the gland with a special surgical pistol, stopping the functioning of the gland
